Pandit Lekhram Vedic Mission has been formed to work upon the objectives dear to the heart of Dandi Swami Virjanand, Rishi Dayanand and their ardent followers like Pandit Lekhram, Swami Shraddhanand, Swami Swatantranand, etc. We shall strive to propagate Vedic views on both the religious and temporal aspects of human life. We shall strive to propagate the vedic views of Maharshee Dayanand Saraswati through various events/programs, seminars, books, audio, video, and discussions at various forums including social media etc. We shall try to publish magazines for spreading views on Vedic knowledge, aryan history and for the enrichment of Samskrit and Hindi. We shall promote Gurukul education system and focus on arsh vidya, vocational-training, handicrafts, family based production-units as well as globalistic and holistic education system thru it. Further, we plan to work to improve the population and quality of animals like indigenous cow (A2 breeds) and other farm, load-bearing and milch animals. We shall also work for the cause of enforcement of prohibition of drugs, alcohol and tobacco, etc and initiate people's awareness and movement against smoking, alcoholism, gambling, flesh-trade, porn, slavery and drug abuse. We shall try to create awareness about and address some of the social evils, such as, female foeticide, dowry, empowerment and participation of women in learning and teaching vedas and decision making, etc. We plan to present a vedic socio-econo-politico alternative to human society suffering from the ill effects of the detrimental models of capitalism, communism, socialism, liberalism, anarchism, individualism, collectivism, gender-struggle, racism, caste by birth-ism, etc.

Our society may consider supporting, cooperating and co-ordinating with other organizations working to achieve similar objectives. We shall promote the ideals of national unity and international peace and amity through globalization of vedic literature, philosophy and social-economic-political ideals. We shall strive to promote communal and social harmony, and the brotherhood of humankind, as enshrined in the vedas. We shall collect funds and spend them in achieving the above objectives.

We request all our subscribers to help us in disseminating the teachings of the vedas. You all are requested to propagate the message of Vedas and please spread these PDF files as much as u can. For downloadig more books realted to vedic philosophy please visit www.aryamantavya.in

PUBLISHER'S NOTE

It is with great pleasure that the first volume of the English Translation of the Vedas is being broughtout. This work, the Sabha has undertaken in view of the Arya Samaj Foundation Centenary which will be celebrated in 1975 and forms part of the production and publicaton of outstanding literature including Hindi Translation of the Vedas. The whole English Translation is likely to be covered in 12 Volumes and is scheduled to be published by the end of 1974. These will include the whole of the translation which the revered Swami Dayananda had produced and which had run into the print in his life time and the rest will be in line with the pattern he had set in.

The Volume under reference contains translation of the initial portion of the Rigveda with the commentary of Swami Dayananda on it which is held to be unique and surpassing all other available commentaries.

The undertaking is heavy and costly especially in these days of acute shortage of paper and other equipments and soaring prices. However the Sabha had ventured to take this heavy work in hand to fill up a vaccum of a long standing, to meet the pressing demand of the votaries of the Vedas and to provide general public with them even at less than cost price with a view to making their studies pupular. To overcome the monetary handicap and deficit, the Sabha has decided to approach and appeal to the religious minded and well to do persons and lovers of the Vedas inside and outside the pale of Arya Samaj to donate liberally so as to enable the Sabha to make this noble undertaking a success. In fact, the Sabha took this work in hand counting upon their whole-hearted active co-operation which I am glad the Sabha is receiving and trust will be receiving in abundance. Their donations according to our plan, will be acknowledged ranging from Rs. 1000/- and upwards in the Volumes.

Our thanks are due to the late Shri Badri Prasad Bhoruka (Transport Corporation of India, Bombay) at whose instance and monetary co-operation this work was initiated and pursued but unfortunately, this Sabha was left to its own initiative and resources at his un-timely demise.

I very much appreciate the co-operation of Shri Pt. Dharma Devaji Vidya Martanda who took up the Translation of the Rigveda and is accomplishing it admirably. The co-operation of Shri Acharya Vaidyanath ji Shastri and Acharya Vishva nath ji Vidya Martanda a distinguished Vedic Scholar (85 year old) too has proved of immense value and commendation.

Translator's Preliminary Prayer

O Ocean of mercy, give me the strength to accomplish Thy noble work. May I be able to convey Thy Divine message to the people of the whole world.

Thou O God, art the source of all power. Therefore I pray for Thy kindness. Thy (Vedic) Speech is un-paralleled and most Holy. May I be its good translator by Thy grace.

3. O Ocean of mercy, Thou hast kindly given the knowledge of the Vedas for the benefit of the whole humanity. They impart us all true knowledge and dispel all darkness.
4. But unfortunately, the majority of the people of the world to-day, do not understand their meaning and therefore I am going to render them in a foreign language (English) for their benefit.
5. I know, it is a difficult task and therefore I beg Thy kind help. If get Thy grace, what is it that cannot be accomplished on earth O God ?

It is my desire that all people on earth may drink deep the nectar of the Vedas to their full satisfaction. Kindly crown with success my endeavour in the direction of developing this tendency.

Let me dedicate with gladness, to Thee all that I do on earth. Thou art the constant giver of strength, hence whom should I approach except Thee O Lord ?

May this attempt to popularise Maharshi Dayananda Sarasvati's Commentary on the Vedas be successful by God's Grace is my heartfelt prayer to the Almighty.

बहुमूल्य-सम्मति

श्री पं० धर्मदेव जी (देवमुनि), विद्यावाचस्पति तथा विद्यामार्तण्ड आनन्द कुटीर ज्वालापुर—श्री आर्य सार्वदेशिक सभा, दिल्ली के निर्देशानुसार महर्षि दयानन्द सरस्वती के ऋग्वेद भाष्य का अंग्रेजी अनुवाद कर रहे हैं। प्रतिमास जितना अंग्रेजी अनुवाद छप जाता है, उसकी एक प्रति मुझे भेजने की कृपा श्री पं० धर्मदेव जी करते रहते हैं। मैं उत्कण्ठापूर्वक उसे पढ़ता हूं। इस सम्बन्ध में मेरी यह भावना हुई है कि पण्डित जी जो अंग्रेजी अनुवाद कर रहे हैं उसमें उनकी बुद्धि का अद्भुत चमत्कार है। महर्षि के संस्कृत भाष्य और उनके हिन्दी अनुवाद में समन्वय करना आसान बात नहीं। स्थान-स्थान पर इनमें विषमता प्रतीत होती है। परन्तु श्री पण्डित जी बड़े परिश्रम से तथा सतर्क बुद्धि से उनमें समन्वित अर्थ की जांच कर अंग्रेजी अनुवाद कर रहे हैं। अनुवाद सरल और सरस है और साहित्यिक छटा सम्पन्न है। बीच-बीच में जहां-जहां पाश्चात्य विद्वानों ने अर्थ सम्बन्धी अशुद्धियां की हैं, उन्हें भी दर्शा कर मन्त्रों के वास्तविक अर्थों पर सप्रमाण प्रकाश डाला गया है। इस प्रकार अंग्रेजी अनुवाद की उपयोगिता और भी बढ़ गयी है। इस योग्यता के लिये श्री पण्डित जी आर्य विद्वानों की बधाई के पात्र हैं।

Valuable opinion of Sri Pt. Vishwa Nath ji Vidya Martanda Ex-Acharya and Head of the Veda Deptt., Gurukula Kangri University and a noted Scholar of the Vedas, about Pt. Dharma Deva ji, Vidya Martanda's English rendering of the Rig Veda.

Shri Pt. Dharma Deva ji (Deva Muni), Vidyavachaspati, Vidya Martanda, Ananda Kutir, Jwalapur has been translating into English Maharshi Dayananda Saraswati's Commentary on the Rig Veda. Every month he has been sending to me one copy of his English Translation as and when it is out of press. I read it eagerly. Regarding the translation, I strongly feel that it manifests the marvellous intelligence of the gifted author. It is not easy to strike a note of synthesis between Maharashi's Sanskrit Commentary and its Hindi Translation. At places, there seems to be divergence in them. But Shri Pandit ji with his hard work and alert mind has been able to recognise the synthetic meaning in them and to imbibe its spirit in his own English Translation. His Translation is simple and lively and replete with literary charms. In it the occasional meaning-mistakes made by Western Scholars have been fitly pointed out and sufficient light, with proofs indeed, has been thrown on the real meanings of the Mantras. Thus, the utility of the English translation has increased all the more. For this wonderful ability displayed by Pandit ji herein, he deserves the congratulations of the Aryan Scholars.

SOME PROMINENT SCHOLARS ON RISHI DAYANANDA SARASVATI'S

Vedic Commentary

The world renowned Yogi and Scholar Shri Aurabindo wrote in "Dayananda and the Veda"

"In the matter of the Vedic interpretation, I am convinced that what ever may be the final complete interpretation, Dayananda will be honoured as the first discoverer of the right clues. Amidst the chaos and obscurity of old ignorance and age-long misunderstanding, his was the eye of direct vision that pierced to the truth and fastened on that which was essential. He has found the keys of the doors that time had closed and rent as under the seals of the imprisoned fountains."

(Bankim, Tilak, Dayananda by Shri Aurabindo).

"The ancient civilisations did possess secrets of Science some of which modern knowledge has recovered, extended and made more rich and precise, but others even now not recovered. There is then nothing fantastic in Dayananda's idea that Veda contains truth of science as well as Truth of religion. I will even add my own conviction, that Veda contained the other truths of a science the modern world does not at all possess, and in that case, Dayananda has rather understated than overstated the depth and range of the Vedic Wisdom."

(Shri Aurabindo in Dayananda and Veda-Bankim, Tilak, Dayananda).

Mahavidvan Shri T. V. Kapali Shastri, one of the greatest Yogis and Vedic Scholars of his day wrote-

"That the Vedic words have derivative singificance is creed with the Nirukta Karas and Swami Dayananda took his stand upon their position in his endeavour to revive the Vedic Dharma. The derivative significance of words in the Veda is the Chief ground on which our enquiry into the esoteric interpretation proceeds. This is the first point to be noted.

(Rig Bhumika or Introduction to Siddhanjana Commentary of the Rigveda by Shri T. V. Kapali Shastri, Section Three P. 85)

Shri Madhava Pundalika Pandit-a distinguished S. Indian Scholar of Sanskrit and English wrote in "Mystic Approach to the Vedas" paying glowing Tributes to Swami Dayananda Saraswati.

"By the middle of the last century, the call to re-establish the Vedas in their sovereign pedestal for presiding over an assured and inevitable resurgence of the national life, found a vigorous expression in the stalwart Champion of Indian Culture Swami Dayananda Saraswati. He called for a bold dispersal of the fog of half-baked theories and alien prejudice that had settled round the luminous Vedas and enjoined upon every son of the soil to look straight into the face of the truth and recognize there, what was indeed a Revealed Scripture. He pointed out with un-answerable proof how the concept of one Deity stood out toweringly in the Hymns."

Rahimzada Safavi-then the Minister of Jusice to the Government of Persia thus wrote about Swami Dayananda Sarsawati's Vedic commentary in 1933.

"Swami Dayananda Saraswati's commentary on the Vedas is a unique work by which he has illustrated once more the value of the great Scriptures from which the wellknown sages of ancient India have been radiating their wisdom in all directions for the welfare and advancement of humanity. Thus I feel it a duty of every oriental like myself to appreciate what Maharashi Dayananda Saraswati has achieved as the great work in the cause of India's National Unity."

We have deemed it proper to give some of these quotations to create more and more interest in the Vedic Commentary of Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati.

TRANSLATION

Having completed the introduction to the Commentary on the four Vedas which fully imparts the joy of learning (to the students and scholars) and having made a hearty obeisance to the Lord of the universe, the Abode of all true knowledge, I begin to prepare on Tuesday the sixth date of the bright half of the month of Marga-shirsha in the year 1934 of the Vikrama Era the commentary on the Rigveda which surely is the giver of the true knowledge of all objects.

As it is said that all things are extolled by the Mantras of the Rigveda, the learned people should study the Rigveda, clearly grasping the sense of the verses and correctly understanding the attributes of all things from God down to the earth should then make up their minds to accomplish the good of all creatures. The Rigveda is called so because it consists of Mantras called "Riks" which correctly describe the properties, actions and nature of all things. ऋच-स्तुतौ

In this Rigveda. there are eight Ashtakas (Octads) beginning from the Mantra "Agnimede Purohitam" and ending with the Mantra terminating with the words "Yatha Vah Susahasati" (यथा वः सुसहासति) In each Ashtaka or Octad there are eight Chapters and in the whole Veda there are 2024 Vargas or sections.

Again there are 10 Mandalas or Books in the Rigveda. In the first Mandala there are twenty four (24) Anuvakas or lessons comprising 191 Suktas (Hymns) making up a total of 1976 Mantras.

In the second Mandala there are 4 Anuvakas (lessons) comprising 40 Suktas or hymns. In this Mandala the total of all the Mantras is 429. In the third Mandala (Book) there are 5 Anuvakas (lessons) in 62 Suktas or hymns. The total number of Mantras in this Mandala is 617.

In the fourth Mandala there are 5 Anuvakas (lessons) in 58 Suktas or hymns. The total number of Suktas or hymns is 589.

In the fifth Mandala there are 6 Anuvakas (lessons) in 87 Suktas (hymns). The total number of the Mantras in this Mandala is 729.

In the sixth Mandala there are 6 Anuvakas in 57 Suktas or hymns The total number of Mantras in this Mandala in 565.

In the seventh Mandala there are 6 Anuvakas (lessons) in 104 Suktas (hymns). The total number of Mantras in this Mandala is 851.

In the eighth Mandala there are 10 Anuvakas (Lessons) in 103 Suktas (hymns). The total number of Mantras in this Mandala is 1726.

In the ninth Mandala there are 7 Anuvakas or lessons in 114 Suktas (Hymns). The total number or Mantras in this Mandala is 1097.

In the tenth Mandala there are 12 Anuvakas (lessons) and 190 Suktas or hymns. The total number of the Mantras in this Mandala is 1754.

Therefore in the ten Mandalas of the Rigveda there are 85 Anuvakas (lessons) in 1018 Suktas or hymns. The total number of the Mantras in the Rigveda is 10589.

Thus the Rigveda has been divided into 'Ashtakas, Anuvakas. (Lessons) Adhyayas (Chapters) and Vargas (Sections) or Mandalas (Books) Suktas and Mantras.

INTRODUCTION

CHAPTER I

The Glory of the Vedas :

According to the unanimous opinion of all the seers and sages of India, including the authors of the Six systems of Philosophy known as the Darshan Shastras, the Vedas were revealed by the Omniscient God in the beginning of the human creation. The meaning of the word "Veda" is knowledge. It is derived from the root विद् (Vid) to know. By Veda we mean the knowledge given by the Omnipotent and Omniscient Lord of the universe at the commencement of the human creation for the harmonious development and guidance of mankind. As worldly parents give knowledge to their children for their welfare, so God Who is our Divine Father and Mother revealed the Eternal Truths through the Vedas for the well-being of all people. God is within and without all beings and things. The sages' hearts were pure and receptive and God inspired them with knowledge. On account of His Omnipresence and Omnipotence, God does not stand in need of paper, pen or ink, nor does He stand in need of uttering words with physical mouth like human beings. It was enough for Him to inwardly prompt the hearts of the sages in order to insil in them perfect knowledge. In the Vedas we find our individual, domestic, social, national and inter-national duties mentioned quite clearly for our perfect guidance.

As pointed out at the very outset, the glory of the Vedas has been sung by all the Dharmashastras or Smritis, the Shastras or Darshanas—the phiosophical works of the medieval period.

Dharmashastras (Smritis) on the Glory of the Vedas

Manu-the first Law giver after the Vedas, has sung the glory of the Vedas in such un - ambiguous terms as वेदोऽखिलो धर्ममूलम् मनुस्मृति २-६ Manu - Smriti2-6. The Veda is the source of all Dharma i. e. religion, morality, righteousness and good conduct. धर्मं जिज्ञासमानानां, प्रमाणं परमं श्रुतिः मनु० २-३ Manu 2-3.

For them who want to acquire the correct knowledge of Dharma, the Vedas are the highest authorities.

बिभर्ति सर्वभूतानि, वेदशास्त्रं सनातनम् ।
तस्मादेतत्परं मन्ये, यज्जन्तोरस्य साधनम् ॥

मनु० १२-९९

Manu 12-99

The Eternal Veda upholds all the beings (being their infallible guide). Therefore I regard it as the best means for their welfare.

The Yajna Valkya Smriti on which mostly the present Hindu Law is based says—

न वेदशास्त्रादन्यत् तु, किंचिच्छास्त्रं हि विद्यते ।
निस्सृतं सर्वशास्त्रं तु, वेदशास्त्रात् सनातनात् ॥

There is no greater Shastra than the Vedas. All other shastras are derived from and are based upon the Vedas.

In the Atri Smriti, it is stated clearly that........

नास्ति वेदात् परं शास्त्रं, नास्ति मातुः समो गुरुः ॥

अत्रिस्मृति श्लोक १४८ ।

Atri Smriti V. 148

As there is no greater teacher for a child than his mother, so there is no greater Shastra for any one than Veda.

The Upanishads on the Vedas :—

The Ishopanishad on which all other Upanishads are based is the last chapter of the Yajur Veda (Kanva Shakha or ascention), that is why the Upanishads are generally known by the name of the Vedanta, literally meaning the end or doctrine of the Vedas. The authors of the Upanishads who were great sages and wise men of God—realisation regarded the Vedas as Revealed Scriptures. In the Mundakopanishad

2-4 it is stated;-अग्निर्मूर्धा चक्षुषी चन्द्रसूर्यौ, दिशः श्रोत्रे वाग् विवृताश्चवेदाः। Fire is the head of Him (God) and His eyes are the Sun and Moon, the quarters His organs of hearing and the revealed Vedas are His voice"

तस्मादृचः साम यजूंषि दीक्षा ॥ (Mundak 2-1-7)

From Him are the hymns of the Rig Veda, the Sama and the Yajur etc.

In the Brihadaranyakpanishad which is the fourteenth and the last Kanda of the Shatapath Brahmana (which contains the exposition of the Yajur Veda) it is stated.....

एतस्य वा महतो भूतस्य निःश्वसितमेतद् यद् ऋग्वेदो यजुर्वेदः सामवेदोऽथर्ववेदः ॥

(Brihadaranyak. Up. 4-5-11)

i. e. the Rigveda, the Yajurveda, the Sama Veda and the Atharva Veda are outpourings or Breath of the Supreme Being.

In the Aitareya Brahman (which contains the exposition of the Rigveda,) it is clearly stated—

प्रजापतिर्वा इमान् वेदानसृजत् ॥

God who is the Lord of the universe created or revealed these Vedas.

The Maha Bharat on the Vedas :

Maharshi (the Great Sage) Veda Vyas has said in the Mahabharat, while singing the glory of the Veda :

अनादिनिधनानित्या, वागुत्सृष्टा स्वयम्भुवा ।
आदौ वेदमयी दिव्या, यतः सर्वाः प्रवृत्तयः ॥

Mahabharat 12-232-24

i. e. In the beginning of the world, Self-existent God revealed the Vedas which are Eternal and Divine. They are the Source or guides of all human activities.

Six Shastras on the Vedas :—

There are six Shastras or Systems of philosophy. All of them believe in the authority of the Vedas as Revealed by God

Gautama the author of Nyaya Darshan (logic) says—

मन्त्रायुर्वेदप्रामाण्यवच्च तत्प्रामाण्यमाप्तप्रामाण्यात् ॥

(Nyaya Shastra by the sage Gautama 2-1-67) Wise Persons who observe truth in mind, word and deed have always accepted the authority of the Veda, that authority therefore should be admitted. One has to uphold the authority of the Ayurveda and Mantras.

Kanada– the author of the Vaisheshik Shastra also considers that the Vedas were revealed by God and have therefore the highest authority. He Says—

i. e. Veda being the Word of God, its authority is established.

The sage Kapila—the author of Sankhya Shastra who is erroneously considered to be an atheist also maintains :

निजशक्त्यभिव्यक्तेः स्वतः प्रामाण्यम् ॥ Sankhya Shastra 5-5-1.

The Vedas having been produced by His (God's) own power, carry their authority within themselves.

The sage Patanjali—the author of the Yoga Shastra says that by giving the knowledge of all things through the Vedas, God is the First Guru or Preceptor of all our forefathers.

स एष पूर्वेषामपि गुरुः कालेनानवच्छेदात् ॥ Yoga 1-24

The most distinguished sage Veda Vyasa--the author of the Vedanta Shastra says—

शास्त्रयोनित्वात्—1-4 God being the source of all Shastras i. e. the Vedas, they carry the highest authority in themselves and being the Word of the Eternal God, the Vedas are Eternal.

Maharshi Jaimini—the author of the Meemansa Shastra says—

नित्यस्तु स्याद् दर्शनस्य परार्थत्वात् ॥ Meemansa 1-1-18.

It (Veda) is surely eternal, because it is manifested for the sake of others. It exists for ever in its own right. Since there is no human author of the Vedic texts, there is no possibility of defects and so the non-authoritiveness of the Vedas is inconceivable.

From the lips of the Changeless;
Know therefore that Brahman
The All-pervading
Is dwelling for ever
Within this ritual."
Bhagavad Gita or the Song of the lord. P. 46

In the 17th Chapter of the Bhagavad Gita, Shri Krishna says—

ओं तत्सदिति निर्देशो ब्रह्मणस्त्रिविधः स्मृतः ।
ब्राह्मणास्तेन वेदाश्च, यज्ञाश्च विहिताः पुरा ।।

Gita 17-23

Om, Tat, Sat, this is declared to be the three-fold designation of the Absolute. At the beginning of Creation, the Brahmanas and the Vedas, sacrifices were created by it.

(Gita Press Edition).

Isherwood's translation—Om Tat, Sat, these three words designate Brahman, by whom the seers, the Vedas and these sacrificial rites were created in ancient times." The Song of God. . 119.

Mahatma Buddha on the Vedas :

Mahatma Buddha who is erroneously considered to be an atheist or opposed to the Vedas has stated in the Sutta Nipata 292.

विद्वां च वेदेहि समेच्च धम्मं
न उच्चावचं गच्छति भूरि पंजो ।।
संस्कृत छाया-विद्वांश्च वेदैः समेत्यधर्मं
नोच्चावचं गच्छति भूरिप्रज्ञः ।।

He who attains true knowledge of Dharma or righteousness through the Vedas, attains a steady position. He does not waver. This shows Mahatma Buddha's very great regard for the Vedas. It also shows that the Mahatma regarded the Vedas as the source of Dharma. Can such a believer in the Vedas be ever called an atheist ?

Lavi-an Arabian Poet on the Vedas:—

Lavi-an Arabian Poet (170 B. C) sang the glory of the Vedas in the following manner in Arabian Verses which mean—

"O blessed land of Hind (India) thou art worthy of reverence, for in thee has God revealed True knowledge of Himself.

What a pure light do these four revealed books afford to our mind's eyes like the charming and cool lustre of the dawn. These four, God revealed unto his prophets (Rishis) in Hind.

And He thus teaches all races of mankind that inhabit the earth.

Observe (in your lives) the knowledge I (God) have revealed in the Vedas, for surely God has revealed them.

Those treasures are the Sama and Yajur which God has preached, O my brothers, revere these, for they tell us the good news of salvation.

The two next, of these four, Rig. and Atharva teach us lessons of Universal brotherhood. These two (Vedas) are the beacons that warn us to turn towards the Goal (Universal brotherhood.)

Guru Nanak ji and other Sikh Gurus on the Vedas—

Guru Nanak ji sang the glory of the Vedas regarding them as Revealed by God, as the following passages of the Granth Sahib clearly show—

ओंकार वेद निरमाये ।। गुरुग्रन्थ महला ओंकार शब्द

The Vedas were made or revealed by God.

हरि आज्ञा होए वेद, पाप पुन्नविचारिया ।। महला ५ शब्द

The Vedas were revealed under the orders of God, so that human beings could distinguish between sins and merits.

सामवेद ऋग जजुर अथर्वण, ब्रह्मे मुख मा इयाहै त्रैगुण ।
ताकी कीमत कीत कह न सकै, कौ तिउ बोले जिउ बोलाइदा ।।

महला १ शब्द १७,

Sama Veda, Rigveda, Yajurveda and Atharva Veda have been revealed by God. No one can evaluate their importance. They are inestimable and eternal.

ओंकार उत्पाती । चार वेद चार खाणी ।। महला ५ शब्द १७,

Four Vedas are four treasures given by God.

"The Veda is a book of knowledge and wisdom comprising the Book of nature, the Book of religion, the Book of prayers, the Book of morals and so on. The word "Veda" means wit, wisdom, knowledge and truly the Veda is condensed wit, wisdom and knowledge. The Vedas teach nothing but mono-theism of the purest kind." (The Philosophy of Zoroastrianism and Comparative Study of Religions P. 100.)

Some impartial Western Scholars on the Vedas

Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace - co-originator of the Physical Evolution Theory wrote in "Social Environment and Moral Progress" strongly refuting the social and moral evolution theory- "In the earliest records which have come down to us from the past, we find ample indications that accepted standard of morality and the conduct resulting from these were in no degree inferior to those which prevail to-day, though in some respects, they were different from ours. The wonderful collection of hymns known as the Vedas is a vast system of religious teachings as pure and lofty as those of the finest portions of the Hebrew Scriptures. Its authors were fully our equals in their conception of the universe and the Deity expressed in the finest poetic language."

"In it (Veda) we find many of the essential teachings of the most advanced religious thinkers." P. 1

"We must admit that the mind which conceived and expressed in appropriate language, such ideas as are everywhere present in those Vedic hymns, could not have been inferior to those of the best of our religious teachers and poets-to our Milton, Shakespeare and Tennyson." (Social Environment and Moral Progress by Alfred Russel Wallace P. 14).

The Social Evolution Theory falls to the ground when as rightly aserted by Dr. A. R. Wallace-one of the originators of the Physical Evolution Theory, Veda admittedly 'the oldest book in the library of mankind contains the "essential teachings of the most advanced religious thinkers and is a vast system of religious teachings which are pure and lofty." This is in fact, the best testimony to the Vedic Revelation Theory.

Nobel Prize Winner Materlink on the Vedic Ethics—

Mr. Materlink—a Nobel prize winner Philosopher of Sweden, giving a few extracts from the Vedas and allied literature wrote in the "Great Secret."

"Let us agree that this system of Ethics of which I have been unable to give more than the slightest survey, while the first ever known to man, is also the loftiest which he has ever practised."

(The Great Secret P. 96)

"As for the primitive tradition, it is true that these affirmations and precepts are the most unlooked for, the loftiest, the most admirable and most plausible that mankind has hitherto known."(P. 57)

"This tradition attributes to the vast reservoir of the Wisdom that somewhere took shape simultaneously with the origin of man — to more spiritual entities, to beings less entangled in matter."

(The Great Secret by Materlink rologue . 6)

This cuts at the root of the Social Evolution theory. If the ethical and moral teachings of the Vedas which are admittedly the oldest books in the library of mankind, are also the loftiest, the most admirable and the most plausible that mankind has hitherto known, as rightly asserted by Mr. Materlink, then how can the Social Evolution They stand according to which the teachings of the oldest book should have been the most absurd and stupid ?

Count Leo Tolstoy on the sublimity of the Vedas—

Giving the world famous Tolstoy's views on the Vedas and the Upanishads, Mr. Alexander Shifman Research Scholar of Tolstoy Museum in Moscow wrote in his article entitled "Leo Tolstoy and the Indian Epics" published in several papers and magazines during Tolstoy Century Celebrations in 1963.

"Leo Tolstoy was deeply interested in ancient Indian literature and its great epics. The themes of the Vedas were the first to attract his attention. "Appreciating the profundity of the Vedas, Tolstoy gave particular attention to those cantos which deal with the problem of ethics, a subject in which interested him deeply. He subscribed to the idea of human love which pervades the Vedas, with their humanism and praise of peaceful labour. Tolstoy the artist was moreover delighted with the poetic treasures and artistic imagery which distinguish those outstanding Indian Epics." He (Tolstoy) ranked the Vedas and their later interpretations—the Upanishads-with those perfected works of world art which have never failed to appeal to all nationalities in all epochs and which therefore represent true art."

"Tolstoy not only read the Vedas, but also spread their teachings in Russia. He included many of the sayings of the Vedas and the Upanishads in his collections "Range of Reading" Thoughts of wise men" and others."

Two reverend gentlemen on the Vedas—

Rev. Morris Philip - a Christian Missionary in his well-known book named "The Teachings of the Vedas" strongly refuting the Evolution Theory writes—

"We have pushed our enquiries as far back in time as the records would permit and we have found that the religious and speculative thought of the people was far purer, simpler and more rational at the farthest point we reached, than at the nearest and the latest in the Vedic Age.

"The conclusion therefore is inevitable viz. that the development of religious thought in India has been uniformly downward and not upward, deterioration and not evolution. We are justified therefore in concluding that the higher and purer conceptions of the Vedic Aryans were the results of a Primitive Divine Revelation."

(The Teachings of the Vedas by Rev. Morris Philip. P. 23)."

This admission on the part of a Christian Missionary for the Vedas as Primitive Divine Revelation is very significant.

Prof. Heeren on the Vedas—

"The Vedas stand alone in their solitary splendour, standing as beacons of Divine Light for onward march of humanity."

(Historical Researches by Prof. Heeren Vol. II, P. 127).

Mons, Leon Delbos— a French Scholar in the course of a paper read by him before the International Literary Association at Paris on 14th July 1884 declared unhesitatingly—

"The Rig Veda is the most sublime conception of the great high ways of humanity."

"Thoreau (American Sage) on the Vedas—

"What extracts from the Vedas I have read fall on me like the light of a higher and purer luminary which describes a loftier course through a purer stratum-free from particulars, simple, universal. The Vedas contain a sensible account of God."

(Quoted here from "Mother America" by Swami Omkar P. 9)

Mr. Boulanger — a Russian Scholar on the Vedas—

Mr. Boulanger — a Russian Scholar, Editor of the Sacred Books of the East Series in Russian, wrote thus in his preface—

"What struck me in Maxmuller's translation was a lot of absurdities, obscene passages and a lot of what is not lucid."

"As far as I can grasp the teaching of the Vedas, it is so sublime that I would look upon it as a crime on my part, if the Russian public become acquainted with it through the Medium of confused and distorted translation., thus not deriving for its soul that benefit which this teaching should give to the people."

Regarding Prof. Maxmuller who was considered to be the most prominent orientalist of his day, it will not be out of place to show from the letters written by him to the Duke of Orgoil and his wife, that he had rather an ulterior motive in translating the Vedas and writing other books on them.

In a letter addressed to Duke of Orgoil - then the Secretary of State for India, Prof. Maxmuller wrote on 16th December, 1868—

"The ancient religion of India is doomed and if Christianity does not step in whose fault will it be ?

In a letter addressed to his wife in 1868 Prof. Maxmuller wrote—

"I hope, I shall finish that work (Editing and translating the Rigveda) and I feel convinced that though I shall not live to see it, yet this edition of mine (of the Rigveda) and the translation of the Vedas will hereafter tell to a great extent on the fate of India and on the growth of millions of souls in that country. "It (Veda) is the root of their religion and to show them what the root is, I feel sure, the only way of uprooting all that has been sprung from it during the last three thousand years.

So it is just with the motive of uprooting the Vedas, that Prof. Maxmuller though a staunch Christian, undertook the stupendous task of editing and translating the Vedas. The letter written by Mr. E. B. Pussey — an intimate friend of Maxmuller also shows that his friends knew and highly appreciated his motive.

Mr. Pussey wrote—

"Your work will form a new era in the efforts for-the conversion of India, and Oxford will have reason to be thankful that by giving you a home, it will have facilitated a work of such primary and lasting importance on the conversion of India, and which by enabling us to compare that early "false religion" with the true, illustrates the more than blessedness of what we enjoy."

(Mr. E. B. Pussey's letter to Prof. Maxmuller.)

It is, therefore, not surprising as remarked by Mr. Boulanger that "In Maxmuller's translation of the Vedas, there was a lot of absurdities, obscene passages and a lot of what is not lucid ! The same is the case with Macdonell, Keith and many other Western Scholars who were the occupants of the Chair of Oriental studies at the Oxford University under Boden Trust, whose Chief object was as follows as given by Monior Williams in the Introduction to his well - known Sanskrit English Dictonary—

"That the special object of his (Boden's) munificent bequest was to promote the translation of the Scriptures into Sanskrit, so as to enable his country men to proceed in the "Conversion of the natives of India to the Christian religion."

Is it surprising then when we find Monior Williams writing "In Modern India and the Indians," that "When the walls of the Mighty fortress of Brahmanism are encircled, undermined and finally stormed by the soldiers of the cross, the Victory of Christianity must be signal and complete."

(Monior Williams in Modern India and the Indians . 247, 3rd. Edition.)

Shri Aurabindo was therefore right when in his essay on "Dayananda and the Veda" he remarked with regard to the interpretation put by Prof. Maxmuller and his followers (All of course do not come under that category as quotations given by us in this chapter from the writings of some impartial Western Scholars clearly show).

"If there ever was a toil of interpretation in which the loosest rein has been given to an ingenious speculation, in which doubtful indications have been snatched at as certain proofs, in which the boldest conclusions have been insisted upon with the scantiest justification, the most enormous difficulties ignored and preconceived prejudice maintained in face of the clear and often admitted suggestions of the text, it is surely this labour so eminently respectable otherwise for its industry, good will and power of research, performed through a long century by European Vedic Scholarship."

(Bankim, Tilak and Dayananda by Yogi Shri Aurabindo. P. 52).

Let us leave this unpleasent matter here which had to be briefly dealt with to elucidate the remarks of Mr. Boulanger.

Mr. Edward Carpenter on the Vedic Philosophy—

Mr. Edward Carpenter, a distinguished sage of the West, in his illustrious work "Art of Creation" gives expression to the following ideas—

"A new philosophy we can hardly expect or wish for, since, the same germinal thoughts of the Vedic Authors have come all the way down history, even to Shopenhauer and Whitman, inspiring philosophy after philosophy, religion after religion. Science is able to provide for these world-old principles some what of a new form and so wonderful a garment for illustration and exposition as it does."

It is this Universal Charactêr of the Vedic Teachings with most sensible and rational account or conception of God that distinguishes them from other "Scriptures."

Dr. James Cousins on the Vedic Ideal :—

Dr. James Cousins D. Litt.—an eminent Irish poet, artist and philosopher, in his excellent book "Path to Peace," expressed himself thus with regard to the Vedic Ideal and Culture :—

"To love, to think, to do, are in the Vedic conception, no transitory futilities touched with melancholy, but stimulations of the cosmic activity charged with the joy of the Eternal. Shadows they are, dancing shadows cast by the Light of lights.

"But they are cast by the light, not by darkness and in the Light, that vision of the Eternal, shining through the temporal, humanity can find an ideal which would replace a periodical sanctimoniousness by a perpetual sense of the sanctity of all life."

"On that (Vedic) ideal alone, with its inclusiveness which absorbs and annihilates the causes of antagonisms, its sympathy which wins hatred away from itself is it possible to rear a new earth in the image and likeness of the Eternal Heavens."

(The Path of Peace by Dr. James Cousins P. 60)

Mr. Mascaro M. A. on the Vedas—

Mr. J. Mascaro M. A. Reader of English, University of, Barcelors says in "The Himalayas of the Soul—"

"If a Bible of India were compiled, eternal treasures of old wisdom and poetry would enrich the times of to-day. Among those compositions, some of them living words before writing was introduced, the Vedas, the Upanishads and the Bhagavad Gita would rise above the rest like Himalayas of the spirit of man"

Brunhofer on Vedic Poetry—

Brünhofer — a German Poet was constrained to exclaim :

"The Veda is like the lark's morning trill of humanity, awaking to the consciousness of its greatness.

(quoted here from "The Mystic Approach to the Vedas by Shri M. P. Pandit P. 2)

Many more quotations can be added, but they are sufficient to convince the readers that the glory of the Vedas has been sung not only by the Sages and seers of India, but by many impartial scholars of all countries. Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati — the greatest Vedic Scholar of this age was therefore right in his Clarion Call of "Back to the Vedas" declaring at the top of his voice. "The Vedas are the Scriptures of all true knowledge.,It is the paramount duty of all Aryas (righteous persons) to read them, to teach them to others, to hear them read and to recite them."

(The 2nd Principle of the Arya Samaj)

CHAPTER II

Why to sing the Glory of the Vedas !

The distinguishing features of the Vedic teachings on account of which, their glory is not only sung by all the seers, sages and philosphers of India, but many impartial Western Scholars are the following.

(1) The Vedic Dharma teaches harmony between knowledge and action, considering the combination of both, essential for the attainment of emancipation.

(2) It advocates harmaony between renunciation and enjoyment, enjoining upon us the middle path expressed in the most un-ambiguous terms like.

तेन त्यक्तेन भुंजीथा मा गृधः कस्यस्विद् धनम्

(Yajur Veda 40-1)

i. e. Enjoy things of this world with the spirit of renunciation in you. Don't be greedy. Whose wealth is all this ? It is all God's. Regard yourselves only Trustees and not owners of the wealth. Some sects like Charvaka preach the materialistic principle of "Eat, drink and be merry, because to-morrow we may die." Some others like Buddhism, Neo-Vedanta, Charistianity etc. lay all stress on renunciation saying like Jesus that "It is easier for a camel to enter the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God". Mat. 23-17. But the Vedic Dharma teaches the Middle Path as pointed out above and this is its distinguishing feature.

(3) The Vedas advocate the claims of reconcilation between individualism and Socialism, laying stress on the combination of both असम्भूति or individual all-round progress and सम्भूति Social Collective Welfare as the right path, as stated in the Yajur Veda.

संभूतिं च विनाशं च यस्तस्तद्वेदोभयं सह । विनाशेन मृत्युं तीर्त्वा सम्भूत्याऽमृतमश्नुते ।। (Yajurveda 40-11)

(4) The Vedas lay stress upon harmony between faith and Reason by enjoining upon us the cultivation of both, praying for the development of both and by conducting ourselves in such a way that both these faculties may go hand in hand.

अग्ने समिधमाहार्षं बृहते जातवेदसे । स मे श्रद्धां च मेधां च जातवेदाः प्रयच्छतु ।। Atharva Veda 19-64

Such Mantras are very significant in this connection. There we pray to the Omnipresent and Omnipotent God to endow us with Faith and Pure Reason at the same time. It is also to be borne in mind that the Shraddha which we are asked to cultivate is not blind belief, but the power of grasping and upholding the truth श्रत् इति सत्यनाम (निघण्टु ३-१०) According to the Vedic Lexicon named Nighantu, Shrat means truth' the root (Dha) means to uphold or support. Therefore Sharaddha means that which upholds or supports truth. It is not superstition, as generally it is considered to be.

For instance in religions like Christianity and Islam, the greatest stress is laid on faith in Jesus Christ and Mohammed Saheb and we are asked to believe in their teachings implicitly. To argue in these religious matters is considered to be sinful. That is why many irrational dogmas like Trinity, Virgin Birth of Jesus Christ, Resurrection and Redemption by Grace are believed by devout followers of these religions. There are the instances of Hipatia, Arius, Nestor, Palagious, and many others who had to lay down their lives or whose property was cofiscated for exercising their reasoning power against the dogmas of Orthodox Christianity and Islam. But that is not the case with Vedic Dharma. It does not condemn or look down upon reason. In Mantras like मूर्धानमस्य संसीव्याथर्वा हृदयं च यत् ॥ Atharva 10-2-26) the Vedas enjoin upon us to stitch or knit together our hearts (the Centre of faith and love) with our brains (the Centre of reason). There could not be greater emphasis on the harmony between faith and reason than expressed in this poetical figure. This is the most important distinguishing feature of the Dharma, taught by the Vedas. It is therefore, but in the fitness of things that their glory has been sung by all the seers and philosophers alike. (5) The fifth distinguishing feature of the religion taught by the Vedas is that in it Religion and Science are properly harmonised. The Veda is the origin, not only of religion, morality and Ethics, but also of sciences. Even some impartial Western Scholars have expressed this distinguishing feature of the Vedas with great surprise. For instances (1) Mr. W. D. Brown in his famous book "The superiority of the Vedic Religion" referring to the Vedic Religion says

It (Vedic Religion) recognises but One God. It is a Thoroughly acientific religion where religion and Science meet hand in hand.

Here, Theology is based upon science and philosophy. (Superiority of the Vedic Religion by W. D. Brown).

(2) French Savant Jacolliot in his well-known work "The Bible in India" comparing the different accounts of the origin of the universe exclaims

"Astonishing fact ! The Hindu Revelation (Veda) is of all Revelations the only one whose ideas are in perfect harmony with modern science, as it proclaims the slow and gradual formation of the world."

(3) Mrs. Wheeler Willox—an American lady says—

"We have all heard and read about the ancient religion of India. It is the land of the great Vedas the most remarkable works containing not only religious ideas for a perfect life, but also facts which all the science has since proved true. Electricity, Radium, Electrons, Airships, all seem to be known to the sires who found the Vedas."

(4) Even Prof. Maxmuller in his "Biographical Essays" referring to Rishi Dayananda's interpretation of the Vedas, which was based upon the ancient authorities, observes—

"To Swami Dayananda, everything contained in the Vedas was not only perfect truth, but he went one step further and by their interpretation, succeeded in persuading others that everything worth knowing, even the most recent inventions of modern science were alluded to in the Vedas. Steam Engines, Electricity, Telegraphy and Wireless Marconogram were shown to have been at least in the germs known to the poets of the Vedas."

Let me close this part of the chapter with the views expressed by an impartial thinker and philosopher of world-wide reputation as Yogi Shri Aurabindo. In the course of his well - known essay on "Dayananda and the Veda" Shri Aurabindo remarked—

"There is nothing fantastic in Dayananda's idea that Veda contains truth of science as well as truth of religion. I will even add my own conviction that Veda contains other truths of a Science the Modern World does not at all possess, and in that case, Dayananda has rather understated than overstated the depth and range of the Vedic Wisdom."

(Bankim—Tilak-Dayananda by Shri Aurabindo, Shri Aurabindo Ashrama, Pondichery P. 57).

Those who would like to know more about the various sciences in the Vedas, should read books like "The Vedic Fathers of Geology" and "Vedic India—Mother of Parliaments" by the Maha Rashtrian Scholar Shri N. B. Rao Pavagi, The Vedic Gods—as figures of Biology by Dr. V. G. Rele L. M. F., S.F.C.P.P.S. "Introduction to the Message of the 20th Century by P. Narayana Gowda M.A. B.Sc., "The Riks" by Parama Shiva Iyer: The Sciences in the Vedas by Shri Hans Raj; "Material Sciences in the Vedas" by Shri Panna Lal Parihar, B. A., LL. B., "Sciences in the Vedas Part 1—2 compiled by Shri Divan Rama Nath Kashyap Sciences in the Vedas" by Acharya Vaidya Nath ji Shastri and other books in English besides many books in Hindi.

Some distinguished Scholars' Views regarding Science in the Vedas

(1) Pandit Satya Vrat Samashramtm, M.R.A.S wrote in his preface to Trayi Bhasha (in Bengali.)

"This fourfold Trayi is the repository of all Aryan knowledge whether theological, practical, Scientific, Ethical and Social."

Our opinion is that in Vedic Times, our country had made extra-ordinary progress. In those days, the Sciences of Geology, Astronomy and Chemistry were called "Adhidaivik Vidyas" and those of physiology, Psychology and Theology. "Adhyatma Vidyas" Though the works embodying the scientfic knowledge of those times are entirely lost, there are sufficient indications in Vedic works of those sciences having been widely known in those days..

The study of certain portions of the Vedas leads even to the conclusion that certain scientific researches had been carried in this country to such perfection that, not to speak of this moribund country, even America, the constant source of scientific discoveries, and the advanced countries of Europe have not yet attained it. It is this which makes it impossible for us to understand the real purport of such passages."

(Trayi Bhasha Introduction P. 8-9)

(2) Shri Narayan Rao Bhawani Rao Pavagi-an illustrious scholar of Maharashtra wrote in his famous book "Vedic Fathers of Geology."

"I may take this opportunity to remind the reader, without fear of contradiction that the Vedas contain many things not yet known to anybody, as they form a mine of inexhaustible literary wealth, that has only partially been opened and has still remained unexplored."

Sri Pavagi also wrote in his "Self. Government in Ancient India and Vedic India-Mother of Parliaments "The Veda is the fountain head of knowledge, the prime source of inspiration, the grand repository of pithy passages of Divine Wisdom and even Eternal Truths."

(Vedic India P. 136.)

(3) Dr. V. G. Rale, L.M.F.S., F. C. P. S. wrote in "Vedic Gods-as figures of Biology."

"Our present anatomical knowledge of the nervous system tallies so accurately with the literal description of the world given in the Rigveda that a question arises in the mind whether the Vedas are really religious books or whether they are books on anatomy and physiology of the nervous system without the thorough knowledge of which, pychological deductions and philosophical Speculations cannot be correctly made."

(The Vedic Gods by Dr. V. G. Rele P. 30).

(4) Shri Narayan Gowda M. A., B. Sc. wrote in "Introduction of the Message of the 20th Century.

"Proving that the Vedas are treatise on the exact sciences."

"The Rigveda deals with the Theorems and experiments, while the process of preparing the reagents and apparatus is recorded in the Yajurveda which is in effect a laboratory guide."

Author's Preface for Vedic Mathematics

By Jagadguru Shankaracharya ji of Puri—

Astonuding wonders of Ancient Indian Vedic Mathematics.

(I) The very word "VEDA" has this derivational meaning i. e. the fountain head and illimitable store-house of all knowledge. This derivation, in effect means, connotes and implies that the Vedas should contain within themselves all the knowledge needed by mankind relating not only to the so-called spiritual (or other worldly) matter but also to those usually described as purely secular, temporal or worldly: and also to the means required by humanity as such for the achievment of all-round, complete and perfect success in all conceivable directions and there can be no adjectival or restrictive epithet calculated (or tending) to limit that knowledge down in any sphere, any direction or any respect whatsoever.

(II) In other words, it connotes and implies that our ancient Indian Vedic lore should be all-round, complete and perfect and able to throw the fullest necessary light on all matters which any aspiringly seeker after knowledge can possibly seek to be enlightened upon.

(Preface P. XIII.)

(III) It is thus in the fitness of things that the Vedas include Ayurveda (anatomy, physiology, hygiene, sanitary science, medical science, surgery etc. not for the purpose of achieving perfect health and strength in the after-death future but in order to attain them here and now in our present physical bodies: (ii) Dhanur-Veda (archery and other Military Sciences) not for fighting with one another after our transportation to heaven but in order to quell, subdue all invaders from abroad and all insurgents from within (iii) Gandharva Veda (the Science and art of Music) and (iv) Sthapatya Veda (engineering, architecture etc. and all branches of mathematics in general.) All these subjects, be it noted, are inherent parts of the Vedas i. e. are reckoned as "spiritual studies" and catered for as such therein.

(IV) Similar is the case with regard to the Vedangas (i.e.) grammar, prosody, astronomy, lexicography etc. which, according to the Indian Cultural conceptions, are also inherent parts and subjects of the Vedic (i.e. Religious) study.

(V) As a direct and unshirkable consequence of this analytical and grammatical study of the real connotation and full implications of the word "Veda" and owing to various other historical causes, we have been from our very early childhood, most earnestly and actively striving to study the Vedas critically from this standpoint and to realise and prove to ourselves (and to others) the correctness (or otherwise) of the derivative meaning in question.

(Preface P. XIV.)

(VI) The contemptuous attitude adopted by some so-called orientalists merely added fuel to the fire (so to speak) and further confirmed and strengthened our resolute determination to unveil the too-long hidden mystetries of philosophy and science contained in the ancient India's Vedic lore, with the consequence that, after eight years of concentrated contemplation in forest-solitude, we were at long last able to recover the long lost keys which alone could unlock the portals thereof.

(VII) And we were agreeably astonished and intensely gratified to find that exceedingly tough mathematical problems (which the mathematically most advanced present day western scientific world had spent huge lots of time energy and money on and which even now it solves with the utmost difficulty and after vast labour involving large number of difficult tedious and combursome steps of working) can be easily and readily solved with the help of these ultra easy Vedic-sutras (or Mathematical aphorisms) contained in the Parishishta (the Appendix portion) of the Atharva Veda in a few simple steps and by methods which can be conscientiously described as mere Mental Arithmetic.

(P. VV)

These extracts from the writings of some distinguished scholars of India (including the late Shankaracharya ji of Puri) clearly substantiate Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati's idea that the Vedas are the origin of not only religon but also of science. Those who want to read Maharishi Dayananda Sarasvati's views on this and other Vedic subjects must study his most scholarly work named 'ऋग्वेदादिभाष्यभूमिका' translated into English by Pt. Ghasi Ram Ji M. A. and published by the Sarvadeshik Arya pratinidhi Sabha, Ramlila Maidan New Delhi.

Unfortunately, there has been a great conflict between religions like Christianity and Islam on the one hand and Science on the other. In books like "History of the Conflict between Religion and Science" by William Draper M.A.,D.D. we find thousands of instances of such conflict. The great Scientists like Galelio and Bruno were persecuted for preaching Scientific principles like the earth revolving round the sun and plurality of the world which were declared by the inquisition Court to be "foolish," absurd, false in Theology and heretical because expressly contrary to the Holy Scriptures."

But the Vedas teach not only spiritual truths but also scientific truths for the material advancement of mankind. Therein lies the greatness and glory of the Vedas and the Universal, Philosophical, rational and Scientific religion preached by them.

CHAPTER III

The Necessity and Tests of Revelation.

We have already pointed out the necessity of Revelation in the beginning of the first chapter of this introduction saying "As worldly parents give knowledge to their children for their welfare, so God who is our Divine Father and Mother revealed the Eternal Truths through the Vedas for the well-being of all people," It is the common experience of all, that none can learn anything of importance, unless he is taught by anyone. Had it not been so, there would not have been any necessity of sending children to schools or colleges to learn. Several experiments were performed by the Prammeticusus of Egypt, King Asurbani Pal of Assyria, Swebian Emperor Frederic II James IV of Scotland and Akbar the Great of India. The last is said to have shut up thirty children before they could speak and put guards over them so that nurses might not teach them their language. At twelve years of age, the children were before the Emperor and a great assembly of linguists. Every one was astonished to find that they did not speak any lanugage at all.

How remarkable are the following words of the famous Greek Philosopher Plato who said—

"We will wait for one, be he a God or an inspired man to instruct us in religious duties and to take away the darkness from our eyes.

"Plato's Alcibiades."

In Phaedo the same philosopher says—

"We must seize upon the best human views in navigating the dangerous sea of life, if there is no safer or less perilous way, no stouter vessel or Divine Revelation for making this Voyage, (Plato's Phaedo). Socrates—the best among the wise men of Greece said the same thing differently as follows—

"You may resign yourself to sleep and give yourself up to despair, unless God in His Goodness, shall vouchsafe to send you instruction."

Dr. Fleming M. A., D. Sc., F.R.S. a distinguished Scientist pointed out the necessity of Revelation in the course of a lecture delivered by him in November 1914 at London during the Science Week in the following memorable words.

"If we are to obtain more solid assurance, it cannot come to the mind of man groping feebly in the dim light of un-assisted reason, but only a communication made directly from this Supreme Mind to the finite mind of man,"

(Science and Religion by Seven Men of Science—Lecture delivered by Dr. Fleming M. A. D.Sc, F. R.S. P. 53).

Every book that professes to be Ravealed or inspired, must fulfil at least the following conditions.

(1) It must be revealed in the very beginning of the human creation. God is the Father of all beings. He is impartial to all His children. He reveals knowledge for the common good of all. If God does not reveal the Eternal Truths, the unaided intellect of a man cannot grasp them. It is clear therefore that God revealed the eternal Truths in the beginning of the human creation. Prof. Maxmuller though a staunch Christian realised the force of this argument and wrote these remarkable words in his famous book 'Science of Religion" "If there is a God who has created heaven and earth, it will be unjust on His part if He deprived millions of souls born before Moses of His Divine Knowledge. Reason and comparative study of Religions declare that God gives His Divine Knowledge to mankind from his first appearance on earth.

That the Vedas were revealed in the beginning of human creation is the unanimous view of all the sages and seers of India. The Rishis were not the composers of the Mantras, but the persons who made out their secrets and preached them to others. The Vedas being eternal, there can not be any historical references in them. We shall throw some light on this when dealing with the question of the "Rishis" of the Mantras.

(2) The second chief test of Revelation is that there should be no contradictions in it. Now every one who has impartially read the Bible, must have seen that the teachings of Moses, as given in the Old Testament are in many respects contradicted by Jesus in the New Testament. For instance, we read in Matt. 5.31.

"It hath been said

"Whosoever shall put away his wife, let him give her a writing of divorcement. But I say unto you, that whosoever shall put away his wife saving for the cause of fornication, causes her to commit adultery and whosoever shall marry her that is divorced, committed adultery.

Then again in Matt. 5-38, 3 we read—

"Ye have heard that it hath been said, An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. But I say unto you, Ye resist not evil, but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek,turn to him the other also."

Other passages also can be quoted to show how the teachings of the Old and the New Testaments differ fom each other. That Omniscient God should fall in need of changing His words in the form of the Old and New Testaments is in itself a wonderful thing which can not be accounted for.

Let me quote in this connection the following passages from Rev. Sunderland's 'The Origin and Character of the Bible.' Rev. Sunderland clearly admits :—

Both Testaments contain numerous contradictions. These furnish evidence so incontrovertible on the question before us that we shall cite considerable number.

"Attention is called to the contradiction between 2 Sam. XXIVI and I Chronicle XXI.1. In one of these passages, we are told that it was the Lord and in the other that it was Satan, who prompted David to do a certain thing, to number or take Census of Israel. Of course, both statements cannot be true, unless the Lord and the Satan are the same being.

Now when we come to the four Gospels of the New Testament, we are surprised to see many discrepancies in them.

The teachings of the first three synoptical Gospels are in many respects fundamentally different from those of the fourth Gospel. While the first three Gospels lay stress on the purity of heart and other ethical virtues, the fourth Gospel (John) lays emphasis on the absolute faith in the name of the only begotten son of God, without which a man is doomed to hell as he says—

"He that believeth on Him (Jesus Christ) is not condemned, but he that believeth not is condemned already because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten son of God." John 3-18).

Rev. Sunderland un-ambiguously states as follows on this point :—

"So very marked and significant are contradictions between the first three Gospels and the fourth, that if the former are to be taken as giving in main a true picture, the latter can neither be historical nor the production of an eye witness."

In the first place, no inspiration is required to write a history, In the second place, taking for granted that an inspiration is required to write a history, we cannot conceive that God inspired the Evangelists in such a strange manner that they gave contradictory accounts of the same events in so many places. Thomas Paine has rightly remarked in his most remarkable and distinguished book named "The Age of Reason."

"Revelation is a communication of something which the person to whom the thing is revealed did not know before. For if I have done, a thing, or seen it done, it needs no Revelation to tell me, I have done or seen it done nor enable me to tell it or write it. Revelation therefore cannot be applied to anything done upon earth, of which man is himself actor or witness and consequently all the historical part of the Bible which is almost the whole of it, is not within the meaning and compass of the word Revelation and therefore is not the Word of God."

The same argument holds good with regard to Zend Avesta, the Holy Quran and other Scriptures of various sects where the life and teachings of their founders are given. The Vedas being eternal are free from any such historical references.

3. The third Chief test of Revelation is that it should not be opposed to Science and reason. It has been pointed out how in the Bible, there are many things which are opposed to reason and Science and that is why many great scientists like Galelio, Bruno and others and eminent philosophers like Hipatia were persecuted by the Christian Church for preaching Scientific principles like the revolution of the earth round the sun and plurality of worlds etc.

Dr. Barnes Bishop of Birmingham in the course of a Broadcast Address on Religion and Science stated in un-ambiguous terms that....

"Now before I speak of the possibility of the conflict between Raligion and Science, I wish to make it quite clear that many beliefs associated with religious faith in the past must be abandoned. They have had to meet direct Challenge of Science and I believe it is true to say that in every such direct battle, science has been the victor. Let me give definite instances :—

1 First, the earth is not the fixed centre of the Universe; it is merely the moving satellite of a sun which resembles other suns.

2 Secondly man was specially created.

3 Thirdly, no priest by ritual or formula can attain spiritual properties to inanimate Matter.

4 Fourthly, if by miracles, we mean large scale breaches in the uniformity of nature, such miracles do not occur in human experience.

Here are four typical results of Scientific investigation, which at length all must accept.

(The Religion and Science - a Symposium, London p. 57)

No comments are necessary. These words coming from the mouth of a thoughtful Bishop are very significant to which we invite the attention of all our Christian friends.

The same is the case with many dogmas and beliefs of our Mohammedan friends who believe implicitly in the Holy Quran which according to them says :—

"Those who reject our signs, we shall soon cast them into the fire. As soon as their skins are wasted through; we shall change them for fresh skins that they may taste the penalty, for God is exalted in power wise...

(Yusuf Ali's Translation of the Quran, Vol-I, P. 197)

64 "Verily God has cursed the un-believers and prepared for them a Blazing Fire.

65 To dwell therein for ever, no protector will they find.

66 The day that their faces will be turned upside down in fire, they will say :—

"Woe to us, would that we had obeyed God and obeyed the Apostle."

No such intolerant teachings are found in the Vedas which enjoin upon us to regard all beings on earth as our friends (yaj. 36 11) and which are quite in harmony with reason and science as pointed out before. It is therefore quite reasonable to regard the Vedas as the Universal Revealed Scriptures.

CHAPTER IV

THE VEDIC CONCEPTION OF GOD

In this chapter, we propose to throw some light on the Vedic conception of God. The Vedas teach the worship of One God who is Omnipresent, Omniscient and Omnipotent Lord of the universe. The Vedic conception of God put in a nutshell is expressed clearly in the following well-known verse of the Yajur Veda 40-8.

ओं स पर्य्यगाच्छुक्रमकायमव्रणमस्नाविरँ् शुद्धमपापविद्धम् ।
कविर्मनीषी परिभूः स्वयम्भूर्याथातथ्यतोऽर्थान्
व्यदधाच्छाश्वतीभ्यः समाभ्यः ॥ यजु० ४०-८ ।

It means........

God is All-pervading, Radiant and formless, free from physical wound as He is without sinews, most Holy, Unpierced by any sin, Omniscient, Knower of the mind of all, All conquering and Self-existent. He has created the objects of the world for His eternal subects (immortal souls).

According to the Vedas, such an Omnipresent, Omnipotent and Omniscient God is One and He alone is to be worshipped by all with pure heart and noble deeds.

The Vedas declare......

य एक इत्तमु ष्टुहि कृष्टीनां विचर्षणिः ।
पतिर्जज्ञे वृषक्रतुः ॥ ऋग्वेद ६-४५-१६ ।

O man ! Praise God who is One and One only and who is the Omniscient and Omnipotent Lord of all beings.

एक एव नमस्यो विक्ष्वीड्यः ॥ अथर्व २-२-१ ।

One God alone is to be worshipped by all people. He is Adorable.

एक एव नमस्यः सुशेवाः ॥ अथर्व २-२-२ ।

One God alone who is the Giver of true happiness and bliss is to be worshipped by all.

It is true that some scholars maintain that the Vedas enjoin upon us the worship of many Gods such as Indra, Agni, Mitra, Varuna etc. But their idea is entirely wrong. In the Vedas, Agni, Mitra, Varuna, Brahma, Vishnu, Shiva and other words of this type are principally used for God. For instance, we are expressly told in the Rigveda—

इन्द्रं मित्रं वरुणमग्निमाहुरथो दिव्यः स सुपर्णो गरुत्मान् ।
एकं सद्विप्रा बहुधा वदन्त्यग्निं यमं मातरिश्वानमाहुः ॥
ऋ० १-१६४-४६ ।

i. e. That Supreme Spirit is the Protector of all and He pervades and gives light to all bright things. He is called Indra or the Glorious, Mitra or the Friendly, Varuna or the Greatest and the best, Agni or Adorable. Though One, He is called by the wise, by many names such as Agni (The Adorable) Yama (The Ruler or Controller) Matarishva or the Mighty.

In another part of the same Veda we find......

सुपर्णं विप्राः कवयो वचोभिरेकं सन्तं बहुधा कल्पयन्ति ॥
ऋग्वेद १०-११४-५ ।

The learned and the wise describe the One existing God in many forms of expressions.

In the Rig Veda 10.82.3 the idea of one God is put in the following manner :—

यो नः पिता जनिता यो विधाता,
धामानि वेद भुवनानि विश्वा ।
यो देवानां नामधा एक एव तं संप्रश्नं भुवना यन्त्यन्या ॥
ऋ० १०-८२-३ ।

Our Father who is the All-creating God and Who is the disposer, knoweth all the worlds and all things existing; He is the only One Reality, the name giver of all the devasshining objects. Him alone all other beings attain (for) He is the only one solution of all our interrogations.

Rig 10.82.3

The Omnipresence and Omnipotence of God has been described poetically in the Vedas as follows.

विश्वतश्चक्षुरुत विश्वतोमुखो विश्वतो बाहुरुत विश्वतस्पात्।
सं बाहुभ्यां धमति सं पतत्रैर्द्यावाभूमी जनयन्देव एकः ॥
ऋ० १०-८१-३ ।

"He whose eyes are everywhere, Whose mouth is in all sides, Whose arms are all around and Whose feet are in all directions is the only One Divine Being who has created the heaven and the earth and by means of His all-spreading arms, He infuses life into all beings.

The Oneness of God is explicitly described in the following, besides thousands of Mantras of the same kind.

य एक इद्विदयते वसु मर्ताय दाशुषे ।
ईशानो अप्रतिष्कुत इन्द्रो अङ्ग ॥ ऋ० १-८४-७। साम० ३८९ ।

O. friend ! Indra (God of Supreme Power) is the only

Ruler of resistless authority Who bestoweth wealth on the gift - offering liberal mortal.

प्रजापते न त्वदेतान्यन्यो विश्वा जातानि परि ता बभूव ।
यत्कामास्ते जुहुमस्तन्नो अस्तु वयं स्याम पतयो रयीणाम् ॥

ऋ० १०-१२१-१० ।

O Lord of all creatures, no other than Thou can control and govern all these created things. May the things desiring which we pray to Thee, be ours. May we be lords of all good wealth (material as well spiritual).

न द्वितीयो न तृतीयश्चतुर्थो नाप्युच्यते । ० ॥१६॥
न पंचमो न षष्ठः सप्तमो नाप्युच्यते । ० । ॥१७॥
नाष्टमो न नवमो दशमो नाप्युच्यते । ० । ॥१८॥
..............स एष एक वृदेक एव । अथर्व० १३-४२० ।
सर्वे अस्मिन् देवा एकवृतो भवन्ति । ० । ॥२१॥

अथर्व० १३-४-१६-१८ ।

He (God) is called neither the second, nor the third nor yet the fourth. He is called neither the fifth, nor the sixth, nor yet the seventh.

He is called neither the eighth, not the ninth nor yet the tenth.

He takes care of all that breathes and of all that does not breathe. He has got all this conquering power. He is the One, One alone and only One.

All these luminous forces of nature become one in Him.

Atharva XII 4. 19-21.

How emphatically the Unity of God is asserted in such passages and how absurd and false is the view advocated by some prejudiced Western Scholars that Vedas teach polytheism.

Besides prejudice, it is also due to ignorance of the real meaning of the word "Deva" that this misconception about the Vedic idea of God has sprung up. It is generally translated by the Western scholars as God and as 33 devas are mentioned in some Vedic hymns. It is supposed that the Vedas teach the worship of these 33 Devas or Gods. As a matter of fact, the word (देव) (Deva) is derived from the root Divu दिवु which has got ten meanings.

दिवु-क्रीडाविजिगीषाव्यवहारद्युतिस्तुतिमोदमदस्वप्नकान्ति-गतिषु ॥ —धातुपाठे ।

It means Deva is used in the sense of sporting, desire to conquer, pursuit, brilliancy, praise, pleasure, exhilaration, sleep, knowledge, motion and acquisition.

As such, it is an epithet applied to the sun, the moon and other forces of nature life fire, wind etc.

Yaskacharya, the celebrated author of the Vedic Philology (Nirukta) interprets the word "Deva" as follows—

देवो दानाद् वा दीपनाद् वा द्योतनाद् वा द्युस्थानो भवतीति वा । निरुक्ते ७-१६ ।

That which confers some advantages upon us, can illuminate things i. e. explain or throw light upon them and that which is the source of light is "Deva."

It is therefore entirely wrong to translate the word "deva" everywhere as God. It may be used for all brilliant and useful objects as well as learned men of truthful nature.

सत्यसंहिता वै देवाः ॥ ऐतरेय ब्राह्मण १-६

विद्वांसो हि देवाः ॥ शतपथ ३-७-३-१० ।

By 33 devas mentioned in the Vedas are not meant 33 Gods as misinterpreted by some eastern and western scholars, but the following objects according to the Shatapath Brahman which contains exposition of the Yajurveda mantras—

कतमे ते त्रयस्त्रिंशत् इति अष्टौ वसवः ।

एकादश रुद्रा द्वादशादित्याः त एकत्रिंशत्

इन्द्रश्चैव प्रजापतिश्च त्रयस्त्रिंशाविति ॥

कतमे वसव इति । अग्निश्च पृथिवी च वायुश्चान्तरिक्षं

चादित्यश्च द्यौश्च चन्द्रमाश्च नक्षत्राणि चैते
वसव एतेषु हीदं सर्वं वसु हितम् एते हीदं सर्वं
वासयन्ते तद्यदिदं सर्वं वासयन्ते तस्माद् वसव इति ।
कतमे रुद्रा इति । दशेमे पुरुषे प्राणा आत्मैकादशः ते
यदास्मात् मर्त्याच्छरीरादुत्क्रामन्ति अथ रोदयन्ति
तद् यद् रोदयन्ति तस्माद् रुद्रा इति ।
कतम आदित्या इति । द्वादशमासाः सम्वत्सरस्य
एत आदित्याः एते हीदं सर्वमाददाना यन्ति तद्यदिदं
सर्वमाददाना यन्ति तस्मादादित्या इति ।
कतम इन्द्रः कतमः प्रजापतिरिति ।
स्तनयित्नुरेवेन्द्रो यज्ञः प्रजापतिरिति ।
कतम एको देव इति स ब्रह्म त्यदित्याचक्षते ॥

शतपथ १४-१६ ।

The meaning of the above is......

There are 33 devas which manifest the glory of God, 2 Vasus, II Rudras, 12 Adityas, Indra and Prajapati, 33 on the whole. The eight Vasus (1) Heated consmic bodies, (2) Planets (3) Atmospheres (4) Superterrestrial space (5) Suns (6) Rays of etheral space (7) Satellites (8) Stars.

These are called Vasus (abodes) for the whole group of existences resides in them, for they are abodes of all that lives, moves or exists.

The eleven Rudras are the ten pranas (nervauric forces or vital airs) enlivening the human frame and the eleventh is atma (the human spirit).

These are called the Rudras (from root rud to weep) because when they desert the body, it becomes dead and the relations of the dead begin to weep.

The 12 Adityas are the twelve solar months, marking the course of time. They are called Adityas as by their cyclic motion, they produce changes in all objects and hence lapse of the term of existence of each object.

Indra is the all-pervading electricity or force. Prajapati is Yajna (or an active voluntary associationof objects on the part of man for the purpose of art or association with other men for purpose of teaching or learning) God is the One Deva Who is Adorable. According to the Vedas, God is the Supreme Lord of all the devas. The Vedas tell us expressly.

आपो ह यद्बृहतीर्विश्वमायन्गर्भं दधाना जनयन्तीरग्निम् ।
ततो देवानां समवर्ततासुरेक: कस्मै देवाय हविषा विधेम ॥
ऋ० १०-१२१-७ ।

यश्चिदापो महिना पर्यपश्यद्दक्षं दधाना जनयन्तीर्यज्ञम् ॥
ऋ० १०-१२१-८ ।

When this vast diffused matter producing an igneous condition and holding in its womb this universe, manifested itself, then He was the One life of all shining beings; He it is to Whom we shall offer our prayers. (Rig. 10.121.7)

He who with His greatness looked on that diffused Matter possessed of heat and energy and producing the cosmos, Who is the One Supreme Lord (Adhi Deva) of bright things (devas). He it is to whom we shall offer our prayers.

In the Rigveda 8, i. 1 and Sama Veda 342. we find the Vedic injunction :—

मा चिदन्यद्वि शंसत सखायो मा रिषण्यत ।
इन्द्र मित्स्तोता वृषणं सचा सुते मुहुरुक्था च शंसत ॥
ऋग्वेद ८-१-१ ।

O ye friends : do not glorify any other being than God so that sorrows and sufferings may not trouble you. Eulogies Indra-God of Supreme Power alone Who is the showerer of all blessings and repeatedly pronounce the sacted hymns together in all your congregations. (Rig. VIII·1-1)

In the Rigveda I 164.20 the relation between God and Soul and their separate existence is expressed in the following poetical words—

द्वा सुपर्णा सयुजा सखाया समानं वृक्षं परि षस्वजाते ।
तयोरन्य: पिप्पलं स्वाद्वत्त्यनश्नन्नन्यो अभि चाकशीति ॥
ऋग्वेद १-१६४-२०

Two co-eternal spirits reside in the equally eternal matter, like two co-eval and friendly birds perching on the same tree. One of these two (viz. the finite soul) tastes of the fruit of this tree (i. e. feels pleasure and pain which are incidental to the soul's union with matter or its circumscription with a body) while the other (viz. Infinite Soul or God) watches or supervises without being subject to its joys and sorrows. It is thus clear that the Vedas advocate neither polytheism nor henotheism or pantheism. It is Monotheism of the purest type that is taught by the Vedas. The Vedic conception of God has been clearly expressed by Maharshi Dayananda Sarasvati-the greatest sage and Vedic scholar of the age as follows—

God is Truth and Happiness itself, Formless, Almighty, Just, Merciful, Unbegotten, Infinite, Immutable, without beginning, Incomparable, All-supporting, the Lord of All, All pervading, Omniscient, Imperishable, Immortal, Fearless, Eternal, Holy and the efficient cause of the universe. To him alone worship is due. This is quite in keeping with the scientific conception of God as expressed by Sir Issac Newton, the father of Modern science in the following terms—

"These things being rightly despatched does it not appear from phenomena that there is a Supreme Being in-corporeal, living, Intelligent, Omnipresent, who in infinite space sees the things themselves intimately and thoroughly, perceives them and comprehends them wholly by their immediate presence to Himself." (Opticks by Sir Newton P. 344)

Impartial Great Scholars on the Vedic Conception of God

Many impartial great scholars of all countries and nations have clearly admitted that the Vedas teach pure Monotheism. The following are some extracts from their writings:—

(1) Shri F. Dadachanji B. A., LL. B., The renowned Parsi Scholar in his well known book entitled 'Philosophy of Zoroastrianism and Comparative Study of Religions" has clearly and most un-ambiguously stated—

"The Vedas teach nothing but monotheism of the purest kind." P' 100

A Muslim Scholar's Views—

Sir Yamin Khan Kt. C. I. E. Ex. Member of the Central

Assembly in the Pre-independence days writes in his known work named "God, Soul and Universe in Science and Islam."

"Originally the conception of God among the Hindus was right, when they believed Him to be Unit and Omnipresent, but when they started dividing Him into different shapes according to different functions which they considered He performed, they strayed far from their original conception. The result was that many who were heroes in their life time, were gradually turned into incarnations of God and idolatry increased."

Chap. 1 P. 3)

"Many Hindus believe that all their sins are washed away by having a dip in the holy water of the Ganges. Thus it is seen that the great philosophical religion which conceived Unity of God in the beginning, brought up corruption and degradation of high ideas, when His attributes as the Creator, the Preserver and the Destroyer were divided and allotted to different deities possessing separate entities in different forms.

Swami Dayananda Saraswati a man of great learning started preaching the old Religion of the Vedas which conceived Unity of God.

Some Western Scholars on the subject—

Mr. Schlegel - a famous German philosopher writes thus in the "Wisdom of the Ancient Hindus."

"It cannot be denied that the early Indians possessed a knowledge of the true God. All their writings are replete with sentiments and expressions noble, clear, lovely, grand, as deeply conceived as in any human language in which men have spoken of their God.

Mr. Charles Coleman—

Mr. Charles Coleman an English Scholar has written as follows regarding the Vedic Conception of God—"The Almighty, Infinite, Eternal, Incomprehensible, Self-existent Being, He who sees everything through never seen is Brahma, One un-known True Being, the Creator, the Preserver and Destroyer of the Universe...

Count Bjarnstjerne's Views—

Count Bjarnstjerne-a Russian Scholar wrote thus in this illustrious work named "Theogony of the Hindus" P. 53 after giving a few quotations from the Vedas—

"These sublime ideas can not fail to convince us that the Vedas recognise only One God who is Almighty, Infinite, Eternal, Self existent, the Light and Lord of the Universe."

Mr. Ernest Wood's views—

Mr. Ernest Wood an English Scholar in his famous book entitled "An English Man defends Mother India." has stated as follows on the subject we are dealing with 'In the eyes of Hindus, there is but One God. This was stated long ago in the Rigveda in the following words—

एकं सद् विप्रा बहुधा वदन्ति ।

Which may be translated as "The sages name the One Being variously."

Prof. Maxmuller's Views—

Prof. Maxmullar admitted in his last work (though he did not admit that before) "That the conception had been formed (in the Vedic period) that there is but One, One Being neither male nor female, a being raised high above all the conditions and limitations of personality and of human nature and nevertheless the Being that was really meant by all such names as Indra, Agni, Matarishvan and by the name Prajapati-Lord of creatures."

Referring to several hymns of the Vedas, Prof. Max-muller remarked in his "History of Sanskrit Literature" "I add only one more hymn, (Rig. 10.121) in which the Idea of One God is expressed with such power and decision, that it will make us hesitate before we deny to the Aryan nation an instinctive monotheism."

Thus it is clear that the Vedas teach the worship of One God and their conception of God is most rational and scientific.

Chapter VII

Rishis and Devatas of the Mantras

The general notion of the Western Scholars and their Indian followers is that the Rishis whose names are mentioned on the Mantras are their composers and devatas are the deities to be worshipped. But this is a very erroneous view. By Rishis are meant, according to all ancient authorities, the seers who made out the secrets of the Vedas and propagated them. Yaskacharya, the wellknown philologist and author of the Nirukta says in 1-91.

साक्षात्कृतधर्माण ऋषयो बभूवुस्तेऽसाक्षात्कृतधर्मभ्य उपदेशेन मन्त्रान् सम्प्रादुः ॥ निरुक्त १ । १६

The original seers were men of realisation who saw or perfectly understood the Dharma. They taught it to those who themselves had not realised it or were not inspired persons.

In Nirukta 2-11 Yaskacharya says :

ऋषयो मन्त्रद्रष्टारः ऋषिर्दर्शनात्स्तोमान् ददर्शेत्यौपमन्यवः। यदेनान् तपस्यमानान् ब्रह्म स्वयम्भू अभ्यानर्षत् तदृषीणामृषित्वमिति विज्ञायते ॥

i. e. The Rishis are seers of the Mantras. The word Rishi means Drashta. Opamanyava Acharya is of opinion that those who by austerities, realised the Vedic hymns were called Rishis."

The Taittiriya Aranyak (2-9-1) says similarly.....

यत् एनान् तपस्यमानान् ब्रह्मस्वयम्भू अभ्यानर्षत् तेऋषयोऽभवन् तदृषीणामृषित्वम् ॥

Those that after tapas or deep meditation realised the secret meaning of the Vedic Mantras, became Rishis by the Grace of the Almighty.

Thus it is evident that the Rishis, whose names are found over the Mantras or the hymns in printed books, were not the authors or the composers of the Mantras, but the seers who made out the Secret meaning of the Mantras and propagated them. Those who have not studied the Vedic Literature deeply, labour under the delusion that the names of Vasistha, Vishvamitra, Bharadvaja, Kanva, Jamadagni etc. that are found in some Vedic verses, stand for the names of the Rishis and therefore, the Vedas can not be believed to be eternal. They were composed by the Rishis in different periods.

In the Meemansa Shastra, Jaimini has raised this question of the historical names found in the Vedas through the aphorisms like अनित्यदर्शनाच्च मीमांसाशास्त्र १-२८ and has answered it in परन्तु श्रुतिसामान्यमात्रम् ॥ मीमांसा १-३१ ।

i. e. In the Vedas there are no proper nouns denoting the names of certain persons, but only common nouns denoting certain attributes. For instance, the following meanings are given in the Shatapath Brahmana (which is a commentary on the Yajurveda) of some words of this type.

प्राणो वै वसिष्ठ ऋषिः ॥ शतपथ ८ । १ । १ । ६
मनो वै भरद्वाज ऋषिः ॥ शतपथ ८ । १ १ । ९
श्रोत्रं वै विश्वामित्र ऋषिः ॥ शत० ८ । १ । २ । ६
प्रजापतिर्वै जमदग्निः ॥ शत० ८ । १ । २ । २
प्राणो वा अंगिराः ॥ शत० ६ । १ । २ । २८
वाग्वै विश्वकर्मा ऋषिः ॥ ८ । १ । २ । ९

i. e. Prana (Vital Breath) is called Vasishtha Rishi because it is the best. Mind is called Bharadvaja Rishi— the bearer of knowledge. Ear is called Vishvamitra Rishi, because it is friend of all. Eye and the Prajapati (Lord) are called Jamadagni, Prana or vital breath is called Angirah. Vak or speech is called Vishva Karma, for it is with its help, that a man is able to do many works by expressing what is to be done.

In the Nighantu—the Vedic Lexicon it is stated.

कण्व इति मेधाविनाम । निघण्टु ३।१५
गृत्स इति मेधाविनाम निघ० ३।१५

ऋभुः इति मेधाविनाम निघ० ३।१५

Kanva does not mean in the Veda name of a particular sage, but a wise man in general. The same is the case with words Gritsa, Vena, Ribhu and others.

यदवः इतिमनुष्यनाम निघ० २-३ पूरवः इति मनुष्य नाम निघ० २-३ नहुष इति मनुष्यनाम निघ० २।३ ।

It means that the words नहुषाः, यदवः, पूरवः etc. when found in the Vedas, do not stand for any particular persons or they are not proper nouns, but they denote men in general. This cuts at the root of the socalled historical references in the Vedas.

The word अथर्वा (Atharva) is used for a non-violent Yogi who has steadied his mind, as it is derived from the root थर्व (Tharva) to be un-steady or restless. In the Nighntu we read थर्वतिश्चरतिकर्मा ५-२ ॥

According to Kashakritsna Dhatu Path, the root tharva थर्व means हिंसा or violence थर्व-हिंसायाम् Therefore अथर्वा (Atharva) means a non-violent Yogi. In Kausheetaki Brahmana of the Rigveda 25-2, 26-15 it is stated.

प्रजापतिर्वै वसिष्ठः ।। कौषीतकी ब्राह्मण २५-२-२६-१५।

i. e. वसिष्ठ means God as well as the protector of the people.

In Gopath Brahmana Uttar 3-9 (commentary on the Atharva Veda) it is stated येन श्रेष्ठस्तेन वसिष्ठः ।
i. e. वसिष्ठ (Vasishtha) means the best. In Shatapath 8-11-6 it is stated........

यद्वै नु श्रेष्ठस्तेन वसिष्ठः अथोयद् वस्तुतमो भवति तेनो एव वसिष्ठः (शतपथ ब्राह्मणे ८-१-१-६)

Here also the meaning of the word वसिष्ठ (Vasishtha) has been given as the best or one who bears the attributes of God to the largest extent.

In the Shatapath Brahmana 13-2-2-14 the word जमदग्नि (Jamadagni) has been explained as प्रजापतिर्वै जमदग्निः ऋषिः ॥ (शत० १३-२-२-१४) Jamadagni is God or a King who protects his subjects well.

In the Nirukta, the word Jamadagni (जमदग्नि) has been used for a person who performs Yajnas (non-violent sacrifices) properly and keeps in his home fire always burning.

जमदग्निभिराहुतः इति जमदग्नयः प्रजमिताग्नयो वा प्रज्वलिताग्नयो वा । (Nirukta 7-7-24)

The word अत्रि (Atri) which means tongue according to the Shatapath 14-5-2-2 वागेवात्रिर्वाचा ह्यन्नमद्यते अत्तिर्ह वै नामैतद् यदत्रिरिति means also a Sanyasi when it is derived from अत—सातत्यगमने i. e, he who moves from place to place for preaching Dharma. Hundreds of such passages can be quoted.

So it is wrong to take such words as वशिष्ठ, विश्वामित्र. जमदग्नि, भरद्वाज etc. when they are found in the Vedic Mantras, as the names of particular seers. They should be taken as common nouns denoting certain attributes and persons who possess them. It should always be borne in mind that all Vedic words are Yougikas or derivatives as clearly stated by Yaskacharya in Nirukta 1-4-11.

तामानि आख्यातजानि इति नैरुक्तसमयः ॥ निरुक्त १-४-११

i. e. All nouns are derived from verbal roots or dhatus and therefore in Vedas रूढ़ि (rudhi) or arbitary meanings are never used. They are resolvable to their roots. The Sage Patanjali —the distinguished Grammarian, author of the Mahabhashya has said the same thing.

नाम च धातुजमाह निरुक्ते । व्याकरणे शकटस्य च तोकम्॥

Many grammarians like Shakatayana and others accept the above principle in toto.

Even Prof. Max. Muller had to admit this important principle of the Vedic Terminology willy-nilly saying:—

"But there is a Charm in the primitive strains discoverable in no other class of poetry. Every word retains something of its radical meaning, every epithet tells, every thought, inspite of the most intricate and abrupt expressions, is if one disentangles it, true, complete.

Two Insnrmountable difficulties in accepting Rishis as Authors or Composers of the Mantras.

1. There are several Mantras whose Rishis are a hundred or more. For instance, in Rig. 9-66-19 and Sama Veda 627, 1464 we find the following well-known mantra.

अग्न आयूंषि पवस आसुवोर्जमिषं च नः ॥

आरे बाधस्व दुच्छुनाम् ॥

About its Rishis, it is stated शतं वैखानसा ऋषयः ॥ i e. There are one hundred Banaprasthas as its Rishis. Is it reasonable to believe that one hundred Rishis composed together this short Mantra of 24 letters ? How absurd the idea looks ? In Rig. 9-11-53 and Sama Veda 653 we find the following Mantra. स नः पवस्व शं गवे शं जनाय शमर्वते । शं राजन्नोषधीभ्यः ॥ About its Rishis also, it is stated शतं वैखानसा ऋषयः i. e. its Rishis are one hundred Banaprasthas. How absurd it is to suppose that one hundred seers composed this short Mantra of about 24 letters ? On the other hand, if we take Rishis to be the seers of the Mantras, who pondered over them and preached to others about it, there is no difficulty at all. In Rig. 8-34 we find 3 Mantras beginning with एन्द्र याहि हरिभिः about which it is stated वसुरोचिषोऽङ्गिरसः सहस्रसंख्याका ऋषयः There are one thousand seers as their Rishis. Is it reasonable to believe that one thousand seers assembled to compose these short Mantras ? It is absurd on the very face of it. On the other hand if we accept the Rishis to be the seers and preachers of the Mantras, there is no difficulty in taking one thousand or even more seers to be their Rishis.

2. The second insurmountable difficulty in accepting the Rishis as authors of the Mantras is the use of the Superlative degree with the so-called names of the Rishis in the following besides many others.

In Rig. 1-48-4 we read:—

अत्राह तत् कण्व एषां कण्वतमो नाम गृणाति नृणाम् ॥
Rig.

In Rig. 10-115-5 we read स इदग्निः कण्वतमः कण्व सखायः॥

In Rig. 1-100-4 we find सो अंगिरोभिरंगिरस्तमोऽभूत् ॥

In Rig. 1-107-6 we read त्वं विप्रो भवोंऽगिरस्तमः ॥

In Rig 7-79-3 we read अभूदुषा इन्द्रतमा मघोनी अंगिरस्तमा सुकृते वसूनि ॥

No where the superlative degree is used with the proper nouns. But in the above and many other Mantras, we find adjectives like कण्वतमः, अंगिरस्तमः, इन्द्रतमः etc. which are possible only when all these words like Kanva, Angira and Indra are taken as derivatives meaning:—

कण्व इति मेधाविनाम (निघ० ६-५) अंगिरा उ ह्यग्निः ॥ शत० १-४-१-२५ प्राणो वा अंगिराः ॥ शत० ३-१-२-२८ इन्द्रो वै देवानामोजिष्ठो बलिष्ठः ॥ कौषीतकी ६-१४ इदि परमैश्वर्ये ।

a wise man, a knower of the science of agni (fire) and Prana and the most heoric person etc. Those who desire to study the subject in detail, should study my book वेदों का यथार्थ स्वरूप a book of about 400 pages reprinted by Dayananda Sansthana 1570 Hardhyana Singh Rd New Delhi Price Rs. 6.

The Devatas of the Mantras.

What is meant by the devata of a Mantra? Generally Western Scholars translate the word devata as a deity. But that is misleading and wrong. By devata of Mantra is not meant deity, but the subject matter. In the Sarvanukramani it is stated या तेन उच्यते सा देवता i.e. the subject matter of the Mantra is called देवता Devata. Yaskacharya the famous author of the Nirukta also says the same thing. यत्काम ऋषिर्यस्यां देवतायामार्थपत्यम् इच्छन् स्तुतिं प्रयुंक्तेतद् दैवतः स मन्त्रो भवति ॥ i.e. When God, desiring to impart instruction about a particular object, describes its properties in a Mantra, it is said to have that object as its devata. That is why there are many abstract ideas mentioned as devatas. For instance Shraddha-genuine faith is the devata of Rig. 10-151 धनदानप्रशंसा or praise of charity is the devata of Rig. 10-117 दक्षिणा or largess is the devata of Rig. 10-107 अरण्यानी (dense forest) is the devata of Rig. 10-146 द्यूतनिन्दा or the Censure of gambling is the devata of Rig. 10-34 ओषधयः or herbs of Rig. 10-101 etc. These are sufficient to show that by devata is meant the subject matter of the Mantra and not a deity which is to be worshipped. We have dealt with this subject of devatas also exhaustively in our book वेदों का यथार्थ स्वरूप Chap 4 referred to above which may be studied by those eager to know this and other important subjects regarding the Vedas thoroughly.

At the end of this Introduction, let me sincerely thank all those who have given valuable suggestions. Special mention may be made of the following gentlemen:

An appeal and its generous response

Teachings of the Vedas need, at all times and in all climes, to be propagated widely especially in these days when mankind is groping in the dark and human depravity and sufferings and chaos are mounting. Every Arya, Arya Samaj and the lover of the Vedas is called upon to undertake or help the propagation of the Vedas and popularisation of these commentaries in English, thus facilitate the successful execution of this noble undertaking of the Sabha.

I hope and trust that their response will be most encouraging.

An ideal response to this appeal:-

The following have set an example in liberally contributing to the above noble cause, for which the Sabha is highly grateful to them. Others should also follow them to the best of their means.

THE HOLY RIGVEDA

Mandala I. Sukta I.

(१) अथादिमस्य नवर्चस्य सूक्तस्य मधुच्छन्दा ऋषिः। अग्निर्देवता॥ गायत्री छन्दः। षड्जः स्वरः।

Of the first hymn comprising nine verses in the first book of the Holy Rigveda, the seer is sage Madhu-Chhandas. The devata or subject is Agni. The metre is Gayatri. The tune is the Shadja.

(तत्राद्ये मन्त्रेऽग्निशब्देनेश्वरेणात्मभौतिकावर्थावुपदिश्येते ।)

There in the first verse, instruction is imparted by God regarding His ownself and the physical signification of the word agni (fire).

Mantra 1.

अ॒ग्निमी॑ळे पु॒रोहि॑तं य॒ज्ञस्य॑ दे॒वमृ॒त्विज॑म्। होता॑रं रत्न॒धात॑मम्॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः—(१) अहं यज्ञस्य पुरोहितम् ऋत्विजं होतारं रत्नधातमं देवम् अग्निम् ईडे ॥ (ऋग्वेदभाष्ये)

पुरोहितं यज्ञस्य देवम् ऋत्विजं होतारम् रत्नधातमम् परमात्मानम् अग्निम् अहमीडे स्तौमि याचामि तस्यैवान्वेषणं कुर्वे ॥ (प्रथम नवमन्त्रभाष्ये महर्षिकृते)

TRANSLATION

(1) I glorify the Self-effulgent God the Supreme Leader, the Eternal Support of the universe, the Illuminator of all noble activity, the only object of adoration in all seasons and the most Bounteous and the Greatest Bestower of splendid wealth. (both material and spiritual in the form of wisdom, Peace, faith etc.).

PURPORT

It should be understood that both the spiritual and physical significations of this Mantra (Verse) are to be grasped through Shleshalankar—double meaning or the "pun" on the term "agni". Hereafter where ever the verbal expression उपदिश्यते or "is taught" is used, it should be remembered that the author of that act (of teaching) throughout is God Himself. Why is it so ? because the Vedas have been revealed by Him. We should know that the merciful God gave instruction through the Vedas with the object of imparting all true knowledge for the benefit of all souls, just as a father or preceptor teaches his son or disciple saying "thus should you speak, thus should you do, speak the truth, serve your father and preceptor, don't tell a lie or resort to falsehood in your dealings etc. Similar is the purpose of the present text. The Vedic lore was revealed by God for the welfare of all souls. It is for this reason, that the first personal noun is used in the Vedic texts, for the Vedic instruction is intended for the good of others. For the achievement of both spiritual and physical knowledge, both the significations viz. God and fire should be taken. It is said that in ancient times, the Aryas had evolved an art which was the cause of quick locomotion known by the technical term 'Ashva Vidya'. That was the science of heat and fire or harnessing the thermic force. For God being Self-refulgent and the Revealer of everything, is Omniscient. His knowledge in Infinite. The reason for instruction regarding fire or thermic force in the very beginning is its being the principal means for the realisation of the main arts and crafts, on account of its possessing the properties of colour, heat, light, velocity and disjunction etc.

(2) In the case of the fire, the meaning of the Mantra is—

I long for the acquisition of or make use of the fire (including electricity) which gives many articles produced with the help of science and industries and upholder of sustenance, attraction etc. to be used in every season, the producer of gold and other beautiful articles, giver of victory in the battles through weapons and illuminator of all objects.

The commentator's (Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati's) Notes and Comments.

Verse—1

The following passages from the Vedas and other authoritative works are given to prove that the Vedas teach monotheism of the purest type.

इन्द्रं मित्रं वरुणमग्निमाहुरथो दिव्यः स सुपर्णो गरुत्मान् ।
एकं सद्विप्रा बहुधा वदन्त्यग्निं यमं मातरिश्वानमाहुः ॥

(ऋ० १.१६४.४६)

It is clearly stated in this Mantra that though the Supreme Being—God is One, He is called by various names such as Indra, Mitra, Varuna, Agni, Yama, Matarishva etc. to denote His different attributes.

तदेवाग्निस्तदादित्यस्तद् वायुस्तदु चन्द्रमाः ।
तदेव शुक्रं तद् ब्रह्म ता आपः स प्रजापतिः ॥

(यजु० ३२. १)

This Mantra also clearly teaches that The Supreme Being who has absolute Existence, Absolute consciousness and Absolute Bliss has many names like Agni, Aditya, Vayu, Chandrama, Shukra, Brahma, Apah, and Prajapati etc. which denote His different attributes.

In Shatapath Brahmana which is a commentary on the Yajurveda, it is stated in 1.4.2.11. ब्रह्म ह्यग्निः ॥ God is called Agni. आत्मा वा अग्निः ॥ Atma (which word is used for both God and soul) is called Agni. In the Shatapath Brahmana 9. 1.2.42 it is said.

अयं वा अग्निः प्रजाश्च प्रजापतिश्च ॥

(शतपथ ९. १.२ ४२)

Here the word Agni stands for material fire connected with the subjects and God as Praja Pati or Lord of all beings.

In Shatapath 1.1.1.2-5 it is stated—

अग्निर्वै देवानां व्रतपतिः। एतद्धवैदेवा व्रतं चरन्ति यत्सत्यम्॥

i.e. Agni the Self-effulgent Lord is the Protector of the vows of the enlightened persons. The vow that enlightened wise men observe is the vow of practising truthfulness in thought, word and deed. सत्याचार नियमपालनं व्रतं तत्पतिरीश्वरः॥ observance of the rule of truthfulness in one's conduct is the vow and Protector of such a vow is Almighty God.

The following texts also should be studied in this connection which prove that the word "Agni" is used here not for fire, but for God.

त्रिभिः पवित्रैरपुपोद्ध्यर्कं हृदा मतिं ज्योतिरनु प्रजानन्।
वर्षिष्ठं रत्नमकृत स्वधाभिरादिद्द्यावापृथिवी पर्यपश्यत्॥
(ऋ० ३.२६.८)

Here the word Agni is to be understood from the previous context, as the verbal form. प्रजानन् (Prajanan) knowing well, an intellectual action is mentioned and as by the expression पर्यपश्यत् (Paryapashyat) the idea of thoroughly overseeing or supervising is denoted, the term "Agni" should here be taken to connote the idea of the Omnipotent and Omniscient God and not material fire. The sage Yaskacharya—the author of the Nirukta interprets the word Agni in this Mantra अग्निमीडेपुरोहितम् in the following manner in order to show that the term stands for both God and material fire.

अग्निः कस्मात् अग्रणीर्भवति अग्रंयज्ञेषु प्रणीयते अंगं नयति संनममानः अक्नोपनो भवतीति स्थौलाष्ठीविर्न क्नोपयति न स्नेहयति त्रिभ्य आख्यातेभ्यो जायत इति शाकपूणिः इतादक्ताद् दग्धाद् आनीतात् स खल्वेतेरकारमादत्ते गकारमनक्तेर्वा दहतेर्वा नीः परः तस्यैषा भवतीति॥

(निरुक्ते यास्काचार्यः)

It means

Why is it called अग्निः (Agni) ? because (1) it is the forward leader. (2) It is carried well forward in ritualistic undertakings like Yajnas. (3) Bending and entering it occupies and carries the whole body (mass) of anything. Acharya Sthoulashtheevi maintains that as it is not sticky, it is called agni. It is not sticky means, it is not viscous. Acharya Shaka Pooni says that the word Agni' can be derived from three verbal roots viz. इण् गतौ इण्—to go अंचु गतिपूजनयोः अंचु—to go and to worship or दह-दाहे दह to burn followed by णीञ्-प्रापणे नी to lead or carry. He derives the अ of Agni from the second conjugational verbal root इण् to go giving अयति the ग of अग्नि he gets from अंचु to go or दह to burn and then the verb नी इण्+अंचु+नी or इण्+दह+नी. Yaskacharya after pointing out the views of some other philologists of his time explains the present text अग्निमीडे in the following manner—

(अग्निमूईडे) अग्निं याचामि ईडिरध्येषणाकर्मा । पूजा कर्मा वा देवो दानाद् वा दीपनाद् वा द्योतनाद् वा द्युस्थानो भवतीति वा । यो देवः सा देवता । (होतारम्) ह्वातारं जुहोतेर्होतेरित्यौर्णवाभः (रत्नधातमम्) रमणीयानां धनानां दातृतमम् ॥

(निरुक्ते ७।१४–१५)

The meaning of Yaskacharya's explanation is (अग्निमीडे) I beg or entreat Self-effulgent God. The root ईड means to long eagerly or to adore. The word देव is derived from the root of the word दान i. e. the Giver दीपन or द्योतन Illuminator दीप-प्रकाशने द्युत-प्रकाशने होतारं ह्वातारं होतृ from root हु of the third conjugation meaning दान giving आदान receiving & अदन eating ह्वान from ह्वेञ् to call or invoke (रत्नधातमम्) most lavish Dispenser of delightful riches.

अग्रणीः सर्वोत्तमः सर्वेषु पूर्वम् ईश्वरस्यैवप्रतिपादनात् तस्यात्र ग्रहणम् ॥

Agni means superior, most of all or Supreme Leader. For in all ritualistic undertakings, God alone is first remenbered or referred to, therefore He is to be grasped here. दग्धादिति विशेषणाद् भौतिकस्यापि From the adjective दग्धात् We have to understand the physical thermic energy or fire also here.

In Manu Smriti 12.122.123 it is stated—

प्रशासितारं सर्वेषाम्, अणीयांसमणोरपि।
रुक्माभं स्वप्नधीगम्यं, विद्यात् तं पुरुषं परम् ॥
(मनु० १२. १२२)

एतमेके वदन्त्यग्निं, मनुमन्ये प्रजापतिम्।
इन्द्रमेके परे प्राणम्, अपरे ब्रह्म शाश्वतम् ॥
(मनु० १२. १२३)

In these verses the sage Manu has clearly stated that the Supreme Being though one is called by various names by the wise to denote His different attributes. These names used by the wise for God who is Self-effulgent, the Ruler of the world and the subtlest are Agni, Manu, Praja Pati, Indra, Prana and Brahma etc. He should be known by all.

In the Rigveda 3.27.2 we read—

ईळे अग्निं विपश्चितं गिरा यज्ञस्य साधनम्।
श्रुष्टीवानं धितावानम् ॥
(ऋ० ३. २७. २)

It means—

I glorify Self-effulgent God Who by His Vedic speech bestows upon the wise the mighty means of performing great ritualistic undertakings. He possesses admirable power of sustenance. By the adjective used here for Agni विपश्चितम् which means the wise, it is clear that the Omniscient God is to be taken and not material fire. The following are the passages from the Brahmanas and the Vedas which connote material fire by the term 'Agni' used there.

In the Shatapath Brahmana 2.1.4.16 it is stated—

यदश्वं तं पुरस्तादुदश्रयंस्तस्याभयेनाष्ट्रे निवातेऽग्नि-रजायत तस्माद् यत्राग्निं मन्थिष्यन्त्स्यात्तदश्वमानेतवे ब्रूयात्।

स पूर्वेणोपतिष्ठते वज्रमेवैतदुच्छ्रयन्ति तस्याभये नाष्ट्रे निवाते अग्निर्जायते ॥

(शतपथ २.१ ४.१६)

वृषो अग्निः । अश्वो ह वा एष भूत्वा देवेभ्यो यज्ञं वहति ॥

(शतपथ १.३ ३.२९–३१)

In these passages, it is said that the thermic energy or fire carries transport vehicles like a bull and is therefore called a bull. Likewise this thermic force being quick in motion when harnessed like a horse in mechanised transport and handled by mechanics conveys vehicles run by propelling devices like those employed in aeroplanes etc. and by members of the society of the elite, the learned and artisans well-versed in the principles of arts and crafts.

In Shatapath 1.3.4.12 it is stated—

तूर्णिर्हव्यवाडिति ॥ (शतपथ १.३ ४.१२)

This thermic energy (Agni) being the plier of conveyances to their destinations and quick in motion is called the quick carrier of transport.

In the Shatapath Brahman 1.4.3.11 we read—

अग्निर्वै योनिर्यज्ञस्य ॥ (शतपथ १.४.३.११)

The thermic energy (Agni) is the source of great ritualistic undertakings of public utility. So by the term अश्व (ashva) used in many such passages, the physical thermic energy or fire should be taken. Being the cause of quick motion, Ashva should be taken to be the name of the thermic force or fire. In the Rigveda 3.125.14 it is taught—

वृषो अग्निः समिध्यतेऽश्वो न देववाहनः ।
तं हविष्मन्त ईडते ॥ (ऋ० ३.२७.१४)

i.e. when by mechanical engineers, this thermic energy (Agni) is installed and set ablaze in the engines of mechanised transport vehicles, then this carrier of learned passengers like a bull or a horse swiftly conveys the learned people sitting in the conveyances to distant places, wherefore men concerned with mechanised traffic, eagerly desire for their business this thermic energy (Agni) quick like a horse to be employed in transport.

English Translator's additional notes and comments—

Mantra—1

Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati has quoted some Veda Mantras to prove how by "agni" in this and many other Mantras, Omniscient God is to be taken. A few more irrefutable clear texts may be quoted to substantiate his statement.

In Rig. 3. 5. 6. it is stated about "Agni".

विश्वानि देवो वयुनानि विद्वान् ॥ (ऋ० ३ . ५ . ६ .)

Agni (God) knows the actions of all beings.

In Rig. 3.55.10 it is stated—

अग्निष्टा विश्वा भुवनानि वेद ॥ (ऋ० ३ . ५५ . १०)

Agni (God) is full of all knowledge. He is the wisest Seer i. e. Omniscient.

In Rig. 8. 39. 7 it is said about Agni.

अग्निर्जाता देवानाम् अग्निर्वेद मर्तानामपीच्यम् ॥ (ऋ० ८ ३९ . ७)

Agni (God) knows all things about the devas (enlightened truthful persons) and also about ordinary mortals. He knows fully whatever may be hidden from others. These Mantras which may be quoted in their hundreds, do not leave the least shadow of doubt in the minds of impartial people that by Agni, Omniscient God is primarily meant.

सोऽग्निः कैः स्तोतव्योऽन्वेष्टव्यगुणोऽस्तीत्युपदिश्यते ।

In the second verse, it is taught by whom is this Self-effulgent God to be adored and by whom are to be investigated the attributes of this fire in the form of electricity etc.

(२) अग्निः पूर्वेभिर्ऋषिभिरीड्यो नूतनैरुत ।
स देवाँ एह वक्षति ॥

अन्वयः सन्धिच्छेदपूर्वकः—यः अयम् अग्निः पूर्वेभिः उत नूतनैः ऋषिभिः ईड्यः अस्ति स इह देवान् आ वक्षति समन्तात् प्रापयतु ॥

TRANSLATION

(1) God the Self-effulgent and Ommiscient Supreme Leader should be glorified and sought after by both the experienced sages and preceptors and by the students of the Vedic Lore. May He bestow on us from all sides all divine virtues like learning and wisdom, perfectly healthy limbs, beneficent seasons and appreciable means of legitimate enjoyments.

(2) Fire in the form of electricity etc. is ever fit to be investigated into and harnessed in works of arts and crafts, so that it may be the source of innumerable desirable objects of rightful enjoyment for all.

PURPORT

Those preceptors who having studied all the branches of learning, work for the good of all by imparting instruction about truth are here referred to by the term "Poorva" the first or former : because they occupy the foremost position, but those who are studying now to attain proficiency are referred to by the term 'Nootan'. By the term 'Rishis' are to be taken those persons who have known the meaning of the Vedic Mantras, have been practising and propagating only the principles of Dharma (righteousness and morality) and true knowledge conferring the benefits of their truthful instruction on all, are free from deceit or duplicity, industrious, solely devoted to the Almighty God for the accomplishment of their righteous goal of salvation or emancipation. Arguments offered by the ancient as well as modern sages in support of their significations of the essential principles of the Vedic lore, as well as the subliminal vital forces that are the cause of mundane or worldly existence and subsist in their effects in the mundane existents themselves, along with these, with the help of Yoga or spiritual discipline, God the Supreme Being must be adored and the fire in the form of electricity etc. must be searched after and harnessed in our work of daily public utility. If Omniscient God knowing by His knowledge the sages of the past and the sages of the modern age gives instructions to human beings, there can not be any fault or irregularity in Him, for the Vedas are the utterances of the Omniscient. The use of the terms "Poorva" and Nootana is from the point of view of the men, as the Vedas are meant for the people of all times. Hence if Omnipotent and Omniscient God is thus worshipped and if the thermic energy or fire in the form of electricity etc. is harnessed in our daily transactions of life, the most excellent merits and enjoyment of bliss shall fall to our lot. Here the ancient is known in contrast with the modern and vice versa. This is how Shri Yaskacharya—the author of "Nirukta" interprets. The well-known culinary fire, however, that is utilised by the general public for the purpose of preparing food is not meant in this Mantra. But here is meant the all illuminating, self-effulgent and the subliminal etheric force or electricity as the subject of all scientific knowledge and means of all arts, crafts and industry by the term Agni. This Mantra (Verse) has been misinterpreted by Sayanacharya and others saying—

अयम् अग्निः पुरातनैर्भृग्वंगिरः प्रभृतिभिर्नूतनैस्तेदानींतनै-रस्माभिरपि स्तुत्यः सोऽग्निः स्तुतः सन् इह यज्ञे देवान हविर्भुजः आवक्षाति वह प्रापणे–आवहत्वित्यर्थः।

It means—By the ancients are meant sages like Bhrigu and Angiras and by the moderns even like ourselves, by whom this fire is to be extolled. Then the fire would fetch hitherwards the Gods who would then eat the oblations offered by us. This interpretation is quite beside the point. The same is the case with the interpretation given by Wilson and other European scholars in English and by the Indian author of Vedartha Yatna in Marathi.

('Wilson's translation of the Mantra is:—"May that Agni who is to be celebrated by both ancient and modern sages conduct the Gods here." (Wilson's Translation of the Rigveda P. 1). Why, because such interpretation of the Eternal Vedic Lore revealed by the Omniscient God is puerile in connotation and totally opposed to ancient authorities like the Nirukta and the Shatapatha Brahman.

तेनोपासितेनोपकृतेन च किं किं प्राप्तं भवतीत्युपदिश्यते ॥

What is the benefit derived from the contemplation of God and the proper application of agni (electricity heat etc. is taught in the third Mantra)

ENGLISH TRANSLATOR'S ADDITIONAL NOTES & COMMENTS

In all such Mantras where the words like पूर्व and नूतन which are generally translated as the old and the new, but which Rishi Dayananda has rightly explained as the experienced teachers and the taught, it is to be borne in mind that the Vedas were undoubtedly revealed in the beginning of the human creation, but they were meant for the whole world, for all beings and for all times to come. They were not meant only for the people born in the beginning of creation. If we remember this, there will be no difficulty, when we come across such expressions in the Vedas. The Vedas are Universal Scriptures.

(३) अग्निनां रयिमश्नवत् पोषमेव दिवेदिवे । यशसं वीरवत्तमम् ॥
सन्धिविच्छेदपूर्वकोऽन्वयः-मनुष्यः अग्निना एव दिवे दिवे पोषं यशसं वीरवत्तमं रयिम् अश्नवत् (प्राप्नोति) ॥

Mantra 3

TRANSLATION

(1) By fervent adoration of God who is Self-effulgent Supreme Being, a devotee obtains from Him day by day such excellent possessions as impart happiness through the strengthening of body, mind and soulpossessions which bring great fame and include the strongest, the bravest and the most accomplished children and other relations.

(2) The word Agni used in the Mantra also stands for fire, heat and electricity etc. by properly using which for personal benefit, a man obtains much material wealth and fame by utilising it for charitable purposes.

PURPORT—

A man who lives in conformity with the commands of God, scientifically investigates into the properties and uses of agni (fire, heat and electricity etc.) in its various forms and utilises it in arts and crafts, will be able to amass immense wealth, win great fame and have noble offspring and relations by giving them proper education.

The word रयिः used in the Mantra stands both for material and spiritual wealth in the form of vast learning and wisdom. रयिरिति धननाम (निघण्टु २.१०) Therefore it has been explained in this commentary as विद्या सुवर्णाद्युत्तमधनम् wealth consisting of good knowledge and gold etc. In the detailed commentary on this hymn Rishi Dayananda explained it as धर्म मोक्ष विद्याचक्रवर्ति राज्यारोग्यादिस्वरूपं धनम् i. e. wealth in the form of Dharma, Emancipation, wisdom, righteous empire and health etc.

(४) अग्ने यं यज्ञमध्वरं विश्वतः परिभूरसि ।
स इद् देवेषु गच्छति ॥

सन्धिविच्छेदपूर्वकोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे अग्ने त्वं यम् अध्वरं (यज्ञं) विश्वतः परिभूः असि (व्याप्य पालकोऽसि तथा अयम् अग्निः अपि सम्पादयितास्ति) स इत् देवेषु गच्छति ॥

Mantra 4

TRANSLATION

1. O Omniscient God, being Omnipresent, Thou dost protect from all sides the non-violent Yajna (sacrifice) which consists of the contemplation and adoration of Thy Divine Majesty and respect for the truthful enlightened persons, association with the virtuous and charity to the deserving and the needy. It is ordained by Thee that these righteous works should be in the hands of the enlightened for the good of all. (Such enlightened persons approve of only non-violent, beneficial acts done in the name of Yajnas.)

2. The fire in various forms of heat, electricity etc. is instrumental in performing the Yajnas (non-violent sacrifices) and beneficial acts and the propagation of arts and crafts by wise scientists and artists.

PURPORT

As God Omnipresent always protects the above mentioned righteous deeds (collectively termed Yajnas) from all sides, they become endowed with the capacity to impart beneficent properties. It is therefore that the fire (heat, electricity etc.) created by God and possessing wonderful divine attributes is useful for various arts and crafts. A learned but righteous and industrious man alone deserves to have these advantages and none else.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTE

In detailed commentary on this first hymn Rishi Dayananda stated that the commentary of Sayanacharya and Dr. Wilson on this Mantra is not correct, as they think it applicable to material fire which being inanimate cannot protect the Yajna and is not Ommipresent. विश्वतः परिभूरसि 'Thou art all pervading" is the attribute of God only.

The following is Dr. Wilson's English Translation of Sayanacharya's commentary on the Mantra:—

"Agni, the unobstructed sacrifice of which thou art on every side the protector, assuredly reaches the Gods." Rishi Dayananda's criticism is therefore quite justified.

ENGLISH TRANSLATOR'S ADDITIONAL NOTES & COMMENTS—

Mantra 4

This Mantra अग्ने यं यज्ञमध्वरं विश्वतः परिभूरसि is very significant to show that the Yajnas sanctioned by the Veda are non-violent and they alone are acceptable to God and His devotees-truthful wise persons. The emphasis is on अध्वर which Yaskacharya the famous author of the Nirukta has explained as ध्वरतिहिंसाकर्मा तत्प्रतिषेधः निरुक्ते १. ८ Rishi Dayananda's interpretation of the word अध्वर as हिंसाऽधर्मादिदोषरहितम् is therefore quite correct and in perfect accord with the Nirukta which is regarded as authentic by all other

Indian commentators also. But unfortunately, Shri Sayanacharya, Skanda Swami, Venkat Madhava and other commentators and most of the Western translators were not able to grasp the spirit or sense of this most significant term used as an adjective Sayanacharya explains it as अध्वरम् हिंसारहितम् न ह्यग्निना सर्वतः पालितं यज्ञं राक्षसादयो हन्तुं प्रभवन्ति i. e. Yajna (sacrifice) is called अध्वर or free from violence because Rakshasas cannot destroy it as it is protected by Agni. It is certainly a farfetched interpretation where the significance of the adjective अध्वर has been lost. The instances in the Ramayana and other literature belie this statement that the Yajna cannot be viciated or destroyed by the Rakshasas. Skanda Swami explained it as अध्वरशब्दोऽयं यज्ञम् इत्यनेन पौनरुक्त्यान्नयज्ञनाम

किंतर्हि तद्विशेषणम् । हिंसा वचनोध्वरतिः हिंसाकर्मा ।
ध्वरणं ध्वरोहिंसा यस्मिन् नास्ति सोऽध्वरः । यज्ञे हि
सर्वस्यानुग्रहः न हिंसा ॥

i. e. Adhvara is not to be taken here as synonym of Yajna, but its adjective. As dhvara means हिंसा or violence अध्वर means an act where there is no violence of any kind. In the Yajna, there is kindness shown to all beings and there is no violence. But to our great surprise, we find the shocking and quite contradictory statement made by Skanda Swami in this connection that

येऽपि हि तत्र पश्वादयो हिंस्यन्ते तेषामप्यनुग्रहमेव शिष्टाः
स्मरन्ति
ओषध्यः पशवो वृक्षास्तिर्यञ्चः पक्षिणस्तथा । यज्ञार्थं निधनं
प्राप्ताः प्राप्नुवन्त्युच्छ्रितीः पुनः ॥ इति तस्मात् उपपन्नं
हिंसावर्जितत्वम् ॥

i. e. Even the animals that are killed in the Yanja are shown mercy or kindness, as it is said by the learned that they go to heaven etc.

All this cannot be accepted as true, as besides being opposed to commonsense and reason, it is against the spirit of the Vedas which call Yajna as अध्वर or non-violent. This misunderstanding of the Vedic spirit has been responsible for the killing of hundreds of thousands of poor creatures and finally repulsion to Yajnas shown by Mahavir, Buddha and other kind-hearted reformers. Venkata Madhava also, being unable to grasp fully the significance and spirit of the important adjective अध्वर simply says:-

यं यज्ञम् (अध्वरम्) हिंसारहितम् अहिंसितं त्वत्सन्निधानादसुरैः ॥

i. e. The Yajna which is not destroyed by Rakshasas on account of the presence of Agni (fire).

Wilson following Sayanacharya and others wrongly translates the Mantra as:—

"Agni, the unobstructed sacrifice of which thou art on every side the protector, assuredly reaches the Gods."

This comparative study of the interpretation of the term Adhvara, shows the greatness of Rishi Dayananda in grasping fully the spirit of the Vadas and the Vedic Yajnas. The religious history of our contry (and also of other nations which followed India in same respects) would have been quite different if the significance of the term adhvara (non-violent) used in the Vedas, hundreds of times would have been understood and realised. There would have been no animal sacrifices in the name of religion, vitiating the whole religious atmosphere and creating hatred and repulsion in the minds of thoughtful persons against the Yajnas and Vedic religion.

All lovers of humanity and compassion must therefore be grateful to Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati for reviving the Vedic Yajnas and Vedic Dharma in their pristine purity.

यः सत्य. चित्रश्रवस्तमः कविक्रतुः होता देवः अग्निः

TRANSLATION

1. May the Self-effulgent God, the Giver of peace and happiness, the Omniscient Creator of the world, the Benefactor of the righteous persons, whose glory is most wonderful to hear and know about—the Light that illuminates all-be accessible to us-His devotees.

2. May we get the knowledge of this fire which is the principal means of arts and crafts and which possesses divine attributes.

PURPORT

The word Agni here means both God and fire, since God being Omniscient, Imperishable and Omnipotent creator of the world and Refuge of all, is the Illuminator of all. Agni—the physical heat by its power of attraction and gravitation etc. is the means of keeping material objects intact.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTE

Dr. Wilson's Translation following Sayana has been criticized by Rishi Dayananda which runs "May Agni the presenter of oblations, the attainer of knowledge, he who is true, renowned and divine, come hither with the Gods.

How can the appellation कविक्रतुः which even Wilson translates as "attainer of knowledge" be applicable to material fire ? Sayanacharya ignoring the real meaning of the word kavi which stands for God as Omniscient or a wiseman, a seer according to the Vedic Lexicon "Nighantu" कविरिति मेधाविनाम (निघ० ३. १५) takes it differently as क्रान्तप्रज्ञः क्रान्तकर्मा वा Yogi Shri Aurabindo has strongly criticised Sanyana's interpretation saying:-"Sayana, however insists on a purely ritual interpretation and it is interesting to see how he arrives at it. In the first phase, we have the word कवि (Kavi) meaning a seer-sufficient to serve as the seed of a deeper understanding of the Veda. Sayana feels that he has to turn the difficulty at any cost and therefore he gets rid of the sense of seer for Kavi and gives it another and un-usual significance. etc. (on the Vedas by Shri Aurabindo P. 71) Rishi Dayananda explains the word Kavi (कविः) as यः सर्वे

विद्यायुक्त वेदशास्त्रं कवते उपदिशति स कविरीश्वरः God is called Kavi because He gives us the Vedic Revelation possessing all knowledge.

Mantra—6.

(६) यदङ्ग दाशुषे त्वमग्ने भद्रं करिष्यसि । तवेत् तत् सत्यमङ्गिरः ॥

सन्धिरहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे अंगिरः अंग अग्ने त्वं यस्मात् दाशुषेभद्रं करिष्यसि (करोषि) ।

तस्मात् तव इत् तवैव इदं सत्यं व्रतम् अस्ति ॥

O God, Friend of all, O Inner Soul of the universe and the human soul, O life of our life, to the person who gives himself up to Thee—offers to Thee everything that he has surrendering himself to Thee completely, Thou dost confer all good things (including the bliss of emancipation). To grant such great gifts is quite in accordance with Thy Divine Nature—that is Thy vow.

PURPORT

God is the Dispenser of Justice, the kind Friend and well-wisher of all. It is only by meditating on Him that the human soul attains happiness in this world and in the next, because to bestow happiness on righteous persons is the very nature of this Almighty God, the Illuminator of all and none else has the power to do so.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTE

God is called अंगिराः (Angirah), because He is the very Life of all worlds and as Inner Self of all beings is Life of our life. पृथिव्यादीनां ब्रह्माण्डस्थांगानां प्राणरूपेण शरीरावयवानां च अन्तर्यामिरूपेण रसरूपो अंगिरास्तत्सम्बुद्धौ । प्राणो वा अंगिराः (शत० ६. ३. ७. ३) उत्तमानामंगानां मध्येऽन्तर्यामी प्राणाख्योऽर्थो गृह्यते ।

The meaning of the word Angirah has been wrongly given by Wilson in his notes as "The designation of a Rishi, the founder of a family or of a school. "His whole translation of the Mantra is wrong as it is against the very spirit of the Vedic teachings. It is "Whatever good thou mayest Agni, bestow upon the giver (of the oblation), that verily, Angiras" shall revert to thee" unfortunately, he has not been able to grasp the spirit of the Mantra showing perfect confidence in God as the Life of our life, as indicated by Rishi Dayananda.

O God, we approach Thee in a spirit of sincere humility, as Thou art ever decayless in Thy Blissful State where there is an end of all miseries, Self-effulgent, the Protector of all non-violent acts and righteous persons, the constant Illuminator of Truth, the True Eternal Vedas and the Eternal Divine Laws operating in the universe.

PURPORT

The Supreme Being untainted by the shortcomings of decay and ignorance, teaching the path of truth to all souls as their Innermost Spirit, protecting the world, ever remains in His state of Pure Absolute existence and Perfect Bliss. Worshipping Him, we too shall rejoice in prosperity and the possession of true knowledge, attaining thereby our destined goal of happy harmonious life here and emancipation hereafter.

O Omniscient God, be easily accessible to or attainable by us by bestowing upon us such beneficent knowledge as will enable us to obtain all excellent objects and means necessary to attain happiness here and hereafter, as a father is to his son. Do thou grant us the grace to be united with Thee for our happiness and welfare.

PURPORT

All persons should make an effort and pray in the following manner. O Almighty God, Kindly protect us and ever engage us in good works. As a father brings up his children well, provides them with good education, trains them to have good character, good manners and habits, so that they may always perform good actions, in the same way, be kind to us and grant us the grace to lead noble lives.

TRANSLATION

(1) O Almighty God ! Life Principle of all lives, enlivening the whole animate world, of Grandest Majesty, mayest Thou be ever accessible to us-be manifest in our hearts and hear our supplications. O Lord, all the objects of nature are made by Thee accessible to all Thy creatures. We beseech Thee, protect their properties befitting them for the daily life of Thy creatures.

(2) The word वायु Vayu used in the Mantra primarily stands for God, as He is Omnipotent Prime mover or Director of the universe. He is to be seen with the inner eyes of Wisdom. Secondarily, the term वायु (Vayu) stands for air, as it blows from place to place. Yaskacharya has explained this Mantra in his "Nirukta 10-11-1. According to the etymology given by Yaskacharya the word Vayu (वायु) is used for God as well as air. It is derived from the root वा-गतिगन्धनयोः God is called Vayu because being Omnipotent, He moves or directs the universe. It is also derived by philologists from the root विद् (vid) to know. Therefore it is used for the Omniscient Supreme Being. The air also protects herbs like the moon-plant creeper (सोमलता) and others. It is with the movement of the air that herbs become full of sap and therefore acceptable. When the air is purified through the performance of Yajna, it protects all creatures. It is the means of hearing because people can hear by its help. It is with the help of the air taken in the process of Pranayama that a man can know God, as his intellect becomes sharp to grasp such subtle subjects. The word वायु (Vayu) is also derived according to some philologists from इण् -गतौ. God pervades all and is present everywhere, hence He is called वायु. The air moves everywhere. When Yaskacharya says, वायुःसोमस्यरक्षिता He means to say that God Almighty is the protector of the universe made by Him and He pervades all. The material is also called वायु because it takes or draws the sap of the herbs like Soma etc. and takes water from the ocean. In the Aitareya Brahman 2.34 वायुर्हि स्वयमात्मानं समिन्धे etc. the word वायु Vayu stands for God as well as air. God illuminates the whole world. It is He who causes the air to move in middle region. In passages like वायुर्वेतूर्णिः the air is meant, as it moves quickly.

PURPORT

With the help of Shleshalankara,(called in English Pun on a word or double entendre) both God as well air are to be taken. God creates all the objects of the world and decorates them (so to speak). In the same manner, air aiso protects universe. Without air, none can be sustained and protected. God listens to the earnest prayer of the soul, being the Innermost Soul of all. It is with the help of the air that a living being can hear sound.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTE

In the case of वायु as air, the commentator (Rishi Dayananda) has changed the cases,persons etc. वायो-वायुः आयाहि-आगच्छति just to make the meaning clear, so that ignorant persons may not think that inanimate objects are being addressed, but it was not necessary to do so for intelligent persons, as it is clearly stated in the Nirukta 7.2 (निरुक्त७.२) अचेतनान्यपि चेतनवत्स्तूयन्ते Even inanimate objects are sometimes mentioned as animate. In poems the mountains, rivers, flowers etc. are addressed by the poets. It does not mean that they consider these inanimate objects as conscious beings. This is just a way to express one's ideas in an impressive manner. The same is the case with the Grandest Vedic Poetry of the Master Poet-God. But Rishi Dayananda thought it proper to explain it clearly by changing the case, person etc. according to the Vedic Grammar व्यत्ययो बहुलम् (अष्टाध्या. ३.१.८५) etc.

(2) The other meaning is about Vayu or air. The scientists praise it or describe its properties so that it may be utilised properly.

PURPORT

In this Mantra also, there is Shleshalankara-Paronomasia or double entendre, so that by the term Vayu, both meanings

God and air are to be taken. God is to be glorified and the properties of the air are to be described for the benefit of all. Both the sciences-the science of God ब्रह्मविद्या and the science of physics should be studied and honoured.

(2) In the case of the air, it is with its co-operation or through its medium that the sound can be heard which gives us knowledge of various sciences

PURPORT

In this Mantra also, Shleshalankara-Paronomasia (double entendre) has been used. As in the second verse, the attributes of God and the air have been described, in this third Verse it is mentioned how they are to be attained and what is the result of attaining their knowledge.

O Omnipresent God ! as the light of the sun in the sky and the air help in the growth of the sap of plants and herbs, so the soul and Prana (Vital breath) which reside in the body cause the growth or development of juice of the essential ingredients of the body and with their actions and intelligence soon accomplish their objects and reap the fruit of the deeds done by them.

PURPORT

As the sun and the air are respectively illuminer and nourisher of all objects in the universe, so are the soul and the Prana residing in the body, but in every case, God is the Upholder or Sustainer of all.

TRANSLATION

I who am desirous of acquiring the knowledge of arts and crafts, accept the sun of pure vigour in the sky which gives us happiness in our daily activities on account of his light and the Prana residing in the body which is the devourer of diseases, as they accomplish the act of composing water. In the same way, I acquire the science of prana and apana (inhalation and exhalation etc.) which is the destroyer of various maladies.

COMMEMTATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

Here the Mitra has been taken to mean the Sun for which the Rishi has quoted from the Rig. 3.89)

मित्रोजनान् यातयतिब्रुवाणो मित्रो दाधारपृथिवीमुतद्याम् ।
मित्रः कृष्टीरनिमिषाभिचष्टे मित्राय हव्यं घृतवज्जुहोत ॥

In this Mantra, it is clear that the word "Mitra" is used for the sun which upholds the earth and the heaven. मित्र इति पदनामसु (निघ० ५–४) (Nighantu 5.4) has been quoted to show that the word "Mitra" stands for the sun.

प्राणो वै मित्रः अपानो वरुणः । शत० ८.२.५ ६

According to this passage from Shatapath 8.2.5.6. the word Mitra is used here to denote "Prana" and the word वरुण अपान ।

PURPORT

As on account of the sun and the air, the water goes to the sky from oceans and it causes rain preserving and protecting all, in the same way, the Prana and apana also preserve and protect the body. Therefore people should thoroughly acquire the science of the sun and the air as well as the Science of the Prana and apana (vital breaths) in order to do good to all.

TRANSLATOR'S ADDITIONAL NOTES AND COMMENTS

The Vedic words have got several meanings from the Adhyatmik (spiritual) Adhibhautik (Social) and Adhidaivik or or scientific and cosmic points of view. Pandit Guru Datt

M. A. a great scientist and a distinguished scholar of the Vedas - the founder and editor of the "Vedic Magazine" explained the above Mantra in the following manner from the Adhidaivik (Scientific and Cosmic) stand point. "This Mantra मित्रं हुवे पूतदक्षम् describes the process or steps (Dhiyam) whereby the well-known of liquids, water, can be formed by the combination of two other substances (ghritachim Sadhanta). The word "Sadhanta" is in the dual number indicating that it is two elementary bodies which combine to form water. The words used to indicate those two substances are Mitra and Varuna. The first literal meaning of Mitra is measurer. The name is given to a substance that stands as it were, as a measure or as a standard substance. It is the measurer of density or of value otherwise known as quantivalence. The other meaning of Mitra is associate. Now, in this Mantra, Mitra (मित्र) is described as an associate of Varuna (वरुण). It will be shown how Varuna indicates Oxygen Gas. Now it is well known that hydrogen is not only the lightest element known, nor is it only monovalent, but that it has strong affinity for Oxygen, hence it is described as an associate of Varuna. Many other analogies in the properties of Mitra and Hydrogen go to suggest that what is in the Vedic terms styled as Mitra (मित्र) is in fact identical with hydrogen, Mitra for instance occurs as synonymous with Udana (उदान), in many parts of the Veda, Udana is well characterised by its power to lift up."

The second element with which we are concerned is Varuna. Varuna is the substance that is acceptable to all. It is the element that every living being needs to live. Its well-known property is rishadas (रिशादस) i. e. it eats away or rusts, all the base metals, it burns all the bones etc. and physiologically purifies the blood by oxidizing it, and thereby keeping the frame alive. It is by these properties Varuna (वरुण) is in general distinguished, but it is especially characterised here as rishadas (रिशादस्). No one will fail to perceive that the substance thus distinctly characterised is oxygen gas. Another word used in the Mantra is पूतदक्ष (Putadaksha), Puta is pure, free from inpurities. Daksha means energy. Putadaksham is a substance pure, possessed of kinetic energy. Who that is acquainted with the Kinetic theory of gases, can not see in Putadaksha the properties of a gas highly heated?

The meaning of the Mantra taken as a whole is this—

"Let one who is desirous to form water by the combination of two substances, take pure hydrogen gas highly heated and Oxygen gas possessed of the property rishadas and let him combine them to form water,"

(Pt. Guru Dutt M.A. in"Wisdom of the Rishis" published by Sarvadeshik Pustakalaya, Delhi, P. 101.102).

Mantra—8

TRANSLATION

Above mentioned Mitra and Varuna are created by God who is absolute Truth. They are augmenters of truth and water and causes of establishing contact with God, Veda and the water. They pervade this vast Yajna in the form of the universe.

PURPORT

These Mitra and Varuna pervade the universe consisting of fire, and other embodied or un-embodied suitable elements along with God who is the Controller of the whole world. It is they that are instrumental in the growth and decay and the accomplishment of all practical dealings.

TRANSLATOR'S ADDITIONAL NOTES AND COMMENTS—

The Devata or the subject matter of these three (7-9) Mantras is मित्रावरुणौ which stand for various objects from spiritual, social, scientific and cosmic point of view). According to the Brahmanas.

TRANSLATION

The Mitra and Varuna are givers of happiness. They are famous on account of many qualities. They dwell in many objects of the world and are of dominion. They maintain strength and accomplish many deeds. They are born for the benefit of many and are the refuge of multitude.

PURPORT

On account of Mitra and Varuna which in the world give strength and help in the performance of actions, there is growth and sustenance of all objects.

TRANSLATOR'S FOOT NOTES

अयं वै पृथिवीलोकोमित्रः, असौ (द्युलोकः) वरुणः ।
(शत० १२.६.१२)

द्यावापृथिवी वै मित्रावरुणयोः प्रियंधाम ॥
(ताण्ड्य० १४.२.४)

Besides these meanings, as has been pointed out by Pandit Guru Dutta, they stand from the scientific point of view for hydrogen and oxygen gases by the combination of which water is produced. From Adhibhautic or social point of view, the word Mitra stands for the Prime Minister who is friendly to all and Varuna for the elected King who destroys all enemies. ब्रियतेजनैः? In the first hymn, Agni was described as the prominent means of various arts and crafts and in this second hymn vayu Indra Mitra and Varuna (which stand for the sun light, air Prana etc.) have been described. Therefore there is inter connection and continuation of the subject. This hymn also, has been misinterpreted by Sayanacharya, Wilson and other Western Scholars.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

व्रियतेजनैः, वारयतिवाशत्रून्–वरुणः राजानावनभिद्रुहा ध्रुवे सदस्युत्तमे । सहस्रस्थूण आसाते ॥ मित्रावरुणौदेवते ।

In this Mantra, the word Mitravaruna has been clearly used for the King and the Prime Minister who sit in a thousand pillared Assembly Hall. Rishi Dayananda also has taken मित्रावरुणौ in this sense of प्राणोदानवद् राजप्रधानामात्यौ (Rig.392) and अध्यापकोपदेशकौ (Rig. 3. 33. 10) teacher & preacher.

Sayanacharya has taken Vayu Indra. Mitra and Varuna as the names of various Gods living some where in heaven and according to his interpretation, they are being worshipped and prayed to through these hymns. Thus it is polytheism or worship of many Gods and Goddessess that the Vedas preach, though the truth is that the Vedas preach the worship of one God only and Vayu, Indra, Mitra, Varuna stand for many useful objects, like the sun, air, hydrogen and Oxygen Gases Prana, electricity etc.

Wilson mostly following Sayana gives polytheistic translation in such words as—

1. Vayu, pleasant to behold, approach, these libations are prepared for thee, drink of them, hear our invocations.
2. Mitra and Varuna, augmenters of water, dispensers of Water, you connect this perfect rite with its true reward.

These translators have been unable to grasp the fundamental teaching of the Vedas-Monotheism. Therefore, the Rishi had to condemn their translation.

Addendum

Let the Scholars please note.

Fearing the lengthiness of the volume and limited grasping power of ordinary readers, with the idea of not getting them confounded by seeing many meanings of the same Vedic words, we have given simple meaning of the first Mantra of the Rigveda on P. 1 in an easily intelligible manner. But let the scholars note the following meanings also of some words as explained by Rishi Dayananda in his commentary.

ईडे—स्तुवे, याचे, अधीच्छामि प्रेरयामि वा

In case of God—I glorify, beg or entreat, long for the attainment of God.

In case of fire—I intensely long for the acquisition of or make use of, investigate (See P. 1).

पुरोहितम्—पुरस्तात् सर्वं जगद्दधाति तम्=

Eternal Support or Sustainer of the universe

यज्ञस्य—महिम्नः कर्मणो विदुषां सत्कारस्य संगतस्य सत्संगत्योत्पन्नस्य विद्यादिदानस्य शिल्पक्रियोत्पाद्यस्य वा=of the yajna and all other noble activities consisting of honouring the enlightened persons, association with them and donation (gift of knowledge and wealth etc.) including industrial activity. HYMN III.

अस्य तृतीयसूक्तस्य मधुच्छन्दाऋषिः ॥ १-३ अश्विनौ ४-६ इन्द्रः । ७-९ विश्वेदेवाः १०-१२ सरस्वती १।३।८-१०। १२ गायत्री २ निचृद् गायत्री ।

Seer of the hymn-Madhu Chhanda. Devata-Indra, Ashvinau, Sarasvati and Vishve devah.

(१)अश्विना यज्वरीरिषो द्रवत्पाणी शुभस्पती। पुरुभुजा चनस्यतम्॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

(हे विद्वांसः, युष्माभिः) द्रवत्पाणी, शुभःपती पुरुभुजौ अश्विनौ यज्वरीः इषः च चनस्यतम् ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned persons ! You should make proper use of Ashvinau (fire and water) like the food, which in the Science of arts and crafts manifest divine qualities, which make people touch sky through aeroplanes and other vehicles, which are instrumental in quickening the movements, which are protectors of arts and crafts and which produce various enjoyable objects. You should perform all such acts which may be useful for the science of arts and crafts.

PURPORT

God instructs in this Mantra the means of the Science of arts and crafts, so that with the manufacture of various machines, men may enjoy happiness by making aeroplanes and other conveyances for their own as well as for others' benefit.

Authorities quoted by the Commentator regarding the meanings of the अश्विनौ as जलाग्नी water and fire etc.

या सुरथा रथीतमोभा देवा दिविस्पृशा ।
अश्विना ता हवामहे ॥
नहि वामस्ति दूरके यत्रा रथेन गच्छथः ॥

Rig. I. 22.2-4

In these Mantras, it is said about the Ashvinau that with their help, one can travel very far on earth and also in the sky through the conveyances like aeroplanes etc. It is clear that by Ashvinau here fire and water are meant.

In Nirukta 12. 1 Yaskacharya has given several meanings of Ashvinau as (1) The earth and the sky, (2) The sun and moon, (3) Day and night, (4) Expert physicians etc.

In Nighantu 5.1 Ashvinau has been enumerated among पदनामसु by which are meant according to पद गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्था ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च i. e. the means of quick movement and attainment of happiness. Therefore in this Mantra the meaning of the Ashvinau is taken as जलाग्नी, i. e. the water and Agni (fire, electricity etc.).

पुनस्तौ कीदृशावित्युपदिश्यते

What is the nature of these "Ashvinau" is explained further.

Mantra—2

(२) अश्विना पुरुदंससा नरा शवीरया धिया। धिष्ण्या वनतं गिरः॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे मनुष्याः यूयं यौ पुरुदंससौ नरौ धिष्ण्यौ अश्विनौ शवीरया धिया गिरो वनतं (वाणीसेविनौ स्तः) तौ सेवयत ॥

TRANSLATION

These Ashvinau (fire and water etc.) are abounding in mighty acts or rich in wondrous deeds, they help the rapid movement of various conveyances, are the conferrers of the fruits of the Science of Arts and Crafts. They should be properly utilized, so that our tasks may be soon accomplished.

PURPORT

The use of the second person in the text is to show that they (fire and water etc.) should be visualised and utilised with intelligence and industriousness in order to accomplish technology. Those who desire to acquire proficiency in art and industry, should make experiments with hands utilising the water and अग्नि (fire, electricity etc.) properly. धीरिति कर्मनाम (निघ० २.१) धीरितिप्रज्ञानाम (निघ० ३.९)

Not understanding proper rule about the use of second person given for inanimate objects, Sayanacharya and Wilson etc. have interpreted this Mantra wrongly.

MANTRA—3.

TRANSLATION

O learned people, well-versed in sciences and taking out the essence of the things, mixing and separating articles properly, expert priests in the sacrifice of arts and crafts,when you will make full and proper use of the Ashvinau (water and fire etc.) which affect the Prana or Vital breath, whose attributes are true and destroyers of miseries, and which are instrumental in quick movement of various conveyances, then you will attain material happiness in this world.

PURPORT

God instructs all persons that they should properly utilise the fire and water which are destroyers of miseries by the accomplishment of useful arts and crafts.

COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(दस्रौ)—दसु—उपक्षये Therefore destroyers of miseries

(युवाकू)—यु—मिश्रणामिश्रणयोः To mix and separate.

TRANSLATION

(1) O God of Wonderful light or marvellously Bright Lord, please come i.e. may we attain Thee on all sides as Thou hast made all these objects with subtle causes and they giving various kinds of wealth and being pure are in Thee. They are dependent on Thee for nourishment and support. Enable us to get benefit by their proper use. The second meaning of the word Indra which is the devata or subject matter of this Mantra is the sun. This sun with his rays comes to all objects. It is the sun who gives light to all these objects of the world and purifies them with his rays.

PURPORT

By the use of the Shleshalankara or Paronomasia the word Indra is to be taken here for God and the sun. It is they that give light to all. All should use them properly for spiritual and secular purposes.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

(रुद्राः) प्राणा वै रुद्राः (शत० ११—६, ३—७)

By अश्विनौ may also be taken men and women of selfcontrol who are absolutely truthful. They should be destroyers of miseries and should attend Yajnas as priests. इन्द्रियाणि हयानाहुः (कठोपः १.३.४.)

The senses have been compared to the horses, so अश्विनौ means men and women of self-control.

In the Nirukta10.8 various etymologies of Indra have been given which prove that it stands primarily for God and secondarily for the sun. इदंकरणात् इदंदर्शनात् etc. The Creator of the world, the Seer of the world etc. In the Mantras like इन्द्राय साम गायत। नेन्द्रादृते पवते धाम किंचन etc. the word Indra is used in the sense of God without whom, nothing can be pure. In mantra like—

प्रतुंविद्युम्नस्य स्थविंरस्यधृष्वेंदिवो ररप्शे महिमा पृथिव्याः ।
नास्य शत्रुर्न प्रतिमानमस्ति न प्रतिष्ठिः पुरुमायस्य सह्योः ॥

अ० ६. १८. १२ ।

Indra stands both for God and the sun whose glory is shining everywhere.

अथेन्द्रशब्देनेश्वर उपदिश्यते

In this Mantra, God is meant by the word Indra.

Mantra—5

(५) इन्द्रायाहि धियेषितो विप्रजूतः सुतावतः ।

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे इन्द्र। धिया इषितः विप्रजूतः त्वम् सुतावतः ब्रह्माणि वाघतः (विदुषः) उप आयाहि ।

TRANSLATION

O God ! Thou art to be attained through intellect full of wisdom and noble deeds. Thou art known only by the wise. Come therefore O Lord to the enlightened persons who have acquired knowledge of science, are the knowers of the Vedas and priests who bring happiness to all by the performance of the Yajnas and spreading of knowledge.

PURPORT

People should try to have the realisation of God who is the First Efficient Cause or Origin of the Universe, with intellect and wisdom. Without it, He cannot be attained by any one.

COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

ब्रह्म वै ब्राह्मणः (शत० ३.१.५.३)
बाघत इति ऋत्विङ् नामसु (निघ० ३.१८)

TRANSLATOR'S NOTE

By coming of God is meant the realisation of God's presence in the heart and everywhere else. It is a metaphorical expression. The sage of the Kathopnishad says the same thing in 1.3.12.

एष सर्वेषु भूतेषु, गूढात्मा न प्रकाशते ।
दृश्यते त्वग्रया बुद्धया, सूक्ष्मया सूक्ष्मदर्शिभिः ॥

He (God) is the Secret Self in all existences and does not manifest Himself to vision, yet is He seen by the seers of the subtle and perfect understanding.

(Shri Aurobindo's Translation).

In the sixth Mantra, by Indra, the properties of Vayu are taught.

Mantra—6

(६) इन्द्रायाहि तूतुजान उपब्रह्माणि हरिवः। सुतेदधिष्व नश्चनः॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

यः हरिवः (वेगवान्) तूतुजानः इन्द्रः (वायुः) सुते ब्रह्माणि आयाहि (समन्तात् प्राप्नोति) स एव चनः दधिष्व (दधते) ॥

TRANSLATION

The Vayu (air) which is of quick motion, causes us to hear the Vedic hymns on the occasion of the dealings of the tongue. It also upholds eating the food etc. (without the air, it becomes very difficult to take food convenientiy).

PURPORT

People should know that this Vayu (air in the universe and Prana inside the body) is the means of eating, drinking, taking, evacuation and distribution of essential ingredients in the body. It is this that nourishes, develops and causes decay at the end.

COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

विश्वेभिः सोम्यं मध्वग्न इन्द्रेण वायुना ॥

Rig. 1-15-10

This Mantra clearly proves that the word Indra is used in the Veda for वायु (air and Prana or vital energy).

तूतुजान इति क्षिप्रनाम (निघ० २. १५)

हरी-आभिमुख्येन उत्पन्नौ वाग्व्यवहारौ

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Vayu (air or vital energy) is one of the wonderful creations of God, so its properties are described. Indrahood is common to God and air or Prana. अयं वा इन्द्रो योऽयंवातः पवते (शत० १४. २. २. ६) योवैवायुः स इन्द्रः य इन्द्रः स वायुः (शत०४.१.३.१९)

These passages from the Brahmanas clearly show that the word Indra is used for the air also.

अथेश्वरः प्राणिनां मध्ये ये विद्वांसः सन्ति तेषां कर्तव्यलक्षणे उपदिशति ॥

Now God teaches the duties and definition of the learned persons in this seventh Mantra.

Givers of fearlesness.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Among all commentators of the Rigveda, it is] Rishi Dayananda alone who has given these 19 meanings for the word ओमासः (Omasah) used in the Mantra. That is the distinguishing feature of Rishi Dayananda's commentary, showing his broad outlook and his mastery of the Vedic language and its grammar. For instance, Sayanacharya explains the word as रक्षका: or Protectors.

Skanda Swami-an older commentator than Sayanacharya explained the word Omasah ओमास: saying अवतेरयं पालनार्थस्य तर्पणार्थस्यवाकर्तरिमाङ्प्रत्यय: अवितार:-रक्षितार: तर्पयितारो वा Protectors or gratifiers.

The same is the case with Venkata Madhava and others, but Rishi Dayananda agreeing with all the rest that the word ओमास: (Omasah) is derived from the root अव gives all the meanings of that verb and applies them to विश्वे देवास: (Vishva devas) taking that to mean not Gods sitting some where in heaven, but enlightened persons. How significant is all this

The same subject is continued.

PURPORT

God commands—O learned people ! You should be always givers of knowledge and happiness to all persons, being free from violence and malice, possessing vast learning and being engaged in good deeds.

COMMENTATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

(एहिमायासः) मायेति प्रज्ञानाम (निघ० ३.९) आसमन्तात् चेष्टायांप्रज्ञा येषां ते ईहधातोः सर्वधातुभ्य-इन (उणा० ८. ११९) इति इन् प्रत्ययः (मेधम्) ज्ञानक्रियामयं शुद्धं यज्ञं सर्वैर्विद्वद्भिः शुभैर्गुणैः कर्मभिर्वा संगमम् मेधइतियज्ञनामसु (निघ० ३. १७) वह्नयः वोढारः (निरुक्ते ८.३) वह-प्रापणे इति धातो-र्निप्रत्ययः ।

(मेधम्) मेधृ-मेधासंगमनयोर्हिंसायां च The Medha used for Yajna is from the root, Medhri to associate hence the commentator's explanation सर्वैर्विद्भिः शुभैर्गुणैः कर्मभिर्वा संगमम्

How absurd it is for Roth, Bohtlink and Griffith to translate एहिमायासः as changing shape like serpents.

This is nothing but the wild imagination of Roth and Bohtlink confounding एहिमायासः with अहिमायासः though the two are quite different. Rishi Dayananda is right in deriving एहि from आसमन्तात् prefix with ईह-चैष्टायाम् and giving the meaning of समन्तात् चेष्टायां प्रज्ञा येषाम् मायेति प्रज्ञानाम निघ० ३.९ as translated above, viz. whose intellect is on all sides engaged in noble acts. Even Sayanacharya on whom many western scholars generally rely interprets it as सर्वतोव्याप्तप्रज्ञाः i. e. very intelligent. Wilson translates it as 'Omniscient'' which is not quite correct. But Roth's and Griffith's translation as 'changing shape like serpents' is simply astounding and even mischievous as it implies by serpent's simile crookedness in devas or wise men which is against the Vedic spirit.

TRANSLATION

May our speech giver of pure food which enable us to acquire knowledge, possessing practical wisdom born of all sciences, be purifier. May it desire and manifest the glory of the arts and crafts and noble actions, helping us to associate ourselves with pure and righteous deeds.

PURPORT

God commands that all men should have pure speech which is full of all knowledge and utterance, efficient to lead to action and doing good to all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सरस्वती) सरसः प्रशंसिता ज्ञानादयो गुणा विद्यन्ते यस्यां सा सर्वविद्याप्रापिका वाक् । सृ-गतौ सर्वधातुभ्योऽसुन् । (उणादि० ४. १८९) इति असुन् प्रत्ययः । सरन्ति प्राप्नुवन्ति सर्वा विद्या येन तत्सरः । तस्मात् प्रशंसायां मतुप् । सरस्वतीतिवाङ्नामसु (निघं० १.११) सरस्वती ।

Noble speech full of all knowledge. वाज इति पदनामसु (निघं० ५.६) (वाजिनीवती) सर्वं विद्यासिद्धिक्रियायुक्ता = full of practical wisdom born of knowledge वाजिनः प्राप्तिहेतवः व्यवहाराः तद्वती गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च । (यज्ञम्) शिल्पविद्यामहिमानं कर्म च । यज्ञोवैमहिमा (शत० ६.२.३.१८) यज्ञो वै कर्म (शत० १.१.२.१).

Sayanacharya has wrongly taken धियावसुः कर्मप्राप्यधननिमित्तभूता । But as a matter of fact धियावसुः is तृतीयातत्पुरुषः विभक्त्यालुक् and it is not बहुव्रीहिसमास as taken by Sayanacharya.

How should be our speech is taught further.

Mantra—11

(११) चोदयित्री सूनृतानां चेतन्ती सुमतीनाम् । यज्ञं दधे सरस्वती ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

या (सूनृतानां सुमतीनां विदुषी चेतन्ती चोदयित्री) सरस्वती अस्ति सैव वेदविद्या संस्कृतावाग् यज्ञंदधाति ॥

TRANSLATION

Saraswati-speech which is inspirer of acquiring noble virtues and is the instructress of the right minded, refined by the knowledge of the Vedas upholds the Yajna.

PURPORT

It is only the science and true speech of the learned persons who are pure in thought, word and deed, which is full of all knowledge and devoid of all deceit that can give true knowledge to the people and not that of others.

TRASLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

According to Rishl Dayananda, the word Saraswati also means a learned lady vide विद्य सुशिक्षितावागिवपत्नी (यजु० १०.३४ भाष्ये) विदुषीस्त्री (यजु० १९.१८.३४ भाष्ये) वाणीव ज्ञानवती स्त्री (यजु० १९.८८ मा०) सुशिक्षिता विदुषी स्त्री (यजु० २०.७३ भाष्ये) विद्यावती (यजु० २०.८० भाष्ये) In this Mantra चोदयन्ती सूनृतानाम् सूनृता is also applicable to her, meaning that a learned lady always uses and instructs others to use true and sweet words, tenders good advice to all and performs the Yajnas well, having the spirit of service and sacrifice. Thus it teaches the duties of a learned lady besides the above interpretation regarding noble speech.

The word सूनृता used in this Mantra means true and sweet speech. True and pleasant, kind and sincere, gentle, true and agreeable speech, these are the meanings given in Apte's and other Sanskrit Dictionaries.

Mantra—12

(१२) महो अर्णः सरस्वती प्र चेतयति केतुना । धियो विश्वा वि राजति ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

या सरस्वती केतुना महत् अर्णः (खलुजलार्णवम् इव शब्दसमुद्रं प्रकृष्टतया प्रचेतयति (सम्यक् ज्ञापयति) (सा प्राणिनाम्) विश्वा धियः विराजति (विविधतया उत्तमबुद्धीः प्रकाशयति) ॥

TRANSLATION

The Vedic Speech which along with noble actions and intellect enlightens that great ocean of the words like the great ocean of water, gives intellectual brightness.

PURPORT

As the ocean of water when shaken by the wind and illuminated by the sun along with its waves gives out many useful gems and jewels, in the same way, the Vedik speeeh which enlightens the words used in the Vedas and present in the sky and the sermons of enlightoned persons gives true and accurate knowledge and intellect to the people.

Thus in this hymn, the definition and duties of the learned and the nature of their noble speech are mentioned and so it has great connection with the second hymn about the Ashvinau and Indra.

This hymn also has been mis-interpreted by Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and others. Sayanacharya says that Saraswati is of two kinds, one in the form of a goddess and the other in the form of a river. In this mantra, the form of the river is mentioned. All this is Sayanacharya's wild imagination. The same is the case with Prof. Wilson and other Western translators. There is nothing surprising in it because those who begin to interpret the Vedas without acquiring their proper knowledge do like this, imitating others blindly.

अर्णव इति उदकनामसु (निघ० १.१२) = The ocean.

केतुरिति प्रज्ञानामसु (निघ० ३.९) = Intellect·

This Mantra has also been explained in the above manner by Yaskacharya in Nirukta 11.27.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

Sayanacharya's interpretation as translated by Prof. Wilson is as follows, as quoted by Rishi Dayananda in his commentary

द्विविधा हि सरस्वती विग्रहवद्देवता नदीरूपा च । अनया तु नदीरूपा प्रतिपाद्यते । तादृशी सरस्वती केतुना-कर्मणा प्रवाहरूपेण प्रभूतमुदकं प्रचेतयति । स्वकीयेन देवतारूपेण (विश्वा धियः) सर्वाण्यनुष्ठातृप्रज्ञानानि [विराजति] विशेषेण दीपयति ॥

Prof. Wilson and Griffith blindly imitate Sayana saying "Saraswati makes manifest by her acts a mighty river and (in her own form) enlightens all understanding.". (Wilson).

Griffith's translation is as follows—

"Saraswati, the mighty flood-she with her light illuminates, she brightens every pious thought." Griffith then says in the foot-note 'She' (Saraswati) was no doubt, primarily a river deity, as her name 'The watery' clearly denotes. etc.

Rishi Dayananda strongly criticises and takes exception to such un-authenticated interpretations, considering them as the wild imagination of Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and others. According to their interpretation, the first two lines of the 12th Mantra are about the river Saraswati, while the third is about the goddess Saraswati who enlightens all understandings" (Wilson) or "who brightens every pious thought (Griffith). This inconsistency and confusion of thought must be evident to every impartial thoughtful person. In Rishi Dayananda's interpretation, there is no inconsistency or absurdity of this kind and it is therefore quite acceptable, giving the definition and nature of the noble (Vedic) speech. It is clearly substantiated by the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu.

सरस्वतीति वाङ्नामसु पठितम् (निघ० १.११)

Rishi Dayananda's criticism of Sayanacharya was endorsed later by an impartial thinker of world-wide reputation Yogi Shri Aurobindo saying—

"If ever there was a monument of arbitrarily erudite engenuity, of great learning divorced from sound judgement and sure taste and a faithfully critical and comparative observation, from direct seeing and often even from plainest common sense or of a constant fitting of the test into the procrustian bed of pre-conceived theory, it is surely this commentary otherwise so imposing, so useful as first crude material, so erudite and laborious, left to us by the Acharya Sayana.

(Bankim, Tilak and Dayananda by Shri Aurabindo P. 51—52).

TRANSLATION

As a good milch-cow is procured for the man who desires milk, we glorify and invoke God—the Doer of noble deeds who gives form to all objects with His Light, every day for the acquisition of knowledge and protection of our people.

PURPORT

Here there is Upamalankar (Simile). As men achieve their purpose, having obtained milk, in the same way, righteous learned persons accomplish their works by the attainment of noble virtues like knowledge and others, through the communion with God.

TRANSLATION

O man desirous of acquiring knowledge, approach a learned and wise person who is truthful in mind, word and deed, who observes non-violence and who gives good knowledge to all men of friendly nature. Approach him and get your doubts cleared. After getting correct answers for your questions and doubts from him preach to others also. Keep yourself far away from him who is not learned, is jealous, deceitful and selfish.

PURPORT

It is the duty of all persons to know who is a highly learned wise man devoted to God and engaged in doing good to others. Then they should approach him and by the way of questions and answers, they should get all their doubts dispelled. But they should not associate themselves with those persons who are devoid of knowledge and should not believe in what they say.

COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(इन्द्रम्) विद्यया परमैश्वर्ययुक्तं मनुष्यम् A man possessing the wealth of wisdom.

(विपश्चितम्) आप्तं विद्वांसम् विपश्चित् इति मेधाविनामसु (निघ० ३.१५) (अस्तृतम्) अहिंसकम् A Scholar who is truthful in mind, word and deed.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Here Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati interprets the word (Indra) as a learned man possessing the great wealth of wisdom, as the word is derived from इदि-परमैश्वर्ये. Sayanacharya and following him Prof. Wilson and Griffith interpret Indra as a Deity who is to be worshipped. The adjectives used in the Mantra विप्रम्, अस्तृतम्, विपश्चितम् clearly denote that here a learned wise man is meant and his duties are expressly stated.

(अस्तृतम्) Rishi Dayananda interprets it as अहिंसकम् observer of non-violence. स्तृ-हिंसायाम् नञ्. Sayanacharya Wilson and Griffith take it to mean only अहिंसितम् uninjured (Wilson) or unconquered one (Griffith) Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is very significant, pointing out the duty of non-violence on the part of a true teacher (पृच्छ)--admittedly means--ask questions. But Sayanacharya unjustifiably confines it to asking Indra about the fitness of the priest असौ स्तोता सम्यक् स्तुतवान् न वेति प्रश्नं कुरु which Wilson translates as . . .

"Ask him (Indra) of the fitness of the learned priest who recites his praise" Why to narrow down the universal teaching of the Vedas in this way ?

This is what Sayanacharya and his followers have done, that is why Rishi Dayananda had to criticise their interpretation in his commentary. Every one knows that Varam (वरम्) means good. Rishi Dayananda has taken it to mean वरं विज्ञानम् Good Knowledge that a Scholar gives, but Sayanacharya has interpreted it as श्रेष्ठं धनं पुत्रादिकम् i. e. Good Wealth in the form of son etc.It is in almost all places that Sayana gives this narrow and materialistic or ritualistic meaning to the words.

TRANSLATION

Let those persons who are devoted to God and who are established (Well-versed) in all sciences and firm in the performance of righteous acts and labour, deliver discourses to us. But let those persons who are devoid of knowledge, who are in the habit of censuring others unjustly and who are wicked hypocrites, go away from our residence and also from all places i. e. let not un-righteous persons remain anywhere.

PURPORT

Let all people endeavour in such a manner by keeping company with the learned and by giving up the company of stupid persons, that everywhere the knowledge may grow and ignorance may be dispelled, the honour to the venerable persons may be shown and proper punishment to the wicked may be given. Let there be the communion with the Almighty, keeping away from the unrighteous and growth of the rightous.

TRANSLATION

O Decayless Immortal God, may we be always in Thy eternal happiness which consists in the obedience of Thy commands. Let all learned persons teach all good sciences to all of us, so that even our opponents may call us as full of the wealth of knowledge.

PURPORT

When all persons having given up animostity, become engaged in doing good to others, then even enemies are turned into friends, because then God's Grace and His abiding bliss are attained by all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

शर्म इति सुखनामसु (निघ. ३.६) = Happiness.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The word सुभगान् used in the Mantra has got many meanings. It is derived from भज-सेवायाम् so every thing worthachieving may be said to be भगः. Therefore there is that well-known verse in some Sanskrit Lexicons.

ऐश्वर्यस्य समस्तस्य, धर्मस्य यशसः श्रियः ।
ज्ञानवैराग्ययोश्चैव, षण्णां भग इतीरणा ॥

Thus besides prosperity or wealth, it is also used for धर्म righteousness, good reputation, beauty, knowledge and dispassion. So the word सुभग Subhaga may be used for one who possesses all these things.

उत नः सुभगान् It is therefore wrong on the part of Sayanacharya to translate सुभगान् as शोभनधनोपेतान् and for Wilson to render it into English as merely prosperous. The Vedic word सुभग is more comprehensive and significant than these translations connote.

TRANSLATION

O God, bestow on us by Thy Grace for quickness and joy in our vehicles, swiftness-producing combination of fire, water etc. and man-cheering, and glory of the kingdom, the wealth of wisdom which makes us masters and gladdens all friends who teach us various Sciences.

PURPORT

God shows kindness only towards an industrious person and not towards the lazy. Why ? because unless a man exerts himself fully, he cannot even protect or preserve things got by the Grace of God. Therefore men should desire or pray for the Grace of God after exerting themselves fully, becoming industrious.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(आशुम्) वेगादिगुणवन्तम् अग्निवाय्वादिपदार्थसमूहम् आशु इति अश्वनामसु पठितम् (निघ० १.१४) कृवापा उणा० १.१ अनेन अशूङ् व्याप्तौ इति धातोः उण् प्रत्ययः । (यज्ञश्रियम्) चक्रवर्तिराज्यादेर्महिम्नः श्रीः लक्ष्मीः शोभा ।

राष्ट्रं वा अश्वमेधः ॥ शत० १३.१.६.३

अनेन यज्ञशब्दाद् राष्ट्रं गृह्यते ।

So on the authority of the above Shatapath Brahman passage here the word यज्ञ (Yajna) stands for kingdom or country. यज्ञो वै महिमा (शत० ६.२.३.१८) So the word Yajna also means glory.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is very significant how Rishi Dayananda interprets the word Yajna in wide and comprehensive sense, taking it to mean Rashtra, Kingdom, Country or Nation and its glory. Sayanacharya and following him Western Scholars take the word Yajna in narrow sense of a sacrificial act and translate it as such. Even the word नृमादनम् Sayana interprets as ऋत्विग्यजमानानां हर्षहेतुम् Gladdining the performers of sacrifices and their priest, instead of men in general as Rishi Dayananda has interpreted नृणां मादनम् नरा माद्यन्ते हृर्ष्यन्तेऽनेनेति ॥

This tendency of narrowing down the sense of the Vedic words and confining them to external sacrifices only which is discernible in Sayana's commentary is very deplorable and it has proved to be very harmful.

rain), and illuminates all with his light, so you should also destroy all diseases and wicked enemies and should protect a brave righteous person, who is engaged in waging war against unrighteous foes.

PURPORT

Here implied simile (लुप्तोपमालङ्कार) is used. As only that person gets victory who righteously fights with the wicked or un-righteous people and none else, in the same way, God also helps or supports only righteous fighters and not others.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES—

TRANSLATION

O learned people, always worship that Great God who being merciful is the Protector, Accomplisher and Giver of wealth (both material in the form of gold etc. and spiritual in the form of Wisdom), who is Mighty, the Fulfiller of all noble desires, the friend of the person who is full of knowledge and righteousness.

PURPORT

A man should not rest content only with the glorification of God, but should obey God's commands and refrain from doing un-righteous deeds, knowing that God sees all. He Should desire God's help and be engaged in doing noble actions.

(अवितः) रक्षकः प्रापको दाता वा Among various meanings of the root अव् three meanings have been taken by Rishi Dayananda here, Protector, Accomplisher and Giver.

This 4th hymn deals with knowledge, health, strength of body and firmness, by the help of which righteous persons should attain vast Kingdom industriously and should restrain wicked people. Thus it has connection with the third hymn.

This hymn also has been wrongly interpreted by Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and others.

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Besides the Vedic passage quoted by the revered Commentator, the following passage from the Shatapath Brahmana 4. 1. 3. 19 is quite clear to show that Indra means also Vayu.

Mantra—2

पुरूतमं पुरूणामीशानं वार्याणाम् ।
इन्द्रं सोमे सचा सुते ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे सखायः (विद्वांसः) वार्याणाम् पुरूतमम् ईशानं पुरूणाम् इन्द्रम् अभिप्रगायत ये सुते सोमे सचाः (सन्ति तान् सर्वोपकाराय यथायोग्यम्) अभिप्रगायत ॥

(1) O learned friends ! glorify God Who as Dispenser of justice gives punishment to unrighteous persons, Who is the Lord of all things from earth to heaven, the Best and therefore the most acceptable, the Giver of all kinds of wealth (material as well as spiritual) to righteous people and utilise all things of the world for the benefit of all.

(2) Praise the properties of the air which is the means of sustenance and without which one cannot at all live, therefore which is most acceptable among all elements, utilise it properly O learned friends and Scientists, for the construction of aeroplanes etc. to benefit all people.

PURPORT

There is Shleshalankar or double entendre in this Mantra and so the word Indra denotes here both God as Lord of the Universe and Dispenser of justice according to the good or bad actions of the people and air. God is to be glorified and the air which is the cause of the sustenance of all creatures and should be properly utilised for the benefit of all.

सोमे सोतव्ये सर्वस्मिन् पदार्थे विमानादियाने वा ।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

पुरु इति बहुनाम (निघ० ३.१) Many. तमु-ग्लानौ Generally in the present Dhatu Patha the meaning of the Verb tamu (तमु) is given as कांक्षायाम् or desire, but even in the well-known धातुरूप कल्पद्रुम by Pandit Gurunath Vidyanidhi of Calcutta it is stated on P-435. तमु कांक्षायाम् कांक्षा-आकांक्षा ग्लानिरिति बोपदेदः ॥ Rishi Dayananda has preferred the same meaning in his commentary of this Mantra.

(सोमे) The word सोम is from षु-प्रसवैश्वर्ययोः or षूङ्-प्राणिगर्भ-विमोचने औणादिकः मन्प्रत्ययः अर्तिस्तु सु हु सृ धृक्षि क्षु भायावापदियक्षिनीभ्यो मन् ॥ (उणादिकोषे १.१४०) hence the meaning सोतव्ये पदार्थे विमानादियाने वा Anything that is created or manufactured.

What do they (God and air) do for us is taught is this third Mantra.

Mantra—3

TRANSLATION

(1) May God Who is the Lord of the Universe, help us in the attainment of all means of happiness and acquisition. of all admirable wealth and the intellect which possesses the knowledge of many Shastras. May He teach and command us providing us with proper and nourishing food for our strength.

(2) The pure air enables us to attain happiness, wealth and good intellect. Without pure air, one cannot be healthy, wealthy and wise for, health mostly depends upon it. Its proper utilisation enables a man to travel in aeroplanes etc.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(राये) परमोत्तमधनलाभाय रायइति धननामसु (निघ० २.१०)=For very good wealth (both material and spiritual).

PUTPORT

There is Shleshalanakar (Double entendre) in this Mantra. God helps those who are industrious and not lazy fellows. The air also is made useful for various purposes by industriousness. No one can increase his wealth without exerting himself. No one can attain true happiness without God and air. Therefore all men should become diligent and optimistic.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted वाजैः as उत्तमैरन्नैर्विमानादियानैः सह वा for which he has not quoted authorities, but they are clear. वाज इत्यन्ननाम (निघ० २.७) वज-गतौ The root Vaj means to go, therefore all means or vehicles of quick movement like the aeroplanes may be called वाजाः (पुरन्ध्याम्) has been explained by Rishi Dayananda as बहुशास्त्रविद्यायुक्तायां बुद्ध्याम् धीरिति प्रज्ञानाम (निघ० ३.९) Yaskacharya has taken the word पुरुधीः as पुरु इति बहुनाम (निघ० ३.१) Therefore it means the intellect, possessing the knowledge of many Shastras.

TRANSLATION

(1) O men, glorify and know the nature of that God Whose Power and force are working in this Universe and with Whose help, wicked enemies cannot withstand us—the righteous heroes in the battles.

(2) Praise or describe the properties of the sun whose light and attraction are operating in the Universe and whom none can resist.

PURPORT

So long as men are not devoted to the Almighty God and do not become mighty themselves, they do not get the power of weakening un-righteous enemies.

TRANSLATION

(1) God has created and purified all these objects of the world which are perishable, for the enjoyment and knowledge of the souls who protect them by proper use. They enjoy them.

(2) The sun and the air also purify all these objects of the world. It is they that make them more useful.

PURPORT

It is God who out of Kindness, creates this world for giving fruits of the actions performed by the souls. It is that absolutely Pure God Who purifies the world and the souls through the sun and the air. But only those persons who make proper use of them and are industrious in acquiring virtues themselves and prompt others also to do so, become pure and happy.

TRANSLATION

O learned person endowed with good intellect and noble actions, you should become the best by acquiring knowledge and other virtues, in order to drink the Juice of all things of the world, and to do very noble deeds.

PURPORT

God teaches the soul. O man ! unless you engage yourself in doing good to others having become old in knowledge (erudite) and experienced, you will not be a true man and will not attain the best happiness. Therefore you should be industrious and righteous.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted वाजम् as पदार्थविज्ञानम् The word is derived from वज-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्था ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च so here the meaning of ज्ञान or knowledge has been taken. Sayanacharya has taken it here for सोमरूपमन्नम् सनेत् संभजेत् Wilson has followed him translating "May Indra enjoy these manifold sacrificial viands". This translation is wrong as it ascribes body to God Who according to the express statement of the Veda अकायम् अव्रणम्, अस्नाविरम् etc. (Yaj. 40.8) परिभूः (Rig. 1.4) etc. is formless and All-pervading.

Mantra—10

TRANSLATION

O Omnipotent Lord of the world, to be adored with the words made refined with the study of the Vedas and proper education, let not men and other creatures do injury to our bodies. Thou art Lord of all, thorefore keep violence or the desire to kill, far away from us.

PURORT

No man should ever try to harm or injure any one else unjustly, but should behave towards others in a friendly manner. As God does not harm anyone, in the same manner people should also conduct themselves.

In this fifth hymn, it is mentioned how a man should exert himself to do good to others, so it has connection with the fourth hymn. This hymn also has been wrongly translated by Sayanacharya, Dr. Wilson and others.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

Sayanacharya takes Indra to mean a particular God the Lord of other deities in heaven, who drinks Soma Juice, as I have quoted his commentary on the 9th Mantra. The same thing he has stated in his commentary on the 6th and 7th mantras.

Wilson and Griffith also have followed him indiscriminately. I have already quoted Wilson. Griffith's translation of the 6th, 7th and 9th Mantra is as follows—

(6) "Thou grown at once to perfect strength, wast born to drink the Soma Juice, Strong Indra, for pre-eminence.

(7) "O Indra, lover of the song, may these quick somas enter thee, may they bring bliss to thee—the sage.

(9) Indra, whose succour never fails, accept these viands thousand fold, wherein all manly powers abide." These translators forget that the word Indra stands primarily for God the Lord of the world. इदि-परमैश्वर्ये Who is the Creator and Omniscient Knower of the Universe इदं करणात्, इदं दर्शनात् (निरुक्ते) They are obsessed with the idea of the worship of some Gods and Goddesses in the Vedas. Rishi Dayananda was therefore quite justified in criticising their interpretation, misunderstanding the very fundamental Vedic teaching of the worship of One God.

TRANSLATION

(1) Those persons who are in communion with Omnipresent God Who is Great are kind and non-violent in their hearts knowing all animate and inanimate objects, shine in Resplendent God.

(2) The Mantra is equally applicable to the sun, the Prana or vital breaths or fire (Agni). Those who know the real nature of the sun and the prana, shine. They become glorious.

PURPORT

God says that those who are busy with acquiring knowledge, enjoy all happiness. Therefore it is the duty of all learned persons to make proper use of all objects like the earth and the sun, prompt others to do so and make all people happy. Prof. Maxmuller has taken it to mean. "Those who stand around while he moves on, harness the bright red (Steed); the lights in heaven shine forth." (Prof. Maxmuller).

We have already pointed out that this interpretation is erroneous.

TRNASLATION

O learned persons, harness the two attributes of the sun or the fire in the form of attraction and speed, or the bright and the dark half of the month, making proper use of them in various kinds of conveyances for travelling on earth, in water and the sky, which are means of motion, carrying people far away and are firm.

PURPORT

God gives the instruction that unless men manufacture various chariots or cars by making proper use and taking advantage of the earth, the water and fire etc. they cannot have proper prosperity and splendour. Prof. Maxmuller has misinterpreted the mantra. He says that by the use of term अस्य it is clear that the Mantra relates to Indra who has two red coloured steeds.

Prof. Maxmuller's translation referred to here is as follows—

"They harness to the chariot on each side his (Indra's) two favourite boys, the brown the bold, who can carry the hero (Vedic Hymns Part 1. P. 14).

As a matter of fact, by the use of the pronoun अस्य the sun is to be taken here.

TRANSLATION

O men ! You must know that God Who gives the Light of knowledge in order to dispel the darnkess of ignorance and Who gives wealth in the form of gold and other articles for the removal of poverty. Know that Merciful God and acquire the knowledge of various sciences by keeping company with the learned who desire to get the knowledge of God and all other objects. O man eager to learn, you should also become famous by keeping company with such wise learned persons.

PURPORT

Men should get up early in the morning (before the dawn) by giving up all idleness, should exert themselves for dispelling ignorance and poverty, should acquire the knowledge of God and get the proper benefit out of all objects.

Prof. Maxmuller has misinterpreted the Mantra thinking that the word मर्याः stands here for Indra, though it clearly means mortals as stated in the Vedic Lexicon named Nighantu.

"मर्या इति मनुष्यनामसु (निघ० २.३)"

Prof. Maxmuller's translation is "Thou who createst light where there was no light and form. O men ! where there was no form, hast been born together with the dawns."

(Vedic Hymns Part I. P. 14)

It (Maryah) is not used here in the general sense of men. The poet addresses here Indra " (M.M.).

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

How absurd and ridiculous are the imaginations of Sayanacharya, Maxmuller, Wilson and Roth ?

Sayanacharya interprets the Mantra strangely as—i. e. O men ! see the wonder. This Indra in the form of the sun is born with his rays of burning nature, along with the dawns, or taking the sun as dead after sunset; he is addressed as being born in the morning giving light where there was no light etc.

हे मर्याः मनुष्याः । इदमाश्चर्यं पश्यतेत्यध्याहारः । किमाश्चर्यमिति तदुच्यते आदित्यरूपोऽयमिन्द्रः उषद्भिः दाहकैः रश्मिभिः प्रतिदिनमुषः काले वा संभूय अजायथाः । उदपद्यत अथवा सूर्यस्यैवास्तमये मरणमुपचर्य व्यत्ययेन बहुवचनं कृत्वा सम्बोधनं क्रियते । हे मर्य प्रतिदिनं त्वम् अजायथाः किं कुर्वन् ! अकेतवे रात्रौ निद्राभिभूतत्वेन प्रज्ञानरहिताय प्राणिने केतुं कृण्वन् इत्यादि ॥

Wilson translates it as—

"Mortals ! you owe your (daily) birth to such an Indra who with the rays of the morning gives sense to the senseless and to the formless form." Griffith's translation is still worse —

"Thou making light where no light was, and form O men, where form was not, wast born together with the Dawn. In he foot note he (Griffith) says "Thou i.e. the sun. O men is perhaps an exclamation expressive of admiration. If Maryah (Men), be taken to mean the Maruts the words thou making, wast born, although in the singular number, may apply to these Gods regarded as one host or Company and born at one birth."

Such are the strange imaginations of some of these translators, while Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is straight forward and there is no far-fetched meaning attached to the words used in the Mantra.

The function of the Maruts is mentioned in the fourth Mantra—

Mantra—4

आदह स्वधामनु पुनर्गर्भत्वमेरिरे ।
दधाना नाम यज्ञियम् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदपूर्वकोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

यथा मरुतः यज्ञियं नाम दधानाः सन्तः यदा स्वधाम् अनु अप्सु पुनः गर्भत्वम् एरिरे तथा आत् अनन्तरम् वृष्टिं कृत्वा पुनः जलानाम् अह इति विनिग्रहं कुर्वन्ति ॥

TRANSLATION

After the heat of the sun, the winds bear the water-carrying form. Before the rain, the winds (monsoons) are full of watery vapours.

PURPORT—

The water that becomes like the drops being lightened by the heat of the sun and the fire, it is the monsoons that cause it to rain as clouds and thus sustain all.

Prof. Maxmuller's translation as "The Maruts according to their want assumed again the form of new born babes". (V. H. Page 141). is not correct and is not in accordance with the letter and the spirit of the Mantra.

TRANSLATION

As men carry things and put them in proper places, so the sun scatters his rays with his force and attains (touches) all objects. Then he pierces them and with the winds that break down things, he places them in the middle region.

PURPORT

There is the simile here. As powerful winds break even strong trees with their force, so the sun pierces them with his rays and the winds take them above and below. Thus according to the eternal laws ordained by God, all objects are produced and perish at the end.

Wilson's translation is....

"O Indra thou hast discovered the cows hidden in the caven" is absurd. The word उस्रियाः (Usriyah) used in this Mantra stands for the rays according to the Vedic Lexicon (Nighantu 1.5 उस्रा इति रश्मिनामसु (निघ० १.५) By गुहा is meant the middle region गुहा गूहतेः निरु० १३.८ सर्वावरकेत्वात् अत्रान्तरिक्षस्य ग्रहणम् as it covers all.

"Thou O Indra, with the Swift Maruts (Storm Gods) who break through the even strong hold, hast found even in their hiding place the bright ones (days or clouds) (V. H. P. 14).

TRANSLATOR'S NOTE

Griffith follows Prof. Maxmuller translating the mantra 'Thou, Indra, with the tempest Gods, the breakers down of what is firm.

Foundest the Kine even in the cave. To translate the word मरुतः (Marutah) as Storm Gods (as done by Prof. Maxmuller) or tempest Gods as done by Griffith is entirely erroneous.

It means Pranas (breaths).

Winds, priests and heroes मरुतः मितराविणोऽमितरोचिनो महद् द्रवन्तीति वा निरुक्ते ११.१३ These Western Translators were always obsessed with the idea of finding out Gods and Godesses in the Vedas, forgetting the very fundamental principle of the Vedic Monotheism.

TRANSLATION

As learned persons who desire to become enlightened truthful people, make their gerat intellect full of the knowledge of all objects which bring about happiness and the ears which listen to the teachings of the Vedas that are noble and sublime, in the same manner, the maruts possessing great speed and other qualities, accomplish well the proper use of all powers of the sciences and arts ennabling them in every way.

PURPORT

Men should try to take all benefit out of the Maruts (airs etc.) for doing good to all and for the acquisition of knowledge and intelligence. Prof. Maxmuller's translation is . . . "The pious singers (the Maruts) have after their own mind, showed towards the giver of wealth, the great, the glorious (Indra). V. H. P. 14, M. M. is incorrect, as देवयन्तः stands for men and it means आत्मनो देवं विद्वांसम् इच्छन्तः desiring to make themselves learned. It does not stand for मरुतः or Storm Gods as translated by Prof. Maxmuller and Griffith who take the word to mean "Tempest or Storm Gods."

Griffith following Prof. Maxmuller translates as follows—

"Worshipping even as they list, singers laud him who findeth wealth.

The far-renowned, the mighty one."

Rishi Dayananda's criticism of Prof. Maxmuller's Translation is also applicable in this case.

TRANSLATION

The air or the wind is seen with the presence of the Omnipotent All-pervading God and the rays of the sun. Both of them (the air and the sun) are givers of joy and are of equal splendour.

PURPORT

God has created and sustained the sun, the air and other objects of the universe by His immanence and Power. Among these various objects, all shine with the sustaining power, attraction and light of the sun and the air. Men should get proper benefit from them through knowledge. Prof. Max-muller has expressed surprise at the use of singular form instead of the plural and also criticised Yaskacharya—the author of Nirukta for taking मन्दू as मन्दुना third case singular. But he is really mistaken. In the Vedas, this chage of case etc. takes place as stated by great grammarians in the aphorisms and verses like the following—

व्यत्ययो बहुलम्।। अष्टाध्यायाम् । सुप्तिङुपग्रहलिंगनराणां, कालहलच्स्वरकर्तृयङांच । व्यत्ययमिच्छतिशास्त्रकृदेषां, सोऽपि च सिद्ध्यति बाहुलकेन ।।

(महाभाष्ये ३. १. ८५) Mahabhashya 3, 185.

सुपां सुलुक् पूर्व सवर्णाच्छेयाडाड्यायाजालः ।।

(अष्टा० ७. १. ३९) Ashtadhyayi 7.1.39.

So Yaskacharya is right and Prof. Maxmuller himself is mistaken.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

From the social point of view, the Mantra may also mean - O hero attacking the enemy with wind like speed, you shine when united with the commander of the army (इन्द्रः—ईन् शत्रून् दारयितेति निरुक्ते) Both of you are givers of joy and of equal splendour.

Mantra—8

अनवद्यैरभिद्युभिर्मखः सहस्वदर्चति ।
गणैरिन्द्रस्य काम्यैः ।।

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

अयं मखः इन्द्रस्य अनवद्यैः अभिद्युभिः काम्यैः गणैः सह सर्वान् पदार्थान् सहस्वत् अर्चति ।।

TRANSLATION

This Yajna in the form of the protection and art when united with irreproachable, shining and desirable rays of the sun or air, makes all objects firm and strong.

PURPORT

This Yajna, which brings about happiness and protection, performed with the oblation of the pure articles put in the fire through the purification of the air and the rays drives away diseases and makes all beings vigorous and happy.

Prof. Maxmuller takes Makhah to mean the sacrificer and translates "The sacrificer cries aloud" But Makha means Yajna which brings about the happiness to and welfare of all beings through the purification of the air and the water. Prof. Maxmuller's statement that there are two passages where Makha refers to an enemy of the gods' is also erroneous, because it is a simile there.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

मखइतियज्ञनाम (निघ० ३ . १७)=Makha a Yajna or non-violent sacrifice.

It is note-worthy or remarkable that even Griffith has criticised Prof. Maxmuller's interpretation saying in the foot-note—

Prof. Maxmuller's translation of the Mantra is "with the beloved hosts of Indra, with the blameless hasting (Maruts) the sacrificer cries aloud." (Vedic Hymns P114).

"This is the interpretation proposed by Prof. Maxmuller, but it is only conjectural and not altogether satisfactory." (The Hymns of the Rigveda Translated by Griffith. P. 8).

अथ मरुतां गमनशीलत्वम् उपदिश्यते ।

The wandering nature of the Maruts (winds) is taught.

Mantra—9

अतः परिज्मन्ना गहि दिवो वा रोचनादधि ।
समस्मिन्नृञ्जते गिरः ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

यत्र गिरः सम् ऋञ्जते सः अयं परिज्मा (वायुः) अतः (पृथिवीस्थानात्) जलकणान् अधि आगहि उपरि गमयति । स पुनः दिवः रोचनात् (सूर्यप्रकाशात् मेघमण्डलात् वा जलादि पदार्थान्) आगहि (आगमयति) अस्मिन् सर्वे पदार्थाः स्थितिं लभन्ते) ।

TRANSLATION

The air which is the cause of all dealings of the speech, going every where taking things from this place to that, raises the drops of water from the earth, carries them upwards and then along with the light of the sun or the clouds, it rains down water on earth. All objects are based upon this air which dwells within and out side.

PURPORT

This powerful air is the cause of the going, coming, sustenance, utterance and the hearing of all things. Sayanacharya interprets परिज्मन् as अज-गतिक्षेपणयोः अन्येभ्योऽपि दृश्यन्ते (अष्टाः ३.२.५) इतिमनिन् नकारलोपश्छान्दसः But it is wrong as in the unadi kosha 1.159 it is stated.श्वन्नुक्षन् पूषन्प्लीहन् क्लेदन्स्नेहन् मूर्धन्मज्जन्नर्यमन् विश्वप्सन् परिज्वन् मातरिश्वन् मघवन्निति ।

From Yonder, O traveller (Indra) come hither, or from the light of heaven, the singers all yearn for it."

(Prof. Maxmuller in the Vedic Hymns, Part 1).

It is because the expression समस्मिन् ऋंजते गिरः particularly denotes that here by Maruts is meant Prana Vayu and not storm Gods etc. as supposed by him. (Maxmuller)

इदानीं सूर्यकर्मोपदिश्यते ।

The function of the sun is told in the tenth Mantra.

Mantra—1

इतो वा सातिमीमहे दिवो वा पार्थिवादधि ।
इन्द्रं महो वा रजसः ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

(वयम्) इतः पार्थिवात् वा दिवः वा सातिं कुर्वन्तम् रजसः अधिमहान्तं वा इन्द्रम् ईमहे (विजानीमः) ॥

TRANSLATION

We know this (sun) which divides various things i. e. helps as to distinguish them by his light to be greater than the earth, the moon, the stars, the heaven and other worlds. maxmuller's Translation is wrong as here the word "Indra" stands for the sun whose greatness or vastness is stated in the Mantra.

"We ask Indra for help from here, or from heaven, or from above the earth or from the "Great sky."..(M. M.)

PURPORT

The rays of the sun pierce the objects like water etc. on the earth and make them subtle, so that they go upwards along with the air but solar world is the greatest among the worlds.

In this hymn it is taught how we should take benefit from the sun and the air, what is their nature and how we should utilise them. So it has direct connection with the previous hymn. This hymn also has been misinterpreted by Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Prof. Maxmuller and others.

We have already pointed out some of their glaring mistakes in our notes. Tr.

Seer Madhucchanda. Devata—Indra, Metre-Gayatri of various types. Tune-Shadja.

There are three meanings for the word Indra used in this hymn.

Mantra—1

इन्द्रमिद् गाथिनो बृहदिन्द्रमर्केभिरर्किणः ।
इन्द्रं वाणीरनूषत ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

ये गाथिनः अर्किणः (विद्वांसः) ते अर्केभिः बृहत् (महान्तम्) इन्द्रम् (परमेश्वरम्) इन्द्रम् सूर्यम् इन्द्रं वायुं वाणीः च इत् (एव) अनूषत (यथावत् स्तुवन्तु) ॥

TRANSLATION

(1) The learned chanters (of Sama Veda) glorify the Great Lord only, with their songs of the Mantras and with the observance of truth etc. The reciters of the (Rigvedic) Mantras also praise the same Great God. Let all the Vedas and the speeches of the wise, glorify the Lord of the Universe.

(2) Let the learned scholars and scientists describe the attributes of the sun with the acts which develop arts and industries.

(3) Let the learned scientists describe the attributes of the air and how to utilise it properly, for the benefit of the people.

PURPORT

God gives the instruction that men should ponder over the meanings of the Vedic Mantras, should understand the real nature of God, the sun and the air and then should exert themselves for the welfare of all, by utilising all objects properly.

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

For these three meanings of the word Indra, the following quotations from the Brahmanas are quite clear besides many others.

(इन्द्रम्) (१) परमेश्वरम् (२) सूर्यम् (३) वायुम्। तस्मादाह इन्द्रो ब्रह्मेति। (कौषीतकी ब्राह्मणे ऋग्वेदीये ६.१४) इति—परमैश्वर्ये इति धातोर्निष्पन्नः इन्द्रः परमेश्वर-वाचकः।

अथ यः स इन्द्र एष एव स य एष (सूर्यः तपति) (जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्राह्मणे १. २८. २ ॥ १. ३२. ५)

अथ यः स इन्द्रोऽसौ स आदित्यः ॥ (शतपथ ब्रा० ८.५.३.२)

इन्द्रः सूर्यः इति सायणाचार्योऽपि ताण्ड्य ब्राह्मण १४.२.५, भाष्ये।

अयं वा इन्द्रो योऽयं वातः पवते (शत० १४.२.२.६)

यो वै वायुः स इन्द्रः य इन्द्रः स वायुः (शत० ४.१.३.१९)

These and other passages substantiate Rishi Dayananda's interpretation given above.

अनूषत—नु-स्तुतौ लोडर्थे लुङ्।

The sun and the air are described in the 2nd Mantra.

Mantra—2

इन्द्र इद्धर्योः सचा संमिश्ल आ वचोयुजा ।

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

यथा अयं संमिश्लः इन्द्रः (वायुः) सचा (सवयोः) वचोयुजा (वचांसि योजयतोः) हर्योः गमनागमनानि युनक्ति तथा इत् एव वज्री हिरण्ययः इन्द्रः सूर्यलोकः च ॥

TRANSLATION

As this air which is mixed up with all objects, unites its properties of removing and taking which are instrumental in all dealings of the speech, in the same way, the shining sun which possesses heat and is the cause of making the year,unites its property of taking and removing with all things. (The sun dispels darkness and spreads light).

PURPORT

As it is on account of the association of the air that speech, hearing, going, coming, upholding and touching are possible, in the same way, light and piercing are possible on account of the sun.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(वज्रः) संवत्सरः तापो वा अस्य अस्तीति वज्री सूर्यः संवत्सरो हि वज्रः । (शत० ३.३.५.१५)

(हिरण्ययः) ज्योतिर्हि हिरण्यम् (शत० ४. ३. १. २१),

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

Sayanacharya interprets the word हिरण्ययः as हिरण्यमयः-सर्वाभरण-भूषितः इत्यर्थः which is not correct in connection with Indra which is to be taken here for the sun or the air. Neither God nor the sun nor the air put on ornaments. Sayanacharya seems to be in the habit of giving materialistic or ritualistic interpretation.

The spiritual interprenation of the Mantra (as given by me in the translation of the Sama Veda (Mantra 597) is "God is the combiner of kindness and love when sincerely prayed to by earnest true devotees. He is the Creator and Lord of the world, the Holder of the thunderbolt of justice or the Light of lights or Absolute Truth.

हरतः पापसन्तापादिकं भक्तानामिति कारुण्यवात्सल्यरूपौ अश्वौ हरी। सत्यं वै हिरण्यम् (गोपथ ३.३.१७)।

In the third Mantra, by Indra the nature of the sun and its purpose is taught and who is the creator of the sun is answered.

अथ केन किमर्थः सूर्यलोको रचित इत्युपदिश्यते।

Mantra—3

इन्द्रः (सृष्टिकर्ता जगदीश्वरः) दीर्घाय चक्षसे यं सूर्यलोकं दिवि आरोहयत् सः अयं गोभिः अद्रिभिः वीरयति ॥

TRANSLATION

God Who is the Creator and Lord of the world has placed the sun on high in the sky, so that people may see well all objects with his rays. He makes the clouds move hither and thither, so that it may rain.

PURPORT

Desiring to create the world, God established the bright sun with the object of vision, upholding, attracting and illuminating in the midst of every world. This should be known to be the rule for every world or universe. The sun draws the water of the oceans up, keeps it there through the air and then takes it below. That is the cause of the rain.

TRANSLATION

O Alimighty Lord, protect us always in all battles where abundant wealth of various kinds is gained. Protect us and enable us to attain knowledge and happiness by Thy insuperable protective powers O Omnipotent God.

PURPORT

God shows kindness to righteous soldiers and to none else. Only those persons are lucky who control their senses, are impartial learned people possessing good strength of the body and the soul and are alert. They having conquered righteously in great battles, protect their country and get true happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(ऊतिभिः) रक्षाप्राप्तिविज्ञानसुखप्रवेशनैः
(वाजेषु) संग्रामेषु वाज इति संग्रामनामसु (निघ० २.१०)

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

It is noteworthy and significant that while as Skanda Swami, Venkata Madhava and Sayanancharya, all these commentators have translated अव as simply रक्ष and to our great surprise, Sayanacharya who is considered to be a great grammarian and author of a धातुपाठवृत्ति quotes अवरक्षणे ignoring other 18 meanings of the verb root अव, It is Rishi Dayananda alone that translates ऊतिभिः derived from अव as रक्षाप्राप्तिविज्ञानसुखप्रवेशनैः thus taking into consideration four meanings of the verb root अव. Howdeep and comprehensive is the Rishi's interpretation !

ऊति यूति जूति हेति साति कीर्तयश्च ।

(अष्टाध्याय्याम् ३.३.९७)

Thus the word ऊति is derived from अव. This is where all agree and yet they (with the exception of Rishi Dayananda) have given only one narrow meaning.

पुनरीश्वरसूर्यवायुगुणा उपदिश्यन्ते ।

The attributes of God, the sun and the air are described in the fifth Mantra.

Mantra—5

TRANSLATION

(1) In mighty great battles (External as well as internal) we invoke the Lord, Him do we invoke in minor strifes. He is the Friend who destroys evils and evil-minded wicked persons.

(2) On all battles great or small, we take the help of the sun and the air made by God. To destroy clouds, the rays of the sun are helpful. (We make our bodies strong by the proper use of the sun-light and pure air. We keep the sun and the air as ideal for strength and vigour.

PURPORT

Whether the battle is great or small, when a man regards Almighty God as his Protector, present everywhere and fights against un-righteous persons righteously and zealously, surely he gets victory. This victory is also caused by the proper use of the sun-light and pure air. As God gives happiness to all through the rain, for which the sun and the air are means, so men also should properly utilise sun-light and pure air in order to get strength and victory.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

(1) O Giver of all gifts, Rainer of happiness and peace ! Open the door of emancipation to us who are obedient to Thee and engaged in doing noble deeds. Thou art Irresistible O Lord.

(2) O God, this sun created by Thee in iresistible, cause of rain and it removes the clouds.

PURPORT

The man who firmly sticks to truth, knowledge and the command of God, that Inner Most Spirit dispels all the darkness of his ignorance, so that he never goes astray from the path of righteousness and exertion.

(चरुम्) ज्ञानलाभं मेघं वा चरुरिति मेघनामसु (निघ० १.१०)

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

As the word चरु (Charu) stands for cloud also, the 2nd line may also mean quieten this cloud-like restless mind. In the seventh Mantra, Indra stands for God—

पुनरिन्द्रशब्देनेश्वर उपदिश्यते—

Mantra—7

न अहं ये तुंजे तुंजे उत्तरे स्तोमाः सन्ति वज्रिणः इन्द्रस्य (परमेश्वरस्य) सुष्टुतिं विन्धे (विन्दामि) ।।

TRANSLATION

On the receipt of every gift from the Lord of the Universe Who is Almighty, praises rise in me. I go on singing the glory of God, but I don't find an end to it. I find no laud worthy of Him.

PURPORT

I am not able to know fully all the instances of God's power, His wonderful creation and the advantages that He has put in all objects of the world for the happiness of the souls. They are infinite and incomprehensible. None can ever find the end of God's attributes because they are endless. But a man should take as much benefit from all these things he can.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

(तुञ्जे तुञ्जे)- दातव्ये दातव्ये - Thus interprets Rishi Dayananda तुञ्जतिदानकर्मा (निघ० ३. २०)

I have translated thus the verse metrically—
For every gift of Thee O Lord,
I ever do Thee glorify,
But never reach the end of praise,
That can ever me satisfy.

TRANSLATION

As the strong bull leads on the herds, He the Rainer of happiness stirs the people with His might. He is irresistible Ruler who fulfils all noble desires. He can be attained only by righteous people.

PURPORT

It is only righteous people that can attain God, because it is their nature to make progress in Knowledge. God comes to righteous people only (is realised by them) as they come to Him—they are in communion with Him. The sun also is able to attract the worlds near by as directed by the Lord. God who rules over all men, all riches and all worlds of five kinds where creatures dwell is only One. He alone should be worshipped.

PURPORT

God alone Who is the Supreme Ruler of all, the Inner most Omnipresent Spirit, Giver of all wealth (internal and external) un-parallelled, only One, the Creator of the world attracting all towards Himself, should be worshipped by all as Adorable. TRANSLATION

O friends ! We worship God for the welfare of you and all other people. May He be the only object of our worship and desire, as He is superior to all and the Best.

PURPORT

God gives instruction in this Mantra for the welfare of all.

O men, you should not regard any one else as Adorable instead of me because there is none else who is the Lord of the Universe. Therefore any one who regards many Gods is to be considered as ignorant. In this seventh hymn, is told that God Who has created and placed the sun and the air in the middle region and the sky is only one Almighty Supreme Being to be adored by all persons. So it has direct connection with the previous hymn. This hymn has also been wrongly interpreted by Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and other Eurpoeans.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS—

That the translations of Shri Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and Griffith are wrong is quite evident from the fact that they all take Indra in this hymn to be a deity sitting somewhere in heaven, instead of an Omnipresent Supreme Being.

The translation of the last Mantra of this hymn by Wilson and Griffith is particularly repulsive while Sayanacharya translates अस्माकमस्तुकेवलः as स इन्द्रः अस्माकं केवलः असाधारणोऽस्तुइतरेभ्योऽप्यधिकमनुग्रहमस्मासु करोत्वित्यर्थः ॥ i.e. Let Indra show extra-ordinary favour which is more than that upon others.

Prof. Wilson Translates it as "May he (Indra) be exclusively our own." Griffith's ! translation is still worse and more absurd. "For your sake from each side we call Indra away from other men; Our's and none other's may he be." (Griffith).

It is against the very spirit of the Vedas which enjoin up on us to regard all beings on earth as our friends (मित्रस्याहं चक्षुषा सर्वाणिभूतानि समीक्षे मीत्रस्य चक्षुषा समीक्षामहे (य० ३६.१८) ।

Therefore the meaning of the Mantra is as given above. It does not mean at all that He (God) be ours and of none else, but that He may be the only object of our worship and desire. We should worship and desire Him and Him alone.

(वृत्रा) मेघवत् सुखावरकान् शत्रून् अत्र सुपांसुलुक् इतिशसः स्थाने आजादेशः ।

That is Rishi Dayananda's interpretation. Enemies that obstruct happiness by their ignoble or wicked un-social deeds. वृत्र इति मेघनाम (निघ० १.१०) पाप्मा वै वृत्रः (शतपथ ११.१.५.७॥ १३.४.१.१३)

This passage from Shatapath Brahmana also supports, Rishi Dayananda's interpretation that by Vritras are meant un-righteous persons. Both Skanda Swami and Sayanacharya explain वृत्रा as शत्रून् or enemies, but they do not go to the root and show the depth as Rishi Dayananda has done.

मनुष्याः किं धृत्वा शत्रून् जयन्तीत्युपदिश्यते ॥

How do men conquer enemies is taught in the 3rd Mantra.

Mantra—3

इन्द्र त्वोतास आ वयं वज्रं घना ददीमहि ।
जयेम संयुधि स्पृधः ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे इन्द्र ! त्वाऊतासः वयं (स्वविजयार्थं) वज्रं घना आददीमहि यतः वयं युधि स्पृधः जयेम ॥

TRANSLATION

O Almighty God, protected and strengthened by Thee, may we lift up for our victory ponderous weapons which destroy the power of our opponents and canons, guns, swords and other arms wherewith we may entirely conquer our foes in fight.

PURPORT

Men should take shelter in God and Dharma (righteousness), should be strong in body and develop their soul force through wisdom, possessing full war-materials, mutual friendship and unity, zeal and other good qualities, should enjoy happiness by defeating the un-righteous enemies.

कस्य कस्य सहायेनैतत् सिद्ध्यतीत्युपदिश्यते

With whose help is this (victory) possible is taught in the fourth Mantra.

Mantra—4

वयं शूरेभिरस्तृभिरिन्द्र त्वया युजा वयम् ।
सासह्याम पृतन्यतः ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे इन्द्र ! युजा त्वया वयम् अस्तृभिः सह पृतन्यतः (शत्रून्) सासह्याम (एवं प्रकारेण चक्रवर्तिराजानो भूत्वा नित्यं प्रजाः पालयेम) ।

TRANSLATION

O God Giver of enthusiasm in righteous wars, with Thee for our ally, and aided by missile-darting heroes, may we conquer our embattled foes. thus having become good sovereigns, let us always protect our subjects.

PURPORT

Heroism or strength is of two kinds (1) Physical valour and force (2) the strength that comes by knowledge and by the observance of the rules of righteousness. Men possessing this strength of both kinds, knowing the order of the creation of God and having acquired knowledge, perseverance, gentlemanliness, industriousness and other noble virtues, with the help of the national assembly should protect the country and restrain the wicked foes.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(युजा) कृपया धार्मिकेषु स्वसामर्थ्यसंयोजकेन God as an ally who puts in righteous persons His own power. (अस्तृभिः) सर्वशस्त्रास्त्रप्रक्षेपणदक्षैः Experts in throwing (using) all arms and missiles. असु-प्रक्षेपे ।

TRANSLATION

God is Almighty Supreme. Real Greatness and Glory belongs to that Upholder of the thunderbolt of justice. Wider as the heaven or vast as the sun is His power.

PURPORT

The righteous brave soldiers should offer thanks to the Omnipotent Lord of the world for their victory over the unrighteous foes, so that they may remain free from pride and their country may ever prosper.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

The heroes should engage themselves in battles with unrighteous foes and persons endowed with genius and desirous of acquiring and spreading special or scientific knowledge, should train children.

PURPORT

God the Lord of the world commands thus-In this world persons should do two things—(1) Those who are learned should acquire the strength of knowledge and body and should subdue or restrain the power of their enemies. Whenever men desire to fight with their foes, they should keep themselves alert and should at least possess double force than their opponents',so that by defeating them, they may always protect their subjects. (This is the duty of the heoric learned Kshatriyas). (1) Those who desire to spread knowledge, should try to train boys and girls properly, so that slong with the defeat of enemies, there may be establishment and progress of good government and dissemination of good knowledge.

TRANSLATION

The sun takes the sap of all plants, and protects all objects objects with his rays. He fills all earths as the waters fill the ocean, the Pranas or vital breaths fill different parts of the body and the operations of the tongue pronounce words.

PURPORT

There are two similes here. As God has created the ocean which is the cause of storing the water and rain, so the Prana is the cause of speech. In the same manner, God has made the sun cause of the earth's light and gravitation as well as of taking the juice of herbs, plants etc. By these i. e. the ocean, Prana and the sun, many purposes are accomplished.

Mantra--8

TRANSLATION

Verily the speech of this Omniscient God contained in four Vedas absolutely true and sweet, great, full of great knowledge and wisdom, is to be held in great honour by all. It is like a branch loaded with ripe fruits, for a scholar who is deeply engaged in its study.

PURPORT

Here there is a simile. As trees like the mangoes, Jack fruit etc. with their flowers and fruits are very beneficial, in the same manner, the Vedas revealed by God are givers of great knowledge of various sciences, of delight and bliss. It is only great scholars who can reveal their truths to others for their benefit.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(विरप्शी) महाविद्यायुक्ता, विरप्शीतिमहन्नाम (निघ०

(गोमती) गावो भूयांसः स्तोतारो विद्यन्ते यस्यां सा गौरिति स्तोतृनामसु पठितम् (निघ० ३. १६)

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

This Mantra is very significant showing the Revealed Character of the Vedas and their significance. Sayanacharya and following him Prof. Wilson and Griffith have not been able to grasp its full spirit and have applied it to the speech of a particular deity named Indra sitting some where in heaven. They have translated गोमती as बह्वीभिर्गोभिरुपेता गोप्रदेत्यर्थः (सायणः) cow-conferring(Wilson) and rich in Cattle (Griffith) which has not much sense. The speech cannot be full of and giver of cattle as interpreted by them. It is studied and praised by many scholars गौरिति स्तोतृ नामसु (Nighantu 3.16). This interpretation of Rishi Dayananda is quite significant denoting the glory of the Vedas as the Words of God.

य एवं कुर्वन्ति तेषां किं भवतीत्युपदिश्यते ।

What is the result of doing this, is taught in the Ninth Mantra.

Mantra—9

एवा हि ते विभूतय ऊतयं इन्द्र मावंते ।

TRANSLATION

For verily God, Thy glories, protections, knowledge and attainment of Delight etc.be at once saving helps unto a person like me engaged in the duty of doing good to others.

PURPORT

God commands that those righteous persons who are industrious and benefactors of others, having fully protected riches of all kinds are respected everywhere.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(ऊतयः) रक्षाविज्ञानसुखप्राप्त्यादयः

(दाशुषे) सर्वोपकारधर्म आत्मानं दत्तवते ।

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

ऊतयः has been translated by Skanda Swami as पालनानि by Verkata Madhava and Sayanacharya as रक्षणानि (वे० मा०) and रक्षारूपा: by Prof. Wilson as 'protectors' and Griffith as 'saving helps' but Rishi Dayananda taking into consideration various meanings of the root अव from which ऊतयः is derived, interprets it as रक्षाविज्ञानसुखप्राप्त्यादय: i. e. Protection, knowledge and attainment of Delight. This comprehensiveness and depth of vision is the distinguishing feature of his commentary. दाशुषे has been translated by Skanda Swami and Venkat Madhava as यजमानाय sacrificer and by Sayanacharya as हविर्दत्तवते यजमानाय i. e. for a sacrificer offering oblation, but Rishi Dayananda takes as usual a comprehensive and wider meaning etymologically and translates it as सर्वोपकारधर्मआत्मानं दत्तवते who has given himself to the duty of doing good to others. दाश्-दाने ।

Whose is all this glory, is taught in the tenth Mantra.

Mantra—10

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

ये अस्य (वेदचतुष्टयस्य) काम्ये शंस्ये स्तोम उक्थं च स्तः ते सोमपीतये इन्द्राय हि (भजतः) ।

TRANSLATION

Verily the chanted and recited praises of all the four Vedas are meant for thanking the Lord Who is the Protector of all objects.

PURPORT

As seeing some fine things made by a person, he is praised by all, so the sun and all other visible and invisible fine objects of the Universe point out the Glory of God and the Vedas enjoin upon us to thank Him for this wonderful creation.

In this hymn it is taught that the worshippers of God should be engaged in doing noble deeds, having attained the spiritual delight by knowledge and physical happiness or health by good actions, so it is connected with the previous hymn.

This hymn also has been wrongly interpreted by Sayanacharya and by Western scholars like Prof. Wilson and others.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The wrongness of the translation of this hymn by Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Griffith and others is clear by their not grasping the Vedic Conception of Indra. Instead of taking Indra as the name of God as pointed out in the Vedas themselves in—

इन्द्रं मित्रं वरुणमग्निमाहुः एकं सद्विप्रा बहुधा वदन्ति (ऋग्वेद १. १६४. ४६) and other Mantras, they regard Him as a particular Deity sitting somewhere in heaven and drinking soma (Liquor or wine according to the Western scholars). The translation of the seventh Mantra made by Sayanacharya, Wilson and Griffith is particularly wrong and absurd यः कुक्षिः सोमपातमः Sayanacharya explains यः कुक्षिः अस्येन्द्रस्य उदरप्रदेशः अतिशयेन सोमस्य पाता स कुक्षिः समुद्र इवपिन्वते-वर्धते । Prof. Wilson translates — The belly of Indra which quaffs the Soma Juice abundantly, swells like the Ocean and is ever moist. Griffith's translation is to the same effect. "His (Indra's) belly, drinking deepest draughts of Soma, like an ocean swells."

Rishi Dayananda interprets the Mantra, taking Indra for solar world or system and explaining कुक्षिः (Kukshih) as कुष्णाति निष्कर्षति सर्वपदार्थेभ्यो रसं सः सूर्यलोकः (सोमपातमः) सोमान् पदार्थान् किरणैः पाति सोऽतिशयितः ॥

TRANSLATION

As this sun with his force and light gladdens (so to speak) the earth and the crops etc. with all the objects, being the greatest in measure and extension, so O Omnipresent God Thou art the Greatest and the Best, being present with all the objects of the world and perfectly knowing them all as Omniscient Supreme Being, enablest us to get food and thereby gladdenest us by Thy wonderful Power.

PURPORT

As God is present in every atom of this Universe and protects all the worlds constantly, so the sun also being the greatest, draws the objects in his front towards himself, gives them light and keeps them in order under the Eternal laws of the Lord.

TRANSLATION

O learned persons or scientists, in order to accomplish many works, utilise the fire and the the water which are prominent among the means of quick transportation for the soul that gladdens all and being industrious desires to get prosperity in this world consisting of various groups of articles.

PURPORT

It is the duty of learned persons to propagate knowledge of all objects from God to earth to the people and thus make them active through the acquisition of knowledge and to attain happiness of all kinds.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

इन्द्रियमिन्द्रलिंगमिन्द्रदृष्टमिन्द्रसृष्टमिन्द्रजुष्टमिन्द्रदत्तमितिवा

(अष्टाध्यायी ५. २. ९३)

In this aphorism of the most prominent Sanskrit Grammatical work named Ashtadhyayi, the etymology of Indriyas or senses is given which clearly shows that by Indra, soul is meant. Therefore it is clearly stated in Kashika. इन्द्र आत्मा i. e. by Indra-soul is meant and these senses are called Indriyas for, they point out the existence of a conscious soul.

Now by Indra in the third Mantra, God is meant.

TRANSLATION

O Omniscient God Who art to be attained with right knowledge, being praised by us with gladdening Vedic lauds, delight us-who have come together in these Yajnas or non-violent sacrifices.

PURPORT

Those persons who glorify the Lord who is the creator of the sun-the giver of light to all, are devoted to Him, are righteous and industrious, knowing God as Omniscient Supreme Being, bestow happiness on all, being engaged in becoming prosperous unitedly.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सुशिप्र) शोभनं शिप्रं ज्ञानं प्रापणं वा यस्य तत् सम्बुद्धौ (विश्वचर्षणे) विश्वस्य सर्वस्य यः चर्षणिः-द्रष्टा तत्सम्बुद्धौ चर्षणिरिति पश्यतिकर्मा (निघ० ३. ११)

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

Rishi Dayananda has explained सुशिप्र as शोभनं शिप्रं ज्ञानं प्रापणं दवायस्य i. e. Whose knowledge or attainment is auspicious, but he has not quoted any authority to substantiate this interpretation. Sayanacharya has translated सुशिप्र as शोभनहनो शोभननासिको वा = Good-cheeked or good-nosed. Skandaswami's translation is also the same. सुहनो सुनस वा । Prof. Wilson translated the word सुशिप्र as Indra with the handsome chin.

"O Lord of all men, of fair cheek."

Thus all the other commentators ascribe physical form to Indra, taking him to be some Deity in heaven. But Rishi Dayananda has interpreted it as given above. In Nighantu 4.1 it is stated शिप्रे इति पदनाम पद-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च It is on the basis of this, that Rishi Dayananda has given the meaning as शोभनं ज्ञानं प्रापणं वा यस्य In Rig. 2. 12.6 also we find the word सुशिप्र (Sushipra), where the Rishi explains it a bit differently as शोभनानि शिप्राणि सेवनानि यस्मिन् सः । अत्र शेवृधातोः पृषोदरात्वादिनेष्टसिद्धिः ॥ The word Shipra is derived here from the root शेवृ-सेवने So the meaning will be, He whose worship or contemplation is auspicious. The absurdity of the meaning of सुशिप्र as fair chinned, fair nosed etc. is that the adjective used in the Mantra is विश्वचर्षणे which means literally the Seer of all. Can such an Omniscient Supreme Being be fair-chinned or fair-nosed ? These two are incompatible. So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is quite correct. By Indra in the Mantra is meant God and not any particular deity as supposed by Sayanacharya, Skanda Swami, Wilson and Griffith etc.

The same subject is taught again.

Mantra—4

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

TRANSLATION

O God, The Vedic Speeches revealed by Thee mainfest or reveal Thee well who art our Protector—, Showerer of Peace and Bliss. Thou art full of all knowledge, therefore I also glorify Thee who art our Protector and Rainer of blessings.

PURPORT

We souls possess finite knowledge, therefore we should believe in what God Himself has revealed about His nature, attibutes and acts. It is not possible for us to comprehend them fully. It is not possible for any one to know fully God's nature, attributes and acts. Therefore it is through the Vedas that learned persons should know industriously, all objects like God, soul, matter etc. All objects should also be properly utilised. God alone should be considered as Adorable and Protector.

TRANSLATION

O God the Giver of all means of true happiness, please grant to us all precious and manifold wonderful riches in the form of knowledge, gold, horses and elephants etc. that are there in Thy Universe, for Power Supreme is only Thine.

PURPORT

Men should enjoy by the Grace of God and with their own exertion the attainment, protection and development of knowledge and prosperity, so that by casting away all misery due to poverty and indolence, divine enjoyments may ever grow.

Mantra—6

TRANSLATION

O God Innermost Soul of our soul, O most splendid Lord of the manifold wealth of infinite wisdom, stimulate us who are industrious and glorious, for the acquirement of sublime wealth (internal as well external, spiritual and material).

PURPORT

All men should exert themselves in this world for the acquisition of knowledge, good kingdom and prosperity, obeying the commandments of God and being industrious and renowned on account of virtues. None can get these things without exertion and labour, because God gives all kinds of happiness only to the industrious persons.

Mantra—7

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे इन्द्र (जगदीश्वर) त्वम् अस्मे (अस्मभ्यम्) गोमत् वाजवत् पृथु बृहत् विश्वायुः अक्षितं श्रवः संधेहि ॥

TRANSLATION

Grant us O Lord of infinite knowledge, that wealth which is full of noble speech, cattle and feeds righteous and learned devotees, which enables us to enjoy abundant nourishing food, which consists of various sciences and is vast, which gives us good reputation and wisdom and which is inexhaustible, lasting for the whole of life or which enables us to live full life of one hundred years or more.

PURPORT

It is the duty of men to acquire wealth and utilise it properly with the obsevance of Brahmacharya (continence) giving up attachment to worldly objects, observance of the rules of diet, clothing etc. and with acquisition of knowledge, Common Wealth of Nations and prosperity, so that great happiness in this world and in the next (Spiritual and material) may grow from day to day. This object can not be achieved merely by offering prayer to God, but it requires exertion on one's part.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

It is clear that the wealth prayed for in this and other Mantras is not merely material wealth but spiritual wealth also which consists in wisdom, knowledge, peace, self-control etc. For three meanings of the word गोमत् given by Rishi Dayananda, see the Vedic lexicon Nighantu गौरितिवाङ्नाम (निघ० १.११) = Noble speech गौरितिस्तोतृनाम (निघ० ३. १६) = Praisers or devotees of God.

The same subject is continued.

"The meaning of रथिनीः (Rathineeh) is not clear". It is not at all a difficult word. SKandaswami explains रथिनीः इषः as रथ सहिताः इषः अन्नानि Venkata Madhava and Sayanacharya also follow him saying बहुरथोपेता इषः अन्नानि Wilson translates it peculiarly as "those articles of food (which are brought from the fields) in carts.

Rishi Dayananda takes इषः unlike these other commentators as इष्यन्ते यास्ताः सेनाः अत्र कृतो बहुलम् इति वार्तिकेन कर्मणि क्विप् = desired armies. In this case, the adjective रथिनीः having various kinds of chariots becomes quite clear and Griffith's doubt is cleared.

TRANSLATION

We invoke for our protection and Lordship, Indra(God) Who is the upholder of wealth in the form of wisdom, Lord of the earth the fire, the sun, the moon and planets etc. which inhabit creatures and who is the Revealer of the Vedic Mantras, who is Omnipresent and Omniscient, praising Him with the refined Vedic Speech.

PURPORT

All persons should glorify God only, as the Lord of the world, Revealer of the Vedas and All-perveding Supreme Being. They should also imitate God's Justice and other attributes and by exerting themselves they should attain the best knowledge, kingdom and wealth and then preserve and develop them at all times.

(ऊतये) रक्षणाय स्वामित्वप्राप्तये, क्रियोपयोगाय वा

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

गन्तारम् is derived from गम्लृ-गतौ which has got three meanings ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च = To know, to go and to attain.

Rishi Dayananda has here interpreted the word taking the first and the last meaning. Sayanacharya, Skanda Swami, Venkata Madhava and others have taken it to mean यागदेशं गमनशीलम् (सायणः) यज्ञं प्रतिगन्तारम् (स्कन्दस्वामी) गन्तारम् (वेंकटमाधव) Prof : Wilson translates it as "repairer to the place of sacrifice) and Griffith as—"who cometh to our aid." Rishi Dayananda's depth of vision is significant which others unfortuately lack.

It is evident that Rishi Dayananda explained इषः (Ishah) here as armies taking into consideration the adjective रथिनीः used in the Mantra. प्रजा वा इषः शत० १.७.३.१४॥४.१.२.१५ corroborates the idea of taking इषः for men and therefore their army.

TRANSLATION

When even a man who has unjustly taken other's property and enjoyed it himself (after repentance) glorifies God's great powers Who is the mighty and all-pervading, establisher of all objects in their proper places, and surrenders himself to Him, he becomes very lucky.

PURPORT

Even if a man who is any body's enemy becomes humble before Omnipresent and Gracious God by giving up all vanity and begins to obey God's commandments contained in the Vedas and observes them in action, why should he (along with others who are always righteous) not be humble and venerable. Those devotees of God who are righteous, industrious, benefactors of all and learned alone enjoy the happiness of knowledge and the bliss of the Vast and just Government and not others. In this hymn, there is prayer to Indra (God) for the acquisition of sublime wealth, the instruction for industriousness and obedience to God's commands and thus it has connection with the 8th hymn.

This hymn also has been wrongly translated by Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and others.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

We have already pointed out some of the mistakes committed by Sayanacharya, Skanda Swami, Prof. Wilson and Griffith in our foot-notes. The fundamental mistake committed by them with regard to the conception of Indra whom they consider to be a deity sitting somewhere in heaven and not All - pervading Supreme Being. Wilson translates न्योकसे (Nyokase) in the tenth Mantra of this hymn as "the dweller in an eternal mansion. In the translation of the 3rd Mantra Wilson translates सुशिप्र as Indra with the handsome Chin Griffith also has rendered it as "of fair Cheek." All such translations following Sayanacharya are wrong and misleading. Therefore Rishi Dayananda had to criticise them as they give a very wrong conception about God.

TRANSLATION

O Lord, possessing infinite knowledge and power of action, the Sama Veda singers sing Thy praise. The Rigveda Chanters worship Thee who art Adorable. Knowers of all the four Vedas extol Thee with the reverence that men have for the heads of their family.

PURPORT

All men should worship God only i. e. they should always obey His commandments (contained in the Vedas) As those who study the Vedas and acquire their knowledge well, deliver sermons to others and thus make human family virtuous and elevated, so all others should also behave. This result cannot be achieved by any one else except the true worshipper of God, because according to God's command, there is none else equal to Him, therefore one should worship Him (in his heart) and should sing His Glory.

As the rays of the sun along with the airs go from one peak to another, so also the man who goes from one action to another and who touches things and moves them, God gives him power to know more and more along with all objects that give happiness.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankar or simile used is the Mantra. As the sun moves the earth and other world, which are in front along with the airs, draws them and gives them light, so a man who with the help of the knowledge is able to do many deeds continuously, is able to accomplish works with the group of means. Englighten us about the real import and secret of the Vedic Mantras.

Increase our Yajna (the spirit of sacrifice) along with dexterity in art and industry.

PURPORT

=God who dwells within all beings and who is the Support of all. Wilson taking it to stand for any particular deity has translated it simply as 'come vasu to this our site. Reply to our hymns,answer to our praises and respond to our prayers.'

The rest is not objectionable and is a fairly good translation, but he should have explained what was meant by vasu. Following Sayanacharya who translates ब्रह्म as अन्नम् Wilson also renders it into English as "bestow upon us abundant food." Skanda Swami has explained ब्रह्म as स्तोत्रलक्षणम् Praise which is somewhat better. Sayanacharya seems to be in the habit of generally taking words in material sense, even if the other meaning is so clear, as in the present case. Yogi Shri Aurabindo was therefore right in remarking that "It is the final and authoritative binding of the Veda to this lowest of all its possible senses that has been the most un-fortunate result of Sayana's commentary."

('On the Vedas' P. 27)

That the Word ब्रह्म Primarily means Veda besides God is clear from such passages in the Brahmanas as

ब्रह्म वा ऋक् ।। कौषीतकी ब्रा० ७. १०
ब्रह्म वै मन्त्रः ।। शत० ७. १. १. ५
वेदो ब्रह्म (जैमिनीयोप० ४. २९. ३)

Rishi Dayananda has therefore rightly explained ब्रह्म here as वेदविज्ञानम् or Vedic Knowledge.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

While Sayanacharya, Skanda Swami and Venkata Madhava translate वसु (Vasu) as धनम् (Wealth) and following them Prof. Wilson and Griffith render it into English as wealth, it is Rishi Dayananda who takes the word वसु (Vasu) in its derivative sense and gives the comprehensive meaning of विद्याऽऽरोग्यादि सुवर्णादि धनम् "Wealth in the form of Wilsom, health and gold etc. what a difference does it make regarding the Vedic conception of wealth ?

In the same way, while Skanda Swami takes दयमानः as विभजन् or distributing, Venkata Madhava and Sayanacharya as प्रयच्छन् giving, Wilson as conferring and Griffith as giving, it is Rishi Dayananda that goes to the root दय which according to the Dhatu Patha of Panini means दय-दानगतिरक्षण हिंसाऽऽदानेषु and gives all the meanings of giving, protecting, destroying evils and miseries and acepting which is so remarkable. It shows the Rishi's depth of vision and broad outlook which other commentators lacked as they were scholars, but not Rishis or seers.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

We have given above the interpretation of the term कौशिक (Kaushika) as given by Rishi Dayananda quoting the authority of Shri Yaskacharya well-known etymologist of ancient India. The main principle of the Vedic interpretation is that सर्वाणि नामानि आख्यातजानि i. e. All words in the Vedas are derived from the roots and are Yougikas or general nouns denoting particular attributes. In the Meemansa Shastra Maharshi Jaimini has said the same thing.

आख्या प्रवचनात् । परन्तु श्रुति सामान्यमात्रम् (मीमां० १. ३१) ।

It is wrong therefore on the part of Sayanacharya, Skanda Swami, Wilson, Griffith and others to take the word "Kaushika." as the son of Kushik."

TRANSLATION

O God to be worshipped by the hymns of the Vedas and learned persons, may all praises on every side encompass Thee Who deservest all praise. May they spread Thy Kingdom (increase the number of Thy devotees) Who art present from all eternity and being agreeable to Thee, may yield delight to us.

PURPORT

O God whatever glory and praise is there in the world, it is all Thine. What ever growth of happiness and bliss is there, all that glorifies Thee. Those who realise the attributes of God and the properties of the objects of His Univerese enjoy happiness and always growing in wisdom become venerable, in the whole world.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

Sayanacharya has wrongly stated परिभवन्तु as सर्वतः प्राप्नुवन्तु because according to the rule of Grammar परोभुवोऽवज्ञाने परिभवन्तु means. May they insult you, which is absurd.

This hymn has also been wrongly translated by Sayanacharya and Western Scholars like prof. Wilson and others. In this hymn, it is taught that those who having acquired knowledge and prayed to God, being industrious always glorify the Lord, destroy ignorance and other vices, conquer their enemies, become long lived learned scholars and bringing about others' welfare enjoy happiness and bliss. Thus this hymn is connected with the ninth hymn.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

The grammatical mistake pointed out by Rishi Dayananda in Sayanacharya's commentary is very remarkable and significant,as his (Sayanacharya's) admirers consider him to be most well-versed in Sanskrit Grammar. As a matter of fact the same mistake has been committed by Skanda Swami who explains परिभवन्तु as परिगृह्णन्तु and Venkata Madhava who, translates it as परिभवन्तु Rishi Dayananda therefore explains it as परि-सर्वतः त्वांभवन्तु and not as त्वांपरिभवन्तु which changes the meaning altogether as the aphorism pointed out by Rishi Dayananda clearly denotes.

We have already pointe out some mistakes committed by Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Griffith and other translators. Their conception of Indra has been wrong through out. That is why in the 11th Mantra they have taken कौशिक as the son of Kushik and have quoted some myth about it. Griffith's translation of the last mantra of this hymn is particularly absurd and worse than that of Wilson. 12. "Lover of song, may these our songs on every side encompass thee.

Strengthening thee of lengthened life, May they be dear delights to thee. Prof. Wilson's is a bit better when he translates—

"May they (our praises) augment the power of thee, who art long lived, and being agreeable to thee, may they yield delight (to us).

HYMN XI.

जेता माधुच्छन्दस ऋषिः । इन्द्रो देवता । अनुष्टुप् छन्दः ॥

Seer—Jeta, Devata or subject Indra, Metre—Anushtubh. By Indra are meant God and Conqueror in this hymn.

Mantra—1

इन्द्रं विश्वा अवीवृधन्त्समुद्रव्यचसं गिरः ।
रथीतमं रथीनां वाजानां सत्पतिं पतिम् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

अस्माकम् इमाः विश्वाः गिरः यं समुद्रव्यचसं रथीनां रथीतमं वाजानां सत्पतिम् इन्द्रं (परमात्मानम्) वीरपुरुषं वा अवीवृधन् (नित्यं वर्धयन्ति) तं सर्वे मनुष्या वर्द्धयन्तु ॥

TRANSLATION

(1) All our hymns extol the Lord who is diffused on every side like the ocean, Who is the Supreme Charioteer and Master of the souls possessing the chariots in the form of the bodies, who is Lord of all strength and Protector of all righteous persons.

(2) It is also applicable to a noble and just king, who is the master of the chariot in the form of body and who is mighty and protector of all good people. In the case of a noble king, the word रथीनाम् रथीतमम् may also mean the master of those who possess aeroplanes and other speedy vehicles.

PURPORT—

There is shleshalankar or paronomasia in this Mantra.

All Vedic Speeches glorify the lord Who is Omnipresent, Absolutely True, giving victory to righteous persons and Immanent everywhere. They praise a hero who conquers unrighteous persons with righteous strength and who protects the righteous. This is the command of God.

The same subject is continued in the 2nd Mantra.

Mantra—2

सख्ये त इन्द्र वाजिनो मा भेम शवसस्पते।
त्वामभि प्र णोनुमो जेतारमपराजितम् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे शवसस्पते जगदीश्वर सेनाध्यक्ष वा। अभिजेतारम् अपराजितं त्वां वाजिनः (विजानन्तः) वयं प्रणोनुमः (पुनः पुनर्नमस्कुर्मः) तथा हे इन्द्र। ते (तव) सख्ये कृते शत्रुभ्यः कदाचित् मा भेम (भयं मा करवाम) ॥

TRANSLATION

(1) O Lord of strength ! in Thy friendship, being mighty, let us never fear. We bow before Thee and glorify Thee O Almighty, Who art conqueror of the world, but Thyself unconquered.

(2) It is also applicable to a noble mighty king. We should praise him as conqueror of his enemies and unconquered.

PURPORT

In this mantra also there is Shleshalankar or double meaning. Those persons who regard God and heroic persons as their friends, are never afraid of any one, being full of strength.

Mantra—3

पूर्वीरिन्द्रस्य रातयो न वि दस्यन्त्यूतयः।
यदी वाजस्य गोमतः स्तोतृभ्यो मंहते मघम् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

यदि इन्द्रः स्तोतृभ्यः वाजस्य गोमतः मघं मंहते (तर्हि) अस्य एताः पूर्वीः रातयः ऊतयः न विदस्यन्ति नैव उपदस्यन्ति।

The gifts of God from eternity, His saving succours never fail, if He grants to the righteous devotee who praise Him and the attributes of creation, wealth which gives happiness and consists of noble speech, a land, kine and senses.

PURPORT

As in God's Universe, there are eternal protections and acts full of perfect justice, in the same manner, men should also give the gifts of fearlessness and knowledge to the people. If there were no God, how could this universe come into being ? If God does not give, how can men live ? Therefore we should believe in God as the Creator of all objects of the world and Giver of all happiness.

TRANSLATION

(1) In the case of a commander of an army the meaning is. The commander of an army is born as crusher of enemies' cities, the young, the wise, of unbounded strength, the sustainer of all pious acts, the wielder of thunderbolt and other destructive weapons and much extolled.

(2) In the ease of the sun—
The sun is the destroyer of the germs of various diseases, giver of light to see all objects, containing un-measured force and water to rain down, sustainer of all by his gravitating power, possessing rays which remove impurity and therefore praised by wise.

PURPORT

Just as the sun created by God is the destroyer of diseases with his rays and the upholder of the earth by his gravitating force, so should a commander by his power weaken or destroy the force of his enemies, should create disunion among unrighteous persons by the use of peaceful persuation and charity and other means and by imbibing many virtues, should always preserva Swarajya.

TRANSLATION

When the sun opens the cave of the clouds covering his rays, the earth and other worlds rotating separate the mass of water. This sun is attained by trembling and rotating earth etc.

PURPORT

The sun breaks into pieces the solid cloud by his rays and makes it fall down upon the earth. It is by the gravitation of the sun that the earth and other worlds regularly rotate in their circumference by which are made the season and day and night etc. in the same way, the commander of an army should behave.

TRANSLATION

Addressing the President of the council or the commander of the army, it is said—

O hero, Attracted by thy bounties, I again come to thee, celebrating thy liberality while addressing thee who art deep like the ocean and source of happiness. O praise-worthy, the performer of the works of the state and industries, I know thee to be a true and munificent hero.

PURPORT

God commands all. Men should take shelter in a righteous heroic person (who is the president of the council or commander of the army) and who is therefore praised by all, as sharks and other creatures take shelter in the ocean. They should give the charity of fearlessness or harmlessness and should conduct all the affairs of the State well with knowledge and should try to make all happy by taking away all their misery.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सिन्धुम्) स्यन्दते प्रस्रवते सुखानि, समुद्र इव गम्भीरस्तम् ॥

(कारवः) ये कार्याणि कुर्वन्ति ते।

(रातिभिः) अभयादिदानैः रा-दाने-
=By the gifts of fearlessness etc.

(शूर) धार्मिक, दुष्टनिवारक, विद्याबलपराक्रमवन् सभाध्यक्ष।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The word कारवः used in this Mantra is very important and significant. Skanda Swami interprets it as स्तोतारः Praisers, Venkata Madhava explains it as प्राज्ञाः स्तोतारः wise men. Sayanacharya interprets it as प्रज्ञाः कर्तारः ऋत्विग् यजमानाः DOERS OF WORKS—Priests and performers of sacrifice. Wilson translates it, following Sayanacharya as performers of the rite. Griffith translates it as "singers". Rishi Dayananda has given the correct root-meaning as ये कार्याणि कुर्वन्ति Those who do the work. It is derived from डु कृञ्-करणे कृवा पा जिमि स्वदि साध्यसूभ्य उण् (उणादि १.१) इति उण् So it is clear that Rishi Dayananda is right in taking the word in wide sense than narrowing it down to the performer of a ritual. This comprehensiveness of the Rishi is remarkable.

Mantra—7

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

TRANSLATION

O Indra (Chief of the State or the army) with thy subtle intelligence, wondrous power, strategem, thou overthrowest unrighteous, wily (deceitful or cunning) enemy who tyrannises over righteous persons. The wise know this thy greatness. Bestow upon them aboutdant food and make them happy and prosperous. Weaken the power of the wicked enemies with the help of the wise.

PURPORT

God commands that highly intelligent persons should overthrow enemies by using all legitimate means consisting of peaceful persuation, charity, discord and punishment and should diffuse knowledge and extend righteous Government. They should always exert themselves in such a way that deceitful or cunning persons may not grow.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

=Those wise men who knowing the Shastras destroy wily enemies.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is wrong on the part of Sayanacharya, Skandaswami, Venkata Madhava, Wilson and Griffith to take Shushna as the name of a particular demon. It is a general term for an unrighteous person who tyrannises over righteous persons. Even Sayanacharya gives its etymological or derivative meaning correctly as भूतानां शोषयहेतुम् and Griffith in his foot-note gives the meaning as (drier up.)=Yet he and others take it to be the name of a particular demon, forgetting the main principle of the Vedic terminology that सर्वाणिनामानि आख्यातजानि इति नैरुक्तसमय: i. e. All nouns in the Vedas are derivatives or derived from the roots. It is Rishi Dayananda alone that interprets the word शुष्णम् quite correctly giving its root-meaning as given above. शोषयति धार्मिकाम् जनान् तं दुष्ट स्वभावं प्राणिनम् i. e. a man of wicked nature who dries up righteous persons by tyrannising over them.

अथेश्वर गुणा उपदिश्यन्ते ।

Mantra—8

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वय: (ऋषिकृत:)

यस्य सर्वे स्तोमा: (स्तुतय:) सहस्रम् उतवा अधिका रातयः च सन्ति ता: यम् ओजसा सहवर्तमानम् इन्द्रं (जगदीश्वरम्) अभि अनूषत (सर्वतः स्तुवन्ति) स एव सर्वैः मनुष्यैः स्तोतव्य: ।

Almighty God Who is glorified by all the Vedic and other praises and Whose gifts are thousands and even more, should be ever praised by all.

PURPORT

Men should always take shelter in that Merciful God Who has created by His Power and given all these various objects in the universe, for the happiness of all creatures and to Whom all thanks are due.

In this hymn, by the term Indra, God has been glorified and thus fearlessness has been created among men, the duties of heroes have been stated as the protection of good people and destruction of the wicked, God by infinite Power creates this world-such teachings are given, so this hyms is connected with the tenth hymn. This hymn has also been wrongly interpreted by Sayanacharya Prof. Wilson and others. This should be clearly understood by all.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

The last Mantra of this hymn, has been translated by me metrically as follows—

Glorify the Lord O devotees
For all the gifts He grants.
His gifts are thousandfold or more
Wise man His praises chants.

Some of the mistakes committed by Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and others have already been pointed out by me in notes. Some more may be pointed out below. In the commentary on the fifth Mantra of this hymn Sayanacharya Says—

वलनामकः कश्चिदसुरो देवसम्बन्धिनीर्गा अपहृत्य कस्मिंश्चद् बिले गोपितवान्। तदानीमिन्द्रस्तद् बिलं स्वसैन्येन समावृत्य तस्माद् बिलाद् गा निस्सारयामास। तदिदमुपाख्यानं मन्त्रेषु प्रसिद्धम्।

Prof: Wilson has translated it in his notes as "Vala, according to the Scholist (Sayanacharya) was an Asura, who stole the cows of the gods and hid them in a cave. Indra surrounded the cave with his army, and recovered the cattle. Griffith has also translated in the same way as Sayanahcarya and Wilson.

"Lord of thunder, thou didst burst the cave of Vala rich in cows.

The Gods came pressing to thy side, and free from terror aided thee"

How wrong it is to use the word "The Gods" for devas besides historical reference. His foot-note is"The cave of vala." Vala is the brother of vritra or vritra himself, (How amusing are the imaginations of these western translators and what uncertainty they denote? and another name who stole the cows of the Gods and hid them in a cave that is, he kept the light and waters imprisoned in dark clouds.

Rishi Dayananda takes the word Vala (बल) in the sense of the cloud on the authority of the Vedic lexicon Nighantu 1.10 which clearly says वज्र इति मेघनामसुपठितम् (निघ० १.१०) Rishi Dayananda was therefore justified in saying that such interpretations of Sayanacharya and Wilson etc. are wrong.

TRANSLATION

We desirous of various actions, choose the fire which takes things to distant places and gives them heat, which gives speed to various vehicles and which is instrumental in producing various articles by artists and by means of which many things are made in the form of art and industry.

PURPORT

God commands men to know well the properties of this fire which is like a messenger in taking things above and below, by the means of which different kinds of machines can be made and which gives speed to the various vehicles or conveyances. They should utilise it properly, so that material happiness may be enjoyed.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

The word दूत is derived from two roots दु-उपतापे and दु-गतौ Rishi Dayananda has therefore given two different meanings. The word यज्ञम् he has taken in the case of Agni (Fire) for शिल्पविद्यामयम् Yajna in the form of art and industry etc.

In this case दूत is taken as Messenger of Truth or Omniscient from दु-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च अत्र ज्ञानार्थग्रहणम्

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The spiritual meaning of the Mantra in simple English may be given as follows. O devotees, ever invoke the Resplendent God who is the Lord of all His subjects, is Beloved of all and Who is the Giver of all acceptable things.
Now by the word Agni, God and Fire are taught.

अथेश्वरभौतिकावुपदिश्यते

Mantra—3

अग्ने देवाँ इहा वह जज्ञानो वृक्तबर्हिषे ।
असि होता न ईड्यः ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

(१) हे अग्ने (सत्यामीश्वर) त्वम् इह ज्ञानः

होता ईड्यः असि नः (अस्मभ्यं) वृक्तबर्हिषे च देवान् आवह (समन्तात् मापय)

(२) अयं होता जज्ञानः अग्निः वृक्तबर्हिषे नः (अस्मभ्यं च) देवान् आवह (समन्तात् मापयति) अतः अस्माकं स ईड्यः भवति इति भौतिकाग्निपक्षे।

(1) The meaning in the case of God is—O Adorable God, bring to us all desirable objects and give us power to attain all noble virtues. Thou art revealed in the heart of a true Yogi who has weeded out all impurity and who performs Yajnas, putting oblations in the fire. Thou art Adorable and Giver of all desirable objects and true happiness.

Taking the second meaning of verb we have translated it as the Universe संगतस्यसंसारस्य or संसारयज्ञस्य।

अथ द्विविधोऽग्निरुपदिश्यते

Now Agni of two kinds is taught i.e. God and fire (in the form of electricity etc.)

Mantra—2

TRANSLATION

(1) With contemplation and other spiritual means we invoke Agni (God) who is the Lord of the subjects, the Giver of all objects that are to be given, eaten and taken, much Beloved of the wise. You should also O men, always do like that.

(2) In the case of fire—
We choose fire (visible and invisible in the form of electricity) with the means of arts, the protector of men and other beings, the conductor of vehicles from place to place, the means in enjoying material happiness of various kinds.

PURPORT

God commands to all— O men You should utilise the fire (visible and invisible in the form of electricity) for the accomplishment of various arts and industries and enjoy desirable happiness yourselves and help others also to do so. (2) In the case of Agni (fire) the meaning is—

This fire which is the giver of health and happiness (by purifying the atmosphere and the water) brings divine articles to us—the performers of the Yajna in pure form. Therefore it is to be praised and sought after by us for proper utilisation to bring about happiness and welfare.

PURPORT

There is Shleshalankar (Panoramasia) in this Mantra. When fragrant and nourishing germicides are put as oblations in the fire, it goes along with the particles of those articles in the air and the clouds etc. By purifying the atmosphere, it produces divine enjoyment of happiness, therefore we should make researches about it for utilising it properly. This is the injunction of God.

THE COMMONTATOR'S NOTES

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

यः अग्निः यत् (यस्मात्) बर्हिषि देवैः सह दूत्यम् आयासि (समन्तात् याति) तान् उशतो विबोधय तेषां दोषान् सत्सि (हन्ति) तस्मात् एतैः अयं विद्यासिद्धये सर्वथा सर्वदा परीक्ष्य संप्रयोजनीयः अस्ति ॥

TRANSLATION

Since this Agni (fire) goes to the middle region along with divine articles and awakens the desired objects (purifies and makes them subtle) like a messenger, by removing their impurities; therefore it should be properly investigated and utilised for the accomplishment of various sciences after experimentation.

PURPORT

God commands that this fire is your messenger, because it takes to the sky articles that have been put into it in the subtle form of atoms. Thus it causes divine enjoyment of happiness. Therefore men should reveal the properties of this fire for proper utilisation in various purposes.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

In this and many Mantras of this kind where Rishi Dayananda has interpreted them in the case of fire, air etc., he has pointed out that their case, person etc. is to be changed. Though such change of case, person etc. is permissible in the Vedas according to the rules of grammar like व्यत्ययो बहुलम् (अष्टा. ३.१.८५) etc. as a matter of fact, it is not necessary to do so. It could be taken as it is. For instance, it could be translated O fire, thou like a messenger, takest articles away to distant places etc. This is always done by poets and even other writers. In the Nirukta, Shri Yaskacharya has clearly stated अचेतनान्यपि चेतनवत् स्तूयन्ते (नि दैवतकाण्डु ७.१), i. e. in the Vedas, sometimes inanimate objects are praised as if they were animate. That is a particular style. But in order to make it quite clear lest people may misunderstand it, Rishi Dayananda thought it advisable to change the case and gender etc. in his interpretation. This is a point which is to be clearly understood and by not understanding which ill-founded criticism has been levelled by some prejudiced people against Rishi Dayananda's sound interpretation.

THE SAME SUBJECT IS CONTINUED.

Mantra—5

TRANSLATION

Resplendent Agni (fire) in which clarified butter is poured and which illuminates objects, burns up harmful evils like impurity and bad smell. That fire should be utilised by us in our works.

PURPORT

God tells that the fire when mixed with the articles possessing fragrance and nourishment etc. casts aside all bad odour etc. and gives happiness to all.

स कथं प्रदीप्तो भवति कीदृशश्चेत्युपदिश्यते ।

How is that fire illumined and what are its properties is taught in the 6th Mantra.

Mantra—6

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

TRANSLATION

By fire in the form of electricity, this material fire on earth and in the sun is illuminated. It is the bearer of oblations to distant places, the lord or protector of the house and its objects, mixer and disintegrator of articles, illuminer, whose mouth is the vehicle of oblations; this should be utilised by wise men for the accomplishment of various works.

PURPORT

The fire in the form of electricity which is present in all articles, illumines the sun and this material fire and they disappear in it, at the end in subtle form. If men know the properties of these two fires (the mateial and the sun) and utilise them properly, many works, may be accomplished and much happiness may be derived from them.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

There is also a spiritual meaning of the mantra taking first Agni to mean as God and the second the soul. The fire in the form of the soul which goes from body to body through transmigration, which is the lord of the house (of body) wise, young and worshipper, which accepts desirable ideas and throws out ignoble thoughts. is illumined by God the Holy Fire, that burns all evils.

अथाग्नि शब्देनेश्वरभौतिकावर्थावुपदिश्येते ।

METRICAL TRANSLATION

(1) O man, praise Omniscient Lord
Whose laws in the world are eternal,
Who is Giver of light and life
Destroyer of diseases, physical mental.

(2) Praise agni (fire) in the non-violent sacrifice, which is illuminator of articles, whose laws are eternal and which is the destroyer of many diseases.

PURPORT

In this Mantra also there is Shleshalankar (double entendre or panoramasia). Men should reveal God to the people for the acquirement of Dharma (righteousness) with true knowledge and fire for the accomplishment of true art, so that they may enjoy happiness by the removal of all diseases.

Destroyer of diseases like ignorance and fever etc.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

अध्वरे—अध्वर इति यज्ञनाम (निघ० ३.१७) अध्वर इति यज्ञ नाम ध्वरति हिंसा कर्मातत्प्रतिषेधः(निरुक्ते १.७)।

Skanda Swami, Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and other translators have interpreted the Mantra with regard to the fire, though even according to their interpretation, it is clear that it is not fully applicable to the material fire. For instance, कविम् has been explained by Sayanahcarya as मेधाविनम् wise सत्यधर्माणम् as सत्यवदनरूपेण धर्मेणोपेतम् Always speaking the truth. How are these two adjectives particularly applicable to the inaminate fire ? Wilson following Sayana translates कविम् as wise and, सत्यधर्माणम् as the observer of truth.

Griffith translates कविम् as Sage and सत्यधर्माणम् as "whose ways are ever true." "Can this material fire be called as Sage? Rishi Dayananda is therefore right in taking the word Agni used here primarily for God and secondarily for the fire as shown above. The same subject is continued in the 8th Mantra.

Mantra—8

यस्त्वामग्ने हुविष्पतिर्दूतं देव सपुर्यति ।
तस्यं स्म प्राविता भव ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

ईश्वर पक्षे (१) हे देव अग्ने यः हविष्पतिः (मनुष्यः) दूतं त्वा सपर्यति तस्य त्वं प्राविता भव। अग्निपक्षे (२) यो हविष्पतिर्मनुष्यः त्वां (ते) देवं दूतम् अग्निं सपर्यति तस्य अयं प्राविता भवति स्म ।

TRANSLATION

(1) Taking the word Agni used in the Mantra primarily for God the meaning is—

O Resplendent Omniscient God, who ever institutor of a non-violent sacrifice or preserver of noble virtues, worships Thee—the Herald of noble virtues or true Messenger, the Giver of Wisdom and Happiness, do Thou prove His special Protector.

(2) In the case of the fire the meaning is. The fire becomes the protector of the offerer of oblations or the performer of the Yajna who serves it—the giver of happiness when properly used and which is like a messenger taking the particles of the oblations etc. to distant places.

PURPORT

There is Shleshalankar (Panoramasia) in this Mantra. In this Mantra the word दूत (Doota) has been used, which in the case of God means one Who enables us to attain wisdom. In the case of fire, it means something which takes things and vehicles to distant places. Those persons who being believers in God and the Vedas, meditate on God who is the Supreme Witness of all in their hearts, they alone being protected by God and having given up sins, enjoy happiness, becoming righteous.

(2) Those scientists and others who utilise the fire properly in the vehicles and machines etc. are also protected in battle fields, other places and become others' protectors.

Conveyer or giver of happiness and knowledge.

(प्राविता) प्रकृष्टतया ज्ञाता सुखप्रापको वा

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Among the different 19 meanings of the root अव अवगम (knowledge) and अवाप्ति attainment have been taken here particularly. Protection is too well-known to be mentioned. (दूतः) The root from which the word Doota is derived is टु-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च ।

Here Rishi Dayananda has taken the third meaning of attainment or taking.

The same subject is continued.

Mantra—9

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

(१) ईश्वर पक्षे—हे पावक यो हविष्मान् मनुष्यः देववीतये त्वाम् अग्निम् आविवासति तस्मै त्वं मृडय ।

(२) अग्नि पक्षे स्वल्प व्यत्ययेन स्पष्टीकरणार्थम् ।

(३) यः हविष्मान् मनुष्यः देववीतये इमम् अग्निम् आविवासति तस्मै अयं पावकः अग्निः मृडयति ॥

TRANSLATION

(1) Do thou confer on him happiness who being the performer of Yajna (non-violent sacrifice and other noble acts) worships thee O God, Giver of happiness, purifier of all, for the attainment of Divine virtues.

(2) This fire causes happiness to him who performs the Yajna by putting oblations in it for the sake of divine enjoyments.

PURPORT

In this mantra also there is Shleshalankar (Paromanasia or double meaning). Those persons who worship God with true feeling, knowledge and action, enjoy happiness bearing divine virtues and doing pure actions.

God has made this fire which reveals divine proparties, therefore men should take divine benefits from it by utilising it properly.

TRANSLATION

(1) O Resplendent and Purifier (God), bring to us in this world, enlightened persons and make successful our Yanja (Non-violent sacrifice) and grant us all desirable objects.

(2) This bright fire when utilised properly brings to us divine attributes or enjoyments. It causes happiness with the help of our Yajna (Non-violent sacrifice) and oblations put into it.

PURPORT

In this Mantra also there is shleshalankar or double meaning.

Whatever object a man desires to obtain for that he should pray to God and should exert himself well to obtain it. Whatever attributes of God and other objects are mentioned in the Veda, men should act accordingly, should know the nature of fire and other objects and should utilise them properly.

The same subject is continued.

TRANSLATION

(1) Praised by our most admirable hymn O God, bestow upon us wealth got as a result of knowledge and good vast administration and good actions along with heroic progeny.

(2) In the case of fire—

The fire praised by us (by relating its properties and being utilised properly) produces wealth accompanied with heroic progeny and noble actions.

PURPORT

In this Mantra also, there is Shleshalankar or double meaning.

The word नवीयसा has been used here to show that the study of the Vedas is new to every individual and as consequence its pronunciation becomes some what new. When God is pleased by righteous persons through the proper and methodical study of the Vedas and the performance of the actions sanctioned by them, He grants them wealth in the form of knowledge, heroism and other virtues and noble desires.

TRANSLATION

(1) O Refulgent God, graciously accept this our praise with Thy infinite power, purifying light and the invocations of enlightened persons with the Vedic Speech.

(2) This fire shining with pure radiance and purifying light, utilised by the Vedic teachings gives us happiness and divine enjoyment.

This hymn is connection with the previous hymn as, there is mention of the attribntes of Agni in this as in that.

Here ends the commentary on the twelfth hymn and twenty third Varga of the first Mandala of the Rigveda Sanhita.

TRANSLATION

(1) O purifying Lord of the universe, well-kindled within (meditated upon) Thou bringest divine virtues and articles to him, who puts oblations in the fire and offers holy gifts of devotion to Thee. Therefore, I always worship Thee as Thou art Giver of knowledge, peace and bliss.

(2) I utilise properly the fire which when kindled well brings divine things to the person who is the performer of Yajna.

PURPORT

The man who collects various things and uses the fire which carries many vehicles, (in the form of steam, electricity etc.) enjoys happiness in many ways, by which a man is able to do the noble deeds of truth and justice etc.

Mantra—2

मधुमन्तं तनूनपाद्यज्ञं देवेषु नः कवे ।

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः—

यः तनूनपात् कविः अग्निः देवेषु सुखस्य वीतये अद्य नः मधुमन्तं यज्ञं कृणुहि (कृणोति) ।

TRANSLATION

The fire which makes up the deficiencies of the body and thus preserves it, which enables us to see far off, which makes the Yajna (non-violent sacrifice) sweet or beneficial to the enlightened persons and divine objects, should be utilised by all properly.

PURPORT

When oblation is put in the fire, it purifies the air, water etc, preserves the bodies and herbs and generates various saps. By taking them in pure form, the knowledge, wisdom and strength of the people grow.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

The mantra may be translated in the following manner spiritually—

O Omniscient Preserver of the body, forward today our most pleasant and sweet sacrifice of devotion combined with knowledge, to the enlightened truthful persons for our preservation.

तनूं न पातयतीति तनूनपात् नित्यो निर्विकारश्च।

How absurd is Griffith's foot-note on the word तनूनपात् (Tanoonapat).

"Son of thyself-Tanunapat son or descendant of oneself,

"Son of thyself-Tanunapat son or descendant of oneself, is a frequently recurring name of Agni, so called because fire is sometimes self-generated, as in the lightening or produced by attribution, and not necessarily derived from other fire, other fanciful derivations are given.

The derivations given in the Nirukta by Yaskacharya according to many other Acharyas he calls as "fanciful" while his own absurd derivation, he considers to be the right one.

The attributes of agni which is admired by all are told in the 3rd Mantra.

Mantra—3

नराशंसमिह प्रियमस्मिन्यज्ञ उप ह्वये।
मधुजिह्वं हविष्कृतम् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

TRANSLATION

I kindle the fire in this Yajna (non-violent sacrifice) which is beloved and beneficent to the people, the sweet tongued (which makes things sweet) and in which oblations are put.

PURPORT

The material fire when properly or methodically used becomes beloved of or dear to the people. It is beneficial in various ways. The seven flames of the fire mentioned in the Mundakopanishat are—

काली कराली च मनोजवा च, सुलोहिता या च सुधूम्रवर्णा ।
स्फुलिंगिनी विश्वरूपी च देवी, लेलायमाना इति सप्त जिह्वाः ॥
(Mundak. 1.2.4)

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

Besides the above meaning given by Rishi Dayananda, the inner or spiritual meaning of the Mantra, when by Agni, God is taken as clearly stated in the first Mantra. is as follows-I invoke in this non-violent sacrifice, God who is extolled by men, the Beloved, the sweet-tongued (giver of the knowledge of the sweet Vedas which are full of sweetness) and the most Liberal Donor.

नरैः आशंस्यते स्तूयते इति नराशंसः
(मधु जिह्वम्) मधु ज्ञानम् मन-अवगमे इति धातोः
(मनेर्धश्छन्दसि उणादि० २.११७)
ज्ञानमयी जिह्वा यस्य सः अथवा माधुर्ययुक्तवेदज्ञान-दायकम् ॥

The same subject is continued in the fourth Mantra—

Mantra—4

TRANSLATION

Agni (fire) when used in the most easy going Chariot (in the form of aeroplane etc.) which confers happiness upon its passengers, gives divine enjoyments. It is used by wise men for the accomplishment of various acts and is very beneficent.

PURPORT

All men should know that the fire used in many mechanical devices becomes fit to travel on earth, water and the sky, confers happiness on all and accomplishes various processes, that are beneficial to all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(रथे) गमनहेतौ रमणसाधने विमानादौ ।
(मनुः) विद्वद्भिः क्रियासिद्ध्यर्थं यो मन्यते सः ॥

It is very wrong on the part of Griffith to take the word Manu as proper noun and translate the last line as "Manu appointed thee as priest." It is against the fundamental principles of he Vedic terminology as pointed out before.
See shataph Brahman S. 6.3.18.

ये विद्वांसस्ते मनवः ॥ (शत. ८. ६. ३. १८)

The learned are called Manus.
In the Aitareya Brahmana 2. 34 it is said.

अग्निर्होता मनुर्वृतः । अयम् अग्निर्हि सर्वतो मनुष्यैर्वृतः ॥
(ऐतरेयब्राह्मणे २. ३४)

So Wilson's translation is better than Griffith's who has translated the last line as "instituted by men.

The spiritual meaning of the Mantra is—

"O God, extolled by us, bring the enlightened persons in our most pleasant devotional sacrifice which gives happiness. Thou art the Giver of the fruit of action, Omniscient and Benefi cent to all.

Mantra—5

TRANSLATION

O Wise men, cover properly the middle region where the water is seen and where it is at the back (so to speak).

PURPORT

Whatever Ghee (Clarified butter) etc. is put in the fire, that goes to the middle regions and purifies the water that is there. That covers all articles with fragrance, makes all people happy and healthy.

TRANSLATION

O wise learned men, in order to make a Yajna (Non-violent sacrifice) let the shining doors which are augmenters of happiness and truth and which are properly designed be certainly set open, as to-day the Yajna is to be performed.

PURPORT

Men should make houses, sacrifical halls and conveyances of many doors so that persons may dwell there, perform Yajna and go in and come out easily.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has given three meanings of the term ऋतम्, सत्यं सुखं जलं वेति ऋतमित्युदकनाम (निघ० १.१२) ऋतमिति सत्यनाम (निघ. ३.१०) ऋतमिति पदनाम पद-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च प्राप्यते मनीषिभिरिति ऋतं सुखम्

On the authority of these quotations from the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu, it is quite clear that the meanings given by him are correct and authentic.

Mantra—7

TRANSLATION

I invoke the lovely night and dawn in my house and the solemn Yajna (non-violent sacrifice) so that this my house or Yajna may be the source of happiness to all.

PURPORT

All men should know that when day and night are utilised for doing good to others through the dissemination of knowledge, they become the cause of happiness and pleasure to all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

I-the performer of Yajna and practical work invoke two kinds of fire (electricity and material visible fire) which possess good tongues in the form of flame, are takers of various articles, the cause of vision and divine which accomplish this Yajna in the form of homa (fire sacrifice) and shilpa i. e. art and industry.

PURPORT

As there is electricity possessing speed and other divine attributes, there is also this well-known visible fire. These two kinds of fire cause the sight of all objects and when utilised properly and methodically, they accomplish many works of art and industry etc, therefore men should take all benefits from their proper use.

Mantra—9

TRANSLATION AND PURPORT

O learned persons. you should try to establish three divine virtues at every house (1) An admirable speech which is used for study and teaching (2) the speech possessing various kinds of knowledge and expressed in the form of sermons and (3) policy which is to be admired and revered everywhere and which can not be condemned by wrong arguments or fallacies and which causes happiness to all. This speech of three kinds should be accepted by all, so that there may be the diffusion of knowledge and elimination of ignorance.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मही) सर्वथा पूज्या कुतर्केण ह्यखण्डनीया सर्वसुखा नीतिः।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Besides the above beautiful interpretation given by Rishi Dayananda the word सरस्वती may be taken for culture इडा for speech and मही for earth or land. Thus from the social or national point of view, the Mantra enjoins up on all people to have love for the good culture, speech and the motherland.

These three should be treated as devis or divine, to be always borne in mind.

Mantra—10

TRANSLATION

(1) I invoke in this house or sacrifical hall, God who is All-pervading, being present in all forms, destroyer of all miseries, the Chief or the Best of all. May He be for us the only object of worship.

(2) I invoke or utilise in this science of art and industry, the fire which is disintegrator of particles, the Chief among the means, that is, the extra-ordinary means for our practical accomplishments.

PURPORT

There is Shleshalankar or double meaning here. Men should regard God Who is the Giver of infinite bliss as the only object of worship and this fire as the disintegrator of the particles of all objects, multiform, the illuminator of all things, the un-parallelled means of the accomplishment of the science of art and industry which should be properly utillsed.

TRANSLATION

The plant (without flowers) that is the protector of the forests and the herbs etc. on account of rains, is the giver of fruits, generates articles to be put in the fire as oblation, for divine attributes. That increases the knowledge of the learned person who desires the purification of all things.

PURPORT

When men utilise properly all articles made by the combination of the earth and the water etc. they become stimulators of digestive power and by keeping diseases away increase strength, intellect and wisdom and illuminate or reveal divine attributes.

TRANSLATION

O Artists and priests as you who perform the Yajna (of three kinds) in the offerer's house or the sacrificial hall for the sake of prosperity by inviting great scholars with noble acts, so do I invite such enlightened persons respectfully and perform the Yajna.

PURPORT

Men should acquire knowledge, do good deeds and should perform Yajnas etc. in every house thoughtfully. They should invite scholars to learn knowledge and art sitting at their feet. You should never neglect them on account of laziness. This is the commandment or injunction of God.

In this thirteenth hymn, the way of utillising fire and other divine objects is mentioned, so it has connection with the previous hymn. This hymn has also been wrongly interpreted by Sayanacharya, Wilson and others.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(गृहे) निवासस्थाने यज्ञशालायाम्, कलाकौशलसिद्ध-विमानादिसमूहे वा (स्वाहा) या सत्क्रिया समूहास्ति तया ।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda explains Yajnam (यज्ञम्) as त्रिविधं यज्ञम् consisting of देवपूजा, संगतिकरण दानेषु worship of God and respect to enlightened persons, association and charity. Sayanacharya takes naraashansa Tanoonapat. Swashta Gla, Sarasvati, Mahee, etc. as the names of some Gods and Goddesses which is against the spirit of the Vedic teaching of monotheism. Wilson and Griffith have also committed the same mistake. For instance.

Wilson translating the first Mantra says Agni, bring hither the Gods.

In the translation of the 8th Mantra he says होतारम् invoker of the gods.

In the translation of the ninth Mantra he says—

"May the three undecaying Goddesses, givers of delight, Ila, Saraswati and Mahi. "Griffith's translation is still worse and more objectionable. While wilson puts "gods" in small letters, Griffith has put it in Capital as in the first Mantra "Agni well-kindled, bring the Gods for him etc. In the 2nd Mantra "O Sage, present our sacrifice to the Gods. In the Translation of the fourth mantra, he writes—

"Agni,on thy most easy car, glorified bring the Gods."

In the translation of the 9th, Mantra he writes—

"Ila, Saraswati Mahi, three Goddesses who bring delight, Be seated peaceful, on the grass." It is very unfortunate, that these translators could not grasp the spirit of the Vedic Mantras and misled the public. Rishi Dayananda therefore was right in criticising them.

HYMN XIV.

अस्य द्वादशर्चस्य चतुर्दशसूक्तस्य कण्वो मेधातिथिर्ऋषिः ॥
विश्वे देवा देवताः । गायत्री छन्दः । षड्जः स्वरः ॥

Seer—Kanva Medhatithi, Devata or subject—Vishve Devas, Metre-Gayatri, Tune—Shadja.

Mantra—1

ऐभिरग्ने दुवो गिरो विश्वेभिः सोमपीतये ।
देवेभिर्याहि यक्षि च ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृत)

(१) परमेश्वरपक्षे—

हे अग्ने (जगदीश्वर) त्वम् एभिः विश्वेभिः देवेभिः सह सोमपीतये दुवः गिरः (वेदवाणीः) याहि (प्राप्तो भव) ॥ इति प्रथमोऽर्थः ॥

(२) भौतिकाग्निपक्षे—

यम् अग्निम् एभिः विश्वेभिः देवेभिः सह (समागमेन) सोमपीतये अहं यक्षि (यजानि) । ईश्वरस्य दुवः (परिचर्या) गिरः (वेदवाणीश्च) यक्षि (संगमयामि) इति द्वितीयोऽर्थः ॥

TRANSLATION

(1) O Omnipresent God, come to our Yajna where all things giving happiness to the people are protected with all divine virtues, learned people and articles. The Vedic Mantras are chanted to worship Thee. May they be acceptable to Thee.

(2) I kindle fire in the company of all learned persons and delight-giving articles for the Yajna where all good things producing happiness are protected. I worship God and chant the Vedic Mantras.

PURPORT

There is Shleshalankar or double meaning in this Mantra. Those persons only enjoy happiness and bliss of all kinds, who for the fulfilment of their worldly and spiritual desires use machines made with the combination of the air, water and earth and aeroplanes etc. along with the fire, are engaged in the performance of noble deeds, act according to the commandments of God, study and teach the Vedas and put into practice the Vedic teachings.

TRANSLATION

(1) Omniscient God ! as wise men extol Thee and sing Thee songs of praise, so do we also praise Thee. O wise man ! as thy intellect praises God, so we also glorify Him. O Gracious Lord, come Thou to us with all Divine attributes.

(2) O wise man ! as other wise men tell the properties of the fire, so you should also do. This fire becomes the conveyer of divine attributes and happiness when its properties are properly known. The fire which your intellects praise, can accomplish your many works.

PROPORT

In this universe, when men see the objects created by God, they should say that all thanks are due to that Almighty.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

Both Wilson and Griffith are wrong in taking Kanvas used in the Mantra as a proper noun and saying in the foot-note that "The Kanvas probably denote the descendants or the disciples of the Rishi Kanva, but the Scholiast (Sayanacharya charya) would restrict the term in this place to the sense of sages (Medhavinah) or of officiating priests (Ritvijah).

Griffith translates the first line आ त्वा कण्वा अनूषत as "The Kanvas have invoked thee and says in the foot-note. "The Kanvas—sons or descendents of Kanva, men of same family as the seer of the hymn.

It is wrong because it is opposed to the principles of the Vedic tecninology according to which all nouns are derivatives or yougikas. It is also against the meemansa principle in which it is clearly stated परन्तु श्रुतिसामान्यमात्रम् 1.31 and आख्या प्रवचनात् It is also opposed to the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu where it is clearly stated कण्व इति मेधाविनाम (निघण्टु ३.५)

Even Sayanacharya whom these Western translators generally claim to follows says कण्वाः-मेधाविनऋत्विजः Wilsemen or priests.

Skanda Swami interprets the word Kanvah first as कण्वाः-मेधाविनः कण्व इतिमेधाविनाम मेधाविन ऋत्विजः But it is surpristing that after giving this correct interpretation based upon the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu (3.5) he forgets the principle of the Vedic terminology and says—

अथवा कण्वा इति मेधातिथिरात्मानं प्रति सम्बन्धेनाह । एतस्मिन्नेव चात्मनीदं पुत्रपौत्रापेक्षया वा । मत् प्रभृतयः कण्वपुत्रा इत्यर्थः ॥

This interpretation is un-authentic and misleading as pointed out before. Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is therefore correct, being based upon the authority of the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu 3.5. Unlike these other translators including Skanda Swami, Rishi Dayananda has been consistent through out in pointing out that the Vedas being eternal, can not have any historical references in them.

It is a matter of great surprise and regret that even Kapali Shastri ji—the renowned South Indian Vedic Scholar who was the disciple of Shri Ramana Maharshi and Yogi Shri Aurabindo has committed the same blunder as other translators (except Rishi Dayananda) with regard to the interpretation of Kanvas.

While he has rightly interpreted कण्वाः (Kanvas) as मेधाविनः or wise men in the first place, he has put in the bracket these confounding words out of Orthodox impressions I believe, as as he has generally not followed Sayanacharya and strongly criticised him in some places वयं कण्ववंशजा वा. This seems to be an after-thought which is inconsistent with the principle of the eternity of the Vedas and the meaning given in Vedic Lexicon—Nighantu which has been quoted by me before. Generally Shri Kapali Shastri ji has given derivative meanings of such words and allegorical or metaphorical sense, but unfortunately in this case, though he has correctly given the meaning as given in the Vedic Lexicon-Lexicon-Nighantu 3-5 he has committed the same blunder as Skanda Swami and others in taking Kanvas as proper noun also.

Mantra—3

इन्द्रवायू बृहस्पतिं मित्राग्निं पूषणं भगम् ।
आदित्यान्मारुतं गणम् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे कण्वाः ! भवन्तः क्रियानन्दसिद्धय इन्द्रवायू बृहस्पतिं मित्रम् अग्निं पूषणं भगम् आदित्यान् मारुतं गणम् अहूषत स्पर्द्धध्वं गृणीत ॥

TRANSLATION

O wise men, you should praise or describe the properties of the electricity and air, the sun light, Prana or vital energy, fire, moon, wealth of good empire etc., twelve months of the year and monsoon winds.

PURPORT

Those persons who knowing the attributes of these objects like electricity, air, sun, moon etc. created by God, utilise them properly in their acts, enjoy happiness themselves and make other also happy.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(इन्द्रवायू) इन्द्रश्च वायुश्च विद्युत्पवनौ Electricity and air.

(बृहस्पतिम्) पालनहेतुं सूर्यप्रकाशम् कस्पत्योश्चोर-देवतयोः सुट् तलोपश्च (अष्टा० ६.१.१५७) अनेन वार्तिकेन बृहस्पतिः सिद्धः (पातेर्डतिः) उणा० ४.५८ अनेन पतिशब्दश्च

=The light of the sun. मित्रम् (प्राणम्) = Vital energy

(आदित्यान्) द्वादश मासान् =Twelve months of the year

(मारुतं गणम्) वायु समूहम् =Winds.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted इन्द्र (Indra) here as विद्युत् i. e. Electricity for which there is the authority of यत् अशानिरिन्द्रस्तेन। कौषीतकी ब्राह्मणे ६..३ Ligitning or electricity.

स्तनयित्नुरेवेन्द्रः ॥ (शतपथ ब्रा० १७.३.६.९)

यच्चक्षुः स बृहस्पतिः ॥ (गोपथ ३.४.११)

सूर्यो यथा सर्वलोकस्य चक्षुर्न लिप्यते चाक्षुषैर्बाह्यदोषैः ॥ (कठोपनिषदि ३.१.११)

इति प्रामाण्यात् बृहस्पतिपदेन सूर्यग्रहणम् ॥

Sun is the eye of the Universe. So according to the Gopath Brahman, the sun may be called Brihaspati. Rishi Dayananda has given the derivative meaning as बृहतां (लोकानां वस्तूनां वा) पालन हेतुं सूर्यप्रकाशम्।

=The protector or supporter of vast worlds or articles—sun

(मित्रः) प्राणो मित्रम् (जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्राह्मणे ३.३.६) प्राणोदानौ वै मित्रावरुणौ (शतपथ १.८.३.१२) (शत० ३.२.२.१३)

So the meaning of the word मित्र given by Rishi Dayananda as Prana or vital energy is authemtic and not arbitrary.

प्राणो वै मित्रः ॥ (शत० ८.४.२.६)

Rishi Dayananda has taken मारुतं गणम् as winds for which there is the authority of the Vedic Lexicon-Nighantu मरुत इति पदनामसु पद-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च । Taking the two meanings of गमन movement and Prapti गमनागमन क्रिया प्रापका वायवः the means of going and coming, airs or winds.

Mantra—4

TRANSLATION

God says. As I have made and sustained all these things mentioned in the previous Mantra (Electricity, air, sun, moon etc.) which gladden and exhilirate, are sweet and satisfying, herbs and plants full of sap, giving strength to the soldiers in the army and others, so you should also maintain them, deriving full benefit from of them.

PURPORT

God says"the articles electricity, air etc. which are made by me should be properly utilised according to the Medical science and technology. Those who do so, enjoy all kinds of happiness and bliss, by driving away, all diseases and getting victory by maintaining a strong army and drinking good juice of herbs and fruits etc.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

According to the unadi Kosha 1.12 the word इन्दुः (Indu) is derived from उन्दी क्लेदने उन्देरिच्चादेः (Unadi 1.12) to make wet. Therefore Rishi Dayananda has given the meaning as रसवन्तः सोमाद्योषधि गणाः ।

अथाग्निशब्देनेश्वर उपदिश्यते

TRANSLATION

O God, we possessing all necessary things that are to be taken, given and eaten, desirous of protection, having the habit of adornig all, glorify Thee as wise learned priests do.

PURPORT

O Creator of the world, as Thou hast made and sustained

all articles for the welfare of all beings, therefore, praising Thee, desiring the protection of all, adorning all men with proper education and wisdom, we always exert ourselves.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

वृक्तबर्हिषः has been translated by Rishi Dayananda as ऋत्विजः for this, there is the authority of the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu 3.18 वृक्तबर्हिष इति ऋत्विङ् नाम (निघ० ३.१८) हवींषि has been translated by Rishi Dayananda as दातुम् आदातुम् अत्तुं योग्यानि वस्तूनि The word हवींषि is derived from हु which means दानादनयोः आदाने च i. e. giving, eating and hence the above meaning.

TRANSLATION

O ye learned persons, when utilised methodically and properly, let these articles (mentioned in the fourth Mantra) which have water at their back or support, which are yoked with scientific knowledge, which convey talks, articles and vehicles and which bring up to the Yajna (non-violent sacrifice) fit to be decorated and which enable us to attain divine virtues, enjoyments and seasons for the protection of all articles, be known and used properly by all for the accomplishment of many works.

PURPORT

It is electricity and lightning etc. that take the water away and bring it down in the form of rain. With the help of wire or telegram, electricity takes sound to distant countries. In the same way, other articles become conferers of happiness. This is the command of God.

(२) अग्निपक्षे–अयम् अग्निः सुजिह्वः तान् ऋतावृधः यजत्रान् देवान् करोति (स सम्यक् प्रयुक्तः सन् अस्मान्) पत्नीवतः (सुगृहस्थान्) करोति मध्वः रसं पाययते (तत्पाने हेतुरस्ति) ॥

TRANSLATION

(1) O God, make us good and happy householders with noble wives with the help of those articles like electricity etc. which generate divine things increasing truth and Yanja. O Upholder of all with Thy Divine Power, make us drink the juice of sweet things.

(2) This fire with good tongue in the form of flames makes electricity and other articles which increase water and which are to be united with the machines good and useful, when used properly and methodically in the machines. It makes us happy householders and causes us to take the sweet juice of various things.

PURPORT

Men should do all noble works in the household life with the worship of God, with proper application of fire and by drawing in the sap of herbs and plants etc.

The word can be used for Yajna as it causes happiness and health.

In Nirukta 4.3.5 the word Ritam ऋतम् has been explained as सत्यं वा यज्ञं वा So the meanings of the word Ritam as given by Rishi Dayananda are well authenticated.

Mantra—8

ये यजत्रा य ईड्यास्ते ते पिबन्तु जिह्वया ।

TRANSLATION

Those persons who are objects of veneration and praise-worthy or these objects like electricity air etc. which are to be united with machines and are to be investigated, may drink of the sweet juice after putting oblations in the fire through the Yajna (non-violent sacrifice) with its power or the tongue in the form of its flame.

PURPORT

Men should unite two fold action with every object, first to know its properties and second to accomplish from them some purpose. The things like electricity which take the sap from all gross objects and leave it behind, for their purification, men should put fragrant and other articles in the fire, so that they may bring about the happiness to and welfare of all beings.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES—

(ईड्याः) अध्येषितुं योग्याः = Fit to be praised or investigated

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

यः होता विप्रः विद्वान् सूर्यस्य रोचनात् इह उषर्बुधः विश्वान् देवान् वक्षति (प्राप्नोति) स सर्वाः विद्याः प्राप्य आनन्दी भवति ॥

TRANSLATION

The man who puts oblation in the fire, attains all divine enjoyments manifest in the Dawn from the shining sphere or knowledge of God who is the Spirit behind all animate or inanimate objects.

Having acquired the knowledge of all sciences, he enjoys bliss.

PURPORT

If God would not have made all these objects, how could any man derive benefit from them ? If men are in a sleeping state, they can not attain any object which is to be enjoyed. But they are able to enjoy only when they are awake. Therefore the adjective Usharbudhah has been used. Only a wise man can take proper advantage of all these articles.

TRANSLATION

This Agni (whether visible or invisible) with air when properly used is the cause of much prosperity and with all the places or splendours of the Prana takes sweet juice which gives peace.

PURPORT

This agni in the form of electricity which is present with the air pervading the universe and with the Pranas in the body, takes sap from all articles and gives it back in the form of rain. For this reason, it is the principal means of technology, art and craft.

अथाग्निशब्देनेश्वर उपदिश्यते ।

Now by the term Agni, God is taught in the eleventh Mantra

Mantra—11

त्वं होता मनुर्हितोऽग्ने यज्ञेषु सीदसि ।

TRANSLATION

O most Adorable God, Thou art the Upholder of all thoughtful persons, Giver of all peace and Bliss, and present in all Yajnas (noble and philanthropic activities) Therefore kindly enable us to accomplish this non-violent and indestructible Yajna which is the cause of happiness.

PURPORT

God creates and upholds all men and other beings. He is the most Adorable Supreme Being in all actions, Contemplation (communion) and knowledge. Therefore it is He who as the Performer of this vast Yajna in the form of the Universe, makes us happy.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(होता) सर्वस्य दाता =Giver of all.

(मनुर्हितः) मनुषो मननकर्तारो मनुष्यादयः हिताः धृता येन स =The Upholder of all thoughtful men.

(अध्वरम्) अहिंसनीयं सुखहेतुम् =Industructible Yajna, the cause of happiness.

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has explained the word मनुष् used in the Mantra as a thoughtful person. It is clearly on the basis of the verb मन-अवगमे or बोधे and the authority of the Aitareya Brahman which explaining

अग्निर्होता मनुर्वृतः =says in 2.34
अग्निर्होता मनुर्वृतः अयम् (अग्निः) सर्वतो मनुष्यैर्वृतः ॥

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

So it is clear that the word Manu is used in the Vedic literature for men.

(होता) सर्वस्य दाता Here the word होता has been derived from the root हु-दानादनयोः आदाने च The first meaning of "giving" दान has been taken by the Revered Commentator -Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati.

TRANSLATION

O learned person, harness in the chariot that can travel on earth, in water and in the sky the fleet and bright flames of fire accomplish with their help the divine dealings and enjoyments.

PURPORT

Men should yoke fire and other elements in machines and vehicles and with their help, divine works should be accomplished in this world.

In this fourteenth hymn, the properties of all divine objects have been mentioned and how should they be used in works has been stated, so this hymn has connection with the previous hymn.

This hymn has also been misinterpreted by Sayanacharya, Wilson and other commentators of the West. Here ends the fourteenth hymn and twenty seventh varga of the first Mandala.

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has pointed out at the end of his commentary of this hymn (as before) that it has been mis-interpreted by Sayanacharya, Wilson and others. A few blunders committed by these translators may therefore be pointed out here. We have already pointed out their blunder in taking the word "Kanvah" used in this hymn twice as the name of a particular sage and his descendants instead of taking it for wise men as clearly stated in the Nighantu कण्व इति मेधाविनाम (निघ० ३.१५) The word देवा: in the first and second Mantra has been wrongly translated by Wilson as "gods" while Griffith has done the worse thing in rendering it into English as "Gods." They have of course followed Sayanacharya, but it is wrong on the part of all these translators to do so instead of translating it as (enlightened truthful persons) according to सत्यमया उ देवा: (कौषी० २.८) सत्यसंहिता वै देवा: (ऐतरेय १.६) विद्वांसो हि देवा: ॥ (शतपथ ३. ७. ३. १०) and other passages in the Branmanas.

The translation of देवा as "gods" or "Gods" gives a very erroneous conception of the Vedic Dharma which preaches pure monotheism. Griffith like Prof. Maxmuller wrongly takes Maruts as Gods of the winds or the storms.

अथ पंचदशं सूक्तम्

HYMN XV

अस्य सूक्तस्य कण्वो मेधातिथिर्ऋषिः। ऋतवः, इन्द्रः, मरुतः, त्वष्टा अग्निः, इन्द्रः। मित्रावरुणौ। द्रविणोदाः। अश्विनौ। अग्निश्च देवताः। गायत्री छन्दः। षड्जः स्वरः। तत्र प्रत्यृतुं रसोत्पत्तिर्गमनं च भवतीत्युपदिश्यते।

In every season, there is the drawing of the sap of juice and a particular movement is taught in the first Mantra.

Mantra—1

इन्द्र सोमं पिब ऋतुना त्वा विशन्त्विन्दवः।
मत्सरासस्तदोकसः॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे मनुष्याः यम् इन्द्र ऋतुना सोमं पिब (पिबति) इमे तव ओकसः मत्सरासः इन्दवः (जलरसाः) ऋतुना सह त्वा त्वां तं वा (प्रतिक्षणम्) आ विशन्तु (आविशन्ति)।

TRANSLATION

The sun which is the cause of the division of Time, drinks or draws the juice of the herbs in every season. All these cheering waters settle there among the rays of the sun according to the spring and other seasons.

PURPORT

It is this sun that divides the Time into the year, season, month, fortnight, days and nights and so on as stated by Manu in his Smriti. With these seasons etc. It takes the sap of the herbs from all places and draws the water. They dwell in the sky with the rays of the sun and come and go with the air.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Here in the first Mantra of the hymn Rishi Dayananda has translated इन्द्र as सूर्यलोकः or the Solar World.

For this interpretation, the following among many passages of the same kind may be quoted to substantiate his intrepretation.

इन्द्र इति हि एतमाचक्षते य एष (सूर्यः) तपति।
(शतपथ ४.६.७.११) एष वै शुक्रो य एष (सूर्यः)
तपति एषएवेन्द्रः (शत० ४.५.५.७ ॥ ४-५.९.४) ॥ स
यः स इन्द्रः एषएव स य एष (सूर्यः) एव तपति
(जैमिनीयोपनिषत् उ० १.५.२८.२। १-३२-५)

So it is clear that Rishi Dayananda has not relied upon his own imagination in giving this interpretation, but upon the strong evidence of the Brahmanas-ancient commentaries on the Vedas written by Mahi Das, Yajnavalkya, Jaimini and other Rishis of ancient India.

एषएवेन्द्रः। य एष सूर्यः तपति (शत० १.६.४.१०)

Now the airs draw the articles with seasons and purify them is taught in the 2nd verse.

Mantra—2

मरुतः पिबत ऋतुना पोत्राद्यज्ञं पुनीतन।
यूयं हि ष्ठा सुदानवः ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

इमे मरुतः ऋतुना सर्वान् पिबत (पिबन्ति) ते एव पोत्रात् यज्ञं पुनीतन (पुनन्ति) हि यतः यूयम् एतं सुदानवः स्थ (सन्ति) तस्मात् युक्त्या योजिताः कार्यसाधकाः भवन्ति इति ॥

TRANSLATION

These airs take all the sap of juice of the herbs and the plants etc. They by their purifying properties, purify the Yajna, because they are givers of happiness and health. When utilised properly, they accomplish various acts.

PURPORT

According to seasons, in airs are also attributes which are the causes of various movements of other particles. When fragrant oblations are put into the fire which are full of ghee etc. they purify them and make every one happy.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मरुतः) वायवः मृग्नोरुतिः (उणा० १।९४) इति मृङ्धातोः उतिः प्रत्ययः मरुत इति पदनामसु पठितम् (निघ० ५.५) अनेन गमनागमनक्रिया वायवो गृह्यन्ते (सुदानवः) सुष्ठु दानहेतवः दाभाभ्यां नुः (उणा० ३,११)

To make clear Rishi Dayananda has taken many verbs in changed form. Had he not done so, ordinary men would have been misled. Hence the necessity of changing forms and gender etc. This should always be borne in mind.

अथ ऋतुना सह विद्युत् किंकरोतीत्युपदिश्यते ॥

Now what does electricity do with seasons is taught in the third Mantra—

Mantra—3

अभि यज्ञं गृणीहि नो ग्नावो नेष्टः पिब ऋतुना ।
त्वं हि रत्नधा असि ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

(हे विद्वन्) यतः इयं नेष्टः (नेष्ट्री विद्युत्) ऋतुना सह रसान् पिब (पिबति) रत्नधा असि (अस्ति) सग्नावः ग्नावान् नः इमं यज्ञं गृणीहि - गृणाति (तस्मात्) त्वम् एतया कार्याणि साधय ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned man ! because this electricity purifes all things, takes the sap with seasons and is the upholder of the earth etc. which are meant for proper legitimate enjoyment, so it is praised in our Yajnas or noble philanthropic activities; you should therefore accomplish various works, utilising it properly.

PURPORT

This electricity is the subtle form of fire. It pervades and upholds all the particles or gross forms and disintegrates them. The visible fire is originated from it and dissolves in it at the end.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(ग्नावः) सर्व पदार्थप्राप्तिर्यस्य व्यवहारे ग्ना इति उत्तर पदनामसु पठितम् (निघ० ३.१६)
(नेष्टः) विद्युत् पदार्थशोधकत्वात् पोषकत्वाच्च नेक्ति सर्वान् पदार्थान् इति । (रत्नधाः) रत्नानि रमणार्थानि पृथिव्यादीनि वस्तूनि दधातीति सः ।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted नेष्टः as विद्युत् or electricity. It is derived from णिजिर-शौचपोषणयोः Purification and nourishment. As electricity possesses these properties, it is called as neshtree.

Sayanacharya takes it as the name of Twashta त्वष्टा नेष्टृ शब्दोऽत्रत्वष्टारं देवमाह । कस्मिंश्चिद् देवसत्रे नेष्टृत्वेन त्वष्टुर्वृतत्वात् ॥ which Prof. Wilson translates in his foot-note as "Neshtri is another name of Twastri, from his having assumed, it is said, upon some ocasion, the function of the Neshtri, or priest so denominated, at a sacrifice."

Griffith also gives the same note saying "Neshtri is said to be another name for the God Twashtar from his having on some occasion assumed the function of a Neshtar priest."

All these translators take Neshtar to be the name of some "God" who is addressed here to come with his wife and drink the Soma Juice ग्नाव: has been translated by Sayanacharya as पत्नी युक्त which Wilson translates as "Neshtra, with thy spouse, commend our sacrifice to the gods. etc.

Griffith also commits the same blunder by translating it as "O Neshtar, with thy Dame accept our sacrifice" etc.

So it is not Omnipresent Formless God that they mean by Twashta which is certainly one of the names of God as Creator of the world, but some God with his wife and children in the heaven. What a wrong notion about the Vedic conception of God ?"

अग्निरपि ऋतुयोजको भवतीत्युपदिश्यते ।

Now Agni's (fire's) connection with seasons is taught in the fourth Mantra.

Mantra—4

अग्ने देवाँ इहा वह सादया योनिषु त्रिषु ।
परि भूष पिब ऋतुना ॥
सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

भौतिकः अयम् अग्निः इह ऋतुना त्रिषु योनिषु देवान् दिव्यान् सर्वान् पदार्थान् आवह (समन्तात् प्रापयति) सादय (स्थापयति) परिभूष-सर्वतः भूषति अलंकरोति सर्वेभ्यः रसं पिब-पिबति ॥

TRANSLATION

The fire with seasons in this world causes us to obtain all divine things in three forms of birth, name or place (causes and effects) from all sides. It establishes them and decorates or makes them beautiful by its light and takes their sap.

PURPORT

This fire with its burning nature and light decorates or makes beautiful all things which are above, below and in the middle. It reveals divine enjoyments when used in non-violent sacrifices and arts or crafts.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(योनिषु) युवन्ति मिश्रीभवन्ति येषु कार्येषु कारणेषु तेषु । अत्र वहि श्रिश्रुयुद्रुग्लाहा त्वरिभ्यो नित् (उणा ४.५१) यु-मिश्रणामिश्रणयोरिति धातोर्निप्रत्ययो निच्च (त्रिषु) नामजन्मस्थानेषु त्रिविधेषु लोकेषु उपर्यधोमध्यस्थितेषु ।

ऋतुना सह वायुः किं करोतीत्युपदिश्यते ॥

What does the air do with the seasons is told in the next Mantra—

Mantra—5

ब्राह्मणादिन्द्र राधसः पिबा सोममृतूँरनु ।
तवेद्धि सख्यमस्तृतम् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

यः इन्द्रः (वायुः) ब्राह्मणाद् राधसः अनु ऋतून् सोमं पिबति (गृह्णाति) हि (खलु) तस्य वायोः अस्तृतं सख्यम् अस्ति ॥

TRANSLATION

The air takes the sap of the substances according to the seasons which are means of taking the same from the wealth in the form of the earth etc. made by the Supreme Being un-interrupted or inviolable is the friendship of the air in the form of the Prana or vital energy.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(राधसः) पृथिव्यादिधनात् ।

(ऋतून्) रसाहरणसाधकान् ॥

PURPORT

Men should know the laws which are operating in the air and other elements established by God and they should accomplish their works. By the accomplishment of those works, they should bring about the welfare of all beings in all seasons. It should be borne in mind that when all these substances are used methodically in a proper manner, they become like friends, otherwise they become inimical to us.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

In his commentary on the above Mantra, Rishi Dayananda has taken Indra for Vayu i. e. air or Prana, though he has not cited authorities. The following passages among many others may be quoted to substantiate his interpretation.

अयं वा इन्द्रो योऽयं (वातः) पवते (शतपथ० १४.२.२६) यो वै वायुः स इन्द्रो य इन्द्रः स वायुः ॥ (शत० ४. १. ३.१९) सर्वं वा इदमिन्द्राय स्थानमास यदिदं किंचापि योऽयं (वायुः) पवते ॥ (शत० ३.९.४.१४)

In these passages from Shatapath Brahmana, the meaning of the word Indra as वायु or air is clearly given.

In his commentary Rishi Dayananda while explaining तवेन्द्रं सख्यमस्तृतम् has stated तव-तस्य प्राणरूपस्य so he has taken Indra or Vayu as Prana for which the following passages may be aptly quoted—

ततः प्राणोऽजायत स प्राणः इन्द्रः (शत० १४.४.३.१९) प्राण एवेन्द्रः (शत० १२.९.१.१४) प्राण इन्द्रः ॥ (शत० ६.१.२.२८)

Besides the above interpretation of the Mantra regarding Vayu or air, the following spiritual (Adhyatmik) interpretation may also be given taking Indra for soul. "O my soul ! drink the spiritual juice (of devotion) which is the gift of God, in all seasons, following the wise. Thy friendship with God is invincible and inviolable."

(ऋतून्) विदुषः ऋतवो वै देवाः (शत० ७.२.४.६)

The word Ritu in this spiritual interpretation may be taken for the wise enlightened persons.

इदानीं वायुविशेषौ प्राणोदानौ ऋतुना सह किं कुरुत इत्युपदिश्यते ।

What do Prana and Udana (The vital airs) do with seasons is taught in the 6th Mantra—

Mantra—6

युवं दक्षं धृतव्रत मित्रावरुण दूळभम् ।
ऋतुना यज्ञमाशाथे ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृत)
युवम् (इमौ) धृतव्रतौ मित्रावरुणौ ऋतुना दूळभम् दक्षं यज्ञम् आशाथे (व्याप्तवन्तौ स्तः) ॥

TRANSLATION

These two (Prana and Udana) which are upholders of strength, pervade this mighty Yajna (of the bodily functions) with every season.

PURPORT

The Prana is the friend of all which has its movement outwards and Udana is strengthening, moving inwards. The whole Yajna in the form of this universe is pervaded by these two, so that all works are accomplished.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted मित्रावरुणौ as प्राणोदानौ for which the following authorities may be quoted—

प्राणोदानौ वै मित्रावरुणौ (शतपथ० १.८.३.१२ ॥ ३.६.१.१६ ॥ ५.३.५.३४ ॥ ९.५.१.५६) प्राणोदानौ मित्रावरुणौ (शत० ३.२.२.१३) प्राणो मित्रम् ॥ तैत्तिरीयोपनिषद्ब्राह्मणे ३.३.६ ॥

Thus it is clear that Rishi Dayananda's interpretation of मित्रावरुणौ is well authenticated and it is not his own imagination.

पुनरीश्वरभौतिकगुणा उपदिश्येते ।

Again the attributes of God and fire are taught in the seventh Mantra—

Mantra—7

द्रविणोदा द्रविणसो ग्रावहस्तासो अध्वरे ।
यज्ञेषु देवमीळते ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः

यः द्रविणोदाः देवः (परमेश्वरः भौतिकः वा अस्ति) यं देवं ग्रावहस्तासः द्रविणासः ऋत्विजः अध्वरेषु (यज्ञेषु) ईळते (पूजयन्ति अध्येष्य योजयन्ति वा) तम् उपास्य उपयुज्य एव मनुष्याः सदा आनन्दिताः भवन्ति ॥

TRANSLATION

(1) The priests desirous of wealth (spiritual) with hymns of praise and Soma pressing stones in their hands worship in non-violent sacrifices God Who is the Giver of wealth and strength. They enjoy bliss by worshipping Him.

(2) Persons desirous of acquiring wealth (material) with instruments of arts and crafts in their hands search after and yoke fire in sacrifices and practical works. They enjoy happiness by utilising it properly.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

(द्रविणोदाः) द्रविणांसि विद्याबलराज्यधनानि ददातीति सः परमेश्वरो भौतिको वा । द्रविणमिति बलनामसु पठितम् (निघ० २.९) द्रविणोदा इति पदनामसु पठितम् (निघ० ५.२) द्रविणं करोति द्रविणाति अस्मात् सर्व-

By द्रविणोदा (Dravinoda) is primarily meant God Who is Giver of all wealth (wisdom, strength, kingdom etc.). Secondarily by Dravinoda are meant Agni (Fire) and other articles which are means of various applications of scientific knowledge.

(द्रविणानि) द्रूयन्ते प्राप्यन्ते यानि तानि द्रविणानि ।

Wealth of all kinds (spiritual and secular) that is obtained by people.

= Praisers of God, those with pressing stones etc. in their hands for the Yajna or artistic works.

(यज्ञेषु) अग्निहोत्राद्यश्वमेधान्तेषु शिल्पविद्यामयेषु ना

Then the commentator has given extensive quotations from the Nirukta 8.1-2 to show what is meant by Dravinoda and what are the views of some ancient Acharyas. Some take the word for Indra and others for Agni (fire). Rishi Dayananda after giving these quotations says that the word should be interpreted according to the context. In this Mantra he takes it for (1) God and (2) for fire as has been given above in English translation.

PURPORT

There is Shleshalankar or double entendre in this Mantra. All men should worship God in all Yajnas of knowledge, action and contemplation. In homa (sacrifice) and artistic works, fire should be properly used.

स एव सर्वेषां पदार्थानां प्रदातेत्युपदिश्यते ।

He (God) is the Giver of all things is taught in the 8th Mantra.

Mantra—8

द्रविणोदा ददातु नो वसूनि यानि शृण्विरे ।

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

TRANSLATION

(1) May God the Giver of all wealth and strength give us good riches to be got from knowledge and good and vast Government that are renowned everywhere in divine works, Governments and aeroplanes etc. accomplished with the science of art.

(2) May fire give us wealth of various kinds when properly utilised.

PURPORT

All things created by God in this world give happiness only when they are properly utilised by the wise and learned persons.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(वसूनि) विद्याचक्रवर्तिराज्यप्राप्याण्युत्तमानि धनानि ।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

वन-संभक्तौ

यज्ञकर्तृणामृतुषु कर्तव्यान्युपदिश्यन्ते ॥

The duties of the performers of yajnas in seasons are taught in the ninth Mantra

Mantra—9

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

TRANSLATION

O men, as a charitable (giver of wealth in charity) performer of Yajnas desires to drink the Soma Juice in non-violent sacrifices, in the same way, you should also perform those Yajnas for the sake of knowledge. Having done so, according to the seasons, be established in various kinds of happiness and desire to know that science.

PURPORT

Men should imitate only Good actions and not bad. In all seasons only proper actions should be performend. One should go and stay where it is suitable and proper and one should properly eat and drink and dress according to the place where he dwells. Men should enjoy happiness constantly by acting according to these directions.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(द्रविणोदाः) यज्ञानुष्ठाता मनुष्यः धनदाता-उदारइत्यर्थः (नेष्ट्रात्) विज्ञानहेतोः अत्र नेष्टृ-गतौ इत्यस्मात् सर्वधातुभ्यःष्ट्रन् (उणा. ४. १६३) इति बाहुलकात् ष्ट्रन् प्रत्ययः । (जुहोत) दत्त आदत्त वा (इष्यत) विजानीत ।

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

जुहोत is from हु-दानादनयोः to give and take.

इष्यत is from इष-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च having taken the first of these three meanings, Rishi Dayananda has translated it as विजानीत or know.

पुनः मत्यृतुमीश्वरध्यानमुपदिश्यते ॥

Then again the contemplation on God is taught in the tenth mantra

Mantra—10

यत्त्वा तुरीयमृतुभिर्द्रविणोदो यजामहे ।

TRANSLATION

O God Giver of self-purifying wealth be bountiful to us all who adore Thee in all seasons, who art the fourth among the causes gross, subtle, causal and Absolute or Ultimate cause the Supreme Being.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(तुरीयम्) चतुर्णां स्थूल सूक्ष्मकारणपरमकारणानां संख्या पूरकम् अत्र चतुरश्छयतावाद्यक्षरलोपश्च इति वार्तिकेनास्य सिद्धिः

The fourth among the causes known as gross, subtle, causal and ultimate.

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda in his commentary on the term अश्विनौ (Ashvinau) has given the meaning as सूर्याचन्द्रमसौ The sun and the moon, though he has not quoted any authority. But such authorities from the Nirukta can certainly be quoted to substantiate the meaning given by him. For instances, it is stated in the Nirukta 12.1

तत्कावश्विनौ । द्यावापृथिव्यावित्येके । अहोरात्रावित्येके । सूर्याचन्द्रमसावित्येके । अश्विनौ यद् व्यश्नुवाते सर्वं रसेनान्यो ज्योतिषान्यः । इत्यादि । (निरुक्ते १२.१)

Here it is clear that Yaskacharya the author of the Nirukta who is considered to be as authority, has given several meanings of the word अश्विनौ as the sun and the moon etc. So the meaning given by him as सूर्याचन्द्रमसौ The sun and the moon is not his own imagination but well-authenticated. In his Bhavartha or purport, he has referred to other pairs also besides the sun and the moon by which the earth and the sky, day and night, Prana and apana etc. may be taken.

पुनरपि भौतिकाग्निगुणा उपदिश्यन्ते ।

PURPORT

God is fourth as He is distinct from the Universe of three kinds namely gross, fine or subtle and causal. None should worship anyone else but God who is Omnipresent Innermost Spirit, Support of all and Adorable. None should be worshipped or adored in His place. There is none except God Who gives the fruits of actions done by the souls.

पुनः सूर्याचन्द्रमसोर्ऋतुयोगे गुणा उच्यन्ते ।

Now the attributes of the sun and the moon in conjunction with different seasons are taught in the eleventh Mantra.

Mantra—11

अश्विना पिबतं मधु दीद्यग्नी शुचिव्रता ।
ऋतुना यज्ञवाहसा ॥

(हे विद्वांसः) यूयं यौ शुचिव्रता यज्ञवाहसा दीद्यग्नी अश्विनौ मधु पिबतं पिबत ऋतुना—ऋतुभिः सह (रसान् गमयत तौ विजानीत) ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned persons, you should know the sun and the moon, whose acts are pure, which are bright with flames and rays, which cause us attain the oblations put in the Yajnas (non-violent sacrifices) and which drink the sweet sap with seasons.

PURPORT

God says, the pairs like the sun and the moon which I have made for the accomplishment of various works, cause the attainment of happiness in all seasons and acquisition of perfection in dealings.

The properties of the material fire, are taught in the twelfth mantra.

Mantra—12

गार्हपत्येन सन्त्य ऋतुना यज्ञनीरसि ।
देवान्देवयते यज ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

यः सन्त्यः अग्निः गार्हपत्येन ऋतुना सह यज्ञनीः असि (भवति) स देवयज्ञे । यज (यजति-संगमयति) ॥

TRANSLATION

The fire which is useful for various domestic and other works and is the main cause in the performance of Yajnas, enables an artist to unify divine dealings.

PURPORT

The fire when used methodically and properly by the learned in all seasons, causes the accomplishment of divine enjoyments.

This hymn is connected with the fourteenth hymn as the same subject is continued by stating the function of Vishvadevas (all divine or useful objects and learned persons).

This hymn has also been misinterpreted by Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and others.

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

The main blunder committed by Sayanacharya, Wilson

Griffith and other translators is regarding the nature of God and the devas. Following Sayanacharya, both Wilson and Griffith take Indra, Maruts, Neshtri, Agni, Mitra, Varuna, Dravinodas, Ashvinau as Gods sitting some where in heaven, which is a very wrong conception. They take Maruts, as the Storm Gods, while as Rishi Dayananda has taken them to be winds or brave soldiers.

In the translation of the fourth mantra अग्ने देवाँ इहावह Griffith says "Bring the Gods, Agni. In the translation of the 8th Mantra देवेषु ता वनामहे Griffith says — "These things fain bring among the Gods. In 10th Mantra "Worship the Gods for pious man." (M.10). While as devas should be translated not as Gods but truthful enlightened persons, as सत्यमया उ देवाः (कौषीतकी ब्रा० २.८) सत्यसंहिता वै देवाः (ऐतरेय १.६) विद्वांसो हि देवाः (शत० ३. ७. ३. १०) । and other passages of the Brahmanas clearly prove. Here ends the translation with notes and comments of the fifteenth hymn or 29th varga of the first Mandala of the Rigveda Sanhita.

TRANSLATION

It is the bright and dark fortnight in this world that bring to us the sun and its bright and water-producing rays in a a chariot (so to speak) that gives pleasure.

PURPORT

It is through the day and the night, bright and dark fortnight and Dakshinaayana and Uttaraayana—the progress of the sun to the south and the north of the equator) (which are all denoted by the general term Haree that the sun enables us to perform all delight—giving duties.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES—

(हरी) हरति याभ्यां तौ। कृष्णशुक्लपक्षौ वा पूर्वपक्षापरपक्षौ वा इन्द्रस्य हरी ताभ्यां हीदं सर्वं हरति (षड्विंश ब्राह्मणे प्रपा० १ खण्ड १)।

The bright and dark fortnights (इन्द्रम्) सूर्यलोकम्=Solar world.

(रथे) रमयति येन तस्मिन् हनि कुषिनी रमि काशिभ्यः क्थन् (उणादि० २.२) इतिक्थन् प्रत्ययः।

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

For the meaning of हरी as bright and dark fortnights etc.

Rishi Dayananda has given clear quotation from the Shadvinsha Brahmana of the Sama (Tandya) Maha Brahmana. The other meanings are, what is called in Sanskrit as उपलक्षण (Upalakshana) similar object where only one is mentioned, known in English (according to Apte's Dictionary as Synecdoche or a part for the whole).

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted Indra here as the sun or solar system.

For this, there are clear passages in ancient Vedic Literature. For instance, in the jaimineeyopanishad Brahmana 1.44.5 it is stated—

युक्ता ह्यस्य (इन्द्रस्य) हरयः शतादशेति सहस्रं हैत आदित्यस्य रश्मयः ॥ (जैमिनीयोपनिषद्ब्राह्मणे १.४४.५)

So it is clear that by Indra is here meant the Sun.
In the Shatapath Brahmana G. C. 7—11 it is stated

इन्द्र इति ह्येतमाचक्षते य एष (सूर्यः) तपति शतपथ० ४. ६. ७. ११)

In Shatapath 3.5.3.2. it is states—

अथ यः स इन्द्रः असौ स आदित्यः (शत० ८.५.३.२)

i. e. Indra is the Sun.

So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is well-authenticated.

The word रथ (Ratha) used in the Mantra has been translated as Chariot as is usually done. But here it is not to be taken literally but metaphorically, for the root meaning is merely that which gives delight, so we may say, it stands for anything beautiful or charming as the sun certainly is.

The word धाना has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda as धीयन्ते धारता दीप्तयः । धाप्लवग्य ज्यतिभ्यो नः ॥ (उणादि ३.६) इति नः

So it stands here for the brightness or bright rays of the sun.

अथेन्द्रशब्देन त्रयोऽर्था उपदिश्यन्ते ।

Now by the term Indra, three substances are taught. (God, Agni in the form of electricity) and the prana or Vital breath.

Mantra—3

इन्द्रं प्रातर्हवामह इन्द्रं प्रयत्यध्वरे ।
इन्द्रं सोमस्य पीतये ॥

सन्धिच्छेदपूर्वकोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

(१) वयं प्रातः प्रतिदिनमिन्द्रं परमैश्वर्यप्रदातारमीश्वरं प्रयत्यध्वरे हवामहे ॥

(२) वयं प्रयत्यध्वरे प्रातः प्रतिदिनम् इन्द्रं विद्युदाख्यमग्निं हवामहे ॥

(३) वयं प्रयत्यध्वरे सोमस्य पीतये प्रातः प्रतिदिनम् इन्द्रं वायुं हवामहे ॥

TRANSLATION

(1) Every day in the morning, we invoke or remember God Who is the Giver of great wealth during the inner non-violent sacrifice of the communion or contemplation which gives us true knowledge for drinking the juice of peace.

(2) Every day in the morning, we invoke the fire in the form of electricity in the non-violent sacrifice of art and industry for drinking the juice of various articles.

(3) Every day in the morning, we invoke in the non-violent sacrifice the inner and the outer form of Vayu or air, inner being in the form of Prana or vital breath for taking the sap of various substances.

PURPORT

Men should contemplate on God or adore Him every day and should according to His injunctions (contained in the Vedas). They should yoke Agni (fire in the form of electicity etc.) in every Yajna (philanthropic activity). They should enjoy all things properly acquiring the knowledge of the science of Prana or Vital energy.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

प्रथमचरणे (इन्द्रम्) परमेश्वरम् = God

तृतीयचरणे (इन्द्रम्) बाह्याभ्यन्तरस्थं वायुम्–प्राणरूपं वायुं च (प्रयति) प्रेति-प्रकृष्टं ज्ञानं ददातीति

= Prana and air

प्रयत् तस्मिन् इण्-गतावित्यस्मात् शतृप्रत्ययः

(सोमस्य) सूयते सर्वेभ्यः पदार्थेभ्यो रसस्तस्य

TRANSLATOR'S NATES AND COMMENTS

This is one of the most important Mantras showing the significance or distinguishing feature of Rishi Dayananda's commentary. Sayanacharya, Skanda Swami, Venkat Madhava all have given only one meaning for the word Indra used here. Skanda Swami the earliest commentator of them explains Indra as इदि परमैश्वर्ये सुष्ठु ईश्वरम् प्रयति प्रवृत्ते Sayanacharya simply says— प्रातः कर्मारम्भे प्रातः सव इन्द्रं हवामहे आह्वयामः तथैवाध्वरे सामयागे प्रयति-प्रगच्छति वर्तमाने सति मध्यन्दिनसवने तमिन्द्रं हवामहे। तथा यज्ञस्य समाप्त्य-वसरे तृतीयसवने सोमस्य पीतये सोमपानार्थं हवामहे ॥

Prof. Wilson following Sayanacharya translates—

"We invoke Indra in the morning rite, we invoke him at the succeeding sacrifice, we invoke Indra to drink the juice.

GRIFFITH'S TRANSLATION IS

"Indra at early morn we call, Indra in course of sacrifice, Indra to drink the juice."

But Rishi Dayananda gives three different meanings of the word Indra as (1) God, the Lord and Giver of great wealth (2) Agni or fire particularly in the form of electricity (3) Prana—vital breath and air Vayu.

For the meaning of Indra as electricity the following passages may be quoted from the Brahmanas.

यदशनिरिन्द्रस्तेन (कौषीतकी ब्राह्मणे ६. ९)

i. e. Electricity is Indra (kaushi. Bra. 6.9).

In the Shatapath Brahmana 11.6.3-9 it is stated

स्तनयित्नुरेवेन्द्रः (शत० ११. ६. ३. ९)

i.e. Lightning or electricity is called Indra. So Rishi Dayananda's meaning is well-authenticated and is not his own imagination. As for the meaning of the word Indra as Prana or Vayu, it is to be remembered that in Shatapath Brahmana 6.1.2-28 it is stated प्राण इन्द्रः (शत० ६. १. २. २८) i. e. Indra is Prana In the Shatapath 14.2.2-6 it is stated as we have already quoted अयं वा इन्द्रोयोऽयंवातःपवते (शत० १४. २. २. ६) Indra is air.

In Shatapath Brahmana 4.1.3.19 it it is stated

यो वै वायुः स इन्द्रः य इन्द्रः स वायुः (शत० ४. १. ३. १९)

i. e. Indra is called Vayu (air) and air is called Indra The two are synonymous terms. So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is not only wonderful showing the fertility of his brain, but it is well-authenticated from ancient Vedic literature, as shown above.

अथेन्द्रशब्देन वायुगुणा उपदिश्यन्ते ।

Now by the term Indra, the attributes or properties of Vayu (air) are taught in the fourth Mantra.

Mantra—4

उप नः सुतमा गहि हरिभिरिन्द्र केशिभिः ।

सुते हि त्वा हवामहे ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हि (यतः) अयम् इन्द्रः (वायुः) केशिभिः सह नः (अस्माकम्) सुतम् उपागहि (उपागच्छति) तस्मात् त्वा (तं) सुते वयं हवामहे ॥

TRANSLATION

Because the Yayu (air) comes to the articles prepared by us with the speedy rays of the fire, electricity and sun, therefore we take it in our activities connected with non-violent sacrifice, arts and crafts etc.

PURPORT

The substances particularly the fire, electricity and the sun that are to be used by us in arts and crafts etc. shine, come and go with the help of the air.

THE COMMENTATORS NOTES

TRANSLATION

This Indra (Sun) comes with his rays to our Yajna (non-violent sacrifice) where hymns of praise to God are uttered and to our practical workshops etc, where wealth is acquired like a thirsty stag to a tank. He drinks the sap of the herbs, plants etc

PURPORT

There is Upamalankar or simile used in this Mantra. As thirsty stags and other beasts and birds come running to a tank or river and drink water there, so this sun with his rays drinks the sap of these herbs and plants etc. Men should utilise the sun or his rays for the accomplishment of knowledge and various purposes.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सवनम्) सुवन्ति ऐश्वर्यं प्राप्नुवन्ति येन तत् क्रिया-काण्डम् ॥

(गौरः) गौरगुणविशिष्टो मृगः ॥

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has used व्यत्ययः (change of case and person etc.) just to avoid misunderstanding, otherwise there was not much need to do so for intelligent persons. In almost 90 percent cases, the Vyatyaya (change of case and person etc.) mentioned by him in his commentary, to which much exception is taken by some critics is of the same kind.

For instance, he could translate this Mantra even in the case of the sun as—

हे इन्द्र (सूर्य) अस्माकम् इमं स्तोमं सवनं तृषितो गौरः मृगः इव उपागहि इदं सुतम् उत्पन्नमोषधिरसं पिब ॥

As according to the general rule given in the Nirukta Daivata Kanda अचेतनान्यपि चेतनवत् स्तूयन्ते ॥ i. e. even inanimate objects are praised or addressed like animate objects as poets very often do. But he has preferred to resort to Vyatyaya (or change of case, person etc., according to व्यत्ययो बहुलम् , so that there may not be any misunderstanding in the minds of less intelligent persons that the sun is considered as a living being. This point should be clearly understood by all scholars.

We have already quoted authorities from the Brahmanas and other ancient literature to show that by Indra, the sun is meant in many Mantras.

अथ वायुः कस्मै कस्मिन् कान् पिबतीत्युपदिश्यते ॥

The properties of the air are described in the sixth Mantra

Mantrn—6

इमे सोमा॑स॒ इन्द॑वः सु॒तासो॒ अधि॑ ब॒र्हिषि॑ ।

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

TRANSLATION

The air takes every moment the sap of various substances created by God under the sky.

PURPORT

The air upholds all the gross or subtle substances created by God in this world for increasing the strength of creatures, remaining with them. It is by its conjunction that the living beings get strength

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(बर्हिषि) बृहन्ति वर्धन्ते सर्वे पदार्था यस्मिन्नन्तरिक्षे तस्मिन् बृहेर्नलोपश्च (उणा० २.१०९) अनेन इसि प्रत्ययो नकारलोपश्च ॥

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Though Rishi Dayananda has not quoted Nighantu here, it is clear to show the meaning—

बर्हिः बर्हिरित्यन्तरिक्षनाम (निघ० १.३)

Mantra—7

अयं ते स्तोमो अग्रियो हृदिस्पृगस्तु शन्तमः।

TRANSLATION

Men should behave like the air that drinks the sap of all things and then whose glory is excellent and which touches the heart, is the giver of happiness and peace.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(स्तोमः) गुणप्रकाशसमूहक्रियः ॥

(सोमम्) सर्वपदार्थाभिषवम् ॥

PURPORT

Men should know that this excellent air when purified is the source of great happiness.

The same subject is continued.

Mantra—8

TRANSLATION

This Vayu which is the destroyer of the clouds comes to all non-violent sacrifices for giving happiness and bliss.

PURPORT

The air gives happiness to all beings pervading the universe with its going and being speedy and destroyer of clouds. Without it, it is not possible for any one to do worldly functions or duties.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

Now by Indra the attributes of God are taught.

Mantra—9

(स्तुवेम) स त्वं गोभिः अश्वैः (नः) अस्माकं कामम् आपृण (समन्तात् पूरय)।

TRANSLATION

Do Thou O God of infinite knowledge and action fulfil our noble desire which is being expressed with the Vedic Mantras and with all sincerity. Fill us with the cows, senses, land, the light of wisdom and with the fire and horses etc. With holy thoughts absorbed in Thee or profoundly meditating, we glorify Thee.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(गोभिः) इन्द्रियपृथिवीविद्याप्रकाशपशुभिः

(शतक्रतो) शतम् असंख्यातानि क्रतवः कर्माणि अनन्ता-प्रज्ञा वा यस्य तत्सम्बुद्धौ

सर्वकामप्रदेश्वर = Fulfiller of all desires.

PURPORT

It is through His power that God fulfils the desires of all industrious and righteous persons according to their actions. Because God gives happiness to all beings by creating all good things and by upholding them, therefore He alone is to be adored by all and none else. In this sixteenth hymn, there is the mention of the sun and air etc. which make seasons, therefore it is connected with the previous hymn.

This hymn also has been wrongly explained by Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and others.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

We have already pointed out some blunders committed by Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and Griffith in our notes.

Their fundamental mistake is in taking the word Indra, not for God or the sun or the air, but for some legendary God sitting some where in heaven,to whom these prayers are addressed to drink the Some Juice etc. As a matter of fact, by Indra is meant God who is the Lord of the whole universe or in some places, the sun and the air as pointed out by Rishi Dayananda. We have quoted passages from the Brahmanas and other literature to substantiate his interpretation.

TRANSLATION

I desiring homa (Sacrifice) and art, crave protection from the shining Indra and Varuna (sun and moon). They give us delight in our activities like that got from the happiness of a good and vast kingdom.

PURPORT

We should be like the shining sun and moon which are benefactors of the world causing happiness to us in all worldly activities and are protectors like a vast empire.

THE COMMEMTATOR'S NOTES

(इन्द्रावरुणयोः) इन्द्रश्च वरुणश्चैतयोः सूर्याचन्द्रमसोः इन्द्र इति पदनामसु पठितम् (निघ० ५.४)

वरुण इति पदनामसु पठितम् (निघ० ५.४) अनेन व्यवहारप्रापकौ गृह्येते (ईदृशे) चन्द्रवर्तिराज्यसुखस्वरूपे व्यवहारे ।

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted इन्द्रावरुणौ as the sun and the moon and has given the authority of the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu to show that as they lead to the proper activities of life, they are called. इन्द्रावरुणौ पद-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः– ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च ।

Here the third meaning of प्राप्ति has been taken. Besides the above according to the Aitareya Brahmana and Shatapath 13.3.6.5 रात्रिर्वैवरुणः and वारुणी रात्रिः — Taittiriya Brahmana 10-10-1 the night is connected with वरुण, so Varuna stands for the moon which is the lord of the night.

अथेन्द्रवरुणाभ्यां सह संप्रयुक्ता अग्निजलगुणा उपदिश्यन्ते ।

Now the properties of the fire and water are taught in the 2nd Mantra.

TRANSLATION

These fire and water when used properly help a wise man like me to accomplish the non-violent sacrifice and artistic activities, They are guardians of mankind when yoked in sactifice and machines. Therefore I utilise them for the accomplishment of various activities.

PURPORT

When men use the fire and water in machines, in a methodical proper manner, they become the means of the speedy motion of the conveyances (like the Railways) and by carrying men and articles, become the sources of happiness to all.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

In his commentasy on this Mantra, Rishi Dayananda has taken इन्द्रावरुणौ in the sense of fire and water for which the following authorities may be cited.

अथ यत्रैतत् प्रदीप्तो भवति उच्चैर्धूमः परमया जूत्या बल्बलीति तर्हि एष एवाग्निर्भवतीन्द्रः ॥

(शत० २. ३. २. ११)

Here bright well-kindled fire has been called Indra. In Taittiriya Brahmana 1.6.5.6 वरुण has been associated with the water.

अप्सु वै वरुणः (तैत्ति० १.६.५.६) (विप्रस्य) विप्र इति मेधाविनाम (निघ० ३.१५) = Of a wise man.

There is clear reference to the Vehicles like the modern Railways or Steam Engines which with the proper use of fire and water and with the force of steam, carry men and goods put therein to distant places.

एवं साधितावेतौ किं हेतुकौ भवत इत्युपदिश्यते

When utilised like this, what purpose do they (fire and water) serve is taught in the 3rd Mantra.

Mantra—3

TRANSLATION

May we be sharers of the noble speech and actions of wise persons, sharers of the benevolence of you (preachers) who give knowledge, strength and food bounteously. Let us therefore utilise them (fire and water) properly.

PURPORT

Men should give up laziness, perform good deeds, and have association with learned persons, so that ignorance and poverty may be rooted out.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

= Of the givers of knowledge or food of preachers.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The word युवाकु is derived from the root यु-मिश्रणामिश्रणयोः. Here it is taken in the first sense of mixing or sharing. The word is derived from वज-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च So the meaning of knowledge has been taken by Rishi Dayananda in his commentary. In the Vedic Lexicon-Nighantu two more meanings of the word वाज are given as वाज इति (अन्ननाम निघ० २. ७)=Food. वाज इति बलनाम (निघ० १.९) =Strength. Hence we have pointed out these two meanings besides knowledge.

TRANSLATION

Indra (fire, electricity or sun) is a giver among the givers of thousand kinds of wealth. Varuna (Water air or moon) is to be praised among those that deserve laudation. With their help, much can be accomplished.

PURPORT

Among all the objects like the earth etc. which are the means of the gift of food and other things, fire, electricity and sun (which are all denoted by the common term Indra) are very prominent. Similarly the water, air and moon (all denoted by the common term Varuna) are praiseworthy on account of their attributes. If they are used in actions with knowledge, they accomplish various purposes. This should be known to all.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

We have already shown on the authority of the Brahmanas and other ancient literature how the word Indra denotes fire, electricity and sun as stated by Rishi Dayananda in his commentary.

In Shatapatha 2.3.2.11 it is clearly stated

अथ यत्रैतत् प्रदीप्तो भवति। उच्चैर्धूमः परमया जूत्या बल्वलीति तर्हि हैष (अग्निः) भातीन्द्रः॥

So bright fire is called Agni.

In Shatapath 4.1.3.19 it is stated.

यो वैः वायुः स इन्द्रः य इन्द्रः स वायुः (शत० ४.१.३.१९)

So it is clear that Vayu (air) is denoted by the word Indra.

In the Jaimineeyopanishad Brahmana 1.44.5 while explaining the Mantra regarding Indra युक्ताह्यस्य हरयः शतादश सहस्र हैते आदित्यस्यरश्मयः (इन्द्रः—आदित्यः) So it is clear that the word Indra stands here for the sun.

In the Shatapath 4.5.5.7 also it is stated:—

एष वै शुक्लो य एष (सूर्यः) उ एवेन्द्रः (शत० ४. ५. ५. ७)

Here the shining sun has been called Indra. So it is evident that Rishi Dayananda's interpretation of Indra is well-authenticated and it is not the result of his own imagination, as some critics think. The same is the case with Varuna which Rishi Dayananda has taken here for water, air or moon. For the meaning of the Varuna as water, we have already quoted from the Taittiriya Brahmana 1.6.5.6 अप्सु वै वरुणः (तैति० १. ६. ५. ६) For air in various forms besides वरुण इति पदनाम (निघ० ५. ४) यः प्राणः स वरुणः (ऐत० ४. १० ताण्ड्य ब्रा० २५. १०. १०) may be quoted where by varuna, Prana (vital air) has been taken. For the meaning of moon also, we have quoted रात्रिर्वरुणः ऐत० ४.१०) and वारुणी रात्रिः (तैत्ति० १. ७. १०. १) We may therefore take moon as the lord of the night here.

पुनस्ताभ्यां मनुष्यैः किं कर्तव्यमित्युपदिश्यते

What other things should be done with them (Indra and Varuna) is taught in the seventh Mantra).

Mantra—6

TRANSLATION

Through the knowledge of Indra and Varuna as explained above, may we gain great store of wealth and enjoy much happiness, and heap up that wealth, enough still to spare be ours for proper utilisation.

PURPORT

Men should acquire much wealth by the proper use of fire, water, air, electricity etc. and by saving and increasing it, should spend it properly to bring about the welfare of all in the State.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अवसा) विज्ञानेन तदुपकारकरणेन वा

By the knowledge and utilisation—

(सनेम) सुखानि भजेम = Enjoy happiness.

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Among the various meanings of the root अव the meaning of अवगम or knowledge has been taken here by the revered commentator.

(सनेम)–षण–संभक्तौ = We enjoy

कीदृशाय धनायेत्युपदिश्यते

For what kind of wealth should we try is taught in the 7th Mantra.

Mantra—7

TRANSLATION

I take the above Indra and Varuna (fire and water etc.) for wonderful wealth in the form of good Govt. army, children, sons, friends, gold, jewel, elephants, horses etc. which leads to happiness. They make us well victorious when used properly.

PURPORT

Those persons who properly utilise Indra and Varuna (fire and water etc.) in their works, having acquired manifold wealth and victory, enjoy happiness and make others also happy.

पुनस्ताभ्यां किं भवतीत्युपदिश्यते ॥

What is the result of their doing is taught in the 8th Mantra.

Mantra—8

TRANSLATION

I invoke or utilise Indra and Varuna (air and water) which quickly bestow happiness upon us, for the accomplishment of various works.

PURPORT

Those persons can enjoy perfect happiness and bestow it upon others, who with their intellects full of knowledge and industry, use air and water in all activities connected with arts and crafts.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(इन्द्रावरुणा) वायुजले =air and water.

(सिषासन्तीषु) सनितुं संभक्तुम् इच्छन्तीषु जनसनखन (अष्टा० ६.४.४२) अनेनानुनासिकस्याकारादेशः (शर्म) सर्वदुःखरहितं सुखम् शृणाति हिनस्ति दुःखानि यत्तत् ॥

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

For the meaning of the word Indra Varuna as air and water, we have already quoted passages from the Brahmanas which should be referred to again.

षण-संभक्तौ शृ-हिंसायाम् ॥

Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is based upon the meaning of these roots.

एतयोर्यथायोग्यगुणस्तवनं कर्तव्यमित्युपदिश्यते ॥

These two Indra and Varuna (air and water) should be properly described with their properties is taught in the 9th Mantra.

Mantra—9

प्र वामश्नोतु सुष्टुतिरिन्द्रावरुण यां हुवे ।

यामृधाथे सधस्तुतिम् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

अहं यथा अत्र इयं सुष्टुतिः प्राश्नोतु (प्रकृष्टतयाव्याप्नोतु)

तथा हुवे वां (यौ) इन्द्रावरुणौ यां सधस्तुतिम् ऋध्याथे (वर्धयतः) तां च अहं हुवे ॥

TRANSLATION

May this genuine praise of the properties of Indra and Varuna (air and water, fire and sun etc. as explained before) pervade which I perform. This conjoint praise they increase.

PURPORT

Men should know exactly the properties or attributes of every object with deliberation and then should derive benefit from them.

This hymn is connected with the sixteenth hymn, as the same subject has been continued. This hymn has also been wrongly translated by Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and others.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(ऋधाथे) वर्धयतः

(सधस्तुतिम्) स्तुत्या सह वर्तते ताम् । अत्र वर्णव्यत्ययेन हकारस्य धकारः ॥

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

ऋधाथे is from ऋधु-वृद्धौ Therefore Rishi Dayananda has translated it as वर्धयतः or increase. The chief mistake of Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and Griffith is in thinking that Indra, and Varuna are some Gods dwelling in heaven.

Prof. Wilson's note in this connection is specially objectionable as he says—

Samrajna—or the two emperors, but Raja is, in general, equivocally used, meaning shining, bright, as well as royal. Indra may claim the title of Raja, as Chief of the Gods, but it seems to be in a more especial manner appropriated to Varuna."

Griffith's note is "Indra the Hero and Varuna the King are addressed conjointly as a dual deity Indra Varunah.

As misguided by Sayanacharya, un-fortunately these western translators have not been able to understand that these words Indra, Varuna mean no mythological Gods but from spiritual, social and cosmic points of view they denote several things as has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati on the basis of the Brahmanas (the ancient commentaries on the Vedas) and other Vedic literature which we have quoted in our notes. They certainly substantiate Rishi Dayananda's interpretation which contains many scientific truths.

TRANSLATION

O Lord of knowledge, make me who am the son of learned person ever dwelling in light, the performer of the Yajna (non-violent sacrifices) to the teacher of the real relation between a word and its meaning and an artist well-versed in various arts and crafts.

PURPORT

Only a person who is born of light of knowledge can be a teacher well-versed in the science of arts. God is also kind to such a person. Sayanacharya has interpreted it wrongly as he laboured under the delusion that there is some historical reference in this Mantra. Yaskacharya the author of Nirukta has interpreted it correctly on the above given lines.

THE 3OMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सोमानम्) यः सवति ऐश्वर्यं करोतीति तं यज्ञानुष्ठातारम्॥

= The performer of Yajnas

(स्वरणम्) यः स्वरति शब्दार्थ सम्बन्धान् उपदिशति तम्।

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

Sayanacharya and following him Prof. Wilson and Griffith have translated the Mantra wrongly taking Kaksheevaan to be the name of a particular Rishi who was the son of Ushik. Sayanacharya interprets it as follows.

हे ब्रह्मणस्पते एतन्नामक देव (सोमानम्) अभिषवस्य कर्तारम् (स्वरणम्) देवेषु प्रकाशवन्तम् (कृणुहि) कुरु तत्र दृष्टान्तः (कक्षीवन्तम्) एतन्नामकम् ऋषिम् । इव शब्दोऽत्राध्याहर्तव्यः । कक्षीवान् यथा देवेषु प्रसिद्धस्तद्वदित्यर्थः । यः कक्षीवान् ऋषिः (औशिजः) पुत्रः तम् इवेति पूर्वत्र योजना ॥ (सायणभाष्ये तिलक संस्थान संस्करणे पृ० १४७) ।

Here Sayanacharya has taken Kakshivan as a proper noun-the name of a particular Rishi and he takes him to be the son of a Rishi called Ushnik. All this is against the principle of the eternity of the Vedas which Sayanacharya has so strongly enunciated in his introdution to the commentary of the Rigveda on the basis of the Meenansa aphorisms अनित्यदर्शनाच्च, परन्तु श्रुति सामान्य मात्रम् । आख्या प्रवचनात् — (मीमांसा १-३१, ३३) and so on.

Prof. Willson simply follows Sayanacharya and translates the Mantra—

"Brahmanaspati, make the offerer of the libation illustrious among the Gods, like Kakshivat, the son of Usnik. In his notes, he narrates the whole story of Kakshivan on the basis of the Matsys and Vaju Puranas which are most un-authentic. To our great surprise, Skanda Swami also who has clearly stated in his commentary on the Nirukta that

औपचारिको मन्त्रेष्वाख्यानसमयः ।
परमार्थेषु नित्यपक्ष इति सिद्धम् ॥
(निरुक्त भाष्ये २.७८)

i. e. The stories that are sometimes found in the Vedas are allegorical or symbolical. As a matter of fact, the Vedas being eternal there can not be historical references in them is the real principle.

Sayanacharya takes कक्षीवान् and उष्णिक् (Kaksheevan and Ushik) as proper nouns and says—

(सोमानम्) सोमस्य अभिषोतारम् (स्वरणम्) स्वृ-शब्दोपतापयोः शब्दयितारम् अर्चयितारं च कस्य सामर्थ्यात् स्तुतीनाम् ॥ यष्टारं स्तोतारं। (कृणुहि) कुरु मां धनप्रदानेन अथवा सर्वत्र यः शब्दयते स्वरणः—प्रकाशः इत्यर्थः। अभिषोतारं मां स्वरणं देवमनुष्येषु प्रकाशं कुरु। हे ब्रह्मणस्पते कमिव। उच्यन्ते कक्षीवन्तम् लुप्तोपममेतद् द्रष्टव्यम्। कक्षीवन्तमिव ऋषिम्। कतमोऽयं कक्षीवान्। उच्यते यः औशिजः उशिक्पुत्रः॥

Venkata Madhava also in his brief translation says the same thing—

सोमानं प्रकाशयन्तं कुरु मां ब्रह्मणस्पते। कक्षीवन्तं यथा कृतवानसि। यः कक्षीवान् उशिक्प्रसूतः। स्वरति शब्दकर्मेति॥

Is it not surprising that these great Acharyas have contradicted their own statement about the eternity of the Vedas and then impossibility of any historical references in them and in this Mantra, where there is no word denoting that it is a simile or illustration, they impose supply इव (like) from their own pocket and try to explain it on that basis.

Shri Kapali Shastri, a great Yogi and disciple of Shri Aravinda has rightly remarked referring to the interpretation of Sayanacharya इव शब्दाध्याहारो नावश्यकः, तं विनापि तात्पर्यसिद्धेः। i. e. it is not at all necessary to put is as implication the word इव or like, because it can very well be explained without that. Then quoting from Yaskacharya's Nirukta regarding the meaning of कक्षीवान् औशिजः कक्ष्यावान् औशिजः उशिजः पुत्रः। उशिग् वष्टेः कान्ति कर्मणः

Shri Kapali Shastri says—

तर्हि उशिक् कान्तिमत् तेजो वा भवति तस्य अपत्यं तैजसः कक्षीवान् रहस्यवान् परमदैवतरहस्यसम्पन्न इति व्याख्यं कक्षशब्दस्य गमनार्थे गोप्यार्थे वा प्रसिद्धेः। योऽहम् औशिजः-कान्तिजन्मातैजसः ते सोमानं सोतारं कक्षीवन्तं परम रहस्यविज्ञं मां स्वरणं प्रकाशनवन्तं देवेषु प्रख्यातं कुरु ब्रह्मणस्पते—इत्युपपन्नतरम् ॥

(कपालिशास्त्रिकृतेसिद्धाञ्जनभाष्ये प्रथम खण्ड पृ० २१३)

Here rejecting historical interpretation, the great Yogi Scholar Shri Kapali Shastri explains the word कक्षीवान् in the sense of great knower of the secret of the Vedas and औशिजः as born of light. Though this spiritual interpretation, is a bit different from Rishi Dayananda's commentary, it is certainly akin to it and is on the same lines.

पुनः स कीदृश इत्युपदिश्यते

How is that God is taught in the next Mantra.

Mantra—2

TRANSLATION

May God Who is the Lord of infinite wealth of knowledge etc. Who is the Destroyer of all diseases like ignorance and physical maladies, who increases the power of body and soul, Who knoweth all things. Who promptly giveth happiness, endow us with the wealth of wisdom and of other kinds.

PURPORT

Those persons who obey the command of God consisting of truth and other virtues, getting rid of ignorance and other diseases, possessing physical and spiritual strength, achieve wealth in the form of vast empire etc. and medicines that ward off all diseases.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अमीवहा) अविद्यादिरोगाणां हन्ता
= Destroyer of the ignorance and other diseases.

(वसुवित्) यो वसूनि सर्वाणि वस्तूनि वेत्ति सः
= knower of all things.

(वसूनि) सर्वाणि वसूनि वस-निवासे इति धातोः अथवा वस आच्छादने शृ स्वृ स्निहि त्रप्यसि वसिहनि क्लिदि वन्धि मनिभ्यश्च (उणादि १.१०) इति उ प्रत्ययः वस्ते-आच्छादयति दुःखं येन तद्वसु धनं वा ।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

According to the above etymology of the word वसु all things which remove misery may be called वसूनि as interpreted by Rishi Dayananda.

अथेश्वरप्रार्थनोपदिश्यते

Now prayer to God is taught.

Mantra—3

TRANSLATION

O Lord of the Vedic Knowledge and the world, protect us from a miserly ignoble fellow, so that there may not be a wicked person among us. By Thy grace, let not a mortal's on-slaught fall on us. Let not our praise be put to an end to or the calumnious censure of a malevolent person reach us.

PURPORT

None should ever keep company with a wicked person, nor should one resort to violence unjustly, but all should protect all with justice.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अररुषः) अदातुः रा-दाने इत्यस्मात् कसुस्ततः षष्ठ्येक-वचनम् = of a miserly person.

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

इन्द्रः ब्रह्मणस्पतिः सोमः च यं मर्त्यं हिनोति स वीरः न च रिष्यति (नघविनश्यति) ॥

TRANSLATION

The héroic person whom God—the Lord of the world, air or sun and the Juice of Soma and other plants or creepers protect, never perishes.

PURPORT

Those persons who accomplish their work having learnt the properties of the air, electricity, sun, Soma and other creepers do not lose happiness. There is no end to their happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(इन्द्रः) वायुः = Air

(ब्रह्मणस्पतिः) ब्रह्माण्डस्य पतिः-पालयिता परमेश्वरः

(रिष्यति) नश्यति

= God the Protector of the world

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

For the meaning of the word Indra as air, we have already quoted from the Shatapath 14.2.2.6. अयं वा इन्द्रो योऽयं (वात:) पवते ॥ i. e. The air is called Indra. यो वै वायु: स इन्द्रो य इन्द्रः स वायु: (शत० ४. १. ३. ६)

These passages do not leave the least shadow of doubt on the mind of an impartial person that by Indra is also meant air.

रिष्यति (Rishyati) is from रिष - हिंसायाम् perishes.

कथं ते रक्षका भवन्तीत्युपदिश्यते । How do they protect is taught in the next Mantra.

Mantra—5

त्वं तं ब्रह्मणस्पते सोम इन्द्रश्च मर्त्यम् ।
दक्षिणा पात्वंहसः ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे ब्रह्मणस्पते त्वम् अंहसः यं पासि तं मर्त्यं सोमः इन्द्रः दक्षिणा च पातु (पाति) ।

TRANSLATION

O Lord of the world, the performer of the Yajnas or noble deeds, whom thou protectest from sin is also protected or saved by the medicines or drugs like the Soma etc. and the virtues that lead a man to progress such as charity, gift to the learned priests etc.

PURPORT

Those persons who keeping themselves away from sin, desire to increase their happiness, should meditate upon God and properly use air, the medicinal juice and noble virtues that lead to progress.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(दक्षिणा) दक्षते वर्धन्ते यया सा = sacrificial gift

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

(दक्षिणा) Yaskacharya explains the word in Nirukta 1.7 as दक्षिणा दक्षतेः समर्द्धयति कर्मणोव्यृद्धं समर्द्धयतीति वा That which increases or encourages—that is why the present or gift to the priests is called Dakshina.

In the Dhatu Path we find दक्ष-वृद्धौ (भ्वा) = To prosper and increase.

So Yaskacharya's meaning tallies with the meaning in Dhatu Path.

Yaskacharya's etymology of Dakshina seems to be based upon the following and other passages from the Brahmanas—

तं यज्ञं देवा दक्षिणाभिरदक्षयन् तद्यदेनं दक्षिणाभिरदक्षयन् तस्माद् दक्षिणानाम (शत० २.२.२.२.)

In Kaushikaki Brahmana 15.1. also we find a similar passage.

तद् यद् दक्षिणाभिर्यज्ञं दक्षयति तस्माद् दक्षिणानाम

(कौषीतकी ब्रा० १५-१)

By giving Dakshina or gift to the priests, the performer of the Yajna discharges his duty by showing respect to the priests in a practical form and encourages them to help in the performance of these Yajnas.

अथेन्द्रशब्देन परमेश्वर गुणा उपदिश्यन्ते ।

Now the attributes of God are taught in the sixth Mantra.

Mantra—6

सदसस्पतिमद्भुतं प्रियमिन्द्रस्य काम्यम् ।
सनिं मेधामयासिषम् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

अहम् इन्द्रस्य काम्यं सनिं प्रियम् अद्भुतं सदसस्पतिं परमेश्वरम् उपास्य (सभाध्यक्षं प्राप्य) मेधाम् अयासिषम् (बुद्धिं प्राप्नुयाम्) ।

TRANSLATION

May I attain pure wisdom by meditating upon the wondrous Lord of the world, the Lovely Friend of the soul, the giver of the fruit of good and bad actions and by associating myself with the learned President of the assembly.

PURPORT

Those persons only enjoy happiness who meditate upon God the Omnipotent Lord of all and giver of all Bliss and who associate with the President of the assembly, a man of the best merits and temperament. They get intellect which is full of the knowledge of all Shastras and their practical shape. Having become industrious and learned, they become delighted.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सदसः पतिम्) सीदन्ति विद्वांसो धार्मिका न्यायाधीशाः यस्मिन् तत्सद् सभा तस्य स्वामिनम् अत्राधिकरणेऽसुन् ।

President of this Assembly in which just persons sit

(प्रियम्) प्रीणातिसर्वान् प्राणिनः तम्

(सनिम्) पापपुण्यानां विभागेन फलप्रदातारम् ।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The word सदः (Sadah) is used for assembly as interpreted by Rishi Dayananda. It can also be used for the world taking it metaphorically as an assembly.

The word सनिम् may be also taken as adjective of मेधाम् in in which case it may mean "I crave for pure wisdom which discriminates between right and wrong, be tween merit and sin etc. षणु-संभक्तौ This Mantra clearly shows the difference between God and soul. God is the Lovely Friend of the soul.

स एव सर्वं जगद् रचयतीत्युपदिश्यते ।

God creates the whole world is taught in the seventh Mantra.

Mantra—7

यस्मादृते न सिध्यति यज्ञो विपश्चितश्चन ।

स धीनां योगमिन्वति ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

(हे मनुष्याः) यस्मात् विपश्चितः (सर्वशक्तिमतः जगदीश्वरात्) ऋते यज्ञः च न सिध्यति स सर्वप्राणिमनुष्याणां धीनां योगम् इन्वति ॥

TRANSLATION

God who is Omnipotent and Omniscient and with out whom this world can never be accomplished, pervades and knows the association of intellects and actions.

PURPORT

There is eternal relation between God who pervades and the world which is pervaded by Him. It is He who gives the fruit of the actions of all beings, having made and upheld the world and having known the movement of the intellects of all.

The world can never come into existence without the Direction of God, because inanimate objects can not have consciousness and consequently there can not be any law and order without the existence and Direction of the Omniscient Supreme Being.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(विपश्चितः) अनन्तविद्यात् (परमेश्वरात्)

(यज्ञः) संगतः संसारः = Universe.

(इन्दति) व्याप्नोति जानाति च। इन्दतीति व्याप्तिकर्मसु पठितम् (निघ० २.१८) गतिकर्मसु च (निघ० २.१४)।

Pervades and knows.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted यज्ञ: here as संगतः संसारः Universe from यज-देवपूजासंगतिकरणदानेषु।

The second meaning of the root Yaj has been taken here. It may also be interpreted as Yajna or sacrifice in the form of the Universe.

विपश्चित् इति मेधाविनामसु (निघ० ३.१५)

Hence Rishi Dayananda has interpreted विपश्चित् here as the wisest or Omniscient God. Others have simply interpreted it as the Yajna even of a wise man.

पुनः कीदृशः स इत्युच्यते।

What sort of Yajna is that is taught in the 8th Mantra.

Mantra—8

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

(सर्वज्ञः सदस्पतिः देवः अयम्) प्राञ्चंहविष्कृतिम् अध्वरम्

होत्राणि (हवनानि) आदृध्नोति स पुनः देवेषु (दिव्य गुणेषु) गच्छति ॥

TRANSLATION

Omniscient Lord performs this Yajna in the form of the universe, where external sacrifices are performed and which is attained by all, being visible. He makes all the articles of the sacrifice which are put in the fire-oblations. He promotes the course of this wonderful sacrifice (in the form of the world) and is attained by the persons possessing Divine (noble) virtues.

PURPORT

Because God creates this world, therefore all substances prosper by mutual association. These substances when utilised properly in various works and in the science of arts and industries lead to great happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(प्रांचम्) यः प्रकृष्टम् अंचति प्राप्नोति सः

= Prosparus yajna in the form of the universe

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

In this Mantra, the Universe has been conceived as a Vast Yajna of which God is the performer. It is He Who promotes the course of this sacrifice.

TRANSLATION

As a man sees the light of the sun, so I (a wise devotee) see God who is to be glorified by all men, who is the Resolute upholder of the world and who is present with the vast heavens being all-pervading, in whom all this Universe (which is like a Yajna), dwells. You (ordinary persons) should also try to realise God in the same way.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankar (simile) used in the Mantra. As an ordinary man sees the light of the sun pervading on all sides, in the same manner, he attains grand happiness and joy by seeing omnipresent God who possesses the light of knowledge on all sides.

This hymn is connected with the previous hymn as by the mention of Brihaspati etc. the same subject is continued. This hymn also has been misinterpreted by Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and others.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(नराशंसम्) नरैः अवश्यं स्तोतव्यम्—नरैः प्रशस्यो भवतीति नराशंसः (निरुक्ते १०८.८.६)

TRANSLATION

The fire in the form of electricity which comes with the winds, is invoked or used by the learned scientists to the fair yajna (of various works of art) for the protection of the earth and senses etc.

PURPORT

The fire in the form of electricity is kindled by the particular airs. The scientists should give instructions to all to utilise it intelligently for the accomplishment of various works with the knowledge of its properties in order to protect all. The students must hear about it from the learned.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(गोपीथाय) पृथिवीन्द्रियादीनां रक्षणाय

निशीथगोपीथावगथाः (उणादि २.९) इति निपातितः (मरुद्भिः) वायु विशेषैः सह

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

There is also a spiritual meaning of this mantra (though not paritcularly mentioned by the revered commentator). But as he himself has taken the word Agni for God also in the next few mantras, the meaning given here is in accordance with his principle that there are spiritual and external meanings of all the Vedic Mantras (as mentioned by him in the introduction to the Aryaabhivinaya).

O God our Supreme Leader, Thou art invoked by us for the noble sacrifice in the form of our life. Manifest Thyself through the knowledge, acquired with the help of the wise and the practice of Pranayama etc.

In this case, the spiritual meanings of the words used in the Mantras are as follows—

अध्वरम्—हिंसारहितं जीवनरूपं यज्ञम् अध्वरो वै यज्ञः (शतपथ १.२.३.३८)।
अध्वर इति यज्ञनाम ध्वरति हिंसाकर्मा तत्प्रतिषेधः (निरुक्त १.७)।

मरुतः—मरुत इति ऋत्विङ्नाम (निघ० ३.१८) अथवा प्राणा वै मरुतः। (शत० ९.३.१.७)

अथाग्निशब्देनेश्वरभौतिकगुणा उपदिश्यन्ते

Now by the term Agni, both God and fire are described.

Mantra—2

नहि देवो न मर्त्यो महस्तव क्रतुं परः ।
मरुद्भिरग्न आ गहि ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

ईश्वरपक्षे (१) हे अग्ने । त्वं कृपया मरुद्भिः सह आगहि विज्ञातो भव । यस्य तव परः महोमहिमा अस्ति तं क्रतुं (तवकर्म) सम्पूर्णम् इयत्तया नहि कश्चित् देवः न च मनुष्यः वेतुम् अर्हति इत्येकः । भौतिकाग्निपक्षे (२) यस्यभौतिकाग्नेः परः महः महिमा क्रतुं कर्म प्रज्ञां वा प्रापयति यं न देवः न मर्त्यः गुणेयत्तया परिच्छेतुम् अर्हति सः अग्निः मरुद्भिः सह आगहि (समन्तात् प्राप्नोति) इति द्वितीयः ॥

TRANSLATION

(1) Omniscient God, Kindly come to us (be known to us) through deep contemplation and practice of Pranayama. Thy glory is great. Neither an enlightened wise person nor an ordinary mortal can comprehend Thy knowledge of action.

(2) The material fire which leads one to great glorious life, can not be perfectly known by either a wise enlightened person or an ordinary person.

PURPORT

God's glory is infinite. No one can attain its end. But one can know it according to one's intellect and knowledge in the State of deep concentration and the practice of Pranayama etc. Men know it only to the extent that the glory is manifest in nature and told in the Vedas. It is not possible to know it perfectly.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(देवाः) विद्वान् = A learned person.

(मर्त्यः) अविद्वान् मनुष्यः = Ignorant person.

(अग्ने) = Omniscient God or fire.

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

(देवाः) सत्यसंहिता वै देवाः (ऐतरेय १.६)

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

(१) ये अद्रुहः विश्वे देवासः (विद्वांसः) मरुद्भिः अग्निना च संयुगे महः रजसः विदुः (ते एव सुखिनः स्युः) ।

(२) हे अग्ने यः त्वं मरुद्भिः सह आगहि (विदितः भवसि) तेन त्वया यः अग्निः निर्मितः स मरुद्भिः एव कार्यार्थम् आगच्छति (प्राप्तः भवति) ।

TRANSLATION

(1) The enlightened persons only, devoid of malignity who know the great worlds along with fire and airs, enjoy happiness.

(2) O Self-effulgent God, Thou art realised with the help of the Maruts (Pranas) and hast created fire. This fire becomes of great use along with air.

PURPORT

Those learned wise people. who knowing these worlds illumined by the fire and upheld by the air, use them for various works, get happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(रजसः) लोकान् रजतेः लोका रजांस्युच्यन्ते इतियास्काचार्यो निरुक्ते ४.१.९ (मरुद्भिः) वायुभिः

(अग्ने) स्वयं प्रकाश परमेश्वर सर्वप्रकाशकोऽग्निर्वा। (देवासः) विद्वांसः

= O Self effulgent God or fire which illuminatest all. For the meaning of देवासः as learned persons see our note on the 2nd Mantra. विद्वांसोहि देवाः (शत० ३.७.३.१०)

It is very wrong on the part of Griffith to translate the word विश्वे देवासः as "All Gods." Unfortunately, he has not been able to understand the fundamental teaching of the Vedas regarding the worship of one God or is prejudiced against the Vedas. In any case, his translation is un-reliable and misleading.

TRANSLATION

With the winds which are terrible and un-surpassed in strength and which manifest the sun— (the Agni fire or electricity) comes i. e. is helpful in the accomplishment of various works.

PURPORT

Whatever energy is there in the Universe is the result of the combination of air (gas) and electricity. These winds or gases are the upholders of the world. It is with their association that electricity and sun etc. are sustained. Therefore many works are accomplished by the knowledge and utilisation of the air in its various forms.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अर्कम्) सूर्यादिलोकम् (मरुद्भिः) वायुभिः

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted अर्कम् as सूर्यादिलोकम् Solar and other worlds. That the word अर्क is used for the sun is clear from the Shatapath Br. where it is clearly stated—

आदित्यो वा अर्कः (शतपथ ब्राह्मणे १०.६.२.६)

स एष एवार्को य एष सूर्यः तपति (शत० १०.४.१.२२)

In the Taittiriya Brahmana 1.1.7.2 also it is stated—

अर्कश्चक्षुस्तदसौ सूर्यः ॥ i. e. By Arka is meant the sun—the eye of the world so to speak.

पुनस्ते कीदृशा इत्युपदिश्यते

Mantra—5

ये घोरवर्पसः रिशादसः सुक्षत्रासः (वायवः) सन्ति तैः मरुद्भिः सह अग्ने (अग्निः) आगहि (कार्याणि प्रापयति)॥

TRANSLATION

Agni (fire) accomplishes works with the help of those Maruts (airs or winds) which are brilliant on account of their attributes, which are fierce in their form, devourers of diseases, rulers of the middle regions or mighty.

PURPORT

Airs when purified through the Yajna destroy all diseases and when they are impure, destroy all happiness. Therefore men should enjoy happiness and health by purifying the air with the help of the fire (of the Yajna).

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मरुद्भिः) प्राप्तिहेतुभिः मरुत इति पदनामसु पठितम् (निघ० ५.५)।
अनेनात्र प्राप्त्यर्थो गृह्यते ।
(सुक्षत्रासः) शोभनंक्षत्रम् अन्तरिक्षस्थं राज्यं येषां ते ।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted क्षत्रम् as राज्यं or reign. This interpretation is substantiated by Aitareya Brahman 7-22 क्षत्रं हि राष्ट्रम् (ऐत० ७. २२)

It means that the word Kshatra means Rashtra or Government

Here ends the thirty sixth Varga.

The same subject is continued—

Mantra—6

TRANSLATION

The worlds like the earth and moon depend upon or are illuminated by the brilliant sun. The fire leads to much happiness with the help of the airs.

PURPORT

All worlds are illuminated by the light of God, but the worlds like the earth and the moon are illuminated by the sun. The fire with its divine properties should be utilised in all actions.

TRANSLATION

Agni (fire in the form of electricity or lightning) comes with those winds which scatter the clouds and agitate the middle region or the sea (both waves).

PURPORT

It is with the combination of the air that it rains and water and particles go up and then come down. It is on account of them, that electricity is produced and used for various purposes.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(ईङ्खयन्ति) छेदयन्ति, निपातयन्ति

(पर्वतान्) मेघान् पर्वत इति मेघनामसु (निघ० १.१०)

(समुद्रम्) सम्यक् उद्द्रवन्ति आपः यस्मिन् तत् अन्तरिक्षम् समुद्र इत्यन्तरिक्षनाम (निघ० १.३)

(अर्णवम्) पृथिवीस्थं सागरम् = The sea.

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

ईंखयन्ति-ईखि-गतौ प्रेरणार्थकः Hence used in the sense of scattering. अर्णवम् has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda as पृथिवीस्थं सागरम् or the sea. In the Nighantu 1.12 it is stated अर्णः इति उदकनामसु पठितम् = Arna is the name of the water. So the word अर्णः full of water is used for the sea.

TRANSLATION

The fire comes with the subtle airs named Dhananjaya which with their force spread themselves in the middle region, agitate the ocean and with the rays of the sun, extend their scope.

PURPORT

With the association of the gases, all articles grow and become full of force. Therefore men should accomplish various purposes with the combination of the fire and air.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

I prepare the sweet juice of various substances for great enjoyment of happiness and bliss with the gases by whose association, the fire accomplishes many works of arts.

PURPORT

Men should accomplish their various works through the combination of the air, fire, water etc. as learned scientists do.

In this hymn, the subject of the previous hymns is continued, so it has connection with them. In this Chapter, agni (fire) has been mentioned at the end as associate of the air, etc. to show its end.

This hymn has also been misinterpreted by Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and others.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(पूर्वपीतये) पूर्वं पीतिः-पानं सुखभोगो यस्मिन तस्मा आनन्दाय

(मधु) मन्यन्ते प्राप्नुवन्ति सुखानि येन तत् मधुरं सुख-कारकम् ।

The word मधु (Madhu) is derived from मनु-ज्ञाने फलि पाहि नमिमनिजनां गुक् पटिनाकि धतश्च (उणादि० १.१८) by this aphorism of the Unadi Kosha ध is added and उ from the seventh aphorism of the first chapter. Here ends the first Chapter of the first Ashtaka of the Rigveda. Here ends the thirty seventh Varga. We have already pointed out some mistakes of Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and Griffith. Their Chief mistake is that they take मरुतः mentioned in the hymn as the Gods of storm, instead of taking them for winds and they consider Agni to be the God of fire, instead of taking it for the Supreme Being or in some Mantras, for fire as explained by Rishi Dayananda.

They have misinterpreted देवासः taking them to be some Gods in the sky whose glory is sung in the hymn and to whom prayers are addressed. This is a very wrong notion, which we have pointed out several times before. Rishi Dayananda takes these words like Agni (fire) मरुतः winds etc. in their natural sense and shows how their scientific application can accomplish many wonderful works of arts, crafts, and industries.

TRANSLATION

Those wise persons who with their scientific knowledge and with their words, make subtle the attributes of movement and maintenance and for the attaiment of prosperity, perform various Yajnas in the form of industrious works, enjoy happiness and prosper.

PURPORT

Only those learned people attain prosperity, who with the combination and division of various substances knowing the attributes of upholding, attraction and speed, perform the Yajnas consisting of technical works with the movement of machines and clubs etc.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The word Indra is derived from इदि-परमैश्वर्ये hence the meaning of इन्द्राय as ऐश्वर्यप्राप्तये for the attainment of prosperity. The word मन: is derived from मन-ज्ञाने hence the meaning of मनसा as with knowledge (here in the context as scientific knowledge).

(हरी) दु:खहरणशीलौ गमनधारणगुणौ, हृञ्-हरणे

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

परिज्मानम् This word which has been used in the above mantra as the adjective of रथम् and is derived from परि-अज-गतौ means according to Rishi Dayananda as परितः सर्वतोऽजन्ति मार्गं येन = going on all sides. Even the translation of Prof. Wilson and Griffith conveys the idea of its going everywhere, which is very significant.

Prof. Wilson's of सुखंरथम् is a 'universally moving' and easy car.' Griffith's translation is 'They (Ribhus) wrought a light car moving everywhere.' These translations thus corroborate Rishi Dayananda's interpretation. Such a रथ can not be an ordinary chariot, so the Rishi rightly takes it to mean विमानादियानसमूहम् i. e. Aeroplane and the like.

पुनस्ते कीदृशा इत्युपदिश्यते

TRANSLATION

Ribhus (wise scientists and artisans) who are endowed with rectitude (or are honest), whose ideas are perfectly true, apply the fire and water which protect body and soul and which have the property of uniting and dissecting, for the accomplishment of works again and again.

PURPORT

Only those persons who are not lazy, are seekers after truth and honest, can derive proper benefit from the fire. water and other elements.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(युवाना) मित्रामित्रगुणस्वभावौ अत्र उभयत्र सुपां सुलुगित्याकारादेशः ॥

(पितरा) शरीरात्मपालनहेतू ।

Protectors of body and soul.

(विष्टी) व्यापनशीलौ अश्विनौ (जलाग्नी) ।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The word युवाना has been derived from यु-मिश्रणामिश्रणयो: Hence the meaning given by the Commentator as मिश्रामिश्रगुण-स्वभावौ पितरौ is derived from पा-रक्षणे-पालने, अश्विनौ इति पदनामसु (निघ० ५. ६) पद—गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः-ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च

So it can very well be used for the fire and water as they lead us to material happiness by their combination in various forms (Steam engines—Railways, Steamers etc.)

TRANSLATION

When learned persons see with their own eyes the pleasing and new accomplished work of an artist scholar which confers happiness on all, they make it again fourfold by accomplishing works of art made with the earth, water, fire and air.

PURPORT

Men can easily accomplish works of art by associating themselves with (or sitting at the feet of) an expert artist, having observed his work minutely.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(चमसम्) चमन्ति भुंजते सुखानि येन तं व्यवहारम् ।
= The dealing or the work which confers happiness.

(चतुरा) चतुर्विधानि भूजलाग्निवायुभिः सिद्धानि शिल्पकर्माणि ।
= The works of art made with the help of the earth, water, fire and air.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Sayanacharya commenting on the Mantra says—

त्वष्टुः तक्षणव्यापारकुशलस्य त्वष्टुः शिष्या ऋभवः तेन निर्मितं तम् चमसं पुनरपि चतुरः अर्कत ॥

Which Wilson translates as—

"The Ribhus have divided into four the new ladle, the work of the divine Twashtri.

Griffith also translates in the same way. "The sacrificial ladle wrought newly by the God Twashta's hand.

Four ladles have Ye made thereof."

There is no sense in it, while as Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is very significant denoting that when an expert artisan makes some articles, his disciples should try to multiply it by the proper application of the earth, water, fire and air. This is the method of technical progress. The word त्वष्टा has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda as शिल्पी an artist or artisan. It is derived from त्वक्षू-तनूकरणे So the meaning given by Rishi Dayananda is denoted by the root. Sayanacharya also indicates this root-meaning saying तक्षण-व्यापारकुशलस्य त्वष्टुः = Expert in carpentry etc. देवस्य has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda as विदुषः for which there is clear authority in the Shatapath Brahmana विद्वांसो हि देवाः (शतपथ० ३. ७. ३. १०)

एवं साधितैरेतैः किं फलं जायत इत्युपदिश्यते ।

•When these (earth, water, fire and air) are properly used, what is the result is taught in the 9th Mantra.

ये (मेधाविनः) सुशस्तिभिः साप्तानि एकम् एकं कर्म कृत्वा सुखानि सुन्वते ते नः (अस्मभ्यं) रत्नानि धत्तन ॥

TRANSLATION

May those wise men who with their admirable actions enjoy happiness in body, speech and mind by discharging the duties of Brahma Charis, householders, hermits (Banaprasthas) and Sanyasis (renunciates) along with the respect shown to the enlightened, association, and charity doing them one by one, vouchsafe us gems in the form of wisdom and gold etc.

PURPORT

All men should discharge the duties of the Ashramas (Stages of life) namely Brahmacharya, Grihastha, Banaprastha and Sanyasa along with the respect for the wise, association with noble persons and charity to the needy and deserving. All this should be done with body, speech and mind. Those who thus discharge their duties, make others happy with their association and teachings by giving them wisdom and wealth. But these actions should be completed one by one and then others should be taken up with peace and labour.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(रत्नानि) विद्यासुवर्णादीनि ।

(साप्तानि) सप्तवर्गाज्जातानि ब्रह्मचारिगृहस्थवानप्रस्थ-संन्यासिनां यानि विशिष्टानि कर्माणि पूर्वोक्तस्य यज्ञानुष्ठानं विद्वत्सत्कारसंगतिकरणे दानम् अर्थात् सर्वोपकाराय विद्यादानम् इति सप्त ॥

Seven consisting of the duties of the Brahmacharis, Grihasthas (householders) Banaprasthas (hermits) and Sanyasis (renunciates) along with the performance of Yajna including respect shown to the wise, association and donation particularly of the knowledge.

(सुशस्तिभिः) शोभनाः शस्तयः यासां क्रियाणां तानि।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

While Sayanacharya and following him Wilson and Griffith take रत्नानि to mean only material things रमणीयानि सुवर्णमणिमुक्तादीनि i. e. Gold, gem, pearls, many precious things (Wilson) rich treasures. (Griffith)

Rishi Dayananda includes विद्या wisdom or knowledge also with the Gold and other material possessions. That shows his broad outlook and vision.

By Sapta they take only agnyadheya, Darsha, Paurnamasa and other external sacrifices and have not been able to go the depth as Rishi Dayananda has done by pointing out various social duties useful to all.

They lacked the Rishi's insight. Even Sayanacharya has stated that Ratnani means रमणीयानि Good things that give delight.

ते—एतत् कृत्वा किं प्राप्नुवन्तीत्युपदिश्यते ।

What do they (wise men) attain after doing all this is taught in the 8th Mantra.

Mantra—8

ये वह्नयः (वोढारः) मेधाविनः सुकृत्यया देवेषु स्थित्वा यज्ञियम् अधारयन्त ते भागम् अभजन्त (नित्यम् आनन्दं सेवन्ते) ॥

TRANSLATION

Those wise men who are performers of noble deeds, by their pious and holy acts, dwelling among the enlightened persons perform all sacrificial functions and thus enjoy abiding joy and bliss.

PURPORT

Men should enjoy all happiness beginning with worldly happiness and ending in the bliss of emancipation by doing noble deeds, by associating themselves with learned persons and by the performance of the Yajnas (non-violent sacrifices).

This hymn has got connection with the nineteenth hymn, for it tells that only wise men can derive benefit from the combination of earth, water, fire and air mentioned in that hymn. This hymn has also been wrongly translated by Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and others.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(वह्नयः) शुभकर्मगुणानां वोढारः ।

Bearers of noble attributes and performers of noble deeds. Sayanacharya confines it only to the performers of external sacrifical acts saying वह्नयः:—

चमसादि साधननिष्पादनेन यज्ञस्य वोढारः (भागम्) सेवनीयम् आनन्दम् ।

= bliss which is to be enjoyed by all.

TRANSLATORS NOTES

The word वह्नय: is derived from वह्-प्रापणे hence Rishi Dayananda's comprehensive interpretation as given above.

भागम् is derived from भज-सेवायाम् hence Rishi Dayananda has taken it in the sense of bliss to be enjoyed by all, instead of "Share" as interpreted by other translators.

TRANSLATION

I invoke or accept Indra (air) and Agni (fire) which are protectors of the produced substances. We desire the praise of their properties.

PURPORT

Men should desire to know the properties of the air and the fire. It is not possible to derive benefit from them unless one hears their attributes from great scientists.

THE COMMANTATOR'S NOTES

इन्द्राग्नी वाय्वग्नी यो वै वायुः स इन्द्रः य इन्द्रः स वायुः ॥
(शतपथ ४.१.३.१९.)

Indra means Vayu (air) and agni fire.

TRANSLATION

O leaders, praise well Indra and Agni (air and fire) in all the Yajnas consisting of study and teaching or arts and crafts etc. Illuminate them or utilise them properly in the manufacture of various conveyances, cars and such other useful works. Sing their praise through the Vedic hymns consisting of Gayatri and other metres and chant them in Shadja and other tunes.

PURPORT

Without practice, men can not know the attributes of the air and fire and benefit from them.

TRANSLATION

As learned men invoke Indra and Agni (air and fire) for the benefit and admirable delight of the friend and benefactor of all, so we also do. As they invoke the protectors of all articles for the protection of various objects, so we also do following into their footsteps.

PURPORT

There is Luptopamaalankaar or implied simile in this Mantra. When men being friendly to one another and for mutual benefit, utilising and preserving the air and fire with proper knowledge (of science) advance dealing in various objects, they enjoy happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मित्रस्य) सर्वोपकारकस्य सर्वसुहृदः ।

= Of the friend and benefactor of all

(प्रशस्तये) प्रशंसनीयसुखाय

(सोमपीतये) सोमानां पदार्थानां पीता रक्षणं यस्मिन व्यवहारे तस्मै ।

= for the protection of various objects and dealings:

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

Rishi Dayananda has explained मित्र as friend and benefactor of all सर्वोपकारीसर्वसुहृत् as it is derived from ञिमिदा-स्नेहने lover of all. But Sayanacharya as is his wont, always narrows down some comprehensive terms to give them a ritualistic interpretation. He admits that the word Mitra is derived from ञिमिदा-स्नेहने which means to love, but then confines it to the institutor of my sacrifices who is my friend. स्नेहविषयस्य मम अनुष्ठातुः Prof. Wilson also follows him indiscriminately saying "for the benefit of our friend, the institutor of the rite."

Griffith's rendering and footnote are still worse. He translates मित्रस्य प्रशस्तये as for the fame of Mitra and then puts the following strange foot-note displaying his own ignorance. "The meaning is not clear. Mitra appears to be regarded as the guardian of the world. Sayana takes Mitra in the sense of friend and refers it to the institutor of the sacrifice."

(Griffith's foot note P. 25. The hymns of the Rigveda). As a matter of fact, it was wrong on the part of Sayanacharya and Wilson to confine a comprehensive term like Mitra (friend and lover of all) to the institutor of the sacrifice and Griffith's footnote shows that to him the meaning is not at all clear, though he uses some guess work as usual. Rishi Dayananda's meaning is comprehensive and appropriate.

Mantra—4

TRANSLATION

We invoke and instruct about Indra and Agni (air and fire) which are strong and mighty and which help to perform all transactions where many articles are accomplished in this act, consisting of various arts and industries.

PURPORT

Men should properly and methodically utilise the air and fire full of force and rapidity which are useful for the accomplishment of many purposes, connected with arts and crafts and sciences.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(हवामहे) विद्यासिद्धयर्थम् उपदिशामः शृणुमश्च ।

(सवनम्) सुन्वन्ति निष्पादयन्ति पदार्थान् येन तत् ।

(उप गच्छताम्) उपगमयतः अत्र लडर्थे लोट् अन्तर्गतो ण्यर्थश्च ।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

हवामहे—ह्वेञ् स्पर्धायाम् It is very wrong on the part of Griffith to translate the word उग्रा as Strong Gods. There is no word in the text denoting Gods and yet obsessed with the idea of the worship of many Gods in the Vedas, these Western scholars generally insert their own pet words which very often go against the spirit of the Mantras. As a matter of fact, उग्रा means simply strong and mighty. There is no word for Gods here and yet Griffith has inserted it according to his own imagination. Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and Griffith all take इन्द्राग्नी to be some particular Gods which is wrong.

मनुष्यैः यौ सम्यक् प्रयुक्तौ) महान्ता (महान्तौ) सदस्पती इन्द्राग्नी रक्षः उब्जतम् (कुटिलं रक्षः दूरीकुरुतः) याभ्याम् अत्रिणः (शत्रवः) अप्रजाः सन्तु (भवेयुः) एतौ सर्वैः मनुष्यैः कथं न सु उपयोजनीयौ ?॥

TRANSLATION

Why should not all men properly utilise Indra and Agni (air and fire) which when used methodically or scientifically are mighty, protectors of various articles possessing many qualities and destroyers of wicked dealings. By their use, let wicked foes who are devourers of men be destitute of progeny.

PURPORT

The air and fire which on account of their nature and attributes are superior to other elements, become the sources of protection by removing misery when they are utilised scientifically with wisdom.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सदस्पती) सीदन्ति गुणा येषु द्रव्येषु तानि सदांसि तेषां पालयितारौ । = Protectors of articles.

(रक्षः) दुष्टव्यवहारान् अत्र व्यत्ययेनैकवचनम् । = Wicked dealing (उब्जतम्) कुटिलम् अपहतः अत्र व्यत्ययो लडर्थे लोट् च (अत्रिणः) शत्रवः । = Wicked foes.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Here अत्रिणः has been translated by Rishi Dayananda as शत्रवः enemies or foes. But as all Vedic words are Yougikas or derivatives, its root meaning should be borne in mind to grasp its real sense. Rishi Dayanand has thrown light on it in other parts of his Vedic commentary. For instance in his commentary on Rig. 1.36.14 where the word अत्रिम् occurs he explains अत्रिणम् अत्ति भक्षयत्यन्यायेन स शत्रुः = an enemy who eats away others' property unjustly.

In his commentary on Rig.1.36.20 he says: अत्रिणम्-परपदार्थापहन्तारं शत्रुम् a thief. In his commentary on Rig. 1.86.10 he writes– अत्रिणम्-परसुखम् अत्तारम् अदेस्त्रिनिश्च (उणादि सू० ४. ६९) अनेन अद्-भक्षणे इति धातोः त्रिनिप्रत्ययः = The eater or destroyer of others' happiness, derived from अद्-भक्षणे = to eat.

Thus it is clear that the word अत्रिणः used in the Mantra stands for sinners or wicked enemies as clearly stated in the Aitareya 2.2 रक्षांसि वै पाप्मात्रिणः and Shadvinsha Brahmana 3.0 पाप्मानोऽत्रिणः wicked people or sinners. Rishi Dayananda explains रक्षः as दुष्टव्यवहारान् or wicked dealings because Yaskacharya has stated in the Nirukta रक्षः कस्मात् रक्षितव्यम् अस्मात् against which one should guard himself as it is harmful. So the use of the word रक्षः is correct for wicked dealings. Not grasping the spirit of the word, Sayanacharya has wrongly translated it as राक्षसजातिम् the race of the Rakshasas and Griffith has rendered it into English as "fiends."

(पुनस्तौ कीदृशावित्युपदिश्यते ।

The same subject is contiuned in the sixth Mantra.

Mantra—6

तेन॑ स॒त्येन॑ जागृ॒तमधि॑ प्रचे॒तुने॑ प॒दे ।
इन्द्रा॑ग्नी॒ शर्म॑ यच्छतम् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (महर्षिकृतः) ।

यौ इन्द्राग्नी तेन सत्येन प्रचेतुने पदे अधि जाग्रतं तौ शर्म यच्छतम् ।

TRANSLATION

May Indra and Agni (Prana-vital energy and electricity) which are well-known on account of the group of true attributes in that desirable state which fills us with joy and bliss, bestow happiness upon us.

PURPORT

The attributes of the eternal are also eternal or everlasting. Why should not the Pranas (within the body and without)and electricity which bestow happiness upon us and when used properly make us vigilant, be utilised scientifically?

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(इन्द्राग्नी) प्राणविद्युतौ । = Prana and electricity

(शर्म) सुखम्— = happiness. (Nighantu 3.6).

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

In his commentary on this Mantra, Rishi Dayananda has taken the word इन्द्र for Prana for which he has not quoted any authority from ancient literature, but which is clearly available as the following passage from Shatapath Brahmana 6. 1.2 28 shows.

प्राण इन्द्रः (शतपथ ६. १. २. २८.)

So it is evident that Rishi Dayananda's interpretation of the word Indra as Prana is not imaginary. In other mantras of this hymn, he has taken Indra in the sense of वायु or air for which we may aptly cite the following passages.

यो वै वायुः स इन्द्रो य इन्द्रः स वायुः ||(शत० ४.१.३.९)
अयं वा इन्द्रो योऽयं (वातः) पवते ||

In these passages of the Shatapath Brahman, it is clearly and un-ambiguously stated that the word Indra is used for वायु or air. In the commentary on this Mantra, Rishi Dayananda has taken agni in the sense of विद्युत् or electricity, as it is one of its forms. Among the eight forms of agni (fire) as stated in the Shatapath Brahmana अशनि electricity or lightning is one. तान्येतान्यष्टौ रुद्रः, सर्वः, पशुपतिः, उग्रः अशनिः, भवः, महान् देवः, ईशानः अग्निरूपाणि ।

THE COMMENTATOR'S CONCLUDING NOTE

All wise men know that Indra and agni (air & fire) are most prominent sources of the accomplishment of scientific knowledge, so this hymn mentioning their attributes has direct connection with the twentith hymn.

This hymn has also been wrongly translated by Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and other scholars of the West.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

We have already pointed out some of the mistakes committed by Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson and Griffith in the course of our Notes and comments: Here ends the 21st hymn of the first Mandala of the Rigveda.

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The various meanings of the term अश्विनौ or Ashvinau are given in the Brahmanas and Nirukta etc.

द्यावापृथिव्यौ, सूर्याचन्द्रमसौ, अहोरात्रौ, अश्विनौ वै देवानां भिषजौ–

= Divine physicians. Here Rishi Dayananda has taken it to mean जलाग्नी (water and fire.) In his commentary on Rig. 1. 3.1 Rishi Dayananda has clearly stated:

अश्विनौ इति पदनामसु पठितम् (निघ० ५–६) अनेनापि गमनप्राप्तिनिमित्तौ अश्विनौ जलाग्नी गृह्येते ।

By Ashvinau are meant the water and the fire, which are instruments in motion and attainment of various kinds. हवामहे is derived from हु-दानादनयो: आदाने च Here Rishi Dayananda has taken it in the sense of acceptance.

= Yajna in the form of good training and preaching.

(मिमिक्षतम्) सेक्तुम् इच्छतम् = desire to sprinkle.

(अश्विना) प्रकाशितगुणयोः अध्वर्य्वोः = Of priests, teachers and preachers whose attributes are manifest.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has explained अश्विनौ here as अध्वर्यू though he has not cited any authority to substantiate it. Such an authority from the Shatapath and other Brahmans is available un-ambiguously. In the Shatapath Brahmana

1.1.2.17 it is stated. अश्विनाध्वर्यू ॥ (शत० १. १. २. १७)

In the Aitareya Brahmana 1. 28 it is stated.

अश्विनावध्वर्यू (ऐतरेये १.१८)

In Taittiriya Brahman 3.2.2.1 and Gopath Uttarardha 2.6 also the same passage अश्विनावध्वर्यू is found. So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is fully substantiated by these passages from ancient Vedic literature as the Brahmanas are the most ancient commentaries of the Vedas.

Rishi Dayananda takes Yajnam here in the sense of सुशिक्षोपदेशाख्यम् He always takes such Vedic terms as यज्ञ in a comprehensive sense unlike other commentators who narrow them down to ritualistic sense as has been pointed out before. The word Yajna is derived from the root Yaj (यज) which means देवपूजा संगतिकरणदानेषु When taken in the sense of संगतिकरण it can mean that which creates unity and loving association, which is possible mainly through good training and preaching by enlightened persons. The same sense can be taken by the third meaning of यज as दान. It is not merely charity of money but also the gift of knowledge and instruction. The Bhagavad Gita follows the Veda in describing various kinds of Yajna including (स्वाध्याय) and ज्ञान study and knowledge. मिमिक्षतम् has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda as सेक्तुम् इच्छतम् = desire to sprinkle. मिह-सेचने ॥

As we desire to attain God's attributes of Truth, justice and kindness etc. and perform the works ordained by Him in the Vedas, so you should also do.

PURPORT

There is implied simile (वाचकलुप्तोमालंकार) in this Mantra. As a learned wise man glorifies God and obeys His commands, in the same manner, you should also conduct yourselves and benefit from all objects in this God's creation.

(सवितारम्) सकलैश्वर्यप्रदं जगदीश्वरम् ।

= To God the Giver of all wealth.

(उश्मसि) प्राप्तुं कामयामहे। = We desire to attain.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda takes सविता in this and previous Mantra for God for which besides the root meaning षुप्रसवैश्वर्ययोः there are such clear authorities as the following from the Brahmanas.

सविता वै देवानां प्रसविता ॥ (शतपथ १.१.२.१७) जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्राह्मणे ३.१८.३ सविता वै प्रसविता ॥ (कौषीतकी ब्रा० ६.१४) यो ह्येव सविता स प्रजापतिः ॥ (शत० १२.३.५.१ । गोपथ पू० ५.२२) प्रजापतिर्वै सविता ॥ ताण्ड्य ब्राह्मणे १६.५.१७ ।

All these passages from the Brahmanas make it clear that by सविता (Savita) God the Creator and Lord of all beings is primarily meant.

Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Griffith and other commentators have all taken Savita to mean the sun which is wrong.

अपां न पातम् has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda as the Creator of various worlds and Imperishable God, while as Sayanacharya takes it to mean as जलस्य न पालकम् संतापेन शोषकम् इत्यर्थः which Wilson translates as "Who is no friend to water.—" Griffith's translation is still worse. He says "The waters' Off-spring Savitar." (P.26). Then he gives a foot-note—

"Son or offspring of the waters" is an epithet more frequently applied to Agni. Sayana explains other wise as "one who does not cherish the water, but dries it up with his heat."

अथ सवितृशब्देनेश्वरसूर्यगुणाः उपदिश्यंते ।

Now by the use of the word Savita, the attributes of God and the sun are taught.

Mantra—7

TRANSLATION—

(1) O men, as we accept God who is the just distributor of the fruits of actions of the souls and whose Light of knowledge is in all human beings as their Inner most spirit and Who is the Generator of all wonderful objects and wealth in the form of wisdom, gold and righteous vast kingdom so you should also accept Him as such.

(2) In the case 'of the sun, the meaning of the Mantra is' We accept the sun as the divider of various objects by its light, the cause of wealth and prosperity (on account of its light in which men work) and giver of light to all embodied things.

PURPORT

There are Shlesha (double entendre and Upamaa (simile) in this Mantra. As God gives the fruit of the actions of all souls being Omnipotent and Omniscient Supreme Being and Creator of the world and as the sun divides by its light the different objects and enlightens them by its piercing rays, both should be properly and wisely utilised i. e. God should be adored and proper use should be made of the heat and light of the sun.

(वसोः) वस्तुजातस्य = of all objects.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

हवामहे has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda as आदद्म: or accept हु-दानादनयो:आदाने च So here the third meaning of आदान taking or accepting has been taken by the Rishi राधइति धननाम (निघ० २. १०) So wealth of all kinds (Secular and spiritual in the form of wisdom, peace and bliss) is implied here.

चक्षिङ् प्रकथने दर्शनेऽपि च

= Darshana is not possible without light, hence in the case of God, it is taken in the sense of light of knowledge and in the case of the sun—the giver of light.

TRANSLATION

1. O men ! come hither and take your seats as friends. Glorify or praise God who is the Lord of all wealth. He is to be praised by us, as He is the Giver of good gifts, He makes us beautiful or charming on account of His wonderful merits.

2. In the case of the sun, the meaning of the Mantra is O men, be friendly to one another and take your seats here. The sun is to be praised on account of its wonderful attributes. It is the giver of various kinds of good wealth (as it is in the light of the sun that people are able to discharge their duties properly in order to acquire wealth). It purifies us by its rays.

PURPORT

There is Shleshaalankaar or double entendre in this Mantra. Men cannot enjoy happiness without friendliness. There fore all people should be united and preaching and listening to the attributes of God and the sun full of heat, should take benefit from them for enjoying happiness or delight.

TRANSLATION

The Agni which brings home to us the manifesting protective powers of the earth and other useful things possessing divine attributes for the proper use of all objects, the sun and the artist, should be scientifically and methodically utilised.

PURPORT

Learned people should accept the Agni in three forms of the fire, electricity and the sun as the most prominent means of accomplishment of arts and crafts and the manifestation of the powers of the earth and other objects. In this Yajna consisting of artistic activities, the special uniting powers of the earth and other objectes have been named as their Patnis or wives so to speak.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(उशतीः) स्वस्वाधारगुणंप्रकाशयन्तीः

(त्वष्टारम्) छेदनकर्तारं सूर्यं शिल्पिनं वा ।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Quoting from the Nirukta of the sage Yaskacharya (Chap. 12) Rishi Dayananda has stated that the protective special powers of the earth, sun, moon, fire and other objects are metaphorically called their Patnis or wives. Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and other translators of the Vedas have not understood this Vedic principle and have taken Agnaayi, Varunani Rudrani and others as the wives of the Gods. Wilson Translates the Mantra as "Agni, bring here the loving wives of the gods" etc. while Wilson uses "gods" in small letters, Griffith here as elsewhere translates the word देवाः as the Gods and renders it into English as 'O Agni, hither bring to us the willing spouses of the Gods." Such translation is entirely erroneous and misleading.

उशतीः is from वश-कान्तौ Here it is to be taken in the sense of manifesting the special attributes.

TRANSLATION

O scientist, expert in mixing and analysing various articles, obtain and make proper use of the earth, the oblations put in the fire, the sun-shine, day and night and the enlightened and effective speech for the protection of all in the activities of arts, crafts and industries.

PURPORT

The learned persons should visualise all sciences in this world, through the study of the Vedas and experiments having obtained from human life. Without the distinct perception of the attributes and funcions of the various objects, the knowledge does not bear fruit. This should always be borne in mind by all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted अग्ने used in this Mantra as पदार्थविद्यावेत्तर्विद्वन् The word अग्नि is derived from अगि-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च so it means a learned person expert in various sciences.

TRANSLATION

May these learned wives of the wise actively engaged in the performance of good works like swift birds whose wings have not been cut, be united with great domestic happiness along with protection, knowledge and noble deeds.

PURPORT

The wives of men should be of the same knowledge, merits and temperament as their husbands, because it is only by the union of the couple of similar knowledge, merits and temperament, that happiness is enjoyed and not otherwise. Therefore all should enjoy bliss by marrying the spouses of the similar nature according to their free choice and by discharging their domestic duties properly.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(महः) महता अत्र सुपां सुलुगिति विभक्तेर्लुक् ।

(शर्मणा) गृहसम्बन्धिसुखेन । शर्मेति गृहनामसु (निघ० ३.४) ।

(अच्छिन्नपत्राः) अविच्छिन्नानि पत्राणि कर्मसाधनानि यासां ताः ॥

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

शर्म इति सुखनाम (निघ० ३.४) शर्मेति गृहनाम (निघ०)

So it has been translated by Rishi Dayananda as गृह सम्बन्धि सुखेन or with domestic happiness. Sayanacharya has taken the word शर्मणा only in the sense of सुखेन which Wilson has translated as "with felitiy." Griffith has rendered it into English as "with aid."

Instead of taking devis as learned ladies as Rishi Dayananda has done, these translators following Sayanacharya have interpreted the word as the wives of the gods (Wilson) or the Goddesses (Griffith) which is not at all correct. The word पत्र is derived from पत्लृ-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानंगमनं प्राप्तिश्च Taking the 2nd and third meaning of the verb पद-गतौ Rishi Dayananda's interpretation of अच्छिन्नपत्राः as अविच्छिन्नानि पत्राणि-कर्मसाधनानि येषां ते is quite correct as movement and the attainment of happiness imply the means of action. Other commentators like Sayanacharya, Wilson and Griffith have taken it to mean wings for which in the Vedic and Sanskrit literature the word used is not पत्र but पतत्र ।

Shri Madhvacharya has interpreted अच्छिन्नपत्राः as अविधवाः not widows, but living with their husbands.

प्राणेनैवात्वसा साकं, यस्मादविधवाः सदा ।
अतोह्यच्छिन्नपत्रास्ताः, सौवर्णकर्णभूषणाः ।। (माध्वे ऋ० भाष्ये ।

Explaining which Raghavendra Yati says in मन्त्रार्थ मंजरी अवैधव्यहेतुनित्यसौमंगल्योपेताः Lucky and auspicious wives of the devas.

This interpretation is better than Sayanacharya as अच्छिन्नपत्राः-अच्छिन्नपक्षाः । नहि पक्षिरूपाणां देव-पत्नीनां पक्षाः केनचित् छिद्यन्ते ।। which Wilson translates as "whose wings are unclipt. Sayanacharya supposes the wives of the gods to assume the form of the birds whose wings can not be clipped. This is his wild imagination and nothing else.

TRANSLATION

I-a householder accept as my wife for everlasting and admirable happiness in this domestic life, a lady who possesses the power of the sun or the air, who is endowed with the power of the water in the form of peace and sweetness and who is full of the power of the fire. I accept her for the enjoyment of prosperity and wealth (material as well as spiritual). You should also do likewise.

PURPORT

There is implied simile used in this Mantra called वाचकलुप्तोपमालंकार Men should obtain most virtuous wives for getting abiding happiness from the objects created by God. Men and women should marry each other, having mutual love and being industrious. It is not possible for any one to get happiness without wives of similar nature and exertion.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(इन्द्राणीम्) इन्द्रस्य सूर्यस्य वायोर्वाशक्ति सामर्थ्यम् इव वर्तमानाम् ।

(वरुणानीम्) वरुणस्य जलस्य इयं शान्तिमाधुर्यादिगुण-युक्ता शक्तिस्तथा भूताम् ।

(अग्नायीम्) यथा अग्नेः इयं ज्वाला अस्ति तादृशीम्–

(सोमपीतये) सोमानाम् ऐश्वर्याणां पीतिर्भोगः यस्मिन् तस्मै–

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

For the meanings of the word Indra as the sun and the air, we have already cited the authorities as the following—

एष एव इन्द्रः य एष (सूर्यः) तपति ॥ (शतपथ १.६.४.१८) ।

इन्द्रः सूर्य इति सायणाचार्योऽपि (ताण्ड्य १४.२.५ भाष्ये)

without light. Men should enjoy perfect happiness deriving all benefit out of them by utilising them properly and industriously.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मही) महागुणविशिष्टा = Great.

स यः स इन्द्रः एष एव स य एष (सूर्यः) एव तपति ॥ जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्राह्मणे १.२८.२ ॥ १.३२.५)

So it is quite clear that the word Indra stands for the sun.

अयं वा इन्द्रः योऽयं (वातः) पवते (शत० १४.२.२.६)

यो वैः वायुः स इन्द्रः य इन्द्रः स वायुः ॥ (शतपथ ४.१. ३.१९)

In these passages, it is clearly stated that word Indra is used for the air also.

So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is substantiated by these quotations from the authentic works like the Brahmanas.

अत्र भूम्यग्नी मुख्ये साधने स्त इत्युपदिश्यते ।

The earth and fire are the prominent means is taught in the thirteenth Mantra.

TRANSLATION

O preachers and the persons to be preached, you should try to blend or make proper use of the shining objects like electricity and the solar world and the earth (representing worlds without light) which with their nourishing qualities fill our Yajna in the form of the activities of arts, crafts and industries with happiness and pleasure.

The word द्यौः (Dyauh) used is the Mantra stands for all shining worlds and the word पृथिवी (Prithivi) for the worlds then use the aeroplanes in the region of the air (mriddle region). They take and make proper use of the sap full of admirable pure water.

PURPORT

Learned persons or scientists should build aeroplanes and other conveyances with the earth and other elements and by the combination and use of the water and air in the machines, should travel on earth, in the ocean and sky.

The earth which is free from thorns and pits, vast and giver of vast happiness, the resting place for all durable substances gives us delight and pleasure by providing fruits and corns etc.

PURPORT

When this earth is perfectly known by men with the help of Geology and other sciences, it becomes the source of happiness, the dwelling place of embodied beings and provider of many jewels and diamonds.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

1. Rishi Dayananda has pointed out in his commentary that there is change of person and case etc. but that is just to make clear, lest ignorant or ordinary persons may not labour under the delusion that there is prayer addressed to the inanimate earth. But as in the Vedas, as well as in all poetry, inanimate objects are addressed as if they had life.

अचेतनान्यपि चेतनवत् स्तूयन्ते (निरुक्ते अ० ७)

It is not quite necessary to suppose there is व्यत्यय or chage of person, case, gender etc. As a matter of fact, there are many such changes (व्यत्यय) pointed out in Rishi Dayananda's commentary just for the sake of clarification.

2. Rishi Dayananda himself has given another interpretation to this in Yajurveda 36.13. where the meaning is with regard to the wife, taking the apparent meaning of earth as a simile. There the meaning is as follows—

O wife, calm like the earth, just as the earth free from thorns and pits, the resting place for all durable substances, is comfortable to us, so should you be. Just as wide earth gives us place for dwelling, so should you delight-affording, give us domestic happiness.

To quote Rishi Dayananda's own words—

हे पृथिवीव वर्तमाने स्त्रि। यथाऽनृक्षरा निवेशनी पृथिवी नो भवति तथा त्वं भव सा सप्रथा न. शर्म यच्छतु तथा स्योना त्वं नः शर्म यच्छ ॥

It is clear that in this case, there is no need of any change in person, case or gender etc.

TRANSLATION

May wise men protect us by giving instructions about the all-pervading God who has made these worlds with seven substances that uphold all, consisting of the earth, water, fire, air, Virat, atom and Matter.

PURPORT

No one can get the knowledge of the science of creation without the instruction given by the wise. No substance can be produced or can get solidity with out God's creation. Without God and the substances created by Him, man can not derive benefit from them.

Prof. Wilson's translation of the Mantra that "May the Gods preserve us (from that portion) of the earth whence Vishnu (aided) by the seven Metres Stepped is erroneous.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda in his commentary on this Mantra has pointed out the mistake in Prof. Wilsons' English translation. Griffith's is still worse which is as follows—

The Gods be gracious unto us even from the place whence Vishnu strode through the seven regions of earth. After giving this wrong translation in the text of his translation, Griffith admits in the foot-note—

"The meaning of the stanza is obscure"

Such is the wonderful scholarship of some of these most prominent orientalists of the West. Rishi Dayananda was therefore right in rejecting their authority.

Men should adore that Omnipresent God only Who made this world in three ways i. e. (1) This visible earth without light (2) invisible subtle world in the form of atoms etc. (3) Shining solar world. He made the form of the universe that can be logically known in the firmament. Yaskacharya explains this Mantra in his well-known work Nirukta 12.19 in the above manner.

PURPORT

God has made the Universe of three kinds.

(1) Consisting of the earth.

(2) Consisting of त्रसरेणु (trasarenu) i. e. atoms or motes of dust which are seen moving in a sun-beam, lying in the firmament or intermediate region between heaven and earth.

(3) Bright solar world.

Out of these three, the earth, the firmament and the sky, the invisible subtle cause consisting of atoms and molecules in the middle region is the cause of the growth of the earth and the sun etc. All this universe can not be made by any one except the Omnipotent God because none has got that power.

Sayanacharya and Wilson have misinterpreted this Mantra thinking wrongly that there is allusion to the theory of Vamana Avatar or dwarf incarnation in this.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(विष्णुः) व्यापकेश्वरः = All pervading God.

(चक्रमे) यथायोग्यं प्रकृतिपरमाण्वादिपादान् अंशान् विक्षिप्य सावयवं कृतवान ।

(पदम्) यत् पद्यते प्राप्यते तत्

(समूढम्) यत् सम्यक् तर्क्यते तर्केण यद् विज्ञायते तत्

= That which is known through logic.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda while interpreting the Mantra on the authority of Yaskacharya the author of the famous Nirukta and other Acharyas in the above most rational manner, has criticised Sayanacharya and Wilson for their wrong interpretation referring to the Pauranik Vamanavatar or dwarf incarnation story.

For instance, Sayanacharya says in his commentary—

विष्णुः) त्रिविक्रमावतारधारी इदं प्रतीयमानं सर्वं जगदुद्दिश्य विशेषेण क्रमणंकृतवान। तदा त्रिभिः प्रकारैः स्वकीयं पदं प्रक्षिप्तवान्। अस्य विष्णोः पांसुरे-धूलियुक्ते पादस्थाने इदं सर्वं जगत् सम्यक् अन्तर्भूतम्॥

Which Prof. Wilson translates as follows—

"Vishnu (in the form of Trivikrama Avatara) traversed this world; three times, he planted his foot, and the whole world was collected in the dust of his foot-step."

In his notes on P. 234 Wilson says—

Planted his foot—This looks still more like an allusion to the fourth Avatar, although no mention is made of king Bali or the dwarf, and these may have been subsequent grafts upon the original tradition of Vishnu's three paces. etc.

Griffith has also mis-interpreted the Mantra following Sayanacharya. He translated it as follows—

"Through all this world strode Vishnu, thrice his foot he planted, and the whole.

Was gathered in his foot -step's, "dust." So Rishi Dayananda was right in condemning the wrong interpretation put by Sayanacharya, Wilson and others, though Wilson had to admit willy nilly that "no mention is made of king Bali or the dwarf, and these may have been grafted upon the original tradition of Vishnu's three paces."

How can then such interpretation not based upon the original text, be accepted as authentic.?

TRANSLATION

Because this inviolable, Protector and Omnipresent God upholds this world consisting of the earth, middle region and heaven (which are to be known and attained) therefore being created by Him, all these substances follow the eternal laws ordained by Him.

PURPORT

Men should clearly know that nothing can be sustained without the upholding Power of God and none can do anything without God's protection.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O men, look at the works of that Omnipresent, Absolutely Pure and Omnipotent God Who is the true friend of the soul, the giver of all Happiness. You must know His acts of the creation, Protection, Justice and dissolution of the world by which a man is able to do the noble deeds of truth and justice etc.

PURPORT

It is because God Who is the Friend of all, has provided the souls with the earth and bodies with all their means of progress, they are able to perform noble works.

THE COMMENTATORS NOTES

(विष्णोः) सर्वत्र व्यापकस्य शुद्धस्य स्वाभाविकानन्त-सामर्थ्यस्य ईश्वरस्य

= Of God who is All-pervading, Perfectly Pure and Almighty.

(व्रतानि) सत्यभाषणन्यायकरणादीनि

(इन्द्रस्य) = of the soul.

(पस्पशे) स्पृशति, कर्तुं शक्नोति

= Touches or is able to do.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The above Mantra can be metrically translated as follows as we have done in the translation of the Hymns of the Sama Veda "

Look at the works of God.
From which man can learn his duties.
Soul's true friend is the Lord.
Who is Maker of all beauties."

TRANSLATION

Righteous, wise, active learned devotees of God see within their own spotless souls with pure knowledge the All-pervading Blissful State of God who is Omnipresent and All-bliss. They see it within, as ordinary men see the grand sun in the sky.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankar or simile used in this Mantra. As ordinary beings see in the light of the sun with pure or healthy eyes all embodied substances, so wise learned persons see within their souls purified with wisdom and noble thoughts, with pure knowledge the Blissful state of emancipation worthy of attainment and attain it. No one can enjoy real happiness without attaining this state. Therefore every one should exert one's best to attain this happiness. Wilson's statement in his notes on the translation of the Rigveda regarding the words Paramam Padam that "Supreme degree or station. The Scholiast (Sayanacharya) says Swarga but that is very questionable" is false or erroneous, as the term Paramam Padam does not stand for Swarga but for the Blissful State of emancipation.

TRANSLATION

It is only wise men devoted to God or singing His songs, ever alert in the discharge of their duties, who attain the Blissful light of All-pervading God that is to be attained by all.

PURPORT

It is only men who have given up the sleep of ignorance and the performance of unrighteous deeds and are wakeful in knowledge and the performance of righteous deeds, that can attain God who is Absolute Existence, Absolute consciousness and Perfect Bliss, the Best and worthy of attainment by all continuously. All pervading This hymn is connected with the previous hymn as it continues the subject by mentioning the earth and heavens, the powers of God and Omnipresent Lord by the name of Vishnu.

TRANSLATION

These sharp and desirable substances are present here.

it is the Vayu (wind) that covers them from all sides and it is again the wind that takes them in, when they move.

PURPORT

It is the Vayu (wind) that makes all substances which are desired by all and by attaining which they consider themselves to be lucky, givers of health. Men should know well the attributes whether sharp or mild of all objects and then take proper benefit from them.

TRANSLATION

We invoke both Indra and Vayu (fire and wind) which help the aeroplanes in touching the firmament for the joy of the objects of the world created by God.

PURPORT

The fire is enkindled by the wind and the wind by the fire. They help each other co-operating in one another's function. Men can enjoy much happiness by utilising them properly and methodically. Why should they not try to know their attributes well.?

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(इन्द्रवायू) अग्नि पवनौ = Fire and wind.

(दिविस्पृशा) द्यौ प्रकाशयुक्त आकाशे यानानि स्पर्शयतः॥

Enabling the aeroplanes etc. to touch the sky.

(सोमस्य) सूयन्ते पदार्था यस्मिन् जगति तस्य।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

In the above Mantra, Rishi Dayananda has taken the word Indra in the sense of agni or fire, for which he has not cited any authority. But the following passages from the Shatapath Brahmans clearly corroborate his statement.

एष एवेन्द्रः। यदाहवनीयः। (शतपथ० २.३.२.२)

इन्द्रो ह्याहवनीयः॥ (शतपथ० २.६.१.३८)

In these passages, Indra has been interpreted standing for fire known as the Ahavaniya in which Yajnas are performed.

In the Nirukta, Yaskacharya gives one of the etymological meanings of Indra as इन्धे भूतानि deriving the word इन्द्र from इन्धी-दीप्तौ So it is clear that the word Indra has been used in the Vedic Literature for fire also.

पुनस्तौ कीदृशावित्युपदिश्यते।

TRANSLATION

Wise men for preservation or the desire of accomplishment in action, invoke electricity and wind, possessing thousands of means and protectors of the Yajna of art and industries. Why should not others also try to understand their nature?

PURPORT

Wise men should utilise electricity and wind possessing thousands of functions and endowed with rapidity and other attributes, for the accomplishment of arts and industries.

COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(इन्द्रवायू) विद्युत्पवनौ = Electricity and fire

(विप्राः) विद्वांसः (विप्रा इति मेधाविनाम—निघ० ३.१५)

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

ऊतये has been explained as क्रियासिद्धीच्छायै For the desire of accomplishment of action. For the meaning of इन्द्र as electricity, passages like the follwoing may be cited.

यदशनिरिन्द्रस्तेन ॥ (कौषीतकी ब्रा० ६.९)
स्तनयित्नुरेवेन्द्रः ॥)शतपथ ११.६.९.३)

In these passages, the meaning of the word Indra has been given as electricity.

TRANSLATION'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted मित्र and वरुण here as प्राण and उदान for which he has not cited any authority. But such authority is clearly available. In the shatapath Brahmana 1.8.3.12.3.6.9.16, 5.3.5.34 and 9.5.1.56 it is stated प्राणोदानौ वै मित्रावरुणौ In Shatapath 3.2.2.13 it is again stated प्राणोदानौ मित्रावरुणौ It is thus clear that the interpretation given by Rishi Dayananda is not his own imagination but based upon the authority of the Brahmanas.

Rishi Dayananda has explained दक्ष as बलम् or strength for which there is the authority of the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu 2.9 दक्ष इति बलनाम (निघं० २. ६)

TRANSLATION

I invoke or remember the sun and the wind which are created and upheld by the Absolutely True God, are increasers of true material cause (Matter) or water and guardians of true light.

PURPORT

The creation of the water and light is not possible without the air and the sun. These (the sun and the air) cannot be created except by God and without them (the sun and the air) men cannot accomplish any work.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

ऋतमिति सत्यनाम (निघ० ३.१०)

So Rishi Dayananda has explained the word Rita as true, absolutely True God and water.

Here Rishi Dayananda has taken the word मित्र (Mitra) for the sun, for which the Vedic Mantras like are clear as admitted by all the commentators. Even in ordinary classical Sanskrit, the word मित्रः in masculine is used for the sun.

मित्रो जनान् यातयति ब्रवाणो मित्रो दाधार पृथिवीमुत द्याम्। मित्रः कृष्टीरनिमिषाभि चष्टे मित्राय हव्यं घृतवज्जुहोत (ऋ० ३.५९.१)

In the Vedic Lexicon-Nighantu the word Mitra is मित्र इति पदनाम (निघ० ५.४) पद-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च if we take the third meaning प्राप्ति Mitra may be used for the sun as प्रकाशप्रापक: the cause of light. Besides, in the Aitareya Brahmana of the Rigveda it is stated. अहर्वै मित्र: (ऐतरेय ४-१०) the word Mitra stands for the day. It is therefore also used for the sun as the lord of the day.

The same thing is said in the Tandya Brahmana 25. 10. 10 of the Sama Veda अहर्मित्रः (ताण्ड्य. २५. १०. १०.) According to this also as Mitra stands for the day, it is equally used for the sun as the lord or cause of the day.

Rishi Dayananda has taken वरुण (Varuna) for the वायु air or wind. It is derived from वृञ्–वरणे to accept. As air is acceptable to all, it is called Varuna. It is therefore used for प्राण also यः प्राणः स वरुणः ॥ (गोपथ उ० ४. ११)

In the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu 5.4. and 5. 6. it is stated वरुण इति पदनाम (निघ० ५. ४, ५. ६) पद–गतौ ज्ञाने गमनं प्राप्तिश्च Taking the second and third meaning, as the air causes movement and causes happiness सुखस्य प्रापकः so it is called Varuna.

TRANSLATION

When utilised properly, the air becomes our special protector with all its protective powers along with all substances. The sun also protects us with all its protective and guarding forces. They make us full of the admirable wealth of wisdom and vast good government by making us healthy.

PURPORT

Because it is on account of the sun and the air, that time is measured and all functions performed well, therefore by utilising them properly, men can accomplish many works and acquire wealth thereby.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

In this commentary on this Mantra, Rishi Dayananda has taken Indra and Pooshan in the sense of the sun, for which, the following authority from the Brahmanas is clearly available. In the Jaimineeyopanishad Brahamana U. 1. 44.5. it is stated while explaining the Vedic Text.

युक्ता ह्यस्य (इन्द्रस्य) हरयः शता दशेति। सहस्रं हैत आदित्यस्य रश्मयः । इन्द्रः—आदित्यः (जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्राह्मणे उ० १.४४.५)

In the Shatapath Brahmana 8.5.3.2. it is stated.

अथ यः इन्द्रोऽसौ स आदित्यः ।। (शतपथ ८.५.३.२)

In the Jaimineeyopanishad Brahmana U. of 1.28.21.32.5 it is stated—

स यः स इन्द्रः एष एव स य एष (सूर्यः) एव तपति (जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्राह्मणे उ० १.२८.२ ।। १.३२.५)

As for the meaning of पूषा as the sun, the following passages from Kausheetaki Brahmana 5.2. and Gopatha Brahmana U. 1.20 are significant.

असौ वै पूषा योऽसौ (सूर्यः)तपति ।। (कौषीतकी ब्राह्मणे ५.२ गोपथ ब्राह्मण उत्तरार्द्धे १.२२)

In the sense of the function of the speech or sound is from ह्वेञ्-स्पर्धायाम् ।

TRANSLATION

O learned persons; the winds which give us (health and strength) so liberally, being associated with the sun or the lightning, destroy the cloud. Let not evil-minded persons ever prevail upon us or give us trouble.

PURPORT

Having exerted ourselves and meditating upon God, we pray to our preceptors. All men should know the science of the winds which scatter the water in the cloud with the association of the rays of the sun and lightning, make it fall down and raise it up again from the face of the earth.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(हत) घ्नन्ति। अत्र व्यत्ययो लडर्थे लोट् च = Destroy.

TRANSLATION

We desirous of knowledge, invoke the Maruts (winds) which are fierce, rapid and powerful and which are born out of the firmament, helpful in the functions of arts and industries with the combination of knowledge and action, in order to enjoy all objects properly

PURPORT

Learned persons accept for various purposes, these winds which move from place to place and are of fierce and powerful nature born out of the sky.

TRANSLATION

O ye men who lead people to the path of righteousness and and artistic activities, as a king gets victory with the help of conquering heroes, in the same way, with the aid of the Maruts (winds) the lightning or electricity possessing the quality of rapidity and firmness, gives heat to the cloud. By using that electricity, obtain whatever happiness full of welfare is there.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankar or simile used in this Mantra. O men, as learned persons get victory with the aid of the army of the heroes and as by the knowledge of the rubbing of the air, men attain happiness by going to distant countries and using electric weapons like Agenyastra to kill wicked enemies, similarly, by the exercise of science and industriousness, you should try to develop worldly and everlasting real delight with wisdom,

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(तन्यतुः) विस्तृतवेगस्वभावा विद्युत्

(धृष्णुया) दृढत्वादिगुणयुक्ता–

(नरः) ये नयन्ति धर्मं शिल्पसमूहं च ते नरः तत्सम्बन्धिने । अत्र नयतेर्डिच्च ।

TRANSLATION

Because the lightnings born from the bright sky, give us happiness, (by raining) therefore, we should utilise them properly from all sides. The winds also cause happiness to us, therefore we should use them methodically in various works.

PURPORT

Men can attain happiness well when they can acquire first the knowledge of the science of air or wind, then of the science of electricity and then that of the water, earth and herbs and drugs etc.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(हस्कारात्) प्रहसनं हस्तत् करोति येन तस्मात् (अवन्तु) प्रापयन्ति । अत्रावधातोर्गत्यर्थात् प्राप्त्यर्थो गृह्यते ।

(मरुतः) वायवः = Winds

(मृडयन्तु) सुखयन्ति । अत्रापि लडर्थे लोट्
= Cause happiness

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The word हस्कारः is derived from हसे प्रहसने meaning to laugh, but according to the general rule admitted by all grammarians अनेकार्थाधातव: i. e. verbs have many meanings, here it is the sense of shining or brightness. Sayanacharya has therefore stated in his commentary that हस्कारात्-दीप्तिकरात् हसे-हसने इति धातोः अत्र प्रकाशमात्रे वर्तते ॥

Taking into consideration the context, this seems to be correct.

मृड- सुखने = to cause happiness.

मरुत इति पदनाम (निघ० ५.५) पद—गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः— ज्ञानंगमनं प्राप्तिश्च अतः गमनागमनादिव्यवहारप्रापका वायवो गृह्यन्ते ।

As a shepherd brings back and reveals before others a lost animal, in the same way, this bright-rayed sun having made the firmament wondrous from its light, illuminates the earth by scattering its rays.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankar or simile used in this Mantra. As shepherds and other feeders of animals, feed and nourish the beasts and by their milk etc. cause happiness to men, in the same manner, the sun having supported the sky and all substances therein, by its rays and gravitation, causes happiness to all beings.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(पूषन्) पोषयतीति पूषा सूर्यलोकः अत्रान्तर्गतो णिच् श्वन्‌क्षन पूषन् प्लीहन् क्लेदन स्नेहन् मूर्धन् मज्जन्नर्यमन् विश्वप्सन् परिज्मन् मातरिश्वन् मघवन्निति (उणादि १.१५७) अनेनायं निपातितः ॥ = Sun.

(चित्रबर्हिषम्) चित्रम् आश्चर्यं बर्हिः अन्तरिक्षं भवति यस्मात् तत् । (आघृणे) समन्तात् घृणयः किरणा दीप्तयो यस्य सः । = The sun with bright rays

(धरुणम्) धारणकर्त्रीं पृथिवीम् । = Earth.

(अज) अजति प्रकाशे प्रक्षिप्य द्योतयति ।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda interprets Poosha (पूषा) here as the sun, for which besides the derivation pointed out by him as पोषयतीति पूषा सूर्यलोकः पुष-पुष्टौ there are two clear passages in the Brahmana substantiating his interpretation.

असौ वै पूषा योऽसौ (सूर्यः) तपति ॥ (कौषीतकीब्राह्मणे ऋग्वेदीये ५.२ गोपथ ब्राह्मणे उ० १.२०)

In the passages from the Kausheetaki Brahman and the Gopath Brahmana, it is clearly and un-anbiguously stated that the word पूषा (Poosha) stands for the sun.

बर्हिरिति अन्तरिक्षनाम (निघ० १.३)

घृणि is derived from घृ-क्षरणदीप्त्योः here it is in the second sense of illuminating.

In the Nighantu 1.17 we read—

घृणिः-ज्वलतो नाम (निघ० १.१७)

धरुणम् is derived from धृञ्-धारणे hence Rishi Dayananda has taken it here for the earth which upholds all beings. अज गति क्षेपणयोः hence Rishi Dayananda's interpretation as.

अजति—प्रकाशं प्रक्षिप्य द्योतयति ॥

अथ पूषन् शब्देनेश्वरस्य सर्वज्ञताप्रकाशः क्रियते

By the term Pooshan, God's Omniscience is mentioned.

Mantra—14

पूषा राजानमाघृणिरपगूळ्हं गुहा हितम् ।
अविन्दच्चित्रबर्हिषम् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (महर्षिकृतः)

यतः अयम् आघृणिः पूषा (परमेश्वरः) गुहाहितं चित्र-बर्हिषम् अपगूढं राजानम् अविन्दत् (जानाति) (तस्मात् सर्व-शक्तिमान वर्तते ॥)

TRANSLATION

Because this Resplendent God who is the nourisher of all by His might knows fully the hidden soul or Atman dwelling in the cave of the heart or intellect doing many noble deeds, He is Omnipotent.

PURPORT

Because God Who is the Creator of all, knows the resplendent and sustaining soul or the Prana dwelling within the heart, He is Omniscient.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(राजानम्) प्राणं जीवं वा = Prana or the soul.

(पूषा) स्वाभिव्याप्त्या यः सर्वान् पदार्थान् पोषयति स जगदीश्वरः

(चित्रबर्हिषम्) चित्रम् अनेकविधं बर्हिः-उत्तमं कर्म क्रियते-येन तम्

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Here Rishi Dayananda has taken the word Poosha in the sense of God as it is derived from पुष-पुष्टौ and God is the nourisher of all. The Vedic Mantras like.

तमीशानं जगतस्तस्थुषस्पतिं धियं जिन्वमवसे हूमहे वयम् ।
पूषा नो यथा वेदसामसद् वृधे रक्षिता पायुरदब्धः स्वस्तये ।
ऋ० ४.८९.५

Make it quite clear that the word Poosha is primarily used for God, Who is the Lord of all animate and inanimate world.

In his commentary on this Mantra Rishi Dayananda has interpreted बर्हिः as उत्तमं कर्म or noble deed. The word is derived from बर्ह-वृद्धौ so it can mean anything that enables a man to grow. It is only by doing noble deeds that man can grow or develop his faculties, hence the word can certainly be used for good deeds.

In the Nighantu 5.2 It is stated

बर्हिरिति पदनाम (निघ० ५.२) पद—गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च

By taking the third meaning प्राप्ति of the Verb-the word will mean सुखप्रापकम् = that which causes happiness. Certainly it is a noble work that creates happiness, therefore Rishi Dayananda's interpretation of the word बर्हिः as उत्तमं कर्म or good deed is correct.

His (God's) attributes are taught in the 15th Mantra.

TRANSLATION

As a cultivator who ploughs with steers brings corn, this God successively brings to me-a righteous industrious person, the spring and other six seasons along with Juicy substances and with cattle, horses, and other useful animals, barley and other kinds of corn. THEREFORE I regard Him alone as most acceptable and Adorable Supreme Being.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in this Mantra. As the sun with its rays and cultivator with his ploughs etc.. draws and digs the ground, sows the seed and having obtained corn etc. makes the spring and other seasons full of happiness, in the same manner, God makes all seasons givers of happiness to all souls according their sap.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(इन्दुभिः) स्निग्धैः पदार्थैः सह = With Juicy substances.

(युक्तान्) सुखसम्पादकान् = Givers of happiness.

(अनुसेषिधत्) पुनः पुनः अनुकूलान् प्रापयते = Makes them suitable again and again.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

इन्दुभिः is derived from उन्दि-क्लेदने उन्देरिच्चादेः (उणादि० १.१२) इति उः प्रत्ययः hence the meaning given by Rishi Dayananda as स्निग्धैः-पदार्थैः Juicy or greasy substances.

TRANSLATION

As kinsmen always cause happiness to their kith and kin by their suitable conduct, in the same manner, these waters which are protectors of the people who are desirous of offering non-violent sacrifices, flow by the paths of the Yajnas qualifying or mixing with their sweetness a sap causing happiness to us.

PURPORT

As kinsmen always nourish and gladden their relatives, in the same manner, these waters going up and down cause happiness to all beings like friends. Without them, it is not possible for any living or non-living (inanimate) object to grow. Therefore they should be properly utilised by all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अम्बयः) रक्षणहेतवः आपः ।

Rishi Dayananda derives the word अम्बय: from अव-रक्षणादिषु । Sayanacharya interprets the word अम्बय: as मातृस्थानीयाश्चाप: Mother like waters. He derives it from अबि-शब्दे though the meaning of sound or speech is not found in the term. Rishi Dayananda's interpretation seems more close to the root meaning.

(अध्वरीयताम्) आत्मनः अध्वरमिच्छताम्

(अध्वर इति यज्ञ नाम ध्वरति हिंसाकर्मा तत्प्रतिषेधः इति यास्काचार्यो निरुक्ते १.७) (पृंचतीः) स्पर्शयन्त्यः—

TRANSLATION

Those waters which are contiguous to the sun or its light and those with which the sun is associated are propitious to our non-violent and inviolable Yajna. They are useful in the performance of the non-violent sacrifice for sprinkling, sipping (Achaman) touching of the organs and other purposes.

PURPORT

The water which goes towards the sun being penentrated by the rays of the sun and made subtle, comes down in the form of the rain and when utilised scientifically and methodically in various conveyances or vehicles, increases happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(हिन्वन्ति) प्रीणयन्ति सेधयन्ति

TRANSLATION

I invoke the waters for the performance of Yajna where the rays of the sun touch from the oceans or rivers in order to enjoy happiness which they give.

PURPORT

The rays of the sun penetrate all waters and draw all around the waters. Then they get earth and herbs. Wise men should use some water for drinking, bathing and activities connected with arts nnd industries and thus should enjoy happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O learned persons, for your all-round development you should know that there is Amrita (Ambrosia or the power of destroying diseases that cause death) in the waters. There is healing balm or there are medicinal herbs in the waters. Know this and by their proper use become enlightened and wise.

PURPORT

O men, having known the attributes of the waters which contain disease-destroying powers and which contain in themselves the medicinal herbs, use them for the removal of diseases the medicinal herbs, use them for the removal of diseases and the accomplishment of arts, crafts and industries.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अमृतम्) मृत्युकारकरोगनिवारकम्
= The power of destroying diseases that cause death.

(वाजिनः) प्रशस्तो बोधो येषामस्ति ते । अत्र प्रशंसार्थे इतिः । गत्यर्थाद् विज्ञानं गृह्यते ॥

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

It is remarkable that even Sayanacharya-an orthodox commentator has taken देवाः as हे देवाः—ऋत्विजादयो ब्राह्मणाः । एते वै देवाः प्रत्यक्षं यद् ब्राह्मणाः । (तैत्तिरीय संहितायाम् १.७. ३. १) इति श्रुत्यन्तरात् ॥

Which wilson has rightly translated as "divine priests." For this meaning of ऋत्विजादयो ब्राह्मणाः Sayanacharya has given quotation from the Taittireeya Samhita 1.7.3.1 where it is clearly stated that the Brahmanas are visible devas.

But Griffith has translated देवाः here as else where as "Ye Gods." He seems to be obssessed with the idea of Polytheism in the Vedas.

TRANSLATION

Soma (Moon the king of all herbs or the Soma-moon creeper) denotes to me that within the waters dwell all balms that heal. The waters contain all healing herbs. The agni pariticularly in the form of electricity is also the benefactor of the Universe.

PURPORT

As all substances reveal themselves through their properties, so the moon that nourishes all medicinal herbs and plants and Soma-the moon creeper tell us (so to speak) that the waters contain all healing powers

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सोमः) ओषधिराजश्चन्द्रमाः सोमलताख्यरसोवा

= Moon the king of all herbs and the Juice of the moon-creeper.

(अब्रवीत्) ज्ञापयति । अत्र लड्र्थे लुङ् अन्तर्गतोण्यर्थे प्रसिद्धीकरणधात्वर्थश्च ।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

By Soma we also may take besides the above meaning—Vaidya or physician of clam nature. सौम्यस्वभावो वैद्यः Rishi Dayananda in his commentary on Yaj. 24. 22 has interpreted सोम as सोमवल्लीव सर्वरोगनाशकः The destroyer of all diseases like the Soma Plant. In that case, the meaning becomes clearer. Hydropathy discovered by Lui Kuhni and others clearly substantiates the statement about the healing powers of the water contained in these and other mantras.

PURPORT

Without the Pranas, it is not possible for any living being or even trees etc. to maintain their existence. There fore the best medicine or healing balm for the removal of hunger, thirst and all diseases is to use the Prana properly and methodically.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(आपः) आप्नुवन्ति व्याप्नुवन्ति सर्वान् पदार्थान् ते प्राणाः ॥

= Pranas or principles of life that pervade all.

(दृशे) द्रष्टुम् दृशे विख्ये च (अष्टा० ३.४.११) अनेनायं निपातितः = To see.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

Here Rishi Dayananda has interpreted आपः as प्राणाः for which he has given the derivation. आप्नुवन्ति व्याप्नुवन्ति सर्वान् पदार्थान् ते though he has not cited the authorities which are clearly available.

In the Taittireeya 3.2.5.2 and Tandya Maha Brahmana 9.9.4 it is stated प्राणा वा आपः (तैत्ति० संहिता ३. २.५.२) ताण्ड्य ब्राह्मणे ९.९.४।

In the Shatapath Brahmana 3.8.2-4 it is stated आपो वै प्राणाः ॥ (शत० ३.८.२.४) In the Jaimineeya Upanishad 3.10.9 it is stated—

प्राणो ह्यापः (जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्राह्मणे ३.१०.९)

So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is substantiated by the above and other authorities from the ancient literature.

PURPORT

Whatever good or evil, merit or sin is done by people, they get the fruit of the same under the dispensation of God's Justice.

अत्र व्यत्ययो लडर्थे लोट् च (आपः) प्राणाः–

= Life breaths or principles as explained before. Rishi Dayananda in his commentary on Yaj. 8.27 has interpreted आप: as आप्ता: प्रजा: य० ६.२७) People who always think, speak and act truthfully. In his commentary on Yaj. 20.20 he has explained as प्राणा जलानीव विद्वांस: (यजु० २०. २२) Learned persons who are like the Pranas and waters. In his commentary on Yaj. 10.7 he has interpreted आप: as जलानीव शान्ता: Men of calm nature like waters.

That meaning can be taken here also and then the prayers for removing all our physical, vocal and mental defect is address-ed to them and not to inanimate waters as wrongly supposed by Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and others.

TRANSLATION

We have mingled to-day with the essence of waters full of sap and we have taken them properly. Being full of vigour and sap, I get the reward of what I do. The fire with which I have come in contact in my previous life or the present one, fills me, the doer of actions, with vigour and splendour. Therefore it should be utilised properly and methodically.

PURPORT

All beings get the fruit of their actions through air, water, fire and other elements in previous as well as in the present life.

TRANSLATION

God and enlightened seers and men know that the fire in the form of electricity confers upon me vigour, progeny and life.

They also know that the good or bad actions done by me are the cause of my birth. Therefore I should always keep company with such enlightened persons and have communion with God.

PURPORT

When the soul leaves former body and enters the next, the natural mental fire that accompanies it manifests or reveals the body again. The merits or the sins of the souls that cause birth are known only to the seers or other enlightened persons. Other ordinary or ignorant persons can never know it. It is God alone who thoroughly and perfectly knows all and enables the souls to enjoy the good or bad fruit of those actions uniting them with suitable bodies.

This twenty-third hymn has got direct connection with the provious one.

विद्वांसो हि देवाः (शत० ३.७.३.१०)

The word Indra stands primarily for God as it is derived from इदि परमैश्वर्ये The Lord of all. In the Rigveda 1.164.46 it is stated Un-ambiguously.

इन्द्रं मित्रं वरुणमग्निमाहुरथो दिव्यः स सुपर्णो गरुत्मान्।
एकं सद् विप्रा बहुधा वदन्त्यग्निं यमं मातरिश्वानमाहुः ॥

(ऋ० १.१६४.४६)

Wise men call one God by various names like Indra, Mitra, Varuna, Agni etc. to denote His different attributes. In the Kaushitaki Brahmana of the Rigveda 6.14 it is clearly stated.

Who is that God pervading immortal and eternal emancipated souls and Himself One Eternal Imperishable Supreme Being, the Resplendent Giver of Bliss whose auspicious name we may invoke and always remember ? Who will send us-the liberated souls, back to the great earth that we may again behold our parents.

PURPORT

Here there is a question raised. Who is that one among the eternal and immortal souls whose most auspicious name we may know and remember ? Who will give birth to us after the period of emancipation so that we may be born again through our earthly parents after enjoying the Bliss of liberation for a very long period.

TRANSLATION

We learned eternal souls invoke or remember the auspicious name of that Omniscient, un-parallelled, One Supreme Leader of the Eternal, immortal emancipated souls, the Giver of all things in creation and their Illuminator. It is He who gives us birth again on this great earth possessing great properties that we may again behold our parents, wives and kinsmen.

PURPORT

O men, we certainly believe in one eternal, Immortal God who is the dispenser of the fruit of the good or bad actions done by us and according to Whose laws we get re-birth. You must also know that One God to be the Giver of Re-birth for, none else can do this work (of the dispensation of justice). It is He who gives birth to emancipated persons also through parents at the end of Mahakalpa-a very long period covering several millions of years.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अग्नेः) ज्ञानस्वरूपस्य = Of Omniscient God.

(प्रथमस्य) अनादिस्वरूपस्य एव अद्वितीयस्य परमेश्वरस्य = Of un-parallelled Eternal God.

(अमृतानाम्) विनाशधर्मरहितानां प्राप्तमोक्षाणां जीवानां मध्ये— = Among the immortal liberated souls.

(चारु) पवित्रम् = holy.

(देवस्य) सर्वजगत्प्रकाशकस्य सृष्टौ सकलपदार्थदातुः = Of the Resplendent Giver of all things in the Universe.

(अदितये) कारणरूपेण नाशरहितायां पृथिव्याम्। अदितिरिति पृथिवी नामसु (निघ० १.१) अत्र सप्तम्यर्थे चतुर्थी। = On this earth.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

This Mantra clearly and un-ambiguously enunciates the doctrine of the re-birth of the emancipated souls after enjoying the bliss of the liberation for a very long period known as the Mahakalpa grand cycle or Paranta Kala in the passages of the Upanishads like

वेदान्तविज्ञानसुनिश्चितार्थाः, संन्यासयोगाद् यतयः शुद्ध

सत्वाः । ते ब्रह्मलोकेषु परान्तकाले, परामृताः परिमुच्यन्ति सर्वे ॥ (मुण्डकोप० ३.२)

The calculation of this Maha-Kalpa (grand cycle) or Paranta Kala as given by Rishi Dayananda in the Satyartha Prakash or Light of Truth Chap. IX. is as follows—

One Chaturyugi or quarternion consists of 4320000 years. Thus thousand such quarternions make one (Divine) day-night, such thirty day-nights make a Divine month. Such twelve months make a Divine year. Such hundred Divine years make one Paranta-kala mahakalpa or Grand Cycle." (Light of Truth translated by Pt. Ganga Prasad. ji Upadhyaya M. A. Allahabad P. 338).

It is owing to such a long almost incalculable period that some have held that the emancipated souls remain in the liberated state for ever and never return. But the above mantra clearly and un-mistakably points out that this belief is against the Vedic teaching, besides being un-reasonable, as the result of limited knowledge and action (however pure they may be) cannot be un-limited).

TRANSLATION

O Creator and ever Protector God, We pray to Thee who art the Lord of the earth and other acceptable or useful things, the Superintendent of the Universe and Adorable.

PURPORT

Men should always adore God only who is the Illuminator of all, Creator of the whole world and Giver of all Bliss.

One cannot get the real fruit of contemplation by worshipping any one else. Therefore a man should not worship anyone else in the place of God.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

• (देव) सर्वानन्दप्रदेश्वर
= O God giver of all Bliss.

(सवितः) सृष्ट्याद्युत्पादक = Creator of the world.

(ईशानम्) विविधस्य जगत ईक्षणशीलम्

(ईमहे) याचामहे = We pray or beg.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

देव is derived according to Yaskacharya not only from दिवु but also from दा to give. देवो दानाद् वा दीपनाद् वा द्योतनाद् वा (निरुक्ते अ० ७) So here Rishi Dayananda has taken it in the sense of the Giver of all Bliss. सविता (Savita) is from षु-प्रसवैश्वर्ययोः therefore it has been taken in the sense of the Creator.

भागम् is from भज-सेवायाम् hence it has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda as भजनीयम् or Adorable, though Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and others have taken it otherwise. Sayanacharya has taken it as adjective of धनम् भजनीयं धनम् ईमहे = We pray for enjoyable wealth.

Wilson translates it as..

"We solicit (our) portion of Thee" and Griffith as " for our share we come."

ईमहे—याच्ञाकर्मा (निघ० ३.१९)

TRANSLATION

O God, these various visible or invisible worlds or the birds that are flying through the air, cannot attain to Thy inviolable Dominion or Thy might, nor these waters that flow on for ever or the Pranas can measure Thy Prowess. None can compete with Thy Wealth. The gale of wind can never surpass Thy speed. None of these wonderful things can deny Thy existence or Thy might. They all denote Thy glory.

PURPORT

Because God is Omnipotent, none can measure or violate Him. These worlds move on, but God does not move for, He is Perfect. No one can attain to inviolable entire dominion by worshipping any one else except God. Therefore all should adore only God who is Infinite, Immeasurable and Imperishable. This should be known to all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(क्षत्रम्) अखण्डं राज्यम् = Inviolable Dominion.

= Denial of existence.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has taken Kshatram for अखण्डराज्यम् Invoilable Dominion.

The following pasage from Aitareya Brahmana 7.22 substantiates the Rishi's interpretation क्षत्रं हि राष्ट्रम् (ऐत० ७२) Rishi Dayananda has interpreted the word वयः not only birds as others have done, but also as दृश्यादृश्याः सर्वे लोकाः = visible or invisible worlds वयः is derived from वी-गतिव्याप्ति प्रजनकान्त्यसनखादनेषु so taking the first meaning of गति or moving, it can be used, not only for birds, but also for moving worlds etc. In the Aitareya 1.28 the word वयः is used for प्राण, प्राणो वै वयः (ऐत० १.२८) In Shatapath 8.5.2.6 it is used for अन्न or food taking the sense of खादन or eating of the root, वी, अन्नं वै वयश्छन्दः (शत० ८.५.२.६) In the Shatapath 9.5.3.7 the word वयांसि has been interpreted as animals पशवो वै वयांसि (शत० ९. ३. २-७) because they have movement. Therefore it is clear that taking into consideration the root-meaning of वी-गत्यादिषु the word वयः can be used for the worlds that move.

There are waters below. May the rays of the sun become concentrated in us as the source of healthy existence. May we use the heat of the sun properly in order to keep ourselves healthy.

PURPORT

It is the rays of the sun that are above and below that are the cause of the creation of the cloud. The particles of water in the rays are not visible on account of their subtleness. (1) The Resplendent God who is the Sustainer of the world hath made a spacious pathway, for the sun where with to travel on its axis, even in the middle region where there was no path. He made it to set its footstep. He is the piercer of the heart of an unrighteous person. He is therefore to be adored by all. Men should know this certainly.

PURPORT

God has fixed up its own axis for the great sun to move about and it (sun) is illuminated by the air. All these different worlds move about at their own axis. It is by God's sustaining Power along with attraction of the air that these worlds do not go away from their axis and there is none else who is the Upholder of these worlds than God. As God is the piercer of the heart of an un-righteous person, in the same manner, Prana also is the piercer of the heart of a person suffering from some terrible fatal disease. Hence why should He (God) not be worshipped by all and why should not be the Prana (or vital wealth) utilised properly and methodically for attaining long life and health.

Put away from us the sin committed by wicked persons and destroy them by giving them suitable punishment for their ignoble deeds. Liberate us from the sin in the form of the fear from enemies, thieves and plunderers.

PURPORT

Men should associate themselves only with those rulers and subjects who are removers of all sins and diseases, who are upholders of the earth, are givers of good advice, are preventers of the unrighteous by giving support and strength to the righteous. No one's sins can be destroyed without reaping the consequences. But prayers, sermons and exertions are

TRANSLATION

We ask whither by day depart the constellations, moon and stars etc. that shine at night, set high in heaven above us ?

The holy laws of God are inviolable and Immutable and by whose command through the night the moon moves on in splendour ? The answer is that God is the Creator and Illuminator of the Universe.

PURPORT

In the first half of this Mantra, a question has been raised which has been answered by the latter half. When some one asks a learned person by whom have these constellations been made, who upholds them and where do they go in day time when they are visible at night ? then he should answer the question in the following manner:—

All these worlds are created and upheld by God who is called by the term of Varuna-the most acceptable and the the Best. They have no light of their own, but they shine by the light of the sun. They do not go anywhere, but are not visible in day time being covered by the light of the sun. They are visible at night, illuminated by the rays of the sun. All these wonderful acts are of God, to whom All thanks are due.

Here ends the 14th Varga of the 2nd anuvaka.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

१—(ऋक्षाः) चन्द्रनक्षत्रादिलोकाः = 1 Constellations, the moon. and stars etc.

२—(अदब्धानि) अहिंसनीयानि = 2 Inviolable, eternal.

३—(व्रतानि) कर्माणि नियमा वा = 3 Acts or laws.

४—(वरुणस्य) जगदीश्वरस्य सूर्यस्य वा = 4 Of God or the sun.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

In his commentary on this Mantra, Rishi Dayananda has interpreted. वरुणस्य as परमेश्वरस्य सूर्यस्य वा = Of God or the sun. That Varuna stands for God is clear by the statment of the Veda itself which says—

इन्द्रं मित्रं वरुणमग्निमाहुरथो दिव्यः स सुपर्णो गरुत्मान्।
एकं सद् विप्रा बहुधा वदन्त्यग्निं यमं मातरिश्वानमाहुः ॥

ऋ० १.१६४.४६)

Which we have quoted already and where it is clearly stated that One God is called by the wise by the name of Indra, Mitra and Varuna etc. to denote His different attributes.

That Varuna also means the sun is clear from the following passage of the Jaimineeyopanishad Brahmana 4.27.3 वरुण एव सविता (जैमि० उ० ४. २७. ३) i. e. Varuna is सविता or the sun.

The meaning of the third line of the Mantra therefore as explained by Rishi Dayananda and substantiated by the above authentic literature is that the laws of God and under His command, of the sun are inviolable and eternal.

TRANSLATION

(1) O God praised by many devotees, I glorifying Thee with the Vedic hymns and adoring (never showing disrespect) approach Thee to give that Happiness which the performer of the threefold Yajna (non-violent sacrifice) desires to achieve taking shelter in Thee. Kindly be known to me i. e. enlighten me so that I may know Thee well and do not snatch away or end our life (pre-, maturly).

(2) In the case of the sun, the meaning is—may I know the real nature of the sun whose praise is sung by us through the Vedas, showing its properties or attributes, desiring happiness derived from good health, so that we may live long, may not our life be cut short by not making proper use of the heat and light of the sun.

PURPORT

Men should attain happiness by knowing the attributes of God and the sun. None should ever dishonour God or neglect the science of the sun. All should try to prolong their lives by obeying the commands of God and by knowing the properties of the objects created by Him.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(यजमानः) त्रिविधस्य यज्ञस्य अनुष्ठाता

(अहेडमानः) अनादरमकुर्वाणः

(हविर्भिः) हवनादिभिः साधनैः

= By Havana and other means.

(बोधि) विदितो भव, विदितगुणो वा भव

= Be known to us, may we know its (sun's) attributes.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

हेड़्—अनादरे = to dishonour.

By लिविधयज्ञ is meant देवपूजा Respect shown to God and enlightened truthful persons, संगतिकरण association with the people to accomplish social and national duties for the welfare of all and दान Charity to promote the interests of society.

It may also mean three kinds of Yajnas (1) spiritual or mental Yajna consisting of ज्ञान यज्ञ स्वाध्याय acquisition of knowledge through the study of the Vedas known as ब्रह्मयज्ञ (२) आधिभौतिक यज्ञ or discharge of social or national duties by association with others संगतिकरण (३) आधिदैविक यज्ञ or cosmic Yajna in the form of Havan etc. meant for the purification of the air and water etc.

Learned persons who are desirous of knowledge by night and by day repeat this knowledge based upon the Vedas and other Shastras. This too the thought of my own heart, repeateth. May He —the Sovereign God Whom a man with a touch of knowledge invokes or sincerely prays, release us from all sins. May the knowledge acquired from the study of the Vedas set us—industrious and righteous persons free from all sinful tendencies.

PURPROT

All men should thus believe and preach to others. We should keep ourselves away from all sins by accepting what God, the Vedas and the learned persons tell us and which I also determine with pure intellect. You should accept the same.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अस्मान्) पुरुषार्थिनो धार्मिकान्

= To us industrious and righreous persons

(वरुणः) श्रेष्ठः = Good.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

शुनः-विज्ञानवतः is derived from श्वि गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च । Here the first meaning of knowledge is meant. It is wrong on the part of Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and others to take the word शुनःशेप as the name of a particular person as there cannot be any historical reference in the Vedas, they being eternal. आख्या प्रवचनात्, परन्तु श्रुतिसामान्यम् (मीमांसा १, ३१, ३३) These and other aphorisms of the Meemansa are quite clear on the subject. Shri Kapali Shastri a famous Vedic Scholar of the South and a pupil of Ramana Maharshi and Yogi Shri Aurobindo has given the following derivative meaning of शुनःशेप (Shunah Shepa) in his Siddhanjana Commentary.

शुन इति सुखनाम (निघ० ३.६) शेपो रश्मिः अन्यत्र व्याख्यातम् शिपयो रश्मय उच्यन्ते (निरुक्ते ५.२.८) (ऋग्वेद प्रथमाष्टकस्य सिद्धाञ्जनभाष्ये श्री कपालिशास्त्रि-कृते (व० १ पृ० २५८) ।

Shri Madhava Pundalika Pandit (worthy disciple of Shri Kapali Shastri) in his illuminating essay on the 'Legend of Shunah Shepa" in the "Mystic Approach" to the Veda and the Upanishad throws further light on the subject and says regarding the term Shunah Shepa "What does Shunaha Shepa cannote ? Shunah denotes Bliss, Joy (Sukha Shabda Vachi) and Shepas ray (Rashmi) P. 96).

Rishi Dayananda himself has given another meaning to the word "Shunah Shepa" which is akin to what we have given above according to Shri Kapali Shastri and Shri M. P. Pandit- In his commentary on Rig. 5.2.7.

सुखस्य प्रापकम्

= One who causes happiness or joy.

TRANSLATION

O men, as a learned person who has a touch of the wisdom of the wise, invokes Immortal God or the Prana for the acquisition of knowledge, action and contemplation, so let us also invoke and accept Him (God). When so invoked, He reveals to us the real nature of these three i. e. knowledge, action and Contemplation or communion. As air is utilised by scientists for the manufacture of aeroplanes etc. with the wooden planks of the tree and other things, let us also do so. As God who is the Best knower and irresistible leader commands us to utilise things of the world, we should utilise them in the same manner. O God, deliver us from all bonds caused by sinful acts Thus utilised by us properly and methodically, all things of the world like the sun, air etc. loosen all our bonds of poverty. You should also therefore utilise them propely.

PURPORT

Men should know theroughly the properties of all the objects made by God and should associate with them action, and knowledge. We must be just as God is. Those sinful acts which cause bondage must be cast aside and meritorious acts should always be perormed by every one.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(पाशान्) अधर्माचरणजन्यान् बन्धान्

(गृभीतः) स्वीकृतः । हृग्रहोर्भः इति भः = Accepted.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The word आदित्य is derived from दो-अवखण्डने नञ् therefore अदिति means Imperishable or Immortal अदितिरेव आदित्यः (स्वार्थेऽण) So the word Aditya stands primarily for God, though it also means the sun, the Prana etc. For the primary meaning of the word Aditya as God, there is the Vedic authority itself.

तदेवाग्निस्तदादित्यस्तद् वायुस्तदु चन्द्रमाः ॥ (यजु० ३२.१)

i. e. God is called by the name of Agni, Aditya, Vayu, Chandrama and Brahma etc. That Aditya means the sun is too well known to require an authority. In the Jaimineeyopanishad Brahmana 1.44.5 it is stated

सहस्रं हैते आदित्यस्य रश्मयः ॥ (जैमिनीयोप० १.४४.५)

i. e. the sun has a thousand and one rays. Rishi Dayananda has interpreted aditya as Prana also besides God, for which the following passage from the Tandya Maha Brahmana can be aptly quoted.

प्राण आदित्यः ॥ (ताण्ड्य महाब्राह्मणे १६.१३.२)

अथ स कीदृश इत्युपदिश्यते ।

The same subject of Varuna is taught further in the fourteen-th Mantra.

TRANSLATION

O Resplendent Omniscient God dwelling in our Pranas or vital breaths, O Giver of knowledge to us, as Thou loosenest the bonds of the sins committed by us (by giving true knowledge) therefore, we desire to acquire Thy knowledge by homages, by Yajnas (noble deeds consisting of knowledge, communion with God and good actions) and by putting in fire the articles worthy of being given and taken.

PURPORT

Men should act in such a way that the sinful acts done by them may become loose by the enjoyment of their fruits and by the acquisition of knowledge. Men should also know that the fruits of actions trouble more an ingorant person than a man of wisdom.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(शिश्रथः) विज्ञानदानेन शिथिलानि करोतु

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and other commentators or translators of this Hymn have translated the word हेड: used here as क्रोधम् (सायण:) wrath (Wilson) anger (Griffith) but Rishi Dayananda has taken it in the sense of knowledge. The verb root from which the word हेड: is derived has got two meanings हिडि-गत्यनादरयो: Going and disregarding. Rishi Dayananda has taken the first meaning of गति which includes ज्ञान, गमन, प्राप्ति therefore he has explained it as हिड्यते विज्ञायते प्राप्यते य: स: = that which is known or obtained.

(यज्ञेभि:) has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda in the wiae sense of कर्मोपासनाज्ञाननिष्पादकै: कर्मभि: as is derived from यज-देवपूजासंगतिकरणदानेषु and therefore includes all the three elements of knowledge, action and communion. Karma is included in संगतिकरण (association with others for bringing about the welfare of society) and दान (Charity). ज्ञान is implied by देवपूजा respect for the wise who impart knowledge and then acquiring knowledge from them as the first daily Yajna — ब्रह्म यज्ञ includes संध्या (Meditation on or communion with God) and the study of the Vedas or Holy Scriptures.

Thus Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is substantiated by the root-meaning of यज and by the verses of the Bhagavad Gita etc. where explaining various kinds of Yajnas, it is stated—

द्रव्ययज्ञास्तपोयज्ञाः, योगयज्ञास्तथाऽपरे ।
स्वाध्यायज्ञानयज्ञाश्च, यतयः संशितव्रताः ॥

(गीता अ० ४.२८)

TRANSLATION

O God, Dispeller of all darkness, Immortal and most acceptable, cast asunder from us all fetters of higher kind (belonging to mind) of middle nature (regarding progeny, wealth and reputation) and of lower nature (belonging to sexual impulse etc.) so that O imperishable Supreme Being, being thus free and sinless, may we be fit for attaining immortality and emancipation.

PURPORT

It is only those persons who obey the commands of God (as given in the Vedas) and being pure keep themselves away from all bonds of misery, attain abiding happiness and none else. This hymn has connection with the previous hymn and here Praja Pati, Savita and Varuna have been mentioned as the names and attributes of God.

Here ends the 15th varga of the 2nd Chapter. Here ends the 24th Hymn of the 6th Anuvaka in the first Mandala.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Sayanacharya, and others have committed the blunder of taking the word Shunah Shepa as the name of a particular person with whom they have associated some absurd stories which need not be mentioned here, have taken the पाश or three snares mentioned in Mantra 13th and 15th literally as उत्तमम् शिरसिबद्धम् अधमं पदेऽवस्थितम् मध्यमं नाभिप्रदेशगतम् (सायण:) which Wilson in his foot notes translates "The ligature fastening the head, the feet and the waist. (Wilson on P. 240).

The bonds according to Sayana, the ligatures fastening the head, the waist and the feet." (Griffith).

But let it be said to the credit of Griffith that he has not supported Sayanacharya in this interpretation and has boldly remarked correctly that "But the bonds of sin are here intended.

Wilson has not expressed his dissent so clearly, but after quoting Sayanacharya's interpretation, taking the bonds or ligatures literally has remarked:

"The result, however, is not loosening from actual bonds, but from those of sin. अनागस: स्याम, , May we be sinless (Note on P. 240). Rishi Dayananda was therefore quite right in explaining पाशान् (म० १३) as in the 13th Mantra अधर्माचरणजन्यबन्धान् the bonds caused by unrighteous conduct.

It is worth while to quote a few lines from the "Mystic approach to the Veda and the Upanishad's by Shri Madhava Pundalika Pandit a distinguished South indian Vedic Seholar in the course of his essay on "The legend of Shunah Shepa."

He explains the three bonds as follows—

"We have known it as the division of matter, life and mind अन्न, प्राण मन Anna, Prana and Manas. These indeed comprise the tree with three places द्रुपद mentioned in the Rik. To These three, body, life and mind, the Jiva which is embodied Ray of Bliss is tied and bound. The bond above refers to the bonds that ties the being to the mental roof, the bond below to the moorings in the Inconscient जड (Jada) matter, and the bond between obviously stands for the grip of the vital Prana. The bonds do not certainly mean the ligatures fastening the head, the waist and the feet as explained by Sayana. For if they do, what is the significance of the line that follows immediately as a consequence — अनागसः स्याम (Anagasah Syama — faultless, sinless shall we become.) How can a physical release from a post make a man faultless, sinless etc.". .(Mystric Approach to the Veda by M. P. Pandit, P. 105). This substantiates Rishi Dayanada's spiritual stand point and is therefore very significant coming from the pen of a distingnished S. Indian Vedic Scholar.

(वेनन्ता) वादित्रवादकौ। अत्र वेन् धातोर्वादित्रार्थो गृह्यते। सुपां सुलुगित्याकारादेशश्च। (युच्छतः) हर्षं कुरुतः। = Give delight

(दाशुषे) दानकर्त्रे। = To the Giver

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted वेनन्ता as वादित्रवादकौ = players on musical instruments. It is derived from वेन् गति ज्ञान चिन्ता निशामन वादित्र ग्रहणेषु here the meaning of वादित्र has been taken प्रयुच्छत: has been explained by Rishi Dayananda as प्रकर्षेण हर्षं कुरुत: = Give great pleasure. प्रयुच्छत: is derived from युच्छ-प्रमादे मदी-हर्षे Therefore it means—give great pleasure or happiness. The Devata or subject of the Mantra is मित्रवरुणौ Mitra means sun is admitted on all hands. अहर्वैमित्रः (ऐत० ४.१०) When day is called मित्र the sun as maker or lord of the day is certainly called मित्र in Mantras like मित्रो जनान् यातयति ब्रुवाणो मित्रो दाधारपृथिवीमुतद्याम्॥ (ऋ० ३.५९.१) In यः प्राण: स वरुण: (गोपथ उ० ४.११) and other passages of the Brahmanas the word वरुण has been used for प्राण वायु = vital air. Hence Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is quite correct and based upon ancient authorities.

(2) As God keeps us all our days on right path and prolongs our lives, in the same way, may a wise and just man who is brilliant like the sun keep us all our days in right path and prolong our lives by giving us proper instructions.

PURPORT

There are Shleshalankar (Paronomasia and वाचक लुप्तोपमालंकार or implied simile here. God with His Kindness, makes those persons full of bliss who prolong their lives by the observance of Brahmacharya (continence) and control of their senses. As the Prana and the sun divide the parts of time enlightening all high and low places and beings with their force and splendour and make them happy, in the same way, a just and righteous person should do and preach righteous acts with his body and army, and should keep away all unrighteous acts and should separate good men from bad persons.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(आदित्यः) विनाशरहितः परमेश्वरः, प्राणः सूर्यः आदित्यवत् तेजस्वी न्यायकारी जीवो वा (सुक्रतुः) शोभनानि प्रज्ञानानि कर्माणि वा यस्य सः ।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted आदित्यः here in various ways.

(1) The first meaning of the word Aditya he has given is विनाशरहितः परमेश्वरः It is derived from दो-अवखण्डने नञ अदितिरेव आदित्यः स्वार्थे = Imperishable or Immortal.

असौ वा आदित्यो ब्रह्म ॥ (शतपथ ७.४.१.१४)

आदित्यो वै ब्रह्म ॥ (जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्राह्मणे ३.४.९)

and other passages of the Brahmanas substantiate strongly Rishi Dayananda's interpretation as God.

(2) The second meaning of आदित्य (Aditya) as given by Rishi Dayananda is प्राण: for which there is clear statement in the Jaimineeyopanishad 4.11.11.

आदित्या वै प्राणाः (जैमिनीयोप० ४.११.११)

प्राणा वा आदित्याः । प्राणा हीदं सर्वम् आददते ॥

(जैमिनीयोप० ४.२.९)

In the Tandya Maha Brahmana 16.13.2 it is clearly stated प्राण आदित्य:

So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation as Prana is quite authentic based upon the authority of the Brahmanas.

(3) The third meaning of the word Aditya given by the Rishi is आदित्य:- न्यायकारी मनुष्य:

In the Shatapath Brahmana 13.6.1.11 it is stated

असौ वा आदित्यः पाप्मनोऽपहन्ता (शतपथ १३.८.१.११)

In the Taittireeya 1.1.9-8 it is stated

एते खलु वाऽऽदित्या यद् ब्राह्मणाः (तैत्तिरीय १.१.९.८)

By Adityas are meant true Brahmanas—the knowers of God and the Vedas. Even if the well-known meaning of आदित्य as sun is taken, persons full of splendour like the sun who destroy the darkness of ignorance can certainly be taken by it. That is why those who observe Brahmacharya upto the age of 48 years or more are called Aditya Brahmacharis.

TRANSLATION

(1) God ! the most acceptable and the Best in whom all embodied beings and things abide, covers all from all sides, wearing the resplendent armour of knowledge.

(2) In the case of the sun as Varuna, the meaning is the sun in whose light all substances that can be touched abide, wearing its golden amour or light, covers all objects with its splendour.

(3) In the case of a hero the meaning will be — A hero who binds his enemies with various snares wearing a shining armour covers or overomes un-righteous foes with his splendour. All substances abide in the light of his knowledge and justice.

PURPORT

There is Shleshalankar or Paronomasia in this Mantra.

Omniscient God being the Innermost Spirit of all, revealing the pure light, dispels the sleep or ignorance of the righteous persons. In the same way, the sun dispels the darkness of the night. As God upholds all by His Omnipresence, the sun also sustains all by its attractive power.

(निर्णिजम्) शुद्धम् = Pure.

(स्पशः) स्पर्शवन्तः पदार्थाः = Substances.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

(वस्ते) आच्छादयति It is derived from वस-आच्छादने अदा०

(निर्णिजम्) शुद्धम् = Pure. It is derived from णिजिर्-शौचपोषणयो: To wash, to purify.

(स्पशः) स्पर्शवन्तः पदार्थाः

= Substances that can be touched, it is derived from

(2) In the case of God the meaning is–Yearning for the Omniscient God my thoughts move onward unto Him as kine unto their pastures move.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in this Mantra—

Men should know that as the kine running to the best of their power, become tired when they reach their destination, in the same way, when men search after the sttributes according to their power and intellect of God, and of the sun etc. and having known to some extent according to their capacity, get tired because the intellect and the power of the body of every man in limited and can not be unlimited. As birds flying in the sky do not get its end, similarly none can get the end of knowledge.

TRANSLATION

As a priest gives sweet satisfactory knowledge gathered by the wise to the performer of the Yajna for giving him strength to dispel darkness of ignorance, so let us-the teachers and the taught-speak to one another lovingly, so that our wisdom may grow from day to day.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in this mantra. As a priest and the performer of a Yajna (Non-violent sacrifice) accomplish Yajna lovingly and jointly, in the same manner, the teacher and the taught should manifest all sciences jointly and lovingly. All men should endeavour to attain happiness, bearing in mind the idea of increasing their knowledge and wisdom.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मधु) मधुरगुणविशिष्टं विज्ञानम् = Sweet knowledge.

(आभृतम्) विद्वद्भिः समन्ताद् ध्रियते धार्यते तत् = Gathered by the wise.

(क्षदसे) अविद्यारोगान्धकारविनाशकाय बलाय = for the strength to dispel the disease and darkness of ignorance.

(प्रियम्) यत् प्रीणाति तत् = Satisfactory, dear.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda explains मधु as मधुरगुणविशिष्टं विज्ञानम् for it is derived from मन्-ज्ञाने मनेर्धश्छन्दसि (उणादि० २.११६) मन्यते बुध्यते यत् येन या तद् मधु Sweet knowledge छदसे has been interpreted by the Rishi as अविद्यारोगान्धकारविनाशकबलाय as the word is derived from छदति:- शकलीकरणार्थ: In Apte's well-known Sanskrit-English Dictionary, we find the following note on छद Ved. To cut, to kill, to consume. So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is substantiated by the root-meaning.

O Ye men, being established in the conduct full of forgiveness and endurance, you should lovingly listen to these my words which are refined on account of the noble Vedic teaching, in order to see God who is worthy of being realised by all wise men and also to visualise charming aeroplanes and other suitable vehicles for your happiness.

PURPORT

Because it is not possible to know God and the nature of the vehicles manufactured with the help of the arts and sciences without personal contact in the form of questions and answers with the learned persons of forgiving sweet nature, therefore men should always acquire such knowledge with the assistance of the wise.

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

(विश्वदर्शतम्) सर्वैर्विद्वद्भिः द्रष्टव्यं जगदीश्वरम् ।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

दर्शतः—दृशेः भृम दृशियजिपर्वि पच्यमितमिनमि हर्य्यिभ्यो-ऽतच् (उणा० ३.११०) इति अतच् प्रत्ययः ।

(क्षमि) Rishi Dayananda's interpretation given above is based upon the root meaning of क्षमूष्-सहने to endure or forgive. Other commentators have generally interpreted it as 'on earth' depending on क्षमेति पृथिवी नामसु (निघ० १.१) But they have to change क्षमि into क्षमायाम् as Sayanacharya, Shri Kapali Shastri and others have done. क्षमि-क्षमायाम् (आतोऽभावः छान्दस इति श्री कपालि शास्त्रिणः)

Though Shri Kapali Shastri explains all these Mantras

spiritually, Sayanacharya, Wilson and Griffith think it to mean that the chariot of Varuna on earth and in the sky is seen by the seer which is a very erroneous notion, as the Vedic conception of God is of an Omnipresent, Formless, Omnipotent and Omniscient Supreme Being which Sayanacharya and Western scholars have not unfortunately been able to grasp. Hence their translations like.

"I have seen him (Varuna) whose appearance is graceful to all, I have beheld his chariot upon earth, he has accepted these my praises." (Wilson).

Or "Now saw I him (Varuna) whom all may see, I saw his car above the earth. He hath accepted these my songs." (Griffith) are not reliable being against the very spirit of the fundamental Vedic teachings about God.

What a great solemnity and significance is there in Rishi Dayananda's above interpretation showing the harmony between the spiritual and secular aspirations.

(2) The prayer may also be addressed to a wise man of realisation who dispels the darkness of ignorance.

As Omniscient God gives true Happiness to His devotees after being glorified by them with true love, learned wise men should also do like that.

पुनः स ईश्वरः कीदृश इत्युपदिश्यते ।

How is that God is further taught in the 20th Mantra.

Mantra—20

त्वं विश्वस्य मेधिर दिवश्च ग्मश्च राजसि ।
स यामनि प्रति श्रुधि ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे मेधिर वरुण त्वं यथा यः (जगदीश्वरः) दिवः च ग्मश्च विश्वस्य यामनि राजति सः अस्माकं स्तुतिं प्रति शृणोति तथा एतन्मध्ये राजसि (राजेः) स्तुतिं प्रतिश्रुधि (शृणु) ॥

As God who shinest over heaven and earth and all the world at all times, listens to our prayers, so O wise man, you should also do and respond to our call.

PURPORT

God has divided the world in two ways. One is brilliant like the sun etc. and the other without light like the earth etc. Time is there as the common cause of their appearance and disappearance. God pervading all hearts even the intentional words of all beings. Therefore none should even think of doing anything un-righteous. All men should know this well and conduct themselves accordingly.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(ग्मः) पृथिव्यादेः ग्मेतिपृथिवी नामसु (निघ० १.१)
= Of the earth etc.

(यामनि) यान्ति गच्छन्ति यस्मिन् कालावयवे प्रहरे तस्मिन् ॥ = At suitable time.

(श्रुधि) शृणु । अत्र बहुलं छन्दसीति श्नतोर्लुक् श्रुशृणु पृकृवृभ्यश्छन्दसि (अ० ६.४.१०२) इति हेर्धिश्च ।

पुनः स कीदृश इत्युपदिश्यते ।

The nature of that (Varuna) is taught further in the 21st Mantra.

Mantra—21

उदुत्तमं मुमुग्धि नो वि पाशं मध्यमं चृत ।
अवाधमानि जीवसे ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः) ।

हे वरुण अविद्यान्धकारविदारक ईश्वर । त्वं करुणया नः (अस्माकं) जीवसे उत्तमं मध्यमं पाशम् उन्मुमुग्धि अधमानि बन्धनानि च वि अवचृत ॥

TRANSLATION

O God the Destroyer of the darkness of ignorance, release us from the upper bond (belonging to mental plane) untie the bond between (belonging to Prana or vital plane) and loose the bonds below (belonging to the body) that we may live long and happily.)

PURPORT

As righteous persons engaging themselves in doing good to others and being enlightened pray to God and He releasing them from all misery and bondage makes them happy, why should we not do also like that ?

This hymn is connected with the previous hymn as it tells us about Varuna (the most acceptable God).

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(पाशम्) बन्धनम् = Bond.

(चृत) नाशय । अत्रान्तर्गतो ण्यर्थः = Destroy.

(जीवसे) चिरं जीवितुम् = For living long.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

चृती–हिंसाग्रन्थनयोः तुदादिः ।

The three bonds mentioned above are concerning mind, Prana and body as explained before.

इति पंचविंशं सूक्तं समाप्तम् ।

Here ends the twenty fifth hymn of the first Mandala of the Rigveda Sanhita.

Seer—Shunah Shepa, Devata or subject — Agni, Metre—Gayatri with its variations.

तत्रादिमन्त्रे होतुयजमानगुणा उपदिश्यन्ते॥

In the first Mantra, the attributes of the priest and the performer of Yajna are taught.

Mantra—1

वसिष्वा हि मियेध्य वस्त्राण्यूर्जां पते।
सेमं नो अध्वरं यज॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे ऊर्जां पते मियेध्य होतः यजमान वा त्वम् एतानि वस्त्राणि वसिष्व हि नः (अस्माकम्) अध्वरं यज (संगमय)॥

TRANSLATION

O protector of strength, force and food, O caster of various substances in the firmament (through fire in the Yajna), O priest or performer of the Yajna, put on these clothes of cotton, wool or silk and perform this our non-violent sacrifice of three kinds

PURPORT

The Yajamana (performer of the Yajna)should select many learned persons who are well-versed in various arts and having honoured them properly, he should accomplish under their guidance, many works and thus attain happiness and give it to others. No one can accomplish any secular or spiritual work without the assistance of good and wise persons.

THE COMMENTATORS NOTES

(वसिष्व) धर। अत्र छन्दस्युभयथेति आर्धधातुकत्वमाश्रित्य लोट्यपि बलादि लक्षण इट्— = Put on.

(मियेध्य) मिनोति प्रक्षिपति अन्तरिक्षं प्रति अग्निद्वारा पदार्थान् तत्सम्बुद्धौ। अत्र डुमिञ् धातोः औणादिको बाहुलकात् केध्यच् प्रत्ययः—

(वस्त्राणि) कार्पासोर्णाकौशेयकादीनि।

(ऊर्जाम्) बलपराक्रमान्नानाम्॥

Of strength and food.

(अध्वरम्) त्रिविधं यज्ञम्।

= Non violent sacrifices of three kinds.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

वसिष्व is from वस-आच्छादने।

मिमेध्य is from मिञ्—प्रक्षेपणे

To throw or Cast, hence the meaning given above.

ऊर्जाम् = The word ऊर्क् is derived from ऊर्ज बल प्राणनयोः धातुपाठे चुरा० Therefore it means strength or force, energy. In the Shatapath Brahmana 3-2. 1. 33, it is stated अन्नं वा ऊर्क् By Oork food is meant.

In the Nirukta 3.8 it is clearly stated.

ऊर्गिति अन्ननाम ऊर्जयतीति सतः निरुक्ते ३.८)।

So it is evident that the meanings of ऊर्क् as given by Rishi

Dayananda are based upon Dhatu Patha, Shatapath Brahmana and Nirukta of Yaskacharya अध्वरम् has been explained by Rishi Dayananda as त्रिविधं यज्ञम् अध्वरम् इति यज्ञनाम ध्वरति हिंसा कर्मा तत्प्रतिषेध इति (निरुक्ते १७) So it means non-violent sacrifice which is of three Kinds देवपूजा, संगतिकरण, दान The worship of God and respect for the wise, association and charity or ज्ञान, कर्म. उपासना Knowledge, action and communion with God.

पुनः स कीदृश इत्युपदिश्यते ।

How is that is taught, further in the 2nd Mantra.

Mantra—2

नि नो होता वरेण्यः सदा यविष्ठ मन्मभिः ।
अग्ने दिवित्मता वचः ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे यजिष्ठ अग्ने (यजमान) यः मन्मभिः सह वर्तमानः वरेण्यः होता नः (अस्माकम्) दिवित्मता वचः (संगमयति) स त्वया सर्वदा संगन्तव्यः ॥

TRANSLATION

O powerful Yajamana full of knowledge, you should always associate with a learned person who is selected by us, because he is giver of happiness on account of his industriousness, wisdom and other virtues and who unites our speech with resplendent knowledge

PURPORT

Men should accomplish all their good desires with the assistance of noble persons. Without association with such noble wise persons, none can enjoy happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(होता) सुखदाता — Giver of happiness.

(मन्मभिः) मन्यते जानन्ति जना यैः पुरुषार्थैः तैः अत्र कृतो बहुलम् इति वार्तिकेन अन्येभ्योऽपि–
दृश्यते (अष्टा० ३.२.७५) अनेन करणेमनिन् प्रत्ययः

By industriousness etc. which help in the acquirement of knowledge.

(अग्ने) विज्ञानादिप्रसिद्धस्वरूप ॥

(दिवित्मता) दिवं प्रकाशम् इन्धते यैः प्रशस्तैः स्वगुणैः तद्वता । अत्र दिव् शब्दोपपदात् इन्धधातोः कृतो बहुलम् इति करणकारके प्रशंसायां मतुप् ॥

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

होता — is derived from हु-दानादनयोः आदाने च here the first meaning of the verb दान or giving has been taken, therefore the meaning as सुखदाता Giver of happiness अग्ने has been interpreted as विज्ञानादि प्रसिद्ध-स्वरूप because it is derived from अगि-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्था:ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च here the first meaning of ज्ञान or knowledge has been taken, therefore the meaning as given above. अग्नि:कस्मात् अग्रणीर्भवति (निरुक्ते ७.१४)

According to this etymology given in the Nirukta, a wise leader also is called Agni.

Not understanding the deeper meaning, Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and others have taken Agni only as fire, and have translated as–

"Propitiated by brilliant strains, do thou ever youthful Agni, selected by us, become our ministrant priest, invested with radiance." (Wilson).

Sit ever to be chosen, as our priest, most youthful, through our hymns, O Agni, through our heavenly word." (Griffith). How can this inanimate material fire be the priest (होता) as stated in the Mantras ? These translators have never bothered to think, following Sayanacharya who explains it as होमनिष्पादकः Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is therefore rational and substantiated by ancient authorities.

पुनः स कीदृश इत्युपदिश्यते ।

How is that Agni is further taught in the third Mantra.

Mantra– 3

आ हि ष्मा सूनवे पितापिर्यजत्यापये ।
सखा सख्ये वरेण्यः ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

(हे मनुष्याः) यथा पिता सूनवे सखा सख्ये आपिः आपये आ यजति तथा एव अन्योन्यं संप्रीत्या कार्याणि संसाध्य हि स्म सर्वोपकाराय यूयं संगच्छध्वम् ॥

TRANSLATION

(1) When addressed to God the meaning is clear. Thou O Omniscient God art verily as a loving father to a son, as a kinsman giving happiness to a virtuous kinsman, as the most acceptable friend to a friend.

(2) O men, as a father behaves towards to his son, as a kinsman causing happiness to his virtuous kinsman and as a good friend to his friend, in the same way, you should behave in a friendly manner towards one another and having accomplished all tasks, should be united for the welfare of all

There is implied simile here.

As a kind and loving father who causes happiness to his sons, as a friend causing happiness to his friends and a learned teacher to his students,all men should love one another and always put forth their united efforts for bringing about the welfare of all. This is the teaching given by God.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(आपिः) सुखप्रापकः । अत्र आप्लृ–व्याप्तौ अस्मात् इण-जादिभ्यः (अष्टा० ३.३.१०८) इतिइण् प्रत्ययः ।

(यजति) संगच्छते = Unites.

(आपये) सद्गुणव्यापिने = For a virtuous person.

पुनस्ते कथं वर्तेरन्नित्युपदिश्यते ।

How should men behave is taught in the fourth Mantra.

Mantra—4

आ नो बर्हिरिशादसो वरुणो मित्रो अर्यमा ।
सीदन्तु मनुषो यथा ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

(हे मनुष्याः) यथा रिशादसः (दुष्टहिंसकाः) सभ्याः वरुणः मित्रः अर्यमा मनुष्यः न बर्हिः सीदन्ति (तथा भवंतः अपि सीदन्तु) ॥

O men, sit down on your seats which are pleasant as cultured men who are destroyers of internal and external foes or diseases, well versed in various sciences, friendly to all and dispensers of justice do in assemblies, so you should also do.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used here—
All men should behave in meetings as cultured and civilised men, experts in conducting assemblies do.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(बर्हिः) सर्वसुखप्रापकमासनम् । बर्हिरिति पदनामसु पठितम् । (निघ० ५.२) ।

Seat which is pleasant or comfortable.

(रिशादसः) रिशानां हिंसकानां रोगाणां वा अदस उपक्षयितारः

Destroyers of foes or diseases

(वरुणः) सकलविद्यासु वरः

Good or well-versed in all sciences.

(मित्रः) सर्वं सुहृत Friendly to all (वरुण:) न्यायाधीश:=Judge

(मनुषः) मन्यन्ते जानन्ति ये सभ्या मर्त्याः ते, अत्र मन धातोर्बाहुलकादौणादिक उसिः प्रत्ययः ।

= Learned civilised persons.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and others take Varuna, Mitra and Aryama as the names of particular Gods, but Rishi Dayananda takes them derivatively as is the rule of the Vedic Terminology सर्वाणि नामान्याख्यातजानि as the adjectives qualifying good men as मनुषः has been explained by Rishi Dayananda as learned civilised men (सभ्यामर्त्या:) Sayanacharya explains मनुष: wrongly as मन ज्ञाने मन्यते जानातीति मनुः प्रजापतिः तत्र दृष्टान्तः–यथा मनु :–प्रजापतेर्यज्ञमासीदन्ति वरुणादयो देवा: As devas (Gods sit in the Yajna of Praja Pati.)

Wilson translates it accordingly as "Let Varuna, Mitra, Arya, sit down upon our sacred grass, as they did at the sacrifice of Manu. (Wilson) He does not follow Sayanacharya in taking Manu for Prajapati. Griffith though taking Varuna, Mitra and Aryama as Gods, explains मनुष: as men but in his foot-note says "Like men, or according to Sayana, as they sat at the sacrifice of Manus, who is the same as Manu."

(Griffith's translation P. 54).

Shri Kapali Shastri interprets मनुषो यथा as मनुष्या इव and quotes Skanda Swami also who says मनुष:–मनुष्या इति स्कन्द स्वामी Then referring to Sayanacharya's interpretation, he remarks प्रजापतेरितिसायण: । देवा: प्रजापतेर्यज्ञमागता: किले ? Did the Devas attend the Yajna of Praja Pati ?

Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is therefore consistent with the Vedic terminology and rational.

पुनः स कथं वर्तेत इत्युपदिश्यते ।।

How should a man behave is further taught in the fifth Mantra.

Mantra—5

पूर्व्य होतरस्य नो मन्दस्व सख्यस्य च ।
इमा उ षु श्रुधी गिरः ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे पूर्व्य होतः (यजमान वा) त्वं नः (अस्माकम्) अस्य सख्यस्य मन्दस्व (मोदस्व कामयस्व) उ—इति वितर्के नः (अस्माकम्) इमाः वेदविद्यासंस्कृताः गिरः सु श्रुधि (शृणु) श्रावय वा ॥

TRANSLATION

O performer or priest of the Yajna whose friendship has been made by experienced learned persons, be pleased with and desire this our friendship and listen to these our words refined by the study of the Vedas, make us hear them again and again.

PURPORT

Men should have friendship with all other men and should become enlightened by receiving proper education and wisdom.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(पूर्व्यः) पूर्वैर्विद्वद्भिः कृतो मित्रः । अत्र पूर्वैः कृतमिनियौ च (अष्टा० ४.४.१३४) अनेन पूर्वशब्दाद् यः प्रत्ययः ।

= Made friends by elderly or experienced learned men.

(मन्दस्व) मोदस्व—कामयस्व = Desire and be glad.

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

(हे नरः) यथा वयं शश्वता तना (कारणेन) इत (एव) सहितम् (उत्पन्नं) यं देवं देवंचित् अपि यजामहे (संगच्छामहे) त्वे हि खलु हविः हूयते (तथा यूयम् अपि जुहोत) ॥

TRANSLATION

O men, whatever object like the earth etc. or learned persons we come across in this world, is produced by the eternal and vast material cause-Matter. The fire in which oblation is put is also the product of Matter. You should also put oblation in the fire born out of matter.

PURPORT

Men should have association with learned persons and know that whatever visible or invisible things exist in this world, are the products of the vast eternal cause-Matter.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(शश्वता) अनादिना कारणेन = Eternal cause.

(तना) विस्तृतेन = Vast तनु-विस्तारे (देवं देवम् विद्वांसं)

पृथिव्यादिदिव्यगुणं पदार्थं वा

= Learned person, or earth etc. full of divine properties.

(हविः) होतव्यं द्रव्यम् = Oblation to be put in fire.

पुनरस्माभिः परस्परं कथं वर्तितव्यमित्युपदिश्यते ।

How should we deal with one another is taught in the seventh Mantra.

Mantra—7

प्रियो नो अस्तु विश्पतिर्होता मन्द्रो वरेण्यः ।
प्रियाः स्वग्नयो वयम् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः) ।

TRANSLATION

O men, as we (subjects) who perform Yajnas well and who use fire that gives us happiness for various purposes are loved by the rulers and the protector of men (the President) who performs Yajnas, is praise-worthy righteous person elected by us is dear to us, so let all others have love towards one another.

PURPORT

As we deal with all in a friendly manner and others deal with us in the same way, so you should also do.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(विश्पतिः) विशां प्रजानां पालकः सभापती राजा ।

= President King who is the protector of his subjects.

(मन्द्रः) स्तोतुर्महो धार्मिकः अत्र स्फायि तंचि वंचि मन्दि-चन्दि-शुभियो रक् (उणा० २.१३) इति रक् प्रत्ययः ।

TRANSLATION

As enlightened virtuous persons possessed of holy fires have kept for us the group of useful things, so we also performing Yajnas may learn from them various sciences.

PURPORT

Men should try to know the properties or attributes of all the objects created by God in this world and accomplish their works.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(देवासः) दिव्यगुणयुक्ता विद्वांसः । पृथिव्यादयो वा अत्र आज्जसेरसुक् । (अष्टा० ७.१.५०) इत्यसुगागमः ॥

= Learned men endowed with divine virtues or earth etc.

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे अमृत (जगदीश्वर) भवत्कृपया यथा उत्तमगुण कर्मग्रहणेन अथ नः (अस्माकम्) उभयेषां मर्त्यानां मिथः प्रशस्तयः सन्तु (तथा सर्वेषां भवन्तु इति प्रार्थयामः ॥

TRANSLATION

O immortal God, by Thy Grace, may the praises of mankind consisting of highly learned and ordinary persons be mutually the source of happiness to all, by the acceptance of good virtues and actions.

PURPORT

Men can not enjoy happiness unless they give up all attachment and jealousy and engage themselves in the performance of admirable acts with knowledge, education and industriousness. Then all men should obey the commands of God and bring about the welfare of all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(उभयेषाम्) पण्डितापण्डितानाम्

= Both of highly learned scholars and of ordinary persons.

(प्रशस्तयः) उत्तमगुणकर्मग्रहणे प्रशंसाः

= Praises on account of the acceptance of good virtues and actions.

पुनस्ते कथं वर्तेरन्नित्युपदिश्यते ।

Mantra—10

विश्वेभिरग्ने अग्निभिरिमं यज्ञमिदं वचः ।

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः) ।

हे अग्ने यहो त्वं यथा दयालुर्विद्वान् सर्वसुखार्थं सहसो

(बलात्) विश्वेभिः अग्निभिः इमं यज्ञम् इदं वचः चनः च धा: (हितवान्) तथा त्वम् अपि सततं धेहि ॥

TRANSLATION

O the son of an artist, a learned wise man, as a kindhearted learned man performs with all his energy this Yajna with all kinds of fire consisting of electricity, sun and the material fire, uses in praise words full of wisdom and takes proper food for giving happiness to all, so you should also do constantly.

PURPORT

Men should tell their children that there is an eternal subtle causal force (Agni) from which electricity and other effects are produced and from them digestive fire and various other forms of fire are generated. All these forms of fire are upheld or sustained by the causal force. All the acts of fire are done with the help of the wind. Without fire and air, no substance in the world can be sustained.

This hymn is connected with the previous hymn as the subject of varuna has been amplified with the description of agni (fire) here.

Thus ends the 21st Varga of the 2nd Chapter of the first Ashtaka.

Here ends the 26th Hymn of the Ist Mandala.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अग्ने) विद्यासुशिक्षायुक्त विद्वन्

(अग्निभिः) विद्युत सूर्यप्रसिद्धैः कार्यरूपै स्त्रिभिः

= Three kinds of fire consisting of electricity, sun and the material fire

(सहसः) सहते सहो वायुस्तस्य बलस्वरूपस्य ।

Of force of the wind.

(चनः) भक्ष्यभोज्य लेह्यचूष्याख्यम् ।

Food of various kinds.

(यह्वो) क्रियाकौशलयुक्तस्यापत्यं तत् सम्बुद्धौ यह्वुरिति अपत्यनामसु पठितम् (निघ० २.२)

The son of an artist.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted अग्ने here as विद्यासुशिक्षायुक्त विद्वन् as the word अग्नि is derived from अगि-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च The first meaning of ज्ञान or knowledge has been taken here on which is based the Rishi's interpretation.

Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and other commentators have wrongly taken the meaning of material fire, to which it is not really applicable.

अथ सप्तविंशं सूक्तम्

HYMN XXVII.

अस्य सप्तविंशस्य सूक्तस्याजीगर्तिः शुनःशेप ऋषिः। १-१२ देवता अग्निः। १३ विश्वेदेवा देवताः। १-१२ गायत्री। १३ त्रिष्टुप् छन्दः। १-१२ षड्जः स्वरः। १३ धैवतः स्वरः।

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

वयं नमोभिः वारवन्तम् अश्वं न (इव) अध्वराणाम् सम्राजन्तम् त्वाम् अग्निं वन्दध्यै (वन्दितुम्) प्रवृत्ताः (सेवामहे)॥

TRANSLATION

With homage, we engage ourselves in revering a learned person who shines in all kinds of Yajnas (non-violent noble acts beginning with the protection of State and upto Agnihotra.

There is Upamalankara or simile in this Mantra. As an enlightened person shines in his Kingdom, so God shines everywhere on account of His Omniscience and other attributes.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अग्निम्) विद्वांसं भौतिकं वा।

= A learned person or fire.

(अध्वराणाम्)राज्यपालनाग्निहोत्रादिशिल्पान्तानां यज्ञानाम्
= Of Yajnas of various kinds from the administration of a State, Agnihotra and Artistic activities.

(अश्वम्) मार्गे व्यापिनम्

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda's comprehensive interpretation of Yajnas for all noble non-violent activities is very remarkable and significant as has been pointed out before.

अथापत्यगुणा पदिश्यन्ते ।

Now the virtues of a son are taught.

Mantra—2

स घा नः सूनुः शवसा पृथुप्रगामा सुशेवः ।
मीढ्वाँ अस्माकं बभूयात्॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

यः सूनुः (सुपुत्रः) शवसा पृथुप्रगामा मीढ्वान् अस्ति स नः (अस्माकं पुरुषार्थिनाम्) घ (एव) कार्यकारी बभूयात् (भवेत्)॥

TRANSLATION

May our sons who are active, travelling in various good and vast conveyances and source of happiness, be the showerers of happiness, be the showers of Joy and bliss to us-who are industrious.

PURPORT

As sons when well-trained, are righteous and learned, cause happiness to their parents by doing agreeable noble deeds, so this beneficial fire when utilised properly and methodically according to the scientific knowledge, accomplishes many pleasing tasks for us.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सूनुः) कार्यकारी सन्तानः सूनुरित्यपत्यनाम (निघ० २.२)
= Active son.

(शवसा) बलादि गुणेन

= On account of energy and other attributes.

(पृथुप्रगामा) पृथुभिः विस्तृतैः यानैः प्रकृष्टः गामः गमनं यस्य ।

(मीढ्वान्) वृष्टिद्वारा सेचकः ।

Showerer of joy and bliss.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Among the commentators of the Rigveda, it is Rishi Dayananda alone who has interpreted this Mantra as describing the attributes of a good son, as besides the word सूनु which admittedly means son, the adjectives like पृथु प्रगामा, सुशेवः, मीढ्वान् etc. clearly point to that. Others have taken it only in the sense of Agni, which is somewhat far-fetched Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is simple, straight forward and dealing with a practical subject.

पुनः स कीदृश इत्युपदिश्यते ।

How is he is taught further in the 3rd Mantra.

Mantra—3

स नो दूराच्चासाच्च नि मर्त्यादघायोः ।

स विश्वायुः अघायोः शत्रोः मर्त्यात् दूरात् आसात् च नः (अस्मान्) अस्माकं सदं च निपाहि (सततं) रक्षति) ॥

TRANSLATION

(1) From far away, and near do Thou the everlasting God from Whom all get happy life, protect our body and work of art and industry from a sinful person.

(2) A learned person protects us from the activities of a sinful person when properly approached and honoured.

PURPORT

There is Shleshalankara (Paronomasia) in this Mantra.

(1) When God is worshipped, He protects us from our foes in battles and gives us long life.

In the same way, a learned person when respectfully treated or worshipped, protects our aeroplanes etc. and tells us the means of attaining long life.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(आसात्) समीपात् । = From near.

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे अग्ने त्वं यथा देवेषु नव्यांसं गायत्रं सुसनिं प्रवोचः तथा इमम् उ-वितर्के अस्माकम् आत्मसु प्रवोचः (प्रवग्धि) ॥

TRANSLATION

O Omniscient God, awaken in our souls the wisdom of the four Vedas which gives ever new knowledge, which consists of Gayatri and other metres and which confers happiness on all beings, as Thou revealedst to the meritorious souls (Agni, Vayu, Aditya and Angiras) in the beginning of creation.

PURPORT

O Lord of the world, as Thou gavest great delight to the great righteous and nlightened seers like Brahma and others by revealing in their souls Perfect Truth, reveal the same in our souls, so that being enlightened, we may always be engaged in doing the best righteous deeds.

Giver of ever new knowledge.

(देवेषु) सृष्ट्यादौ पुण्यात्मसु जातेष्वग्निवाय्वादित्यां-गिरस्सु ।

= Most meritorious men born in the beginning of creation.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is to be noted lest there be some misunderstanding, that in the Mantra quoted above, there is no mame mentioned of the persons born in the beginning of human creation. It is just to give information about those four seers to whom the four Vedas were revealed according to the tradition handed down from time immemorial as mentioned in Manu Smriti Shatapath Brahmana and other ancient works, that Rishi Dayananda has given the names in his commentary.

TRANSLATION

O learned person, give us the teaching of all sciences at the time of the battles that cause us happiness (When victory over enemies is gained) or at the time of the enjoyment of good food, on the occasion of the enjoyment of intermediate happiness and at the time of the struggles that put an end to all miseries. Give unto us all kinds of wealth (internal as well as external) that leads us to happy life.

PURPORT

Served by righteous and industrious persons, a learned man having acquired the knowledge or all sciences, should make them happy. In this world, there are three kinds of enjoyments, worlds and men which may be classified as the best, medium and low. A wise man should impart knowledge to all these persons according to the level of their understanding and intellect.

TRANSLATION

O learned person, endowed with the wonderful radiance of various sciences, you are analyser and classifier of the sciences of various objects, like the waves or particles of the sea and soon rainest true wisdom on the person who surrenders himself to you for acquiring knowledge. Why should not we revere such a lucky wise and learned man ?

PURPORT

As the separate particles of the water of the sea become one or united when they reach the sky and as a learned wise person classifies all objects and reveals their knowledge in the souls of all men, why should we not do like wise ?"

= To a person acquiring knowledge.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

उपाके इति अन्तिकनाम (निघ० २.१६) Near दाशुषे is derived from दाशृ-दाने so literally it means "one who gives himself to the acquisition of knowledge or gives himself up (surrenders) to the teacher as Rishi Dayananda has explained in his commentary on the Rigveda 1.93.1

O God ! The man whom Thou protectest in battles (internal as well as external) and urgest to acquire knowledge and strength becomes the restrainer of his foes and the lord of eternal food (of wisdom). Thou be for ever our Controller or Director is what we pray for.

PURPORT

As God is the Protector, Creator and Supreme Director of His subjects from times immemorial, in the same manner, the man who worships Him-the Lord who is Omnipresent Protector from all sides and protects people, can never suffer and be defeated.

This vast, illimitable, smoke-bannered Agni (fire) which gives delight to many, leads us to great works and speed. Therefore it should be properly utilised.

PURPORT

God who is the Best, Infinite Support of all, Bestower of Bliss to His devotees, Lord of the wealth of wisdom is the Creator of the useful fire possessing many properties. May He prompt us to acquire pure wisdom and perform noble deeds.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अनिमानः) अविद्यमानं निमानं परिमाणं यस्य ।

= Giver of delight to many.

(धिये) कर्मणे = for action.

(वाजाय) वेगाय विज्ञानाय वा ।

= For speed (in case of fire), for wisdom in case of God.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

पुरु इति बहुनाम (निघ० ३.१) चदि-आह्लादे (भ्वा.) ।

Hence Rishi Dayananda's interpretation as

पुरूणां बहूनां चन्द्रः-आह्लादकः ।

Sayanacharya has translated पुरुश्चन्द्रः as बहुदीप्तिः which is not faithful, as it is not borne out by the root meaning of चदि

Wilson has simply followed Sayana translating the word as Resplendent and Griffith has rendered it in English as "Excellently bright."

TRANSLATION

O educated persons, we respect highly learned men and give them food. We respect students of lesser virtues with food and satisfy them. We show honour to young and mighty persons and we revere old enlightened persons. We respect all to the best of our ability. May we not omit the praise of elderly wise men.

PURPORT

God commands that men should be free from all pride and respect all with food and other articles. One should have association with the learned and always respect them to the best of one's ability and power. They should never be censured.

This hymn has great connection with the previous hymn as in it the learned men's attributes are mentioned. Here ends 27th hymn of the first Mandala.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(नमः) सत्करणम् अन्नं वा नमः इत्यन्ननाम (निघ० २.७)

= Respect and food.

(अर्भकेभ्यः) अल्पगुणेभ्यः विद्यार्थिभ्यः ।

For students of lesser age and virtues.

(आशिनेभ्यः) सकलविद्याध्यापकेभ्यः स्थविरेभ्यः ।

(देवाः) देवयन्ति प्रकाशयन्ति विद्याः तत्सम्बुद्धौ ।

O learned persons throwing light on all sciences.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

This mantra clearly shows that due respect should be duly shown to all and none should be hated. This use of नमः for अर्भकेभ्यः (children and students) is particularly significant.

(देवाः) विद्वांसो हि देवाः (शतपथ ३.७.३.१०) ।

= Learned persons are called devas. नमः has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda as सत्करणम् अन्नं वा, सेवा It is derived from णम्-प्रह्वीभावे and in the Nighantu 5.5 it is stated नमस्यतिः

परिचरणकर्मा (निघ० ३.५) So it means to bow in respect and to serve.

In Nighantu 2-7 it is stated नमः इत्यन्ननाम (निघ० २.७) So it is the name of food also.

So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is well-authenticated.

TRANSLATION

O performer of Yajnas, there where the broadbased stone is raised on high to put the juice out, take the substances ground in the mortar and guard them, use that mortar methodically for grinding the corn and make it sound again and again.

PURPORT

God commands, O men, you should keep a big stone in the midst of a pit for taking out the husk of barley and other corns or herbs and for taking out juice. It should be placed a little above the earth so that the effusion of the substance of the corn may be properly done. Having placed barley and other corns properly, grind them with pestle and make it sound.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Here Rishi Dayananda has interpreted इन्द्र (Indra) as यज्ञकर्मानुष्ठाता or ऐश्वर्यप्राप्तये तत्कर्मानुष्ठाता. As far as the latter meaning is concerned, It is based upon the root meaning of इदि-परमैश्वर्ये or the etymology given in the Nirukta as इदं करणात् The meaning of Indra as यज्ञकर्मानुष्ठाता is substantiated by the following passages from the Brahmanas.

एष वा एतर्हि इन्द्रो यो यजते ॥ (तैत्तिरीय० १.३.६.३)
इन्द्रो वै यजमानः ॥ (शत० २.१.२.११ ॥ ४.५.४.८)

TRANSLATION

O learned person, in the Yajna or kitchen in which there are two platters for containing the juice etc. like the thighs, making them properly, from the substances ground in the mortar, take out their essence and make the mortar sound again and again.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra. As men go about with the help of the things, in the same way, people should place one rock over the stone and the other over it for grinding. With their help, they should grind herbs and should eat them as prescribed. This should be the second means like the mortar and the pestle.

TRANSLATION

O master of the senses, where the housewife learns and practises giving and collecting the substances ground in the mortar and teaches others to do so, there you also hear about all this art and having learnt, teach it to others.

PURPORT

This art of the use of mortar which is essential for cooking and other domestic works must be learnt by house wives and be taught to others. Where cooking is done, mortar, pestle etc. should be placed there because without them powdering and grinding etc. is not possible.

हे विद्वन् ! यथा वातः इत् तस्य अस्य वनस्पतेः अग्रम् उत विवाति स्म अथो इत्यनन्तरम् इन्द्राय (जीवाय) सोमं पातवे (पातुं) सुनोति (निष्पादयति) तथा उलूखलेन यवाद्यम् ओषधिसमुदायं सुनु ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned person, as the wind gently blows before a forest tree and prepares the Soma (Juice of the herbs) for the beverage of the man, in the same way, with the use of the mortar, axtract the essence of the barley and other corns methodically.

PURPORT

When all plants and herbs are nourished by the wind, then men partake of their substance by putting them in the mortar and sip their juice also. Without it, the growth and nourishment of a substance is not possible.

(इन्द्राय) जीवाय = For the soul or living being.

(पातवे) पानं कर्तुम् अत्र तुमर्थे से सेनसे असेन्क्से कसेन् ध्यै अध्यैन् कध्यै कध्यैन् शध्यै शध्यैन् तवै तवेङ् तवेनः ॥ (अष्टा० ३.४.९) इति तवेन् प्रत्ययः ॥ = To drink or partake of.

(सोमम्) सर्वौषधसारम् = The essence of all herbs.

TRANSLATION

Men and women who mix or collect various articles and jointly conquer many battles, perform and uphold many sublime acts with the proper use of the mortar and pestle while taking proper and nourishing food. They act like two horses.

PURPORT

There is upamalankara or simile used here. As two horses which eat well draw a chariot, in the same manner, the mortar and pestle accomplish many works like dividing and grinding etc.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(आयजी) समन्ताद् यज्यन्ते संगम्यन्ते पदार्थां याभ्यां तौ स्त्रीपुरुषौ ॥

TRANSLATION

The great mortar and pestle which are prepared by the great experts in extracting juices etc. out of wood may be useful to us to-day for the activities leading to prosperity. With their help sweet and beneficial essence is prepared. They should be used by all.

PURPORT

As mortar and pestle are made of the stone, they can also be made of wood, iron, brass, silver and gold etc. With them nicely made, the juice of the herbs may be extracted.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(वनस्पती) काष्ठमयौ = Made of wood, wooden.

(ऋष्वौ) महान्तौ ऋष्व इति महन्नामसु पठितम् (निघ० ३.३) । = Great, very useful.

(इन्द्राय) ऐश्वर्यप्रापकाय व्यवहाराय ।

= For a dealing or activity leading to prosperity.

TRANSLATION

O learned person, like the two armies, prepare the extract of the herbs which destroys all diseases and makes people strong. By their proper and pure use, make the soldiers of the army healthy and strong. Establish your good government on the face of the earth.

PURPORT

The officers of the state, should have two kinds of army, one mounted on cars and carriages and the other on foot. For them, they should keep ready good extract of nourishing herbs and arms and ammunitions. The armies should be trained well and made healthy and strong by proper use of the herbs and drugs (when necessary). By adopting such means good and vast Government on earth should be established.

This hymn is connected with the 27th hymn. In that hymn, there was mention of fire and learned people, In this the use of mortar and pestle etc. for various domestic purposes is stated. So they are inter—connected.

Here ends the twenty-eighth hymn of the first Mandala of the Rigveda Sanhita.

TRANSLATION

O dispenser of justice possessing noble wealth of all kinds, imperishable by nature as soul and good for all righteous persons, protector of all good things, even if we become unworthy, make us worthy and noble again and enrich as with thousands of cows and horses as well as senses, plots of land, speech and fire etc.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used here. As men become unworthy or ignoble by becoming lazy, in the same way,even we become indolent some times make us again noble, industrious and virtuous, so that having acquired many elephants, horses and cows and feeding them well, we may become good by deriving benefit from them.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सत्य) अविनाशिस्वरूप सत्सु साधो ।

= Imperishable by nature and good for righteous persons.

(इन्द्र) प्रशस्तैश्वर्यप्राप्त न्यायाधीश ।

(गोषु) पार्श्विन्द्रिय पृथिवीषु ।

(अश्वेषु) वेगाग्निहयेषु । = Speed, fire and horses.

TRANSLATION

O president, the source of secular as well as spiritual happiness, lord of good actions and the subjects, the protector in the battles, Possessor of admirable wealth of wisdom, make us highly virtuous by your acts along the Vedic speech and in the senses full of truth and knowledge of the Shastras, in the fire etc. possessing speech and other good properties, in the Vehicles like the aero-planes etc. and their expert manufacturers.

PURPORT

Men should pray to God in the following manner.

O God, as Thou art the Kind Sovereign of the world and Dispenser of justice, in the same manner, make us good rulers of the land, truthful and wise accomplishers of the Vedic knowledge, arts, crafts and industries.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

शिप्रे इति पदनामसु (निघ० ४.२)पदी-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च ।

Here the third meaning of प्राप्ति attaining or (causing has been taken by Rishi Dayananda.

वाजानाम् has been translated by Rishi Dayananda as संग्रामानां मध्ये. Though in the Nighantu 2.9 it is stated वाज इति बलनाम (निघ० २.९) Force. So battle is meant here as it exhibits force.

पुनः स किं कुर्यादित्युपदिश्यते ।

What else should he (Indra) do is taught further in the third Mantra.

TRANSLATION

O Indra, (President of Assembly or commander in-chief possessing noble wealth of wisdom and strength etc.) may those who are our miserly enemies slumber and O hero, those who are righteous peopl e of charitable disposition and thus givers of happiness, be awake. Make us noble and virtuous in every way.

PURPORT

We should always engage brave persons in our armies and they should always be kept satisfied and pleased, so that unrighteous enemies may sleep out of dread. Let them never be alert or awake, so that we may enjoy good and vast Government without any obstruction.

COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अरातयः) अविद्यमाना रातिर्दानं येषां शत्रूणां ते ।
= Miserly enemies.

(रातयः) दातारः
= Givers of wealth in charity or givers of happiness.

TRANSLATION

O commonder-in-chief of the army or judge, destroy this un-righteous person of ass-like nature praising us falsely and deceitfully. O President of the Assembly possessing wisdom and wealth, see to it that we get with justice horses and cattle etc. which are genuinely our own.

PURPORT

The president of the council of ministers who occupies the seat of justice should give due punishment to the person who is of as ass-like nature i.e. stupid and adulterous, speaking in a discordant manner and submitting false and unjust evidence. He should respect truthful and righteous persons. He should punish those who take away others' articles and arrange to give them to their real owners. We should also honour the person who observes the eternal law of these dispensers of justice.

COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(इन्द्र) सेनाध्यक्ष, न्यायाधीश ।

= Commander of an army or dispenser of justice.

(गर्दभम्) गर्दभस्य स्वभावयुक्तम् इव ।

= Man of ass-like nature-stupid.

TRANSLATION

O highly learned person, possessing wealth of wisdom and other virtues, you should act in such a way that the pure breeze may go with crooked course from the world or the rays of the sun, un-interrupted up and down. Enrich us O possessor of unbounded wealth, with thousands of excellent cows and other animals and horses, with pure senses and rays of the sun, speed born of strength and in pure dealing.

PURPORT

Men should know that the wind that blows on all sides is more mighty than the fire, having crooked course, the cause of the movement, growth and destruction of beasts and trees and the source of all activities and getting prosperity (which depends on health caused by pure air).

COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(कुण्ड्टणाच्या) यया कुटिलां गतिम् अंचति प्राप्नोति तया।

(वनात्) वन्यते सेव्यते तद्वनं जगत् तस्मात् किरणेभ्यो वा वनमिति रश्मिनामसु पठितम् (निघ० १.५) ।

= From the world or the rays.

TRANSLATION

O Commander of the army possessing the wealth of strength in large measure and remover of all enemies, destroy all misery that belongs to our people on earth, to our elephants, horses and other parts of the army and our pure righteous dealings and destroy those persons who are violent, causing us trouble. In this way, make us happy.

PURPORT

Men should pray to God in the following manner. O God, by casting aside all those foes of un-righteous conduct, bestow upon us all kinds of wealth and prosperity. In the previous hymn (28th.) the means of the Science of various objects created by God have been described, while in this it is the civilised people under the guidance of the President that are able to take benefit from those substances have been told. So it is connected with that. Here ends the twenty-ninth hymn.

COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(परिक्रोशम्) परितः सर्वतः क्रोशन्ति रुदन्ति यस्मिन् दुःखसमूहे तम्— = Misery.

(जम्भय) विनाशय अदर्शनं प्रापय = Destroy.

(कृकदाश्वम्) कृकं हिंसनं दाशयति तं शत्रुम् अत्र दाशृधातोर्बाहुलकादौणादिक उण् प्रत्ययः ततोऽभि पूर्व इत्यत्र वा छन्दसीत्यनुवृत्तौ पूर्व सवर्णविकल्पेन यणादेशः ॥

(इन्द्र) सर्वशत्रुनिवारक सेनाध्यक्ष,

(शंसय) सुखिनः सम्पादय— = Make as happy.

(गोषु) पृथिव्या राज्यव्यवहारेषु

= In administration of a plot of land.

(तुवीमघ) अधिकं मघं बलाख्यं धनं यस्य अत्रापि पूर्ववत् दीर्घः ॥ = Possessing wealth in the form of strength.

तत्रादिमे इन्द्रशब्देन शूरवीर गुणा उपदिश्यन्ते।

In the first Mantra, by the use of the term Indra, the attributes of a hero are taught.

Mantra—1

आ व इन्द्रं क्रिविं यथा वाजयन्तः शतक्रतुम्।
मंहिष्ठं सिञ्च इन्दुभिः॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

TRANSLATION

O President of the Assembly; as farmers dig a well and use its water for watering fields and as winds moving waters sprinkle along waters the fire mighty and accomplishing hundreds of works, in the same manner, you should sprinkle your subjects with happiness, make them happy and contented.

PURPORT

There is simile in this Mantra. As men dig a well first and by using its water for bathing, drinking and watering their fields and gardens, enjoy happiness, in the same manner, learned scientists derive happiness by using the fire in machines and putting water there in proper proportion and position and accomplishing many works with their conjunction and movement.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(शतक्रतुम्) शतम् असंख्याता क्रतवः-कर्माणि यस्मात् तम् = Accomplishing hundreds of works.

(इन्दुभिः) जलैः = With waters.

(मंहिष्ठम्) अतिशयेन महान्तम् = Very mighty.

TRANSLATORS NOTES

वाजयन्तः is derived from वज-गतौ hence Rishi Dayananda taking it as the adjective of वायवः 'or winds which is implied by the simile has interpreted it as चालयन्तः taking the first meaning of the verb vaj in causative form. इन्दुभिः has been translated by Rishi Dayananda as जलैः with waters. It is according to the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu where it is stated in 1.12 इन्दुरिति उदकनाम (निघ० १.१२)

पुनः स कीदृश इत्युपदिश्यते ।

How is that Indra is taught in the 2nd Mantra.

Mantra—2

TRANSLATION

A learned person of pure nature and selected among many on account of his wisdom and character knows, that as water goes to lower level, this fire which is the recipient of a hundred pure articles and of a thousand substances that are taken owing to their attributes, is the sustainer and burner of impurity.

PURPORT

There is simile used in the Mantra. This agni in the form of the sun, electricity and material fire purifies substances in hundreds of ways and cooks thousands of articles speedily. As water goes to lower level, this fire goes upwards or downwards. Taking this constrast in mind and by placing fire below and water above it, by their conjunction through steam, speed and other qualities are produced.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(शुचीनाम्) शुद्धानां पवित्रकारकाणां मध्ये शुचिः शुचिः शोचतेर्ज्वलतिकर्मणः (निरुक्ते ६.१)।

= Of the pure and purifying.

(समाशिराम्) सम्यक् अभितः श्रीयन्ते सेव्यन्ते सद्गुणैः ये तेषाम्। अत्र श्रयतेः स्वांगे शिरः किच्च (उणा० ४.२००)

= Of those who are taken or accepted on account of virtues.

(रीयते) विजानाति रीयतीति गतिकर्मसु पठितम् (निघ० २.१०)। = Knows

Mantra—3

सं यन्मदाय शुष्मिणं एना ह्यस्योदरे ।

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः । (ऋषिकृतः ।

अहं हि खलु मदाय शुष्मिणे समुद्रः वाचः न वा अस्य इन्द्राख्यस्थ अग्ने उदरे एना-एतेन शतेन सहस्रेण च गुणैः सह वर्तमाना यत् याः क्रियाः सन्ति ताः संदधे ॥

TRANSLATION

For mighty delight, I unite many water-creating processes which are there in this Agni (fire) which is also called Indra, within which there are hundreds or even thousands of attributes as there are hundreds of jewels within the ocean.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankar or simile in this Mantra. As in the ocean, there is deep infinite water and there are many jewels and attributes, in the same way, in the fire, there are many attributes and there are many processes. Therefore by the conjunction of the fire and water, men can take various benefits with labour.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मदाय) हर्षाय = For delight.

(शुष्मिणे) शुष्मं प्रशस्तं बलं विद्यते यस्मिन् व्यवहारे तस्मै । शुष्ममिति बलनामसु पठितम् (निघ० २.९) अत्र प्रशंसार्थ इनिः ॥ = For mighty dealing.

(अस्य) इन्द्राख्यस्य अग्नेः
= Of the fire known as Indra also.

(व्यचः) विविधं जलादि वस्तु अंचन्ति ताः । अत्र व्युप-पदादंचेः क्विन् ततो जस् ।

= Pervading water and various other things.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Here Rishi Dayananda has taken Indra which is the devata or subject matter of the Mantra to mean Agni (fire) for which the following is the clear authority.

अथ यत्रैतत् प्रदीप्तो भवति उच्चैर्धूमः परमया जूत्या बल्बलीति तर्हि हैष: (अग्नि:) भवति इन्द्रः ॥ (शतपथ ब्राह्मणे २.३.२.११) ।

Which clearly denotes that bright Agni (fire) is called Indra.

पुनः स एवोपदिश्यते ।

The same subject is continued in the next Mantra.

Mantra—4

TRANSLATION

O learned person, we know this Agni (fire) is the cause of great prosperity. As a pigeon approaches his mate, so this fire approaches our speech i. e. it is known to us and is manifested by us well. When properly utilised, it is attained by us constantly. We can take benefit out of it.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankar or simile used here in this Mantra. As a pigeon approaches or follows his mate speedily, in the same manner, Agni (fire) when used scientifically, suitably benefits people. Men can learn this science of fire by listening to the teachings given by great scientists.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

O Hero President of the Assembly or commander in-chief of the army, protector or guardian of all wealth that gives happiness and to be attained with Vedic speech, knower of the Vedas and dispeller of all miseries, the praise taken from you whose wealth of various kinds is full of truth, be for our mighty delight.

PURPORT

Only that person who is the lord or guardian of all, endowed with the Vedic virtues, wise, possessing true wealth and always just, such a president of the Assembly or commander-in-chief of the army should be accepted as dispenser of justice.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

= Of wealth of various kinds.

TRANSLATORS NOTES

Here Rishi Dayananda has ponited out a grammatical blunder committed by Sayanacharya. He has used the noun राधानि neuter gender, though it is made of घञ् which is always in masculine gender.

सूनृता—सुष्ठु ऋतं यस्यां सा पृषोदरादीनि यथोपदिष्टम् (अष्टा० ६.३.१०९) इति दीर्घत्वं नुडागमश्च ॥

TRANSLATION

O President of the Assembly or the Commander-in Chief of the Army, for our protection in this conflict, be over us O possessor of infinite knowledge and action. We shall talk together in other matters.

PURPORT

Men who speak the truth being wrapt up in meditation, should decide the matter well, should obey the command of God and Commander-in-chief of the Army, should discriminate between truth and un-truth, the thing that is to be settled between which is duty and which is not duty. Without it, it is not possible to get victory, truth and knowledge. Those who take Ommipresent God as the Dispenser of justice and appoint as Commander of the Army a person who is righteous and brave, get victory when they fight with their enemies, they are sure to triumph and none other.

वयं सखायः भूत्वा स्वोतये योगे योगेवाजे वाजे तवस्तरम् इन्द्रं परमात्मानं सभाध्यक्षं वा हवामहे ॥

TRANSLATION

(1) On the occasion of every thing that we have not yet acquired, when commencing any noble work and on the occasion of every battle (internal against evil tendencies and external with the wicked) we as friends call upon the Almighty Lord for our protection and for the happiness derived from victory.

(2) The Mantra is also applicable to a great Commander of an army who is mighty and learned. He is invoked or praised on the occasion of every battle with the wicked un-righteous persons.

PURPORT

There is Shlesha Alankar, or double meaning in the Mantra. Men should be friendly to one another and should preserve the articles already got and should get victory. They should take shelter in Almighty God and mighty commander in chief of the army. But merely by taking shelter in God or the Chief Commander of the army, the purpose can not be served. But by knowledge and industriousness all this can be accomplished.

TRANSLATION

If Indra (The President of the Assembly or the Commander of the army) listens to our call or prayer, he may come immediately with protection accompanied by innumerable good articles, wisdom and food.

PURPORT

Where men earnestly serve the President of the Assembly or the commander of an army, he comes to them for their protection with the various parts or components of the army and with gems and jewels. Without his help, it is not possible for any one to get true happiness and victory.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(घ) एव, ऋचि तुनुघ इति दीर्घः = Only

= Protection with a thousands of good articles.

(वाजेभिः) अन्नज्ञानयुद्धादिभिः सह

= With food, wisdom and battles etc.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted वाजेभिः as अन्नज्ञानयुद्धादिभिः for which meanings we may quote वाज इति अन्ननाम (निघ० २. ७) वाजेभिः अन्नैः (निरुक्ते० ११.२६) वाज इति बलनाम (निघ० २.९) The word वाज is derived from वज-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च । Here Rishi Dayananda has taken the first meaning of ज्ञान knowledge or wisdom. Spiritually, the Mantra is applicable to God also, Who helps us immediately with His innumerable, ways of protection and with wisdom when we approach Him sincerely and earnestly.

TRANSLATION

O man, I also invoke in right earnest God who creates many things and works from the eternal cause — Primordial matter) whom your father or preceptor also invoked.

PURPORT

God teaches men : You should thus instruct other men. You should adore only that One God Who creates all these objects out of eternal cause — Primordial Matter and who has been always worshipped by people in the past, is worshipped now and will be worshipped in future by all wise men. If one asks whom do you worship ? One should reply I worship that God Whom your father or preceptor and all enlightened persons, adored, I always worship that One God Whom the Vedas describe as Formless, Omnipresent, Omnipotent and eternal.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(प्रत्नस्य) सनातनस्य कारणस्य

= Of the eternal material Cause = of Primordial 'matter.

= Creator of many objects.

(नरम्) सर्वस्य जगतो नेतारम्

= Supreme Leader of all = God.

(पिता) जनक आचार्यो वा

TRANSLATOR'S NOTE

The work पिता is used not only for father, but also for the Acharya or preceptor. As Manu has stated......

तदा मातास्य सावित्री पिता त्वाचार्य उच्यते (मनुः)
जनकश्चोपनेता च, यश्च विद्यां प्रयच्छति । अन्नदाता भयत्राता, पंचैते पितरः स्मृताः ॥ (चाणक्य नीतौ)

In this well-known Verse from Chanakyaneeti also the word उपनेता is used for the Acharya and he has been called पिता becaues it is he who performs the Upanayan Sanskar or initiation ceremony of his pupils.

उपनीय तु यः शिष्यम्, वेदमध्यापयेद् द्विजः ॥

TRANSLATION

May our people be rich in strength and knowledge obedient to the Lord, enjoying together, so that wealthy in food and full of devotion, we may rejoice.

PURPORT

Men should appoint the members of the assembly along with the president and the Commander of the Army for the works connected with administration, dissemination of knowledge and propagation of Dharma and thus enjoy admirable happiness themselves and allow others to do so. According to the injunctions of the Vedas, young men and women should marry with mutual consent and of their own accord. After marriage, they should respect each other and should discharge domestic duties jointly. All of them should be engaged in meditation on God and acting according to His commandments, and according to the orders of good men and assemblies.

It is not proper to behave in violation of these instructions on the part of any man or woman.

(अक्षम्) अश्यन्ते व्याप्यन्ते प्रशस्ता व्यवहारा येन तम् = Pervading noble works.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

दुवः has been explained by Rishi Dayananda as परिचरणम् It is derived from दुवस् परिताप परिचरणयोः (कण्ड्वादिगणीयः) so the second meaning of the verb has been taken by the commentator. In the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu 3.5 also it is stated दुवस्यति परिचरण कर्मा (निघ० ३.५) So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is well-authenticated.

TRANSLATION

Indra (God) conquers all wealth and causes all to prosper having created all things from the eternal Primordial Matter with gross and inanimate articles, souls or electricity etc. making indistinct sound and living vital beings. He the Doer of all noble deeds gives and will give to us vehicles, cars and aeroplanes etc. to go round the world, shining substances like the sun and gold etc. He is the Giver of the fruit of our actions for our happiness. A President of the Assembly or commander of the army should also behave like Him, trying to follow Him in justice and benevolence.

PURPORT

As God creates all animate and inanimate things and beings (moving and stationary) and gives happiness to all through them, in the same way, the president of the Assembly or the Commander of an army, dispensers of justice like the magistrates or judges having completed assemblies, armies and means of justice should constantly gladden all subjects. All should believe that there is none else the Creator of the world, the Giver of the fruit of our actions and our Sovereign than one God and they should act accordingly.

O destroyers of the suffering of journey, O learned expert artists, your balanced Chariot or conveyance goes to the sea and the sky without men-drivers. Manufacture such a vehicle by whose speedy movement you can go to the end of the sea without any difficulty.

PURPORT

Men can easily go to the end of the ocean with the steamers made with the proper combination of the fire, steam, water and machines. without such devices, it is not possible to reach the destination in fixed time.

TRANSLATION

O learned scientists, if you place one wheel on the top of the imperishable aeroplane etc. and the other group of machines below, then you can travel in the sea and the sky above. A vehicle consisting of such machines can take you to your desired destination

PURPORT

What ever conveyance is desired to be manufactured by artists for speedy transport, a group of machines and wheels below and mechanical wheel to move all machines should be placed above. When with its help water, fire, etc. are used, artists through its use can travel easily the route of earth, sea and the sky. This is quite certain.

(ईयते) गमयति । = Causes to move.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

These two Mantras show clearly show the Vedas deal with scientific subjects and how remarkable is the reference to a vehicle which can travel on earth, sea and the sky. Such a vehicle has not yet been discovered. Prof. Wilson, Griffith and other Western Scholars were not able to grasp the depth of the Vedic teachings on such subjects, yet their translations denote the scientific element, though they are very faulty and defective.

Wilson's translation of the above two Mantras is—

18. Dasras, your chariot, harnessed for both alike, is imperishable, it travels, Ashwin, through the air. (Wilson).

19. "You have one wheel on the top of the solid (Mountain, while the other revolves in the sky.

Griffith's translation of these Mantras is—

18. Your Chariot yoked for both alike, immortal Ye of mighty acts.

Travels, O Ashvins in the sea.

19. High on the forehead of the bull, one chariot wheel ye ever keep.

The other round the sky revolves (Griffith)

In the foot-note Griffith admits his inability to understand the 19th Mantra saying:—

"The bull, apparently the sun.. "But the meaning is not very clear." (Griffith's foot-note Chowkhamba Series edition P. 40).

TRANSLATION

O learned man, the immortal (by the Pravaaha or Cycle) charming dawn which illuminates the world and in which the recitation of the Mantras and their exposition is pleasant, comes every day for giving you the enjoyment of happiness. Who is the person that does not approach you for getting true happiness by receiving proper instruction from you ?

PURPORT

Who is the person that can know the subtle and un-wastable movement of the time ? All men do not know the dawn which consists of the commencement of exertion ? It is only the wise enlightened persons that know it thoroughly. Therefore men should not waste a single moment from the time of their rising up in the morning till they go to bed. It is only such persons who know the value of time that can always enjoy happiness and not lazy men.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

It is very wrong on the part of Wilson, Griffith and others to take Angiras as the name of a Rishi. It means the Life or Essence as clearly stated in the Shatapath Brahmana 14.3.1.21) quoted by Rishi Dayananda in his commentary. अंगानां हि रसः Rishi Dayananda has interpreted मरुत: as

धर्मप्राप्ता मनुष्याः । मरुत इति पदनामसु पठितम् (निघ० ५.५) पद-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च ।

Here the third meaning of प्राप्ति has been taken. But Wilson, Griffith and others take these Maruts to be Storm Gods. Though Wilson has left the word Maruts as it is, without trying to translate here, Griffith in his foot-note explains Maruts as Storm Gods. Now according to Wilson's faulty translation also these Maruts are the wise, the all-diescerning, with the brightweapons. In Griffith's own translation, the Maruts are Sages, active through Wisdom with their glittering spears, which last expression he (Griffith) wrongly considers to be lightning flashes. All the adjectives विद्मनापसः, कवयः, भ्राजदृष्टयः used in the Vedic Mantra and even as translated by Wilson and Griffith clearly substantiate Rishi Dayananda's interpretation as धर्मप्राप्ता मनुष्याः or righteous persons and not the so-called Storm Gods of Prof. Maxmuller, Griffith and other Western Scholars.

PURPORT

God adorns (or ordains) the laws of all worlds through the Vedas and a wise man does the same through the teachings of the Vedas to men and by keeping them in just laws. God who has created this world consisting of shining things like the sun and not shining like the earth is all-pervading. O Support of the Universe, enlighten us about the real nature of these two (the air and the sun) by which Thou upholdest the great burden of the heaven and the earth and dost not allow us to suffer.

PURPORT

It is the Agni (fire) in the subtlest causal form that takes the form of the sun and dispels darkness and thus upholds the earth and the shining worlds. Being the cause of the Yajna and industries, when used methodically in the machines, it moves the heavy vehicles rapidly.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted मनवे as मन्यते जानाति विद्याप्रकाशेन सर्वं व्यवहारं तस्मै ज्ञानवते मनुष्याय as it is derived from मन-अवगमे मन् (man) to know. In the Shatapath Brahman 8.6.3.18 it is clearly stated ये विद्वांसस्ते मनवः (शत० ८.६.३.१८) But Sayanacharya forgetting the Meemansa Principle of परन्तु

श्रुति सामान्यमात्रम् (मीमांसा १.३१) wrongly takes it as the name of a particular person and says मनोरनुग्रहार्थम् i. e. for showing kindness to Manu.

Prof. Wislon also follows him and translates the first stanza as "Thou Agni, hast announced heaven to Manu."

In the foot-note, he says further that "It is said that Agni explained to Manu that heaven was to be gained by pious acts."

How can Agni (if it is to be taken to mean fire) explain to Manu or any other person ? Griffith's translation is a bit better when he translates Manu as mankind. Agni, thou makest heaven to thunder for mankind."

But it is also wrong as the word Manu derived from मन् (Manu) to know does not stand for mankind as such, but only thoughtful or enlightened person as Rishi Dayananda explains and the passage from the Shatapath Brahmana 8.6.3.18 clearly shows.

Rishi Dayananda interprets पुरूरवा as पुरव:- बहव: रवा: शब्दा यस्य विदुषस्तस्मै and quotes from Yaskacharya's Nirukta 10.46 to substantiaet his interpretation, but Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and others take Pururava to be the name of a particular King and refer to a story about him given in Vishnu Purana. How absurd it is to give preference to a Purana ignoring the interpretation given by Yaskacharya in Nirukta which Rishi Dayananda has quoted.

O devotee of God, augmenter of fame and zeal, glorifying God, you should render illustrious and performer of good actions enthusiastically, every man among us for the proper and just distribution of wealth in the form of knowledge, gold and vast but good government, so that being industrious, we may grow with new enterprises along with enlightened persons, for the acquisition of knowledge, preserve and guard us and both the earth and the light of the sun.

PURPORT

Men should pray in the following manner:—

O God, create among us such noble learned persons who are the knowers of all arts and sciences that lead to good wealth, so that we may be able to establish an admirable administration on earth by undertaking new enterprises and taking benefit from all substances.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda explains मधु as मधुरगुणविशिष्टं विज्ञानम् for it is derived from मन्-ज्ञाने मनेर्धश्छन्दसि (उणादि० २.११६) मन्यते बुध्यते यत् येन या तद् मधु Sweet knowledge छदसे has been interpreted by the Rishi as अविद्यारोगान्धकारविनाशकबलाय as the word is derived from छदतिः- शकलीकरणार्थः In Apte's well-known Sanskrit-English Dictionary, we find the following note on छद Ved. To cut, to kill, to consume. So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is substantiated by the root-meaning.

O Ye men, being established in the conduct full of forgiveness and endurance, you should lovingly listen to these my words which are refined on account of the noble Vedic teaching, in order to see God who is worthy of being realised by all wise men and also to visualise charming aeroplanes and other suitable vehicles for your happiness.

PURPORT

Because it is not possible to know God and the nature of the vehicles manufactured with the help of the arts and sciences without personal contact in the form of questions and answers with the learned persons of forgiving sweet nature, therefore men should always acquire such knowledge with the assistance of the wise.

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

= Charming or beautiful vehicle.

(क्षमि) Rishi Dayananda's interpretation given above is based upon the root meaning of क्षमूष्-सहने to endure or forgive. Other commentators have generally interpreted it as 'on earth' depending on क्षमेति पृथिवी नामसु (निघ० १.१) But they have to change क्षमि into क्षमायाम् as Sayanacharya, Shri Kapali Shastri and others have done. क्षमि-क्षमायाम् (आतोऽभावः छान्दस इति श्री कपालि शास्त्रिणः)

Though Shri Kapali Shastri explains all these Mantras

of a modern (belonging to a particular time) person in the Vedas. This interpretation is opposed to the Vedic Lexicon highantn also where the word नहुष stands afor men in general.

नहुषइति मनुष्य नामसु पठितम् (निघ० २.३)

The second blunder committed by Sayanacharya is regarding the interpretation of इडा Sayanacharya interprets it as the daughter of Manu saying.

मनुषस्य--मनोः इळाम्-एतन्नामधेयां पुत्रीम् ॥ or the daughter of Manu.

Rishi Dayananda rightly rejects this interpretation saying अत्रापि सायणाचार्येण मनोः पुत्री गृहीता तदप्यशुद्धमेव । i. e. Sayanacharya has taken इडा to mean the daughter of Manu which is wrong. The word इडा has been interpreted in the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu as इडेति वाङ्नामसु पठितम् (निघ० १.११) = Ida means (Vedic) Speech.

As has been pointed out before, the Vedas being eternal, can not have historical references. This interpretation given by Sayanacharya is opposed to his own introduction to the Rigveda commentary based upon the aphorism of the meemansa like आख्या-प्रवचनात् परन्तु श्रुतिसामान्यमात्रम् and others.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The word देव is derived from दा-दाने besides दिवु and द्युत् as pointed out by Yaskacharya in the Nirukta 1.15.

देवो दानाद् वा दीपनाद् वा द्योतनाद् वा द्युस्थानो भवति वा (निरु० ७.१५)

Hence Rishi Dayananda has interpreted it as सर्व सुखदाता. तनय: is derived from तनु-विस्तारे to expand or grow, hence Rishi Dayananda's interpretation.

तनये विद्याशरीरबलवर्धनाय प्रवर्तमाने पुत्रे ।

That shows how deep Rishi Dayananda went to understand and interpret the correct significance of the Vedic words.

O King shining in your duties of kingship, you protect from all sides like well-stitched armour the humble man who gives presents to the priests and delivers sermons about Dharma and right knowledge to the people; you defend a man who keeps good food and water in his dwelling, is benevolent to all and performs various Yanjas (non-violent sacrifices urging upon them to do them(the Yajnas)and making them righteous. You are the likeness of the light of the sun i. e. you are like the sun, dispeller of all darkness (of ignorance).

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara in this Mantra. Those people of benevolent nature who being industrious are engaged in making others happy and performing Yajnas, are like the sun which gives happiness to all by its light. (दिवः) सूर्यप्रकाशस्य = Of the light of the sun.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

Sayanacharya has committed two mistakes in his commentary on this Mantra.

He has interpreted स्वादुक्षद्मा as स्वादूनुक्षदतीति स्वादुक्षद्मा क्षदतिरत्तिकर्मा । अन्येभ्योऽपि दृश्यत इति मनिन् ॥
Rishi Dayananda pointing out Sayanacharya's mistake says—

इदं पदं सायणाचार्येण अन्यथैव व्याख्यातं तत् असंगतम् ॥

i. e. Sayanacharya has interpreted this word स्वादुक्षद्मा wrongly.

The interpretation given by Rishi Dayananda is simple and in accordance with the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu which clearly states in 1.12 क्षद्मेत्युदक नामसु पठितम् (निघ० १.१२) i.e. क्षद्म means water. In Nighantu 2.7 it is stated क्षद्मेति अन्न नामसु पठितम् (निघ० २.७) i. e. क्षद्म means food. Therefore Rishi Dayananda's interpretation as स्वादूनि क्षद्मानि जलानि अन्नानि यस्य सः He who has delicious food and good or pure water is quite correct. The other mistake committed by Sayanacharya is with regard to the meaning of the word जीवयाजम् His first interpretation is better जीवा ऋत्विजः इज्यन्ते दक्षिणाभिः पूज्यन्ते अत्रेति अधिकरणे घञ् i. e. where priests are honoured with sacrificial presents. It is not so objectionable or absurd as the second one when he says—

यद्वा जीवैः—पशुभिर्यजनं जीवयज्ञः

= Yajna with the animals. It is wrong as it is against the spirit of the Vedic Yajnas which are termed as अध्वर or non-violent अध्वर इति यज्ञनाम ध्वरति हिंसाकर्मा तत्प्रतिषेधः (निरुक्ते १.७) = A non-violent act (निरुक्ते १.७) How significant is Rishi Dayananda's interpretation as जीवान् याजयति धर्मं च संगमयति तम् ।

= He who prompts others to perform Yajnas (or Officiates over them)and unites them with Dharma or righteous conduct.

यज्–देवपूजासंगतिकरणदानेषु

Among the three meanings of the root यज् here Rishi Dayananda has mainly taken the second meaning of संगतिकरण or uniting.

= In the best state of emancipation or in the firmament.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

In this Mantra, the words like मनुष्वत् अंगिरस्वत् and ययातिवत् are found, which Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and many other commentators of the East and the West have misinterpreted taking the words मनु, अंगिरा and Yayati as proper nouns denoting the names of some individuals. According to all the shastras (including the Brahmanas, Six Systems of Philosophy the Smritis, the Upanishads, the Ramayana, the Maha Bharat and others) the Vedas being eternal, cannot have any historical references, therefore this historical interpretation can not hold good and is directly opposed to the principles of Meemansa of the sage Jaimini who is an authority on the system of interpretation of the Vedas. Jaimini has clearly stated

आख्या प्रवचनात् । परन्तु श्रुति सामान्यमात्रम् ।

(Meemansa by Acharya Jaimini Chap. 1)

As to the derivative meanings given by Rishi Dayananda for the words like Manush, Angiras and Yayati that occur in the Mantra, they are authentic being based upon the Brahmanas and the root-meaning. Manush is from मनु-अवबोधे or ज्ञाने so it means a thoughtful man.

In the Shatapath Brahmana 8.6.3.18 it is stated ये विद्वांसस्ते मनवः i. e. learned persons are called Manus. (शत० ८. ६. ३. १८)

In the Aitareya Brahmana 2.34 it is stated while explaining the Mantra portion अग्निहोता मनुवृतः– अयम् अग्निर्हि सर्वतो मनुष्यैः वृतः Rishi Dayananda has interpreted अंगिरस्वत् in the Mantra as यथा शरीरे प्राणा गच्छन्त्यागच्छन्ति तद्वत्

So Angiras has been taken to mean प्राण or vital breath. This is well-authenticated as based upon the Shatapath Brahmana 6.1.2.28 and 6.5.2.3-4 where it is clearly stated—
प्राणो वा अंगिराः (शत० ६.१.२८.६ ५.२.३.४)

Angira means Prana, or Vital breath. The word Yayati is derived from यती-प्रयत्ने so it means an industrious person as explained by Rishi Dayananda. He has rightly remarked about Sayanacharya's interpretation that it is wrong as he (Sayana) considers Yayati to be a historical personge.

इदं सायणाचार्येण भूतपूर्वस्य कस्यचिद् ययातेः राज्ञः कथासम्बन्धे व्याख्यातं तदशुद्धम् ॥

The reason has been pointed out above. Such an interpretation is also against Sayanacharya's own Introduction to his commentary of the Rigveda where he has proved that the Vedas are eternal.

TRANSLATION

O best among the learned and the teachers, grow with the Vedic knowledge, with good intellect combined with good food and wisdom, with physical and spiritual power and knowledge of various kinds accompanied by Yoga and urge upon others to do so. We always try to obey and please you with the best of our power and ability. Please lead us onward to wealth (spiritual as well material) by imparting us true education and proper instruction. Endow us with right understanding.

PURPORT

Those persons who act righteously according to the Vedic teachings, become wise, intelligent and righteous. The righteous, good learned person whom they serve, makes them full of good knowledge and power.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

वाज इत्यन्न अन्न नाम (निघ० २.७) = Food.

The word वाज is derived from वज-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्था: ज्ञानंगमनं प्राप्तिश्च Here the first meaning of ज्ञान or knowledge has been taken by Rishi Dayananda. This hymn is connected with the previous hymn as the Devata or subject matter is Agni or Indra with various meanings. Here ends the 31st hymn of the first Mandala of Rigveda Sanhita.

1. O learned person, as you declare the former valorous deeds of Indra (Sun) which he the upholder of the thunderbolt in the form of his rays has achieved, he clove the cloud, he cast the waters down to earth, he broke the way for the torrents of the mountain or the cloud.

2. As the Sun destroys the clouds, so a king or President of the Assembly should destroy his wicked enemies and thus should become praise-worthy like the Sun. He should be full of vigour and spendour like the Sun. He should strike down all enemies that come from the fort or other safe places.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankar or simile used in the Mantra. As the sun created by God does all his natural works like giving heat, light, attraction, raining, burning etc. day and night, in the same way, all officers and workers of the state should discharge their duties properly, being engaged day and night in protecting and preserving their subjects.

1. The Sun who is disintegrator by his rays,strikes down the thundering cloud seeking refuge on the mountain; he sharpens his far-whirling bolt in the form of his rays; then the flowing waters quickly hasten to the occean like cows hastening to their calves.

2. The king who is the President of the Assembly should be full of vigour and splendour like the Sun. He should be destroyer of his un-righteous enemies with his splendour and force. He should smite the foe who has taken shelter in the royal fort with his powerful and destructive weapons. He should put an end to the life of such wicked and unrighteous enemies.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankar or simile used in the Mantra. As the Sun gives new life to all beings by striking down the cloud in the firmament and bringing it down on the earth, in the same manner, the Commander of the army should strike down wicked enemies who take shelter in the mountains or the forts and thereby should gladden the people constantly.

TEANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda in his commentary has pointed out the mistake of Sayanacharya regarding स्वर्यम् Sayanacharya seems to be himself un-certain about the correct derivation and interpretation. He gives two derivations quite different from each other and Rishi Dayananda's main objection seems to his first arbitrary interpretation which is—

ऋ—गतौ अस्मात् सुपूर्वकात् ऋहलोर्ण्यत् इति ण्यत् । संज्ञा-पूर्वको विधिरनित्य इति वृद्ध्यभावः ।

This derivation is arbitrary and farfetched. Being himself dissatisfied with this interpretation (to which Rishi Dayananda has rightly objected) Sayanacharya gives another derivation or interpretation saying.

(२) यदा स्वृ—शब्दोपतापयोः इत्यस्मात् ण्यति पूर्ववद् वृद्ध्यभावः । तित् स्वरितम् इति स्वरितत्वम् ॥

Rishi Dayananda's own interpretation based upon the Vedic Lexicon-Nighantu (1.II) is akin to this, which is natural and direct.

आपः has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda as जलानि शत्रुप्राणा वा

The first meaning of waters is too well-known to require any authority. The second meaning of शत्रुप्राणाः is based upon the following and other Brahmanic passages.

प्राणा वा आपः ॥ तैत्तिरीय० ३.२.५.२ ॥ ताण्ड्यमहा-ब्राह्मणे ९.९.४ आपो वै प्राणाः ॥ शत० ३.८.२.४ ॥ प्राणो ह्यापः ॥ जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्राह्मणे ३.१०.९

TRANSLATION

Impetuous like a bull, the Sun takes with his rays the sap of all substances in the world which have their birth, sustenance and disintegration like the cloud. He smites the first formed cloud with his rays. A person acting like the Sun and possessing sun-like vigour and splendour, deserves to be the commander of an army.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankar or simile in this Mantra. As a bull increasing his vitality becomes powerful and happy, in the same way, this commander of an army should become mighty by taking the juice of the fruits and other substances and enjoy happiness and health. As the Sun draws the water with his beams, keeps it in the firmament and causes it to rain, in the same manner, the commander of an army should draw out or lessen the power of his enemies, should cause to grow or develop the power of his own army and should shower happiness on the people.

O commander of the army, as the sun destroys the first born clouds and dispels the darkness caused by them, so you should slay the wicked and destroy the delusions of the deluders. As the sun manifests his group of rays, the dawn and the the firmament, you should manifest your splendour like the sun, your vast and generous nature like the sky and your beautiful nature like the dawn dispelling the darkness of ignorance. Then you will not find any enemy to oppose you. You should manifest the sun of justice and true knowledge, good character and conduct.

PURPORT

There is simile used in the Mantra As a man having destroyed the force and the deceit of his enemy and having conquered him, manifests happiness and the light of justice in his kingdom or self-government, in the same manner, the sun destroys the solid cover on light caused by the cloud by expanding his rays, dispels darkness and manifests his own splendour.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES AND COMMENTS

There is one thing that has struck us as significant. Though Wilson has merely translated Sayanacharya who explains vritram (वृत्रम्) as एतन्नामकम् असुरम् a Rakshasa or Dragon of that name, both Wilson and Griffith have given a note disagreeing with his views on the subject. Prof. Wilson's foot note is worth-quoting. He says—

"In this and subsequent Suktas, we have an ample elucidation of the original purport of the legend of indra's slaying vritra, converted by the Pauranik writers into a literal contest between Indra and an asura or chief of the asuras, from what in the Vedas is merely an allegorical narrative of the production of rain. Vritra, some times also named Ahi, is nothing more than the accummulation of vapour condensed, or figuratively, shut up in or obstructed by a cloud. Indra with his thunder-bolt, or atmospheric or electric influence, divides the aggregated mass, and vent is given to the rain, which then descends upon the earth, and moisons the fields, or passes of in rivers,"

(Wilson's notes on Vol. 1 Rigveda Translation P.249)

Griffith has appreciatively quoted this in his footnote on P. 43.

Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is more comprehensive. He takes Indra and vritra in the Cosmic sense for the sun and the cloud, but in the Adhi-Bhautik or social sense, he takes them generally for the Commander of an army (or sometimes the president of the Assembly) and an un-righteous enemy. According to him, in this and many other hymns of the Vedas, Upamalankar or simile has been used in the Mantras combined with Shleshlankara or double entendre in some cases.

TRANSLATION

1. (Vritra) The cloud like a mad weak warrior, challenges Indra (the mighty sun) the destroyer of all darkness and helper by his light in earning much wealth. It has been crushed by the mighty sun. It has been unable to withstand the rays of the sun. The rivers born of this crushed cloud flow breaking the banks. A Commander of the army should behave like the mighty sun. He should smite down all his wicked foes vigorously and should attain reputation as a great hero, destroyer of his un- righteous enemies.

PURPORT

There is simile used in the Mantra. As the cloud fights with the sun giving light to the world and covers him for the time being, but cannot stand before the powerful sun for a long time; when destroyed by the sun, it falls down on the earth, then by the water which is a part of its body, the rivers are filled and they flow towards the sea; so should a king or a Commander of the army destroy his enemies with his might, so that they may never raise their heads.

1. Foot-less and handless, still Virtra (cloud) challenges Indra (Sun), who smites him with his thunder bolt (of rays) between his mountain like shoulders.
2. This is figurative and graphic description of the battle between Indra and Vritra (the sun and the cloud), A commander of the army, should conduct himself like the mighty sun and should get victory of his un-righteous and wicked foes, having destroyed them with his mighty weapons.

PURPORT

As a weak person may desire to fight with a mighty hero, in the same way. vritra (cloud) wages war with the mighty sun.But as it falls down on the earth shattered or smitten into pieces by the sun, completely vanquished,in the same manner, the man who desires to fight with a righteous king meets the same fate.

TRANSLATION

O great king, as the cloud with its greatness tries to cover the sun, and then vanquished by the sun, lies down recumbent on this earth, as a river bursts through its broken banks. This Ahi (cloud) has been prostrated beneath the feet of the waters that delight the minds of men and which vritra (cloud) by its might had obstructed. In the same manner, you should subdue all your wicked enemies by captivating them.

PURPORT

The water that goes to the sky with air, disintegrated by the Sun, becomes cloud. When the tanks and rivers become full of water, the cloud covers the light of the sun. When the sun, smites it into pieces with his rays, then it enters the banks, big rivers or the sea and sleeps there (so to say). It may be said that it is trampled under the feet of men. TRANSLATION WITH PURPORT

There is Upamalankar or simile used in the Mantra. There are two mothers of Vritra (cloud) the earth and the firmament (Antariksha or middle region), because Vritra is born from them. As there is a cow with her calf, so when the cloud goes up, its Mother (Antariksha or middle region) appears to be sleeping with her son (Cloud).

When through rain, the cloud comes down to the earth, then its mother (earth) seems to be sleeping with it. The sun is the father of the cloud, being its generator. The earth and the firmament are like two wives of the Sun. When the Sun draws the water and throws it through the air in the firmament, then his son cloud grows like a mad man. Then the sun smites it down and causes it to fall down on the earth. Thus the cloud sometimes goes up and again comes down on the earth. In the same manner, the King and other officers of the state should throw away the thorns of the people (wicked people) hither and thither and should safe-guard the interests of their subjects. They should protect and preserve them well.

TRANSLATION

O President of the Assembly, as the nameless hidden body of the never-stopping, never resting currents of the Vritra (Cloud) lies in the midst of various directions and whose body in the form of the waters is covered by long-lasting darkness (is in un-conscious and inanimate state), that vritra (Cloud) the enemy of the Sun lies among the waters on all sides) in the same manner, all enemies of the people (who come in the way of their real progress) should be captivated along with all their helpmates and should be kept in prisons.

PURPORT

It is the duty of the President of the Assembly, to minimise the force of the mighty enemies and keep them under his subjection. As the cloud is not visible when it is lying among the waters of the sky in subtle form, but then through rain it takes a concrete form as a mass of waters, it becomes visible. But these waters which never stop for a moment, but always go up and down below and which form the body of the Vritra (Cloud) are not seen in the firmament, as they are very subtle, similarly the mighty foes should be overcome by making their power less and less day by day.

O President of the Assembly, as the cows are confined by the cowherd or a trader in a cowshed, the waters, whose husband is the cloud by which they are covered, stand obstructed, but by slaying vritra (Cloud), Indra (the Sun) sets open the cave that confines them and after he (Sun) has killed the cloud, he sets open the door of their going out, in which the floods had been imprisoned, in the same manner, you should capativate and keep in prison un-righteous enemies and should keep open always the door of justice.

PURPORT

As a cowherd keeps his cows confined for some time in a suitable place and sets them free by opening the door of the cowshed, as by vritra (cloud) the waters are kept under control (so to speak) by imprisoning them in a way, as the Sun destroys the cloud and sets free the imprisoned waters by opening their door, in the same way, the officers of the state should captivate and keep under subjugation their un-righteous enemies and should constantly guard and preserve their subjects.

TRANSLATION

O heroic Commander of the army, you behave towards your enemies as the Sun destroys the moving and active cloud which fights like a warrior, but which the Sun smites into pieces with his rays. Thereby the Sun wins the cows and wins the Soma and other herbs and sends the water to seven places of water consisting of seas, rivers, wells and tanks on the earth and near places in the firmament lying, distant and mid between them.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra. As when the cloud covers the light of the Sun, the latter strikes it with his rays and causes it to fall down on earth in the form of the rain. He (Sun) is therefore the cause of the seas which store the mass of waters that come and go. In the same manner, a king who is the protector of his subjects should subdue his foes, should smite them with his weapons and thus by humbling them, he becomes the instrument in their treading upon the path of righteousness.

Killed by the sun, the cloud falls down on the earth and by its waters are filled many rivers. As a pigeon freightened by the hawk, the cloud struck by the Sun, lays prostrate on the earth transversing ninety-nine or indefinite number of streams like a hawk. Because the sun is great and mighty on account of his light, attraction and piercing powers, therefore he is superior to all other worlds. He surpasses them all. Therefore O hero, thou shouldst also be mighty and splendid like the sun and kill all enemies whom thou seest or imaginest in Thy heart. Fear should never enter thy heart. When fear enters the heart of even a mighty person, he flees away to distant places.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra. The heroes of a state should get victory over their enemies. As a freightened or alarmed hawk when attacked by some one, goes hither and thither, in the same manner, the cloud destroyed by the sun falls down here and there. By its waters which are like its body, it fills up many streams in the world. There is no cause for the existence of the cloud except the Sun. As fear enters the heart of some weak beings in dark, in the same way, the lightning and thunder of the cloud cause fear and their remover or dispeller also is the Sun. He (sun) is the cause of the dealings of all worlds on account of his light and attraction etc. Bearing all this in mind, heroes should behave like the Sun.

TRANSLATION

The President of the Assembly who like the sun is shining among all men of peaceful nature and of horned creatures like the cattle, wielder of the thunderbolt and other weapons in his arms, king of the whole world-moving and un-moving, causing or controlling the movement of all, containing all as spokes within the felly, be our protecter.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in this Mantra. As the felly moves the spokes, as the Sun shining in the whole universe whether peaceful or otherwise, upholding all worlds, causes them to move in their axis and without him the sustenance, attraction, heat and rain etc. are not possible, so the king or the President of the Assembly should rule over all righteously.

This hymn is connected with the previous hymn as there is figurative description of the battle between Indra (sun) and Vritra (cloud) or good and evil here.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

क्षि—निवास गत्योः राजृ—दीप्तौ

Sayanacharya and other orthodox commentators take this hymn to be the description of the battle between Indra (the Chief of the Gods) and vritra (a demon). Prof. Wilson and Griffith have also followed them, only mentioning in their foot-notes the allegorical or figurative nature of this fight between the Sun and the cloud. Rishi Dayananda has given both the natural senses as battle between the Sun and the cloud, and also a political sense representing Indra as a righteous President of the Assembly सभाध्यक्षः or the Commander of the army सेनाध्यक्षः fightning against un-righteous and wicked persons represented by Vritra or Ahi-men of serpent-like nature.

It is worthwhile to note how Shri Madhvacharya and his follower-Raghavendra Yati have given a spiritual interpretation to the words used in the Mantras of this hymn besides orthodox or Pauranik interpretation which can not be accepted by rationalists.

अहिनामादैत्यो लोकोपद्रवाय पर्वतेषु नदीद्वाराणि रुद्ध्वा मेघवेष्टितं चोदकम् अन्तरिक्षे प्रविश्य स्थितः—तं हत्वा

इन्द्रः नद्‌द्वाराणि विवृत्य प्रवाहाय उदकमार्गं खनितवान् (राघवेन्द्र यती मन्त्रार्थ मंजर्यां श्री माध्वभाष्यानु-सारिण्याम्) ॥

The spiritual interpretation given by Shri Madavacharya and explained by Raghavendra Yati of some important words of this hymn is as follows—

(अहिम्) हीति निश्चयवाचिस्यात् इति वचनान्निश्चय विरोधिनम्—भक्तानां संशयम् ।

= The doubt in the minds of the devotees.

(इन्द्रस्य) प्रसिद्धस्य, वासुदेवस्य वा म० ४ (इन्द्र) परमेश्वर (पर्वतानाम्) जन्माख्य पर्ववतां जीवानाम्

(वज्रम्) ज्ञानाख्यवज्रम् = Weapon of knowledge

(समुद्रम्) समुद्रिक्तं देवं प्रति

= To God, the Occan of virtues.

(सोमः) मनः = Peaceful mind

(त्रिकद्रुकेषु) बुद्ध्यादिस्थानेषु

= In three places like the intellectetc

(सायकम्) अविद्यादीनां लयकृत् ज्ञानम्

= Knowledge that dispels ignorance.

(वृत्रम्) वृत्रं नाम दैत्यम् अज्ञानम्

= A demon named virtra or ignorance.

(मायिनाम्) मायावादिनाम् = Of illusionists

(सूर्यम्) ज्ञानहेतुम् आचार्यम = Preceptor

(उषसम्) ज्ञानम् = Wisdom

(द्याम्) मोक्षम् = Liberation

(वृत्रतरम्) वृत्रादधिकं वृत्रतरनामकं च दैत्यं, मिथ्याज्ञानं वा (कुलिशेन) वज्रेण, अध्यात्मंतु कुलमस्यास्तीति कुली ब्रह्म ज्ञानी, स्वकुलस्य सुखहेतुतया कुली इत्युच्यते तस्य कुलिनः शं सुखं यस्माद् भवति तेन कुलिशेन ज्ञानेन
= By thunderbolt or knowledge.

(पृथिव्याः) बुद्धेः = of the intellect

Some of these meanings are very significant and suggestive from the spiritual point of view which has been almost ignored by Shri Sayanacharya and Western Scholars. Though Rishi Dayananda has given natural and political interpretation of the Mantras, he has given the spiritual meanings for some of these words.

For instance, in his commentary on the Rigveda 1.30.11 he has interpreted वज्र and वज्रिन् as वज्रः अविद्यानिवारकः प्रशस्तो बोधोविद्यते यस्य तत्सम्बुद्धौ । अत्र वज्रेगत्यर्थात् ज्ञानार्थं औणादिको रन् ततः प्रशंसायां मतुबर्थे इनिः ॥

In his commentary on Rig. 1.30.12 also he has interpreted वज्रिन् as वज्रः – सर्वदुःखनाशको बहुविधो दृढोबोधो यस्यास्तीति तत्सम्बुद्धौ ।

In both these places, Rishi Dayananda has taken वज्र to mean knowledge which dispels all ignorance and misery. In his commentary on Rig. 4. 18. 11 Rishi Dayananda has interpreted वृत्रम्' as मेघमिवाविद्याम् i.e. ignorance like the cloud.

•Thus we find that Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is very comprehensive giving natural, political, social and spiritual significance of the Vedic words.

TRANSLATION

I fly to God and seek Him who is worthy of being accepted, Giver of wealth (material as well as spiritual) to His worshippers and Who can not be grasped with these external senses. I fly to that Invisible wealth-giver as the falcon does to its cherished nest. With fairest hymns of praise, adoring God I approach Him, Whose glory is known through many solar worlds in this universe.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in this Mantra. As a hawk reaches its cherished pleasant nest from other places quickly, in the same manner, men should adore God bowing before Him and verifying His glory through the illustration of the solar worlds and other wonderful things. All the created substances in the world ensure the presence of the Creator. Nothing can be created without a creator. As in this world, nothing can be made unless there is a maker, in the same way, we should know about the creation made by God. That being the case, how absurd and foolish it is on the part of those who denying the existence of God become atheists ? It shows their profound ignorance. Here Prof. Wilson has not understood the simile of the Hawk and has taken it to mean cow, which is wrong.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(यामन्) याति गच्छति प्राप्नोति स यामा तस्मिन् अस्मिन् संसारे।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has criticised Prof. Wilson for wrongly translating the word श्येनः which means hawk as cow. In the edition that I have been using in this translation now and then, Prof. Wilson's translation is—

"I fly, like a hawk to its cherished nest, to that Indra, who is to be invoked by his worshippers in battle, glorifying with excellent hymns, him who is invincible and the giver of wealth."

(Rigveda—Sanhita Vol. 1 Translated by H. H. Wilson M. A., F. R. S., Published by the Banglore Printing and Publishing Co. Ltd., Bangalore City. May 1946.)

Therefore it may be that in Rishi Dayananda's days, there was an edition (as it was printed for the first time in 1850 and there after) which contained the horrible mistake pointed out by the Rishi.

अथेन्द्रशब्देन शूरवीरगुणा उपदिश्यन्ते।

TRANSLATION

O Commander-in-chief of the army, destroyer of enemies, subduing all, you possessing a complete army honest and truthful in your dealing use your arrows and other arms whenever necessary, to keep your opponents under control, as a trader keeps his cattle. Being always just, be not be opposed to us. Let your splendour shine, so that you may always be victorious.

PURPORT

As a trader arranges to graze and feed his cattle properly and with their milk, his purpose is accomplished well, as the rays of the grand solar world created by God penetrate all the objects of the world like arrows and with the help of the air make them move upward and downward, making them full of sap and gladden all, in the same manner, a king should protect and preserve his subjects.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अर्य:) वणिग्जनः। अर्यः—स्वामिवैश्ययोः (अष्टा० ३.१.३) इत्ययं शब्दो निपातितः ॥ = A trader.

(चोष्कूयमाणः) सर्वान् आप्लावयन् स्कुञ्—आप्रवणे इत्यस्य यङन्तं रूपम् ॥

= Making all advance or leap, making all active.

(पणिः) सत्यव्यवहारः = Trauthful in his dealing.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

चोष्कूयमाणः has been explained by Rishi Dayananda as सर्वान् आप्रावयन् स्कुञ् - आप्रवणे In धातुरूप कल्पद्रुम of श्री गुरुनाथ विद्यानिधि, the meaning given for this verb in English is "to go by leaps."

In the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu 4.3 we find चोष्कूयमाण इति पदनाम पद-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च So it may mean knowing, going or moving others and attaining.

पणिः has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda as सत्य-व्यवहारः or truthful in his dealing, as it is derived from पण-व्यवहारे स्तुतौ च

The text of the अन्वय in printed edition न्यायसवत सज्ज: seems to be corrupt. Most probably it may be न्यायासक्त सज्जनः = a just person. Indra means both the king from इदि परमैश्वर्ये lord of much wealth as well as commander-in-chief of an army. Here the etymology of the word as given in the Nirukra इन्द्रा-रयिता and quoted by Rishi Dayananda is शत्रूणां दारयिता i. e. destroyer of enemies.

In the Gopath Brahmana 2.9 it is stated. सेना इन्द्रस्य पत्नी i. e. army is the wife of Indra. So it is evident that Indra stands for the commander of an army.

O hero, as God destroys with His Powers the wicked, so you should even if alone or singly, slay an un-righteous person taking away others' wealth with force and injustice with your adamantine weapon. Being destroyer of unrighteous persons with your destructive bow and other arms, drive away the wicked and support the righteous wealthy persons. As atheistic un-righteous persons who revile God are ruined by His Powers or germs are destroyed by the rays of the sun, in the same manner, you should endeavour to put an and to the lives of those wicked persons who forcibly take away and enjoy others' aricles and who do not perform Yajnas and other noble deeds-who are utterly selfish.

PURPORT

As God is without any enemies or as the sun overcomes all clouds that cover his light, so men should also destroy all thieves and plunderers, protect righteous wealthy persons and should become so popular as to be without any enemies.

O hero starting for the battle, O fierce unyielding destroyer of the enemies, O possessor of the trained horses, elephants, as Indra, the sun, giving light to both heaven and earth and attracting (or possessing the power of gravitation) casts away clouds having cut them into pieces, in the same manner, you should cut the heads of those un-righteous persons who neglecting the Yajnas and other noble acts contend with the performers of those Yajnas (non-violent sacrifices) and are without any sacred vows of truthfulness etc. i. e. liars and unrighteous. You must punish them suitably.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra. As the sun gives happiness to all beings by upholding the day, the earth and other worlds and the light, in the same manner, You should establish true Government and make people happy by upholding all good virtues, by giving up all vices, by duly punishing the un-righteous persons and by raining wisdom and good education and preaching righteousness day and night.

TRANSLATION

O heroes, having received good education and giving it to others, fighting under a powerful commander, knowing all the rules of the military science, you should accept him as the Chief Commander of the army when fighting with un-righteous foes, who is irreproachable and before whom, scatter all his foes, conscious of their inferiority, like the emasculated weaklings contending with mighty men. They fly before him by precipitous paths, as they can never dare stand before him. Under his command, you should try to make your army invincible in every respect.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile in the Mantra. Those men who accept as their commander-in-chief a person who is endowed with physical and spiritual power and who is a righteous hero and make their army ideally powerful and the best, when they begin to fight with un-righteous enemies, their foes fly before them as the sheep and goats from a lion and as clouds disappear before that power of the sun, having lost their happiness and turning their backs. You should send these enemies of righteousness far away from the world and burn them up or consume. You should protect and preserve those persons who are engaged in doing noble deeds and who praise God.

PURPORT

Men should do various acts in connection with a war. The first is to please and feed properly the soldiers of one's own army and the second to diminish the force and zeal of the un-righteous foes. TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

इन्द्र--इदि परमैश्वर्ये

सेना इन्द्रस्य पत्नी (गोपवाब्रह्मणे उ० २.९)

According to this Brahmanic passage, सेना or army is the wife of Indra. Therefore it is evident, that the word Indra stands for the Commander of an army as pointed out before. It is stated in the Aitareya Brahmana 7.16, 8. 12.

इन्द्रो वै देवानामोजिष्ठो बलिष्ठः सहिष्ठ सत्तमः पारयिष्णुतमः (ऐतरेय ब्रा० ७.१६.८.१२)

It is stated in the Kaushitaki Brahmana of the Rigveda 6.14

इन्द्रो वै देवानामोजिष्ठो बलिष्ठः (कौषीतकी ब्रा० ६.१४)

In both these passages, Indra is said to be the mightiest and most powerful among all the devas, which also means soldiers who desire to conquer from दिवु-क्रीडाविजिगीषा Thus also it is clear that in the Vedic Literature, the word Indra is used for the Chief Commander of an army.

TRANSLATION

As the clouds trying to cover the light of the sun and to envelop the earth, can not overcome the sun who is decorated with gold and jewels (so to speak) in the same manner, all should endeavour in such a way that the enemies may not be able to harm the commanders of their armies.

PURPORT

As God has endowed the Sun with light, attraction and gravitation etc. He has enjoined upon all to appoint only such persons for ruling as are endowed with knowledge, Dharma (righteousness) justice and brave army etc. It is only they that can rule over men on account of their extra-ordinary ability.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

हिरण्येन has been explained by Rishi Dayananda as न्यायप्रकाशेन for which the following passages from the Brahamanas may be quoted—

ज्योतिर्वैहिरण्यम् । ताण्ड्यब्राह्मणे ६.६.१०, १८.७.८,

In all these passages हिरण्यम् has been interpreted as splendid light. So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation as the light of justice is well-authenticated.

O President of the Assembly, as the clouds can never reach the end of the light of the sun, the earth and the middle regions and they cannot cover for ever the sun with all their thunder, darkness and lightning, in the same way, thieves, robbers and other wicked foes cannot attain the end of the splendour of your justice, force and might, of your vast government on earth, with all their deceit, cunningness and unrighteousness like the thunder and darkness of the clouds. They can not comprehend your politics which is like the rain, showering happiness on the people.

The brave President of the Assembly or the council of ministers who is splendid like the Sun and showerer of arms like the rain on his un-righteous enemies grasps powerful weapons like the thunderbolt and with the light of the good education and justice dispels the darkness of ignorance, cunningness and un-righteous conduct and fills like the earth, mind and other senses.

PURPORT

There is वाचक लुप्तोपमालंकार or implied simile used in the Mantra. Men should righteously enjoy the happiness of good Government by acting like the sun bearing splendour and light (of wisdom) dispelling the darkness of injustice done by the enemies of the State. There can not be any stability in the rule of deceitful and cunning people. TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted कुत्सम् as वज्रम्—Thunderbolt or a powerful weapon. He has pointed out the mistake of Sayanacharya in taking the word as the name of particular Rishi. The same mistake has been committed by Prof. Wilson, Griffith and other Western translators. It has been pointed out how inconsistent it is with the eternity of the Vedas to take Kutsa, Dashadyu and Shvaitreya as the proper nouns. It is against the fundamental principle of the Vedic terminology enunciated by Acharya Jaimini and others through the aphorisms like आख्या प्रवचनात् परन्तु श्रुति सामान्यमात्रम् (मीमांसा १.३१.३२) etc. Sayanacharya' interpretation of कुत्सम् as कुत्सम् एतन्नामकं गोत्र प्रवर्तकम् ऋषिम् दशद्युम् श्वैत्रेयः is opposed to his own views on the subject expressed in his introduction to his commentary of the Rigveda .It is therefore to be rejected as self- contradictory.

The same is the case with the words दशद्युम् and श्वैत्रेय which Sayanacharya has taken as the name of a particular Rishi. It is really strange how great scholars like Sayanacharya could contradict their own statements made implicitly in the Introduction strongly substantiating the eternity of the Vedas. It is only Rishi Dayananda that has been consistent throughout and he has substantiated his interpretation with proper quotations from the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu, Nirukta of Yaskacharya and other Vedic Literature.

TRANSLATION

O wealthy President of the council of ministers, as the Sun causes his rays to enter the raining clouds which are inimical to him in order to help the enjoyment of the earth with food etc.and causes pain to the wicked as a result of their unrighteous deeds, he causes the cloud to fall down on the earth and gives happiness and peace to all through his action in the waters, protects the earth and removes misery, in the same manner, you should always make your people happy by subduing or removing all your enemies.

PURPORT

There is implied simile used in the Mantra. As the sun gives happiness to all beings by causing the fall of the water of the cloud from the firmament, in the same manner, the co-mmander of the army and other persons should constantly enjoy happiness by captivating and imprisoning wicked enemies and protecting the righteous people.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(वृषभम्) वर्षणशीलं मेघम् = The cloud that rains.

(तुग्र्यासु) अप्सु हिंसनक्रियासु

(गाम्) ज्योतिः पृथिवीं वा = The light or the earth.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Here again Sayanacharya has committed the mistake of taking श्वित्र्यम् as the proper noun श्वित्र्यायाः पुत्रं पूर्वोक्तं वृषभम् wilson has followed him by translating "Thou hast protected the excellent son of Shvitra-Griffith followed Sayana and Wilson in taking Dashadyum in the 14th. and Shwitra in the 15th Mantra though admitting in the foot note-Dashadyum is also said to have been a Rishi, but nothing is known of him. The same may be said of Swaitreya or Svitrya, the son of a woman named Shvitra.

How un-certain and un-reliable are the explanations of many Western translators in clear from the following note given by Griffith on the word Tugryas which he translates as Tugra's Houses. He says "The meaning of Tugryas in the text is not clear. Sayana explains it in the waters "Benfey Translates "among Tugra's daughters" and the Petersburg Lexicon takes it to mean " "among the families of the Tugryas.' P. 47.

In this hymn Rishi Dayananda has taken Indra besides God to mean in some Mantras as सभेश, राज्यैस्वर्य युक्त (President of the Assembly or the council of ministers) and in others as सेनाध्यक्षः, शत्रूणां दारयिता the Chief Commander of the Army, the destroyer of enemies. Both these meanings are substantiated clearly by the Brahmanic passages like इन्द्रो वै देवानामोजिष्ठो बलिष्ठः सहिष्ठः सत्तमः पारयिष्णुतमः ॥ ऐतरेय ७. १६ ॥ ८. १२)

These adjectives are applicable to the President of the Assembly or the council of ministers as the mightiest and the best among enlightened persons.

इन्द्रो वै देवानामोजिष्ठो बलिष्ठः ॥ (कौषीतकी ब्राह्मणे ६.१४ गोपथ उ० १.३)

The two adjectives used here are chiefly applicable to the commander-in-Chief of an army as the mightiest or the most powerful among the heroes desiring to conquer.

In some mantras the word Indra stands for the sun for which there is the authority of the Brahmnas saying.

स यः स इन्द्रः एष एव स य एष (सूर्यः) एव तपति ॥ (जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्रह्मणे १.२८.२)

अथयः स इन्द्रोऽसौ स आदित्यः ॥ शतपथ ब्रा० ८.५.३.२ एष एवेन्द्रः य एष (सूर्यः) तपति ॥ शतपथ० १.६.४.१८)

Concluding remarks of the commentator—

पूर्वं सूक्तार्थेन सहात्र सूर्यमेघयुद्धार्थवर्णनेनोपमानोपमेयालङ्कारेण मनुष्येभ्यो युद्धविद्योपदेशार्थस्यैतत् सूक्तार्थस्य संगतिरस्तीति बोध्यम् ॥ इति त्रयस्त्रिंशं सूक्तम् ।

In this hymn also by the simile of the battle between the Sun and the cloud, the military science is taught, hence it has direct connection with the previous hymn. Here ends the thirty third hymn of the first Mandala of the Rigveda Sanhita.

TRANSLATION

O learned persons, helping one another and conducting yourselves like the shining Sun and the moon, highly intelligent, accomplish the works of art and industries with the co-operation of other wise artists being friendly to them like day and night, so that we may be able to conduct various vehicles having learnt from you their proper use and utilise our time. From your association, may we manufacture various chariots and cars (including the aeroplanes) which may enable us to travel to distant places comfortably and which may take us to far off countries-even thrice round the world in a day. Therefore we keep company with you.

PURPORT

Men should use various machines in proper order and co-ordination like the day and the night. We should manufacture vehicles which may travel on earth, in oceans and the sky by making various machines, pegs and wedges etc. and moving them with the combination of the water, air and other elements. Without this science, it is not possible for any one to eradicate poverty and attain prosperity. Therefore all men should greatly endeavour to acquire the knowledge of this science. As men use clothes to cover their bodies in winter, in the same manner, vehicles should be properly fastened with nails, pegs and machines etc.

TRANSLATION

O highly educated persons, behaving like the sun and the moon, for the production of smooth, graceful motion in a car and for swift locomotion, there should be attached three sets of strong wheels and mechanical appliances and the artisans should construct three supports to make it firm and steady and to keep the various mechanical parts in their places. The learned mechanics know that these cars lead to comfort and the fulfilment of desires. They should construct these cars with the help of the Ashvinau (fire and water etc.) because by their use alone, they can obtain success in manufacturing such cars as will traverse the greatest distances within three days and three nights.

PURPORT

Those persons who desire to travel on the earth, the ocean and the firmament, should construct aeroplanes and other vehicles with three sets of wheels and supports. Sitting in such cars, they can travel by the route of the earth, the ocean and the firmament thrice in a day and a night. The pillars or supports should be of such a nature that all parts of the machines and the parts of the pillars made of wood and iron may have their proper place. These cars or vehicles should be moved with the proper use of the fire and water. None can travel on the earth, the ocean and the middle regions, without such vehicles. Therefore special efforts should be made for the construction of such cars.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTE

This mantra is very significant showing the most advanced views on the scientific and technical subjects found in the Vedas-admittedly 'the oldest books in the library of mankind. Such a vehicle or conveyance by which a man can comfortably travel on the earth, the sea and the sky round the world thrice in a day has not yet (1973 A. D.) been invented, so far as I know.

TRANSLATION

O expert artisans, the manufacturers and conductors of the conveyances like the fire and water, you who are dispellers of all evils and miseries thrice every day, sprinkle thrice the Yajna (in the form of an industrial enterprise or undertaking beneficial to all) with water and other necessaries. Provide us thrice with suitable vehicles in day time and at night and provide us with speedy boats and steamers which give us desirable happiness.

PURPORT

Learned artisans and conductors of vehicles with machines should manufacture verious conveyances artistically for the happiness and pleasure of the body, mind and soul. They should earn money and make all beings happy, so that every one may learn this science and make progress in it day and night industriously, giving up indolence and endeavour to preserve it with zeal.

TRANSLATION

O givers and receivers of education, please lead us to the path of righteousness thrice. Come also and take us to the desirable man who is well-disposed towards us, has taken the vow of truth and gives good advice. Like a teacher who gives practical education in works of art with hand, its preservation and theoretical knowledge, you kindly teach us in three ways by giving instruction, by giving suitable advice and by practical training. Give us thrice the knowledge of art and industry which is to be always developed. As rivers, tanks and oceans, get water from the clouds, impart us proper education in the above three kinds and thrice a day.

PURPORT

It is the duty of the persons well-versed in various arts, to make those intelligent men who desire to acquire the knowledge of these arts, to give proper theoretical and practical training and thereby enable them to accomplish many works by acquiring the knowledge of these arts, with dexterity and labour.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Here Ashvinau (अश्विना) has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda as विद्यादाताप्रतिग्रहीतारौ अध्वर्यू = Givers and receivers of education.

The expression अश्विनाध्वर्यू is found in the Yajurveda (14. 2. 3).

In the Aitareya Brahmana 1.18 in Shatapath Br. 1.1.2.17 Taittiriya Br. 3.2.2.1 and Gopath Br. 11.2.6 we come across the significant passage.

अश्विनावध्वर्यू (ऐत० १.१८, शत० १.१.२.१७ तैत्ति०ब्रा० ३.२.२.१ गोपथ उ० २.६)

The word Adhvaryu (अध्वर्यु) has been explained by Yaskacharya in Nirukta 1.3 . 8. as अध्वर्यु अध्वरयुः अध्वरं युनक्ति अध्वरस्य नेता अध्वरं कामयते इति वा (नि०१.३.८)

According to this interpretation, Adhvaryu means one who desires the Yajna (non-violent sacrifice) and one who organises it and is its leader. Among the five daily great Yajnas the first is ब्रह्मयज्ञ which includes Sandhya and Svadhyaya or study of the Vedas. The students who desire it and teachers who are its leaders both are Adhvaryus of this first Yajna and therefore Rishi Dayananda's interpretation of अश्विनौ अध्वर्यू as विद्यादाताप्रतिग्रहीतारौ the givers and receivers of knowledge is well-authenticated.

पिन्वतम् is from पिवि-सेचने sprinkle and establish contact.

वर्तिः has been interpreted as वर्तन्ते व्यवहरन्ति यस्मिन् मार्गे Path. Sayanacharya has explained it as अस्मदीय वर्तन साधनं गृहम्

Which Prof. Wilson has translated as "Dwelling" and Griffith as "home".

It is very significant to find the Vedas lay so much stress on theoretical and practical knowledge of various arts and industries along with spiritual education. This harmony is not found in any other so-called religious book.

The same subject is continued—

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Sayanacharya and others commentators or translators have not taken pains to explain rationally the significance of the expression त्रिः Thrice or in three ways. They have simply used the expression several times without trying to explain its significance. It is only Rishi Dayanand who has endeavoured to explain it successfully.

Following Swami Ananda Tirtha (Madhvacharya) Raghavendra Yati in his Mantrartha Manjari has given the following spiritual interpretation of त्रिष्ठं वां सूरे दुहिता रुहत् वाम्-युवयोः प्रसादात् (सूरे) सूरेः विदुषो गुरोः दुहिता-बुद्धिः (त्रिष्ठम्) त्रिकालमवम् रथम् आरुहत्—भक्तदेहे ज्ञानोदयोऽभवत् इति ।

TRANSLATION

O Protectors of the auspicious good actions of men, O learned men, full of the light of knowledge, thrice grant us the medicaments like Soma etc. which manifest good virtues like knowledge, by increasing intellect and those got from the earth and those got from the water, ever moving air and electricity. Grant unto our sons (whether physical or spiritual) prosperity, happiness and peace which protect and help in the acquisition of wisdom. Grant unto us the conveyances that enable us to travel on earth, sea and firmament which give us happiness and are made like our home.

PURPORT

Men should take for health, medicines which are in the water or on the earth, which destroy diseases. They should manufacture conveyances like the home of iron, copper and brass etc. store there barley and other corns, should burn fire, place water and by their combination should make them to move fast, going to distant places for business and work and coming back soon. In this way, they can enjoy much happiness.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted शर्म as गृहस्विरूपं सुखकारकं वा Home and happiness though he has quoted from Nighantu to show that the word शर्म means home. He thought perhaps that the other meaning of सुख or happiness was too well-known and therefore did not deem it necessary to quote from the Vedic Lexicon.

शर्म इति सुखनामसु [निघ० ३.६]

Sayanacharya has wrongly taken शंयोः to be the name of a person named Shanyu who was the son of Brihaspati. Wilson and Griffith have committed the same mistake. As has been pointed out several times, such interpretation is against the fundamental principles of the Vedic terminology as given in the meemansa in aphorisms like.परन्तु श्रुति सामान्यमात्रम् (मी० मां १.३१)

In the Nirukta has been explained as शमनं च रोगाणां यावनं भयानाम् (निरुक्ते ४.३)

= Removal of diseases and of fear.

यु–मिश्रणामिश्रणयोः अत्र अमिश्रणार्थः । त्रिधातु शर्म has been explained by Sayanacharya as वातपित्तश्लेष्मधातुत्रय शमनविषयं सुखम्

The happiness derived from the proper position of the wind, bile and phlegm in the body.

Though Rishi Dayananda has interpreted त्रिधातु शर्म here differently as given above, he has also given that meaning in his commentary on Rig.1.85.12 saying त्रिधातु–त्रिधातूनि वातपित्तकफा येषु शरीरेषु तानि This is akin to Sayanacharyas' interpretation. As in this hymn, there is clear reference to various fastgoing conveyances, Rishi Dayananda has given the above interpretation.

TRANSLATION

O absolutely truthful respectable artisans who are like the fire and water useful for vehicles, go round the world and go to the firmament and then rest thrice.

(Three times more than usual on account of exhaustion).

As the soul goes to the middle region before taking another body or as the vital air is fast moving as we see every day, so you should also be active and take our aeroplane and other speedy vehicles made of gold, silver and other metals to distant places, with high, low and middle speed as is required.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra. Those who desire worldly happiness, should construct vehicles with parts of the earth and other elements and mechanical devices and by the proper use and combination of the water and fire should go soon to distant countries, as the soul soon goes to another body by the path of the firmament after death. None can enjoy worldly happiness without this act.

= The days which lead us to our actions.

स्वसराणीति पदनामसु पठितम् (निघ० ४.२) अनेन प्राप्त्यर्थो गृह्यते ॥

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Though Rishi Dayananda has explained स्वसराणि as स्वस्वकार्यप्रापकाणि दिनानि and quoted only from the Nighantu 4.5 it can very well be quoted from the Nighantu 1.9 where it is clearly stated स्वसराणीति अहर्नाम (निघ० १.९) = Svasarani—Days.

When in the Nighantu 5.6 अश्विनौ is पदनाम पद-गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च ॥ by taking the 2nd and third meaning the word can very well be used for जलाग्नी water and fire, proper combination of which enables a man to have speedy locomotion, in the form of steam.

TRANSLATION

O learned artisans like the moving wind and sun or shining like the sun and the moon, you should protect this world with purified rivers which have the earth, fire, sun, air, electricity, gross water and space as their origins, with days and nights whose ways are of three kinds, up, below and middle. You should thrice purify the oblation which makes a man free from misery, put in the fire, load it towards the vast rays of the sun in the form of gross, Trasarenu and subtle atoms. Then cause it to go hither and thither, making it rain down on earth and thereby protect the world thrice.

PURPORT

Men should know that it is on account of the disintregrating, gravitative and rain-producing properties of the air and the sun, that the rivers flow. The oblation that is put in the fire, removes all bad smell and other impurities and causes happiness to all which is free from all misery and beneficial so that happiness and health grow day by day. Without it, none can live happily. Therefore men should perform this Yajna everyday with the object of purifying the air and water.

TRANSLATION

O absolutely truthful learned artisans, where are to be set up the three mechanical wheels of the triple chariot like the aeroplane (which can travel on the earth, water and firmament) etc. whereby you come to your distant destination (as if it is near) ? Where are three wheels of the speed that produces noise ? Where are the three seats for the water, fire and men thereto firmly fastened? These are the three questions you should consider and answer.

PURPORT

These are the answers of these questions hinted at above.

1. The persons who long for prosperity should fasten three things or have three seats in the beginning, middle and end of the vehicles. (1) A seat for men. (2) Second place for keeping the fire. (3) Third place for keeping water. Whenever there is desire to go out on tour, fuel etc. should be properly put to feed the fire, which should be burnt with the aid of the air produced by machines and with the force of the steam. In this way, men can go to distant places as if they are close by. Without such conveyances or chariots (aeroplane being one of them) no one can travel to distant places safely.

Come for our delight to our pleasant dwelling place at the dawn before the rise of the sun with your wonderful chariot full of water etc. that sort of chariot or car is to be taken by us for true movement and speedy locomation.

PURPORT

When fire and water are put in proper proportion and duly combined in the vehicles, they take us soon to distant places. There should be such a place for the exit of the steam, that the speed may be accelerated. He can enjoy happiness well who knows this science.

Prolong our charming sweet lives, efface our sins, make us happy, destroy our enemies and be ever victorious.

PURPORT

When men travel in such nice vehicles as mentioned above, they can comfortably go to the other end of the great ocean in three days and nights and go round the world in eleven days and nights. Doing this, attaining full age, casting aside all their miseries, conquering their enemies, they are entitled to enjoy the happiness of vast government.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

= Sins which cause misery.
मृक्षतम्) दूरीकुरुतम् = Remove, cast aside.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted अश्विनौ here as द्यावापृथिव्यादिकौ द्वौ द्वौ By आदि etc. may be taken according to Nirukta 12.1 अहोरात्रौ, सूर्याचन्द्रमसौ Day and night, the Sun and the moon etc. मृक्षतम् Rishi Dayananda has not pointed out the verb, Sayanacharya explains it as निमृक्षतम्-निःशेषेण शोधयतम् = Purify completely. He derives it from मृश-आमर्शने which means to touch. Shri Kapali Shastri ji also follows him, but it is not quite consistent with the रपांसि which Sayanacharya also has taken as पापानि = Sins. Rishi Dayananda interprets मृक्षतम् as दूरीकुरुतम् = Remove. From धातुकल्पद्रुम of Gurunath Vidya Nidhi, it is clear that मृश means आमर्शने or to touch, according to some, but आमर्दने इत्येके to destroy according to others. This is the meaning that Rishi Dayananda has taken, which is quite consistent with the context. It is not at all a farfetched interpretation. Sayanacharya and others including Shri Kapali Shastriji interpret सेधतम् as प्रतिषेधतम्

(which Wilson translates as restrain' and say षिधुगत्याम् अत्र केवलोऽपि विधिः प्रतिपूर्वं स्यार्थेवर्तते

But Rishi Dayananda takes the verb षिधु-गत्याम् as it is and taking the third meaning of गति as प्राप्ति explains it as सुखं प्राप्नुतम् = attain happiness. This is quite simple and straight forward interpretation.

The same subject is continued.

O expert artisans ! You who are united like the heaven and the earth or water and fire and who listen to our requests, borne in your car or chariot traverse on the earth, the water and the middle region, bring to us present prosperity of vast Government with noble off-spring. I call upon you, listening to me for protection, Knowledge with ease and entry into wisdom. Please accede to my prayer.

PURPORT

No one can traverse by the paths of the earth, water and firmament without the car or vehicle prepared and yoked by expert learned artisans. Therefore men should attain props-perity of good Government, good army and brave persons and should get victory in battles using such wonderful vehicles. So men should pay attention to this important matter also.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

= That can traverse speedily on the earth, in the water and in the firmament.

By any means of delight like the aeroplane.

(अवसे) रक्षणाय, सुखेनावगमाय, विद्यायां प्रवेशाय वा

For protection, for easy learning and entry into wisdom.

(जोहवीमि) पुनः पुनः आददामि।

= I call upon you or take you in (remember).

(वाजसातौ) संग्रामे = In the battle.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The adjective of रथेन as त्रिवृता is very significant. Rishi Dayananda has interpreted it in this hymn serveral times as यः त्रिषु स्थलजलान्तरिक्षेषु पूर्णगत्या गमनाय वर्तते तेन यः त्रिषु विमानादियानस्वरूपेण रमणसाधने।

=That can traverse the earth, the water and the firmament. Even Sayanacharya interprets त्रिवृता रथेन as अप्रतिहतगतित्वात् त्रिषु लोकेषु वर्तमानेन रथेन।

=By the vehicle which can go in all the three worlds i. e. the earth, the water and the heaven. Prof. Wilson translates it as "Borne in your car that traverses the three worlds."

अवसे used in the Mantra has been interpreted by by Sayanacharya as रक्षणार्थम् But Rishi Dayananda agreeing with Sayanacharya that it is derived from अव which has 19 meanings including protection, takes it besides रक्षणाय for दुखावगमाय विद्यायां प्रवेशाय वा । अवगम (Knowledge) and प्रवेश (entry into wisdom). जोहवीमि is from हु-दानादनयोः आदाने च so Rishi Dayananda has interpreted as पुनः पुनः आददामि = Take you again and again. In the previous hymn, Indra had been described as the accomplisher of this science and in this hymn, the heaven and earth, fire and water etc. have been mentioned as means, so it is connected with that hymn, as the same subject is continued.

TRANSLATION

I first invoke Agni (fire here for our protection and happiness. I invoke for protection Mitra and Varuna (Praana and Udana — two vital breaths. I invoke or call on Ratri (Night) which brings rest to the world and I call for preservation and the accomplishment of works the bright solar world.

PURPORT

Men should day and night utilise properly the fire air and sun and then attain happiness. Without this, none can enjoy happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(स्वस्तये) सुशोभनम् इष्टं सुखमस्ति यस्मात् तस्मै सुखाय
= For desirable happiness.

(मित्रावरुणौ) मित्रः प्राणः वरुणः उदानः तौ।
= Prana and Udana — two vital energies.

(सवितारम्) सूर्यलोकम् = The solar world.

(ऊतये) क्रियासिद्धीच्छायै
= For the desire of the accomplishment of the works.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted मित्रावरुणौ here as मित्रः प्राणः वरुणः उदानः तौ Mitra and Varuna or two vital energies. Though unfortunately, he has not quoted any authority, such authority is clearly found in several passages of the Brahmanas, as the following quotations show.

प्राणोदानौ वै मित्रावरुणौ (शतपथ १.८.३२, ३.६.१.१६)

प्राणोदानौ मित्रावरुणौ (शतपथ ३.२.२.१३)

So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is well-authenticated. The word ऊतिः is derived from अव अवतेः क्तिमि ज्वर त्वारश्रिव्य-विमवामुपधायाश्च (अष्टा० ६.४.२०) इत्यादिना वकारस्य उपधायाश्च ऊठ् ऊति यूतिजूति सातिहेति कीर्तयश्च (अष्टा० ३.३.९७) इत्यादिना क्तिनः उदात्तत्वम्।

As ooti (ऊति) is derived from अव which has 19 meanings Rishi Dayananda has taken it to mean क्रियासिद्धीच्छायै ।

TRANSLATION

(1) In the case of God, the meaning of the Mantra is—The Supreme Lord is upholding all spheres with His Glorious power of attraction and with the gift of knowledge which makes the joy — producing activities possible. He vouchsafes true knowledge to mortal men. He bestows immortality on the dwellers of the earth. The Self-effulegent Lord upholds all the worlds and makes everything and the form and colour of all objects clear and distinct.

(2) In the case of the Sun the meaning of the Mantra is—The Lustrous Sun is upholding all spheres with his brilliant Power of attraction and with the gift of light which makes the happiness-producing activities possible. He vouchsafes the band of rays to the abode of mortal man or fixes his place for it. He bestows rain which produces vegetation and hence is a source of life on the earth. The brilliant sun upholds all the worlds and makes everything visible and the form and colour of all objects clear and distinct.

(हिरण्ययेन) ज्योतिर्मयेन अनन्तेन यशसा तेजोमयेन वा ज्योतिर्हिरण्यम् (शत० ४.३.१.२१) । = Full of light, glorious or brilliant.

[सविता] सर्वेषां प्रसविता = God as Creator of all.

[पश्यन्] [१] प्रेक्षमाणः = Seeing—in case of God.

[२]दर्शयन् =Causing or enabling to see, in the case of the Sun.

PURPORT

There is Shleshalankara or double meaning here. As the earth and other worlds uphold men and other creatures, in the same way, the solar world upholds the earth and other spheres by its attracting power or gravitation. God upholds the sun and other worlds by His power. In this way, all worlds are upheld in proper order. Without this, it is not possible for any world with weight and velocity to stay in its axis. Without the rotation of the worlds it is not possible to have the parts of time like the seconds, hours, days and nights, fortnights, months, seasons and years etc.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda gives double meaning of the Mantra taking the word (सविता) in the sense of God and the sun, for which he has quoted from the Brahmanas. The following quotations from the Shatapath, Kaushitaki and other Brahmahas can be aptly given.

सविता वै देवानां प्रसविता [शतपथ १.१.२.१७] [जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्राह्मणे ३.१८.३] सविता वै प्रसविता [कौषीतकी ब्रा० ६.१४] यो ह्येव सविता स प्रजापतिः। [शत० १२.३.५.१–गोपथ ब्रा०पू० ५.२२] प्रजापतिर्वै सविता [ताण्ड्य महाब्राह्मणे १६.५.१७] असावादित्यो देवः सविता [शत० ६.३.१.१८] ॥

These quotations clearly show that the word Savita) stands both for God and the sun.

अथ वायुसूर्यदृष्टान्तेन शूरवीरगुणा उपदिश्यन्ते

Now by the illustration of the air and the Sun, the attributes of a hero are taught.

Mantra—3

TRANSLATION

As chasing away all miseries and diseases, the air that displays and is to be united with, moves upward and downward and as the sun driving away all darkness approaches distant objects with his rays and with days and nights and with bright and dark fortnights, so brave men should go for the battle with unrighteous persons and make all people happy.

PURPORT

There is implied simile here. As in this universe, created by God, the air moving upward and downward, brings below those things that are above and takes upwards them that are below and as the sun with his rays dispels all darkness, sometimes casts aside miseries and manifests happiness and at other times drives away happiness and manifests distress, in the same way, the President of the Assembly and others with their armies should move here and there and having conquered their enemies, should safeguard the interests of the people.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

[यजतः] संगन्तुं योग्यः =Worthy of being united with.

[हरिभ्याम्) कृष्णशुक्लपक्षाभ्याम्= With dark and bright fortnights.

[परावतः] दूरमार्गान् परावत इति दूरनामसु पठितम् [निघ० ३.२६] = Distant.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

In his commentary on this Mantra, Rishi Dayananda has taken सविता (Savita) to mean वायु air and सूर्य (sun). Though he has not quoted an authority to show how सविता (Savita) stands for the air, the following passages from the Brahmanas are clear.

अयं वै सविता योऽयं वायुः पवते [शतपथे १४.२.२.६]
वायुरेव सविता [गोपथ पू० १.१३ जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्राह्मणे ४.२७.५]

He has interpreted हरिभ्याम् here as कृष्णशुक्लपक्षाभ्याम् without quoting an authority which is clearly available in the following passage of the Shadvinsha Brahmana.

पूर्वपक्षापरपक्षौ वा इन्द्रस्य हरी ताभ्यां हीद सर्वं हरति । [षड्विंश ब्राह्मणे १.१]

So his interpretation is well-authenticated.

पुनस्तयोर्दृष्टान्तेन राजकृत्यमुपदिश्यते ।

By their (of the air and the sun) illustration the duties of a king are taught.

Mantra—4

TRANSLATION

O king or President of the Assembly, you should be like the many rayed sun who is giver of light, having power to disperse darkness with his brightest splendour from the world, decorated with many kinds of golden ornaments and furnished with golden yokes mounted on his golden chariot (so to speak) many-hued. You should also be like the air which upholds the world. (It is to be clearly understood that this description of the sun is poetical and metaphorical).

PURPORT

As there is the mighty air which is the cause of the sun and other objects and upholder of the solar and other worlds, having the power of gravitation and as there is the sun sustaining all worlds and manifesting all forms with his power and attraction and without them (the air and the sun) not even an atom can be sustained, so a king should maintain kingdom being full of the wealth of virtues.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

= (1) Wealthy King or President.
(2) The sun, (3) The air.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

For the meaning of the Savita as air, we have already quoted passages from the Brahmanas.

The word सविता is from षु-प्रसवैश्वर्ययोः So the meaning of the word as wealthy king is clear.

TRANSLATION

O noble person, as all men and all the regions are dependent (for light and life) on the sun, whose white rays manifest light to man-kind, maintaining aeroplanes and other vehicles where fire and light are properly put, so learned men should stay with you and you should manifest knowledge and righteousness.

PURPORT

O men, all these are the attributes of the solar world like the light and attraction which uphold the world and properly manifest all objects. The worlds that are near the sun, are illumined by the light of the sun and the air also sustains the people. On account of this, all worlds remain in their axis. So you should bear all noble virtues and establish justice, maintaining proper order.

TRANSLATION

O learned person, as a battle where there are chariots and other things, depends upon the soldiers who serve in the army, there are three luminaries. The Sun, the fire and electricity, out of which two-the sun and the earth are in the proximity of or under the Solar world, while one the electricity is the world of the air — antariksha or firmament. The moon, stars and planets that are imperishable in the sense that they are originated from the eternal and imperishable Prakriti or Matter, are in the middle region. He who knows all these things positively or thoroughly should speak out and declare this knowledge. You should also impart this knowledge to others, having become well-versed in it.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in this Mantra. All works are accomplished with the help of three luminaries the sun, fire and electricity born of Agni in the subtle form. When the souls depart from the bodies they go to Yama--it is said. What is that Yama is the question. The answer is that by Yama is meant here the Vayu or air in the firmament. As there are soldiers and servants as a part of the army, in the same manner, all living beings and the dead are dependent upon the air. The earth, moon, stars and other worlds depend upon the light of the sun. Only a learned person, should give answers to questions and not a stupid fellow. Men should not balieve in the words of an ignorant person and should not have lack of faith in the words of an Apta i. e. a man truthful in thought, word and deed.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted Yama (यमः) here as वायुः or air for which he has given the derivation नियन्ता यमु-उपरमे or controller, but has not quoted an authority which is clearly available as in the following passage of the Shatapath Brahmana.

अयं वै यमः योऽयं (वायुः) पवते (शतपथ ब्राह्मणे १४.२.२.११)

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted आणि as संग्राम or battle on the authority of the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu 2.17 आणाविति संग्रामनामसु (निघण्टौ २.१७) Other Commentators have overlooked this authority and have taken it to mean.

रथाद् बहिः अक्षच्छिद्रे प्रक्षिप्तः कीलविशेष आणिरुच्यते [सायणाचार्य स्कन्द स्वामिनौ] or the Pin of the axle (Wilson). "Chariot's axle." (Maxmuller) Linch-pin (Griffith).

Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is therefore well-authenticated. Shri Madhvacharya and Raghavendra Yati take Savita here also as Hari or God and show the dependence of all on Him

पुनरस्य सूर्यलोकस्य गुणा उपदिश्यन्ते ।

The attributes of the solar world are taught further in the seventh Mantra.

O learned person,

The solar ray which is the giver of life to all, deep-quivering, well-directed or cause of the attainment of all articles, has illuminated the three regions. At night, where is the sun whose rays illumine or light up the world ? Who knows all this properly ? Who knows to what sphere, his rays have extended ? This can be known only by some learned persons and not by all. You should know all this well.

PURPORT

When this earth while rotating around the Sun, covers the light of the sun and creates darkness, then learned persons ask where has the sun gone ? The question should be properly answered that he is on the back of the earth. His rotation at his own axis is very subtle, therefore ordinary people cannot know it. Such are also the thoughts of the wise, which all cannot understand.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted गम्भीरवेपाः as गभीरः—अविद्वद्भिः लक्षितुम् अशक्यः वेपः—कम्पनं यस्य सः on the basis of the root-meaning of वेप्—कम्पने।

TRANSLATION

O president of the Assembly, You should be like the sun who lights up or illumines the earth's eight quarters, the three worlds where all objects are placed properly and the moving seven waters in the firmament. He the glorious Sun, comes on all sides upholding desirable gold and other objects for the benevolent Yajamana (performing Yajnas) imparting education to all.

PURPORT

There is implied simile used in the Mantra. This Solar world illuminating all objects, disintegrating particles, taking them to the firmament through the air and bringing them down brings about charming happiness to all souls. It upholds or sustains the waters on the earth and upto about 50 miles in the firmament in gross subtle, light or heavy forms known technically as Sapta Sindhus. In the same manner, learned persons should maintain all with knowledge and righteousness and should make them happy and blissful.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

(ज्योतिर्वै शुक्रं हिरण्यम् ऐतरेय ब्रा० ७.१२) ज्योति-र्हि हिरण्यम् (शत०४.३.१.२२) = Light.

Though according to the Nighantu (1.3) Dhanva (धन्व) is used for अन्तरिक्ष or firmament धन्व इत्यन्तरिक्ष नामसु (निघ० १.३) yet because the number of the Dhanvas used here is three, therefore it is clear that here it means three worlds. Sayanacharya and Skanda Swami have also given the same meaning saying— साहचर्याद् वा त्रयोऽपि लोकास्त्रीणि धन्वान्युच्यन्ते (स्कन्दस्वामी) धन्व—अन्तरिक्षोपलक्षितान् त्रिसंख्याकान् पृथिव्यादिलोकान् इति सायणाचार्यः।

O President of the Assembly ! You should be like the solar world which has light as its hands, which is generator of sap and disintegrator of particles. It travels (through its rays) between the two regions of heaven and earth, dispels diseases, spreads its rays, and overspreads the light with the earth.

PURPORT

O President of the Assembly, as this Sun related with many worlds on account of his gravitation, illumines all objects and enables all to distinguish between light and darkness, you should also be like him, spreading the light of knowledge and dispelling all darkness of ignorance.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

For the interpretation of the word सविता as वायु or air which seems rather strange being un-familiar, the following authorities from the Brahmanans may be aptly quoted.

अयं वै सविता योऽयं (वायुः) पवते (शत० १४.२.२.६)
वायुरेव सविता (जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्रह्मणे ४.२७.५)
वायुरेव सविता (गोपथ ब्राह्मणे पू० १.३३)

So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation though appearing queer to those who have studied only classical Sanskrit literature, is well-authenticated.

O God Creator of the world and Giver of all happiness, protect us to-day and for ever by Thy dustless (or free from all obstacles ancient and easy paths of righteousness followed by noble persons that Thou hast ordained in Thy universe. Be our sure Protector on those easy and straight paths and teach us all wisdom and sciences.

PURPORT

O God, the paths that Thou hast ordained for the solar and other worlds for their rotation and the paths of righteousness for the happiness of all beings in the firmament and in Thy glory, they tread upon them. Instruct us about those eternal paths or laws and internal paths of righteousness and merits, so that we may never swerve an inch from them.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

This is the most important and significant Mantra of the the hymn. While Skanda Swami, Venkata Mandhava, Sayanacharya, Wilson, Maxmuller, Griffith, Geldner and others take Savita as the Sun and think, that the prayer for protection and instruction is addressed to him; Rishi Dayananda clearly states that by Savita is here meant God the Creator of the world. This view is supported by the authorities from the Brahmanas like.

प्रजापतिर्वै सविता (ताण्ड्य महाब्राह्मणे १६.५.१८)
यो ह्येव सविता स प्रजापतिः (शतपथे १२.३.५.१)
गोपथ ब्राह्मणे २.५.२२ सविता प्रजानयत् (तैत्तिरीय १.६.२.२)

Among other distinguished Acharyas, Shri Madhvacharya and his follower Raghvendra Yati also take Savita here in the sense of Vishnu or God, though obsessed with the Pauranic conception, they have given it a Pauranic colouring in the form of नृसिंहरूपी सविता देवः=Man-lion God.

Yogi Shri Aurabindo and Shri Kapali Shastri — a distinguished South Indian Scholar and Commentator of the Ist Ashtaka (121 Hymns of the Rigveda in Sanskrit Support Rishi Dayananda in taking Savita (सविता) to mean the Creator God.

The last line of the last Mantra of this hymn is specially worth considering in this connection अधि च ब्रूहि देव which Rishi Dayananda rightly interprets as सर्वा विद्या अधि ब्रूहि उपदिश = Teach us all sciences or give us wisdom.

This cannot surely be an address or prayer to an inanimate thing like the Sun.

Sayanacharya explains it as देवानामग्रे अस्मान् अनुष्ठातृत्वेन अधिकत्वेन कथय=Tell us superiers to others before the gods.

Skanda Swami's interpretation is better.

अधिच ब्रूहि । अधिवचनम् आज्ञापनम् । आज्ञापय च यदाज्ञापयितव्य हे देव = Command us what is to be done.

Even Prof. Wilson's translation is not bad.

"Deity, speak to us." (Wilson).

Griffith's translation as "Bless us" is not faithful to the original text. The same is the case with Prof. Maxmuller's translation "Grant to us today thy gracious blessing."

Surely this is not correct translation conveying the sense of the beautiful stanza. Here ends the seventh Varga or 35th Hymn of the first Mandal of the Rigveda Sanhita.

TRANSLATION

With Vedic hymns and holy eulogies, we supplicate the Supreme Leader and Lord of all His devoted subjects who desire to lead divine lives, Whom other benevolent, wise and righteous persons also inflame in their hearts for the fulfilment of noble desires.

PURPORT

O men, as learned persons having known with certainty the attributes of the Omnipresent God, teach others about Him and urge upon them to glorify Him, so we also manifest His glory and attributes. As God bestows happiness upon all living beings by the creation and preservation of the fire and other substances, in the same way, we should also try to make all beings happy. This you should know well.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(यह्वम्) गुणैर्महान्तम् । यह्व इति महन्नामसु पठितम् (निघ० ३.३) = Great, Supreme.

TRANSLATOIN

O God, the most Liberal Donor, as worshippers offering oblations and possessing and giving good articles, take recourse to Thee, so we also worship Thee who art the augmenter of vigour. So O Omniscient Lord, be our Gracious Helper in all deeds of might, be Thou, O Excellent, our Protector this day and for ever.

PURPORT

Men should remain contented with the Communion with or contemplation upon One God only. Wise learned persons never accept anything else as Adorable in the place of God, therefore they can not be defeated. Thus those who are atheists can never overcome them. How can they be defeated who have God as their Protector ?

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अग्निम्) सर्वाभिरक्षकमीश्वरम्

TRANSLATION

We choose you, O Ambassador, a donor who endowed with all knowledge and art, as we choose for material prosperity the fire which contains all means of arts and industries and is giver of happiness being very useful. As the flames of the mighty fire are spread wide around and reach the sky, so let your splendour and reputation be.

PURPORT

O Ambassador, dextorous in the discharge of your duties, as all men choose resplendent fire as messenger (means) for accomplishing technical and industrial works and through it cause oblations to reach the heavens, attaining happiness thereby and as the flames or splendours of this electricity and the famous material fire go upwards, thus you should also be, full of splendour.

TRANSLATION

O President of the Assembly, shining on account of Dharma (righteousness) wisdom and other noble virtues, your messenger who is liberal in giving wealth of all kinds in charity and who conquers enemies with you, whom noble and most acceptable persons, friendly and life-givers to all and just enkindle or instruct, he who pleases you and the people, it is such a true messenger who makes enemies un-easy by adopting peaceful methods that can preserve the State.

PURPORT

None can achieve, preserve and develop or prosper the State without the brave ambassadors or messengers who are well-versed in all Shastras, the best among the knowers of Political Science and History, righteous and clever. There-fore all should act as stated in these Mantras.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O President of the Assembly, giver of happiness, O most youthful and auspicious,as all oblations are put in sacrificial fire, we have put all right of dispensing justice in you who are endowed with good wealth of all kinds — external as well internal in the form of wisdom. Be ever cheerful, having always noble thoughts in your mind and unite us today to-morrow and for ever with energetic enlightened persons.

PURPORT

As learned persons give happiness to the people of the world by putting pure oblation in the sacrificial fire, in the same manner, the officers and workers of the State should put in prison wicked unrighteous persons and give delight to righteous persons.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

As lightning and the rays of the sun smite and slay the cloud, in the same manner, the servants of the State and Commander-in-chief of the army and others should slay unrighteous enemies and should act making earth and heaven and the firmament the spacious dwelling place or wide abode of living creatures. May the Agni (President of the Asembly or the Commander of the Army) accepted as such, be benefactor to wise men like a horse that neighs in the battles.

PURPORT

As lightning, fire and sun, cut into pieces the cloud and causing rain fill all worlds with water that gives happiness to all, in the same manner, the subjects should be gladdened by the President of the Assembly and other workers of the State by destroying enemies like the thorns.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

O highly intelligent President of the Assembly who are mighty and great, full of splendour, throw away all evils. You, who know the earth and other elements and keep company with the enlightened persons, be established in Justice and shine (on account of your justice, truthfulness and other virtues). O admirable excellent King, Create in this world a form that is free from impurity like the smoke and is worth-seeing.

PURPORT

Highly intelligent officers and workers of the state should be full of splendour like the fire and endowed with great virtues. They should create pure and graceful forms, knowing the real nature of the divine virtues and of the earth and other elements and shining on account of their wisdom.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

[संसीदस्व] दोषान् हिन्धि । व्यत्ययेनात्रात्मनेपदम् ।
=Destroy or throw away evils.

[षद्लृ-विशरणगत्यवसादनेषु]

=Free from impurity like the smoke.

[अरुषम्] सुन्दररूपयुक्तम्=Beautiful.

[मियेध्य] मेधार्ह-अयं प्रयोगः पृषोदरादिनाऽभीष्टः सिद्धयति =Highly intelligent or wise.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted अरुषम् as सुन्दररूपयुक्तम् Beautiful. For the meaning of अरुषम् (Arusham) as रूप there is the clear authority of the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu 3.7 though Rishi Dayananda has not quoted it here अरुषम् इति रूपनाम (निघ. ३.७) In his commentary on this Mantra, Rishi Dayananda has interpreted मियेध्य as मेधार्ह—Highly intelligent or wise. But there are two other meanings of the word which he has given in his Vedic Commentary, which it is worth while to quote here also.

मियेध्यः—दुखानां प्रक्षेप्तः

[ऋ० १.४४.५] यो मिनोति प्रक्षिपति दुष्टान् तत्सम्बुद्धौ। अत्र बाहुलकात् औणादिक एध्यप्रत्ययः किच्च। [यजुर्वेद भाष्ये ११.३७]

=Overthrower of unrighteous persons.

It is derived from डुमिञ्–प्रक्षेपणे (स्वादि)

मनुष्याः कीदृशं सभेशं कुर्युरित्याह—

Whom should men elect as the President of the Assembly or the State is taught in the tenth Mantra.

Manta—10

TRANSLATION

O bearer of acceptable wealth, we accept you as the President of the Assembly (or the council of ministers) who are the most liberal donor and performer of Yajnas, whom learned persons choose for the well-considered administration of the State, who are endowed with the wealth of wisdom and gold, upheld or supported by teachers having holy guests, whom a showerer of knowledge supports as you are rainer down of happiness and whom an admirer of nobility or virtues whole-heartedly supports.

PURPORT

The man whom all learned and other righteous persons appoint as the ruler of the State, because he is thoughtful, the bringer of all articles that are worth-taking,endowed with noble virtues, possessing the wealth of wisdom and gold etc, who is good mannered and civilised, should protect and preserve all people like their father.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मनवे) मननयोग्याय राजशासनाय

= For the administration of the State which should be well considered.

(उपस्तुतः) उपगतः स्तौति स उपस्तुतो विद्वान् अत्र स्तुधातोर्बाहुलकादौणादिकः क्तः प्रत्ययः ।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Is is wrong on the part of Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Griffith and others to take words like Manu and Kanva as the names of particular persons. It is against the prisciples of the Vedic terminology which takes all words as derivative or Yaugikas. In the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu 3.15 it is clearly stated कण्व इति मेधाविनाम (निघ० ३.१५) । The word Manu is from मन-ज्ञाने or अव बधे hence according to the context, Rishi Dayananda has interpreted मनवे as मननयोग्याय राजशासनाय

It is note-worthy that while even Sayanacharya takes the words मेध्यातिथि, वृषा and उपस्तुत as derivatives and Prof. Wilson follows him. Griffith goes in the wrong direction and mistakenly remarks in the foot-note:—

"Medhyatithi: Sayana takes this word to be an epithet of Kanva ! entertainer of guests who are worthy sacrifical food. "But it appears to be the name of a Rishi of Kanva's family, the seer of twenty eight of Books VIII and IX. Griffith further remarks, "Vrishan, and Upastuta, rendered by Wilson after Sayana "Indra and some other worshipper are also apparently the names of the two other Rishis."

All this audacious interpretation is opposed to the Meemansa aphorisms. आख्याप्रवचनात् परन्तु श्रुतिसामान्यमात्रम् (मीमांसा १.३१.३३) as quoted by Shri Sayanacharya also in his Introduction.

Mantra—11

TRANSLATION

We, workers of the State and others, extol for the accomplishent of the works of art and industry the fire (in the form of electricity) whom a wise man, expert in knowledge and action and surrounded by pure-minded pupils kindles from the water above the clouds and whose rays pre-eminently shine.

These Vedic Mantras describe that Agni variously.

PURPORT

The President of the Assembly and other persons of the State should properly utilise the fire which is kindled by the priests and other learned men for the homa that is meant to purify the air and the rain and whose glows or lustres go upwards, whose properties are mentioned in the Vedic Mantras, for the accomplishment of the work of arts and industries that is helpful for administrative purposes.

O President of the Assembly, full of splendour like the fire and the food materials, as you have friendship with enlightened truthful persons and are great, you shine in the famous battles whose account is worth-hearing, make us happy. Make our wealth consisting of knowledge and gold and vast Government etc. perfect.

PURPORT

The President of the Assembly and other persons of the State should have friendship with the scholars of the Vedas and other highly learned persons. They should fill up continuously the stores of food and wealth and should be able to wage war against thieves and robbers. Thus they should give much happiness to the people.

TRANSLATION

O President of the Assembly, ever keep us away from the sin (of taking away others' articles etc.) by bestowing upon us the right knowledge. Completely scorch away the foe that eats away others' substances unjustly. Being exalted yourself on account of your noble virtues, raise us above all our fellow men in knowledge, valour, fortitude, strength and other merits, so that we may enjoy great happiness and bliss in life.

Bestow upon us riches and learning that we may command respect even among the elite.

PURPORT

The President of the Assembly who is exalted on account of noble virtues and good temperament should keep all men away from sin with the fear of the punishment for the transgression of the laws of the State. He should burn away all wicked foes, should keep with enlightened persons and make all endowed with noble virtues for the growth of knowledge, happiness and life.

(अत्रिणम्) अत्ति-भक्षयति अन्यायेन परपदार्थान् यः स शत्रुः तम् ।

= The foe who eats away others' substances or property unjustly.

(दुवः) परिचर्याम् = Service.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

In the Aryabhivinaya giving the spiritual meaning of the Mantra, Rishi Dayananda has taken अग्नि for God and prayer is addressed to Him to keep men away from sins and making them noble. The whole meaning in the case of God as given by Rishi Dayananda ssarasvati in the Aryabhivinaya is to the effect—

O Great God, shining in Thy Infinite glory above all, Thou surpassest all in goodness. Vouchsafe that we may attain great virtues and protect us in the higher spheres of life. O Lord, Destroyer of all evils, bestow upon us right knowledge and ever keep us away from sins. O True Friend of mankind, do Thou completely scorch away the foe that eats away our substance and worries us, and also anger, lust and other evil passions. The rest as given above.

The previous Mantra has a spiritual meaning also which is as follows—

O our Supreme Leader, stand up erect (so to speak) for our protection from all that is low, mean, sinful and degrading. Stand up like the Sun over us, giving us light. Be always with and over us, giving us strength, when with the help of the hymns and wise devotees singing Thy glory, we call on Thee. We remember and meditate on Thee).

The same subject is continued—

Mantra—15

पाहि नो अग्ने रक्षसः पाहि धूर्तेरराव्णः ।
पाहि रीषत उत वा जिघांसतो बृहद्भानो यविष्ठ्य ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः) ।

हे बृहद् भानो यविष्ठ्य अग्ने [सभाध्यक्ष महाराज] त्वं धूर्तेः अराव्णः रक्षसः नः पाहि । रिषतः [पापाचारात् जनात्] नः पाहि । उत वा जिघांसतः पाहि ॥

O President of the Assembly or great King, full of splendour of knowledge and wealth and most youthful, protect us from beings of wicked and harmful inclinations. Protect us from the miserly fraudulent person. Protect us from the wolf, tiger, lion and other beasts of violent nature. Protect us from that enemy who wants to kill us.

PURPORT

Men should pray for protection to the kind-hearted President of the Assembly who desires the growth of righteousness and is the protector of all from all sides. Men should also keep themselves away from persons of wicked nature and all sins, in body, word and mind. Without doing so, none can remain ever happy.

अत्र अन्येषामपि दृश्यते [अष्टा० ६.३.१३७]इति दीर्घः।

[यविष्ठ्य] अतितरुणावस्थायुक्तः = Youthful.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

This Mantra has also a spiritual meaning as explained by Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati in the Aryabhininaya in the following manner, in case of God. O Effulgent God, Protect us from beings of wicked and harmful inclinations. Protect us from the miserly fraudulent person. Protect us from him who prosecutes us, also from him who intends to harm us O Almighty Great and Divine Sun.

The same subject is continued—

Mantra—16

O Commander of the army, possessing powerful destructive weapons, smite down the wicked miserly persons right and left (as potter's ware) with club, Let not the man who plots against us in the night or is inimical to us, nor any foe prevail over us.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankar or simile used in the Mantra. The Commander of an army and others should smite down the limbs of their enemies as artisans break the stones etc. They should then be engaged day and night in preserving their own subjects, so that enemies may not be able to give them trouble.

TRANSLATION

That learned man who is like electricity in the battle, who prays for the admirable strength of the body and the soul and who gives prosperity to a highly intelligent righteous artist, who protects his friends and who like the fire serves the host of the holy guests (Sanyasis etc.) deserves to be a King.

PURPORT

As this material fire when properly utilised by the learned, gives them strength and prosperity and protects an expert artist and his friends; in the same manner, the President of the Assembly, when requested by the men of army and others gives them strength and encouragement and wealth should preserve experts in the science of war and their friends.

TRANSLATION

We challenge for fight even from a distance along with the President of the Assembly who is splendid like the fire, a person who desires to take away or swallow others' articles, who is trying to mis-appropriate others' wealth and who desires to conquer even energetic men. He (the President of the Assembly), the subduer of the robbers puts into prison the man who with evil intention builds new houses in the forest, has many big chariots and always harms others being of a violent nature.

PURPORT

All righteous persons should challenge for fight, in co-operation with the President of the Assembly those un-righteous people who take a way unjustly others' articles, who are crooked and desire their victory. They should demolish their houses built on the mountains or in the forests and they should put them into prisons.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

At the end of his commentary, Rishi Dayananda has given the following note which is very remarkable. He says—

सायणाचार्येण अयं मन्त्रोऽर्वाचीन पुराणाख्यमिथ्या ग्रन्थरीतिमाश्रित्य भ्रान्त्यानर्थो व्याख्यातः ॥

i. e. Sayanacharya has misinterpreted this Mantra based upon the style of the modern books named Puranas. Sayanacharya takes Turvasha, Yadu, Ugradeva, Nava Vastva, Brihadratha and Turveeti as the names of certain royal sages or Rakshasas as he calls them. But that is not only opposed to the fundamental principles of the Vedic terminology as given in the meemansa and other Shastras, but to Sayanacharya's own principles as given by him in his Introduction to the Rigveda commentary as we have pointed out before.

Prof. Wilson and Griffith have also committed the same mistake. Wilson simply translates "We invoke from afar, along with Agni, Turwasha, Yadu and Ugra Deva, let Agni the arrester of the robber, bring hither Nava Vastva, Brihadratha and Turviti. In his note, Wilson adds—

"Nothing more is said of the persons named in this verse than that they were Rajarshis, royal sages. Turvasha may be another reading of Turvasu who, with Yadu, was a son of Yayati of the lunar race. We have several princes of the name of Brihadratha, but the others are exclusively Vaidik." P.257. So Prof. Wilson has to admit willy-nilly that practically nothing is known about these so-called royal sages. As a matter of fact, it is not even hinted any where that they were Rajarshis or royal sages and Rishi Dayanandas' interpretation taking these words as denoting certain attributes is quite in keeping with the fundamental principles of the Vedic Terminology, as given in the Meemansa and Nirukta etc. Griffith giving the above words without translating them, gives a more absurd and conjectural note as seems to be his habit, saying—

"Turvasa and Yadu are frequently mentioned together as eponyoni of tribes of those names. The poet appears to pray for return of Navanastva, who ever he may have been, to protect the home attacked by the dasy us or robbers, and perhaps also to strengthen his prayer by an appeal to the spirits of departed heroes." P. 52.

All this is nothing but Griffith's own imagination which is full of probabilities and which has therefore no value.

In the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu 2.3 both तुर्वशा: and यद्व: are among the names of men in general तुर्वशा इति मनुष्यनाम (निघ० २ ३ यद्व इति मनुष्यनाम (निघ० २) ।

It is therefore wrong to take these and Brihadratha etc. as proper nouns.

TRANSLATION

Sing forth or describe O highly intelligent persons, force of the Maruts (winds) which is working in a vehicle like the aeroplane etc. which is without any horse and is very good or useful.

PURPORT

Learned persons should after experiments make proper use of the gases which accomplish various movement of force, speed and locomotion in carriages etc.

Here Prof. Maxmuller has stated that "The fact is that in the Rigveda anarvan never means without horses."

(See Vedic Hymns Vol. 1 by Prof. Maxmuller)

This is wrong and due to some misunderstanding as in the above Mantra, by अनर्वाणं रथम् "Anarvanam Ratham). horseless vehicle lik. aeroplane is clearly indicated. Here it is by the air moved with machines that the fire is kindled and the रथ (Chariot) in the form of aeroplane etc. is started with the speed created by steam. Horses are not used in this Vehicle.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(कण्वाः) मेधाविनः = Highly intelligent persons.

TRANSLATION

Those learned persons active like the winds who possess and properly use the water sticks used in various machines and the activities that manifest the attributes of the substances, become illustrious on account of the propaganda for Dharma (righteousness) and various scientific activities.

PURPORT

O learned persons; you should know the properties of the air in this creation of God and should preach and teach about them.

PROF. MAXMULLER'S TRANSLATION

"They who were born together, self-luminous, with the spotted deer (the clouds), the spears, the daggers, the glittering ornaments," (Vedic Hymn P. 63).

It is not correct as it is impossible for the air or storms to have deer, spears, and glittering ornaments.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Prof. Maxmuller had to admit the absurdity of this interpretation and has stated furthei on P. 71 that "The spears and daggers of the Maruts for the thunderbolts, and the glittering ornaments for the lightning.

(Vedic. Hymns Vol. P. 30).

He has also put a note on verse saying......

"The spotted deer (Prishati) are the recognised animals of the Maruts, and were originally as it would seem, intended for the rain- clouds. Sayana is perfectly aware of the original meaning of Prishati as clouds. The legendary school he says, takes them for deer with white spots, the etymological school for many coloured lines of clouds." (Rv. BH.1.64.8).

or that affect all parts of the body. It is with the help of the air that all animate or inanimate things accomplish wonderful acts on the path of happiness or to attain happiness.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra. Those who are desirous of knowing sciences like Physics should know that what ever actions are done by animate or inanimate things are on account of or with the help of the air. If there were no gases, none could do anything. The words that are spoken from a distant place, can be heard with the help of the air as if they were spoken close by. Without the movement of the air, none can speak or hear anything. Whatever mighty acts are done by the heroes in the battle etc. are all done with the association of the air. Without air, one cannot even twinkle the eye. Therefore every one should always investigate the properties of the air.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

Prof. Maxmuller's translation.

"I hear their whips, almost close by, when they crack them in their hands, they gain splendour on their way."
(Vedic Hymn Vol. P. 63).

Or "Here, close by, I hear what the whips in their hands say, they drive forth the beautiful (chariot) on the road." (V. H. I. P. 64). and the note on Yaman saying "The locative Yaman (यामन्) is frequently used of the path on which the Gods move and approach the sacrifice. Hence it some times means as in our passage, in the sky." (V. H. I. P. 72) are wrong and misleading, for here by Kashas are meant the activities caused by the air and by Yaman (यामन्) the acts that lead all beings to happiness.

(कशा:) चेष्टासाधनरज्जुवत् नियमप्रापिकाः क्रियाः

What should the learned persons do with the air is taught in the fourth Mantra.

Mantra—4

O learned persons, by the proper application of the winds which are endowed with terrible vigour and strength and make you illustrious, sing the Vedic Mantras revealed or given by God with Shadja and other tunes.

PURPORT

Learned persons after studying the Vedas and knowing the attributes of the air should give happiness to all beings by doing glorious mighty deeds.

Prof. Maxmuller's translation of the Mantra as "Sing forth the god-given prayer to the wild host of your Maruts (storm Gods) endowed with terrible vigour and strength." is not correct.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Prof. Maxmuller takes Maruts to be "Storm Gods" which is wrong as pointed out before. The word means learned priests, brave soldiers or Monsoon wind etc. देवत्तं ब्रह्म गायत which clearly shows that the Vedas are Revealed has been wrongly translated by Prof. Maxmuller simply as "God given prayer." It is still more surprising to find that Sayanacharya has taken ब्रह्म used in the Mantra for ब्रह्म-हविर्लक्षणम् अन्नम् or food in the form of oblation instead of taking it in the sense of the well-known sense of the Veda, for which there are clear authorities like—

ब्रह्म वौ ऋक् [कौषीतकी ब्रा० ७.१०] ब्रह्म वै मन्त्रः [शतपथ

ब्रा० ६.१.१.५] वेदो ब्रह्म [जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्राह्मणे ४.२५.३]

TRANSLATION

O learned person, you should always praise and instruct others about the inviolable power of the winds which is beneficial to the cows, which manifests itself in the earth and other elements, in the senses and which develops the body when food with sap is taken.

PURPORT

Men should always develop the power of the air that exists in their bodies. All knowledge about the sap etc. is aquired with the help of the air. Therefore all should teach one another, so that all may know the attributes of the air.

Prof. Maxmuller's translation as—is wrong. What is stated in the Mantra is that we should admire the force of the air that is among the cows and other beings. Whatever food or sap is taken also belongs to the winds.

"Celebrate the bull among the cows (the storm among the clouds) for it is the sportive host of the Maruts, he grew as he tasted the rain."

Prof. Maxmuller while translating the fifth Mantra as quoted above admits frankly "This translation is merely conjectural. I suppose that the wind driving the clouds before him, is here compared to a bull among cows of V. 52.3 (Vedic Hymns (Vol. 1 P. 73).

Rishi Dayananda's criticism is thus quite justified. What is after all the value of a merely conjectural translation ?

TRANSLATION

O learned persons, shakers of all ignorance, you will shake your enemies to their very end, like the winds that are shakers of heaven and earth, who will not become advanced in knowledge and wisdom among you

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simil used in the Mantra. Learned Officers of the State should shake all host of the enemies as a mighty person shakes or makes to tremble a weak person by catching hold of his hair or as the winds uphold, shake and move the worlds in their axis. They should protect and preserve their subjects well.

Professor Maxmuller's translation as—

Who, O Ye men, is the strongest among you here, shaker of heaven and earth, when you shake them like the hem of a garment." is not correct. His (Prof.M.Muller's) statement that "Antamna, literally, like an end, is explained by Sayana as the top of a tree. Roth proposes, like the hem of a garment, which I prefer etc. "is also not correct as the simile clearly shows that as the winds shake all worlds, so the workers and officers of the State shake their enemies. As a matter of fact, the meaning given by Sayanacharya and Prof. Maxmuller is erroneous.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(वर्षिष्ठः) अतिशयेन वृद्धः = most advanced.

(नरः) नयन्ति ये ते नरस्तत्सम्बुद्धौ = Leaders among men.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is gratifying to note that though Prof. Maxmuller takes the word "Maruts" wherever it occurs as "Storm Gods," in the translation of the Mantra he has rendered it as "O Ye men" that is consistent with the spirit of the Vedas which clearly use term 'नरः, Leading men नयन्ति ये ते

TRANSLATION

O people of the State and men of the army, you should know that the brave commander of the army by whose fear, the host of enemies flies away and begins to tremble like the cloud before the wind, upholds the State in order to lead you to noble conduct, for punishing the wicked severely, showing indignation towards all evil doers.

PURPORT

O men of the army and other subjects of the State, all your dealings are organised and ordained by the proper system of administration. When you go astray from your appointed right path, the President of the Assembly who is powerful like the wind gives you severe punishment. You should treat him as your father, by whose fear enemies begin to shake like the roaring clouds before the strong wind.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

Prof. Maxmuller's translation of the Mantra as "At your approach the son of man holds himself down; the gnarled cloud fled at your fierce anger" is not correct. The words गिरि and पर्वत stand here for the clouds and not for the mountain as explained by Sayanacharya [illegible] गिरिः [illegible]:
The verb used in the Mantra is निदध्रे which means

"Certainly upholds." Therefore it is wrong on the part of Prof. Maxmuller to say that it expresses the holding down of the head or the cowering attitude of man.

So both the interpretations given by Sayanacharya and Prof. Maxmuller are wrong. How could Prof. Maxmuller know the real meaning of the Vedic Mantras, when he did not believe in the Revelation of the Vedas ?

(यामाय) यथार्थव्यवहारप्रापणाय । अर्तिस्तु सुधृक्षिक्षु मायावापदियक्षिनीभ्यो मन् (उणा० १.१३९) इति या धातोर्मप्रत्ययः । (मानुषः) सभापतिर्मनुजः ।

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra. As an old King trembles on account of some terrible disease or the fear of his enemies; in the same way, this earth upheld from all sides by the air moves in its axis and the same is the case with other worlds. Without this thread-like enveloping air, no world can exist and move.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

Prof. Maxmuller while translating the Mantra as—

"They at whose racings the earth, like a hoary King, trembles for fear on their ways. " Says in his notes—.

"The comparison of the earth (fem) to a King would be considered a grave offence in the later Sanskrit literature." (Vedic Hymns Vol. 1. P. 75).

This is wrong. In Upamalankara, this change of genders is not an offence. For instance in even modern Sanskrit such expressions are commonly used."

What are the attributes of these winds is taught further in the ninth Mantra.

TRANSLATION

O men, you should know the attributes of the winds whose origin is stable sky. Their force is of two kinds i. e. they possess sound and touch. It is on account of the force of the air that birds are able to fly in the middle region (Antariksha).

PURPORT

You should properly use the winds which are born out of the sky and which go here and there. They have their movement in all places where there is recess. All living beings get their strength from them.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

Prof. Maxmuller's translation—

"Their birth is strong indeed; there is strength to come forth from their mother, nay there is vigour twice enough for it" is useless. The origin of all substances is from their causes which they imbibe in themselves. By Vayah are taken birds in this Mantra.

Prof. Maxmuller admits in his note No. 1 that 'it is very difficult verse .. what follows is very abrupt. Vayah may mean birds or vital strength. I therefore take Vayas as a noun. Sing. neut in the sense of vigour, life." Prof. Maxmuller's uncertainty is quite clear and his interpretation is merely conjectureal, as has been admitted by him in several places.

What kind of action should they do is taught in the 10th Mantra.

Mantra– 10

TRANSLATION

O Kings and their subjects, let these winds which are in the firmament and cause th. delivery and extension of speech in all kness to their calves.

PURPORT

The rulers and their subjects should know that it is the winds that move the sounds and waters and extending them cause us to hear them and tell others and they are causes of going coming, birth, growth and decay. So with their help. only good actions should be performed.

Prof. Maxmuller's translation given as follows—

"And these sons, the singers, stretched out the fences in their racings, the cows had to walk knee-deep" is useless, because by the word 'सूनवः.' Children uttering pleasant speech are to be taken. As cows in order to lick their calves place their knees on the earth and gladden their calves, so the winds make us happy. This is what is meant by the simile used in the Mantra.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Prof. Maxmuller himself admits regarding this translation in his note No. 2 "That the translation of this verse is purely tentative, and far from satisfactory was known to all Vedic scholars. Strongly criticising M.Bergaingner's interpretation, he further states–

"I do not pretent to solve the difficulties, but I think, it is better to confess our difficulties than to hide them under the veil of a so-called systematic interpretation."

(Vedic Hymns Vol. P. 77-78).

Therefore there is no need of any more criticism, as Prof. Maxmuller admits the un-satisfactory and tentative nature of his translation as given above.

TRANSLATION

O officers and workers of the State, as Maruts (Mansoon winds) which cause rain, drive before them in their course of going and coming, the vast, un-wetting rain-retaining cloud, in the same manner, you should drive away and cause the fall of your enemies and gladden the people.

PURPORT

As the Mansoon winds carry up much water that causes the production of the cloud, generate lightning by mutual rubbing and make to fall down the long, vast, un-wetting rain-retaining cloud, in the same way, they should cause the fall of all unrighteous dealings.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

Prof. Maxmuller's translation.

"They (Maruts) cause this long and broad un-ceasing rain, to fall on their ways" is also not quite correct, as (Mihah) which is the adjective of मरुत: (Marutah) has been taken by him as the adjective of the clouds.

TRANSLATION

PURPORT

The Officers of the State like the Commanders of the armies should prompt the people to perform their works industriously and justly, as the winds move the clouds.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

Prof. Maxmuller's translation of the Mantra as "O Maruts, with such strength as yours, you have caused men to tremble, you have caused mountain to tremble," is inorrect, as the word गिरि:(Giri) stands here for clouds and not for mountains. गिरिरिति मेघनाम (निघ० १.१०) = Tr.

TRANSLATION

As these winds pass along here and there, artists and scientists give instructions on the path of (or for acquining knowledge) knowledge and converse with one another about them. The knowledge of this science of sound is gained by a few and not by all.

PURPORT

The science of air can be known by one who is well-versed in knowledge and practical work and not an idiot.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

Prof. Maxmuller's translation of the Mantras as "As the Maruts pass along, they talk together on the way; does any one hear them ?

is not correct, because conversation among inanimate Maruts (Storms) is impossible. It is only conscious souls that can talk and hear and not inanimate like the winds and storms.

TRANSLATION

O officers of the State and their subjects,

You should travel to distant places with swift Vehicles like the aeroplanes. You should take delight in serving highly intelligent persons.

PURPORT

It is the duty of the learned rulers and their subjects to accomplish their works by manufacturing vehicles for speedy motion. They should take pleasure in serving righteous persons and in giving suitable punishment to the wicked people.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

Prof. Maxmuller's translation is as follows—

"Come fast on your quick speeds ! There are worshippers for you among the Kanvas. May you well rejoice among them." (Vedic Hymns Vol. 1.P.64).

This translation is wrong because it is speed and other attributes of the winds that are supposed to be their horses. It is not possible for the winds to ride over them. They are there by their permanent relation. By Kanvas are meant highly intelligent learned persons. By serving them and by keeping company with them, one can enjoy true delight and bliss.

TRANSLATION

O learned persons, let us be yours (Your admirers and followers) for enjoying bliss and leading full and happy life.

PURPORT

As persons who are well-versed in the science of Prana and practisers of Yoga; eating what is conducive to health enjoy blissfully the full span of life, others also should learn this science from them and enjoy full life.

Prof. Maxmuller's translation is as follows—

"Truly there is enough for your rejoicing, we always are their servants that we may live even the whole of life."

(Vedic Hymns Vol. 1. P. 64).

This translation is incorrect because here it is clearly stated that let us acquire the knowledge of the air, that enables us to lead happy life.

As in this hymn Prof. Maxmuller has misinterpreted the Mantras from his own imagination, he has done so in other Mantras and hymns also. When impartial learned persons will read my commentary of the Vedas and will carefully compare it with that of Prof. Maxmuller and others, they will realise the mistakes committed by them, so there is no need of elaborating upon the subject here.

In this hymn, the properties of the air which is the cause of all activities, life and strength and kindler of the fire and also the characteristics of the knowers of the science of the air have been described. Therefore, it is directly connected with the previous hymn.

Here ends the thiry-seventh hymn and fourteenth Varga, with its commentary, translation and translator's notes.

O teachers, you should endeavour in such a way that the adverse movement of the winds that causes diseases may never destroy us, along with the powerful passion of greed, but their movement and use which lead to health and happiness be attained by us.

PURPORT

The movement of the Maruts (winds) is of two kinds; one that is pleasant and giver of happiness, the second that causes misery and diseases. The former is that which is observed and used regularly thereby destroying diseases and promoting health and happiness for the body and the mind etc. The second is that which is used without the observance of any rules, with negligence and thus causing various terrible diseases and awful misery. Men should choose and generate industriousness. They should advance happiness by generating the first and keeping away the second. Men should know that thirst etc. are caused by the air and greed is created by ignorance.

TRANSLATION

O practisers of yoga or other worldly men, you should come (for a walk and meditation) to the beautifully embanked rivers with unobstructed progress along with ever-moving and strong winds.

PURPORT

The winds have the power of going about and strength natural in them. It is they that cause the movement of the rivers and when entering the nerves, they cause the circulation of blood and sap in the organs of the body. Therefore the Yogis should make proper use of them for gaining strength through the practice of Yoga — Pranayama etc. and other persons engaged in worldly occupations should also utilise them properly.

TRANSLATION

O learned men, may the fellies of your wheels be firm, May your chariots of various kinds including aeroplanes be stead and your horses of fire etc. be properly trained and utilised; and may your rains be fashioned well.

PURPORT

God instructs:

O men, you should manufacture many kinds of vehicles endowed with various machines, use fire and water etc. and with their combination and that of the gases you should be able to move quickly everywhere, should get victory over your enemies and accomplish all works.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वय: [ऋषिकृत:]

(हे सर्व विद्याविद् विद्वन्) त्वं ब्रह्मणस्पतिम् अग्निं मित्रं न जरायै तनागिरा (विमानादियानविद्याम्) वद ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned man, well versed in various sciences, you should teach with your Vedic speech that spreads the light of the attributes, this science about the aeroplanes etc. like a person who protects all by teaching the Vedas, who is worth-seeing (charming in appearance) who is endowed with spiritual splendour and friendly to all.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra. O learned men, as a dear friend pleases a loving friend who is a preacher of the Vedas and full of splendour by service and praise of his virtues in the same way, you should teach well the science of the manufacture of the aeroplanes and other vehicles with the Vedic speech for the knowledge of their properties.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अच्छ) सम्यग्रीत्या =Well.

(तना) गुणप्रकाशविस्तारिकया =Spreading the light of the attributes.

TRANSLATION

O learned person, utter the Vedic Speech that is in your mouth, spread it out like a cloud spreading rain, chant the hymn that is worth-reciting in Gayatri and other Metres.

PURPORT

O men taught by the learned, you must make your speech refined by the study of the Vedas with labour and thus becoming the masters of the speech, should listen to the attributes of God and air etc. and should teach about them to others.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(श्लोकम्) वेदशिक्षायुक्तां वाणीम् श्लोक इति वाङ्नामसु पठितम् (निघ० १.११) =Speech full of Vedic knowledge.

TRANSLATION

Sing glory to the host of the maruts (learned priests) brilliant, praise-worthy, musicians, heroes, active like the winds. Here let them be well with us.

PURPORT

Men should endeavour with knowledge and exertion in such a way that the wind may always be source of happiness, accomplishing their works when properly utilised.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(त्वेषम्) अग्न्यादिप्रकाशवद्द्रव्ययुक्तम् =Brilliant.
(अर्किणम्) प्रशस्तः अर्कः अर्चनं विद्यते यस्मिन् तम् । अत्र प्रशंसार्थ इनिः । =Praise worthy.

In this 38th Hymn also the attributes of learned persons have been described by the illustration of the air so it has connection with the previous hymn

TRANSLATION

O learned persons who are like air, shakers (of all ignorance) as the sun's rays descend from long distance on earth, so whose pride do you throw away by your vast learning ? It is by the knowledge and prompting action of God, Who is the source of all happiness and the pleasing form or manners of a lucky person who is giver of delight, that you go to a happy place and obtain objects that cause happiness.

PURPORT

Those learned persons who desire happiness, should accurately know the properties of the air from God, The giver of all Delight (as given in the Vedas) and lucky great scholars or scientists, and then should enjoy happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(परावतः) दूरात् =From a distant place.

TRANSLATION

Strong be your weapons for driving away your foes, firm in resisting them, Yours be the army that men praise, not that (army or strength) of an unrighteous deceitful mortal.

PURPORT

Righteous persons receive the Grace of God and victory. God also blesses only righteous persons and not others. These righteous persons should manufacture powerful arms, should practise their use well, train their army, defeat, capture or kill (as the case and necessity may be) their unrighteous wicked foes and protect their subjects justly. Unrighteous, treacherous and fraudulent person can not do all this.

TRANSLATION

O leaders among men, defeat and kill your enemies, having attained strong power, as the winds overthrow what is strong and whirl about what is heavy in all directions of the earth, the mountains and the clouds. Drive away your foes. Like the winds, go to the armies and towns of your enemies to conquer them.

PURPORT

As strong winds shatter trees and other things and sustain earth, in the same manner, righteous dispensers of justice, should demolish unrighteous conduct and preserve the people with righteous justice. The commanders of the armies should have vast armies, kill their enemies and establish vast and good Government and spread their good reputation everywhere. As Pranas are loved by all, in the same manner, they should be loved by all subjects on account of humility and good character.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O brave destroyers of your foes and diseases, if you have a powerful army, no adversary of yours will there be in the light of justice nor any upon the earth, may your collected strength of army be quickly exerted O heroes who make your opponents weep, to humble or overcome your enemies.

PURPORT

As the airs have no enemies and are liked by all, in the same way, people should be endowed with knowledge, righteousness, strength and force and justice, so that they may rule over all with justice, may destroy their opponents and should become so popular as to have no enemy at all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O heroic learned mighty persons like the winds, O Commander of the army, as the winds move the clouds making them tremble (so to speak) and shatter the trees, in the same manner, you should fight with wicked persons who behave like the intoxicated and should remain happy with all your subjects or the people in general.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara. As loyal learned persons, keep under their control intoxicated robbers and thieves, and preserve and support righteous people, you should also do like them. As winds move about the earth, you should also go round and move from place to place.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मरुतः) वायुवद् बलवन्तः
= Powerful or mighty like the winds.

(देवासः) न्यायाधीशाः, सेनापतयः, सभासदो विद्वांसः = Dispensers of justice, commanders of the armies and members of the Assemblies.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is very wrong on the part of Prof. Maxmuller to take Maruts as Storm Gods and to translate the last two stanzas of this Mantra as "come on Maruts, like mad men, ye gods, with your whole tribe." (Vedic hymns Vol. I, P. 97) विशु does not mean tribe but subjects or people. दुर्मदासः or mad men does not refer to the Maruts, but to their foes who are to be faught against.

TRANSLATION

O men, in order that your chariots (Vehicles) may travel on earth, water and the sky, you should yoke or harness the red fire about which you may ask the learned scientists. This fire mainly sustains the vehicles, and by its sound men are frightened.

PURPORT

If men properly use water, fire and air in the vehicles and thereby travel from one place to another, they can easily go and come everywhere.

TRANSLATION

O Rudras—heroes who have observed Brahmacharya upto the age of 44 years and who therefore make your enemies weep, as we quickly desire your protection, you also come to our help. As God protects an intelligent frightened person who spreads happiness by teaching wisdom and righteousness, in the same manner, you and we should always sustain or uphold the people constantly.

PURPORT

As wise men enjoy happiness by casting aside all fear by the proper combination of the air, water and fire etc. so we should also do.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(तनाय) यः सर्वस्मै सद्विद्याधर्मोपदेशेन सुखानि तनोति तस्मै । अत्र बाहुलकादौणादिको न प्रत्ययः ।

(कण्वाय) मेधाविने =For a wise man.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Maxmuller's note on Kanva — as "the author of the hymn" is wrong. Kanva simply means a wise man as clearly stated in the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu (3.15)

कण्व इति मेधाविनाम (निघ० ३.१५)

The Rishis are seers and not the authors of the Mantras, as erroneously supposed by Prof. Maxmuller and others.

पुनः युष्माभिस्तेभ्यः किं साधनीयमित्युपदिश्यते ।

What more should you accomplish with their help and co-operation is taught in the 8th Mantra.

TRANSLATION

O brave learned people, whatever adversary whom you and other persons of the army desire to overcome, attacks us, deprive him of power, by your strong army, by your own might and by your defending forces endowed with protection, love and knowledge etc.

PURPORT

Men should extend happiness which brings about welfare to all, by making them refrain from evil selfish enemies who have no idea of doing good to others, but on the contrary who give them trouble, by imparting them good knowledge and education or conquering them in battles with the help of army and power.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मरुतः) ऋत्विजः मरुत इति ऋत्विङ्नामसु पठितम् (निघ० ३.१८) = Priests and other learned persons.

(ईषते) हिनस्ति =Attacks or assails.

(अभ्वः) यो विरोधी, मित्रो न भवति सः =Adversary, not friendly.

(ऊतिभिः) रक्षाप्रीतितृप्त्यवगमप्रवेशयुक्ताभिः सेनाभिः Forces endowed with protection, love and knowledge etc.

(वियुयोत) पृथक् कुरुत Remove, deprive.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

ईषते is from ईष-गतिहिंसादर्शनेषु Here the second meaning of the Verb हिंसा has been taken by Rishi Dayananda and has been interpreted as हिनस्ति Attacks or assails.

यु-मिश्रणामिश्रणयोः Here it is in the sense of अमिश्रण removing or depriving of power.

Prof. Maxmuller's translation of the Mantra as "Whatever fiend, roused by you or roused by men, attacks us, deprive him of power, of strength, and of your favours," is not correct as it is absurd to say that the Maruts (learned priests or other good brave people) rouse the fiends or wicked persons.

पुनस्तच्छोधिताः प्रेरिताः किं किं साध्नुवन्तीत्युपदिश्यते

What do people reformed and prompted by them (Maruts) accoumplish is taught in the ninth Mantra.

TRANSLATION

O mighty highly learned persons who are always engaged in the performance of Yajna in the form of philanthropic activities, give entire happiness to all, by your undivided protective powers as lighting brings the rain. Come to the aid of a highly intelligent person for conquering his enemies.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra. As Monsoon winds, sun and lightning cause the production of fruits and flowers by means of the rains for the happiness of all, in the same manner, learned persons should make all people happy by giving them Vedic knowledge.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(प्रचेतसः)प्रकृष्टं चेतो ज्ञानं येषां ते=Full of Knowledge.

(असामि) सम्पूर्णम् । सामीति खण्डवाची । न सामि असामि ।=Entire, whole S. Sama-Latin and English Semi.

(असामिभिः) क्षयरहिताभिः रीतिभिः अत्र षैक्षये इत्यस्माद् बाहुलकादौणादिको मिप्रत्ययः ।

= By un-decaying manners.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Wilson, Griffith, Maxmuller and other Western translators have again committed the mistake of taking Kanva as the name of a particular sage, instead of taking it as a general noun denoting a highly intelligent person as un-ambiguously stated in the Vedic Lexicon-Nighantu—

कण्व इति मेधाविनाम (निघ० ३.१५)

How audacious are some of these Western scholars is exemplified by Ludwig's conjecture which Prof. Maxmuller remarks as bold. "Ludwig proposes some bold conjectures. He would change (कण्वम् Kanvam) to (रण्वम् Ranvam)." No comments are needed.

It is remarkable that Prof. Maxmuller also translates प्रचेतसः as wise Maruts and so does Griffith. Is it applicable to Storm Gods ?

पुनस्ते किं कुर्युरित्युपदिश्यते ।

What again should they (Maruts) do is taught in the tenth Mantra.

O bounteous givers, you carry whole strength of knowledge, whole or un-diminished power, ye shakers of the world. O brave learned persons, let loose your indignation and your powerful weapons against wicked persons who hate the seers and are opposed to Vedas, Vedic scholars and believers in God.

PURPORT

As righteous brave people when full of indignation conquer their enemies with powerful weapons and gladden their subjects (people) having attained resistless Government, in the same manner, all persons should conquer with all their might (spiritual as well as physical when necessary), those who are haters of the true knowledge (Vedas) God and Vedic Scholars and should thus make their Rajya (State) full of the light of God and the true Vedic knowledge.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मरुत:) ऋत्विज: = Learned priests.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is wrong on the part of Prof. Max Muller to translate the expression ऋषिद्विषे as "Wrathful enemy of the poets." Rishi does not mean poet but a seer or sage—a truly wise man.

Here ends the commentary of the 39th hymn and 19th Varga of the Ist Mandala of the Rigveda.

O Master of the Vedic Knowledge giver of the Supreme wealth of wisdom, desiring true sciences with knowledge, possessing charitable disposition, we priests and other learned persons know you (as a great preceptor). Let all good people humbly approach you. Be bringer of all happiness to us and get up (be alert) for the welfare of all.

PURPORT

Men should enjoy all happiness and bring the same to others by the association of and service to the learned persons, knowledge, Yoga, righteousness, doing good to others and other means. They should get happiness of all kinds by acquiring the knowledge of God—the Lord of all true wisdom.

TRANSLATION

Verily God, the Just Lord of the vast universe and the Vedas, proclaims or reveals the admirable, worthy to be heard and spoken, Mantras contained in the Vedas. It is in Him that electricity, Ocean, Moon and stars, Prana (vital energy), air, the earth and other worlds and learned persons have made their dwelling place (as He is Omnipresent, pervading and controlling all).

PURPORT

O men, you should adore only that one God who has revealed the Vedas (in the beginning of the Human creation) who pervades the entire Universe, in Whom the earth and other globes reside and in Whom learned persons abide during emancipation.

The moon, ocean and group of stars etc.

(मित्रः) प्राणः=Vital energy.

(अर्यमा) वायुः=Air.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has translated Mitra as प्राण for which there are several clear authorities, for instance.

प्राणो वै मित्रः – (शतपथ ८.४.२.६)
प्राणो मित्रम् (जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्राह्मणे ३.३.६)
प्राणोदानौ मित्रावरुणौ (शतपथ ३.२.२.१३)

Varuna (वरुण:) has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda as चन्द्रसमुद्रतारकादिसमूह: For moon and stars etc. the authority is असौ द्युलोको वरुण: (शत० १२.९.२.१२)

The meaning of water or ocean etc. is too well-known for which such authorities as आसु वै वरुण: (तैत्तिरीय १.६.५.६) —etc. may be quoted.

अथ सर्वमनुष्यार्था वेदाः सन्तीत्युपदिश्यते ।

The Vedas are Universal is taught in the 6th Mantra.

TRANSLATION

O learned persons, as in all dealings of reading and teaching, we teach these felicitous and faultless Mantras, you should also do likewise. O leaders of knowledge, if you know well these, the Divine Speech contained in these auspicious Vedas, she may obtain all bliss for you.

PURPORT

Learned persons should teach to all the Vedas with their meanings and limbs (grammar, metre, etymology etc.), their secret and practical application. If one desires to enjoy happiness, he must acquire the Vedic knowledge. Without it, none can attain true happiness. Therefore all teachers and the taught should learn and teach all Vedas.

(वामा) प्रशस्ता वाक् । वाम इति प्रशस्यनामसु पठितम् । (निघ० ३.८)

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The above two Mantras clearly show that the Vedas are Revealed by God and are therefore flowless and Universal. Their study and teaching is the duty of all learned persons.

The translation of the 6th Mantra by Wilson and Griffith, though very faulty, conveys the idea to a certain extent, though unfortunately they could not understand its full import. They wrongly thought that the reference was only to some particular Mantra or hymn.

Prof. Wilson's translation is—

"Let us recite gods, that felicitous and faultless prayer at sacrifices, if you leaders desire (to hear) this prayer, then will all that is to be spoken reach unto you." (Wilson).

Griffith's translation is—

"May we in holy Synods, Gods, recite that hymn, peerless, that brings felicity. If you O Heroes, graciously accept this word, may it obtain all bliss from you. (Griffith).

Both have mis-interpreted देवा: as "gods" or Gods, while according to विद्वांसो हि देवाः (शत० ३.७,३.१०) it means learned persons as translated by Rishi Dayananda.

कश्चिदेव विद्वांसं प्राप्य विद्याग्रहणं कर्तुं शक्नोतीत्युपदिश्यते ।

It is only some that can attain knowledge from the learned persons is taught in the 7th Mantra.

TRANSLATION

Who is the person that approaches a man desiring to get divine attributes and is himself devoted to enlightened truthful persons ? Who approaches a highly learned priest well-versed in all sciences devoid of all impurity ? Who is the charitably disposed lucky person that builds a beautiful house on good ground, full of pure air and well-ventilated ?

PURPORT

It is not all persons that approach a learned man who desires to diffuse knowledge. It is not all that can build a house that is suitable and source of happiness in all seasons. But it is only some fortunate persons that are able to do it.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(दाश्वान्) दानशील: दाशृ-दाने =Charitable.

TRANSLATION

Such a highly learned President of the Assembly or of the Council of Ministers, concentrates his strength and amplifies his lordly might with the aid of brave heroes shining with splendour; he slays his foes, being himself very mighty. In greater or lesser fight, none checks him, none subdues as he is the wielder of the thunderbolt. Even amid alarms, he remains secure.

PURPORT

Those officers and workers of the State who conquer their enemies in greater as well as lesser fights, imprison them and restrain them from doing any mischief, can administer the State righteously, enjoy happiness in this world and attain emancipation after passing away.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(क्षत्रम्) राज्यम् = Kingdom.

TRANSLATION

Never is he injured or harmed, whom excellently wise, noble, friendly and just people protect.

PURPORT

Men should elect the best person as the President of the Assembly or Commander-in-Chief of the Army, one who is friendly to all as ambassador, teacher and preacher and a righteous person as dispenser of justice. Having obtained protection from them, they should kill all their enemies, properly administer a vast Government and bring about the welfare of all. None should be afraid of death, as death is inevitable to all living beings.

TRANSLATION

The man ever prospers with knowledge of God and other virtues and is free from all obstacles whom Varuna, Mitra and Aryaman (the best person, friendly and just) safeguard as with both arms or with power and force and enrich and whom they preserve from every foe.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra. As President of the Assembly, the Commander-in-Chief of the army and other officers of the State set aside or remove with their power and strength all wicked robbers and thieves as well as poverty, protect well all subjects, make all happy, eliminate all obstacles, keep them engaged in doing noble deeds, observe Brahmacharya (continence), renounce hankering after lustful indulgence and develop their physical and spiritual faculties with wisdom and good education, so should all people among the subjects also do.

TRANSLATION

The persons shining on account of their virtues, first destroy the strongholds of the enemies and drive them away and lead good men safely over distress. Such persons are fit to rule over an empire.

PURPORT

Men should ever try to destroy those wicked persons, who trouble the righteous and then enter their forts, come out of them and then again cause trouble to the noble. They should always be engaged in protecting the righteous, in overcoming, subduing or even killing the wicked and administering the country righteously.

TRANSLATION

Where Adityas (learned persons who have observed Brahmacharya upto the age of48 or more)are the protectors and where the path has been made thornless (externally by which men can go to the land, water and sky and internally the path which leads to education, knowledge, Dharma (Righteousness) and justice and free from the conduct of thieves, robbers, bad education and unrighteousness)on that and for the person that tries to attain God, Truth and Yajna, there is no fear in the dealing, protected and preached by the enlightened.

PURPORT

Men should construct easy straight paths free from the fear of thorns, pits, thieves and robbers by which chariots, steamers and aeroplanes may travel on the earth, the sea and the sky and there may not be any inconvenience and fear to any one. Having done all this, they should enjoy the happiness of good and vast Government and should allow others to do the same.

TRANSLATION

O highly learned guides, the yajna in the form of destruction of enemies and preservation of the righteous you lead by a straight just path, let that lead to happiness and may never end.

PURPORT

Where learned persons being the presidents of the Assembly, commanders of the armies, members of the Councils and servants behave politely, there is never an end to happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(यज्ञम्) शत्रुनाशकं श्रेष्ठपालनाख्यं राज्यव्यवहारम् =Administration which destroys enemies and protects the righteous persons.

(नरः) नयन्ति सत्यं व्यवहारं प्राप्नुवन्ति असत्यं च दूरीकुर्वन्ति। = Guides who lead to truthful dealing and remove false-hood.

(धीतये) धीयन्ते प्राप्यन्ते सुखानि अनया क्रियया सा धीतिः तस्यै = For an act that leads to happiness. (दुधाञ्-धारणपोषणयोः)

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Yajna in the Vedas is a very comprehensive term. It is derived from यज्ञ-देवपूजासंगतिकरणदानेषु। Hence it can be used for any noble act in which the learned are honoured, there is association with noble persons and Charity. Proper administration is also such a noble act.

The adjective for Adityas clearly shows that they are true leaders. Hence Rishi Dayananda's interpreattion given above about Adityas as highly learned men observing Brahmacharya for 48 years and thereby shining like the sun is correct.

Skanda Swami explains (Narah) used here as नराकाराः

Assuming human form Why not take them for good leaders directly as Rishi Dayanand has done?

Mantra—6

TRANSLATION

How shall we being friendly to one another sing glory of and accomplish the attributes of the person who is friendly to all, of the dispenser of justice and of the best or the most virtuous ? How shall we enjoy happiness ?

PURPORT

When some one ask another how shall we attain friendship justice and good knowledge, he should tell him that it is possible to do so only by diffusing knowledge and by benevolence or doing good to others. Without these, it is not possible for any one to enjoy happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

Let me not speak sweet words to him who strikes you my friends, nor to him who reviles you — you who are desirous of acquiring divine virtues. But let me serve only him who leads you to happiness and noble qualities.

PURPORT

A man should not love those who are enemies of his friend and who are their (his friends' enemies, accomplices or helpers. Friends should always be protected and safe-guarded. The learned friends should always be served with wealth, food) clothes and vehicles etc. A man without friends cannot enjoy happiness, therefore men should make friendship only with righteous and learned persons.

(मनुष्यः) घ्नतः शपतः ददमानात् निधातोः एतान् चतुरः प्रति न विश्वसेत् बिभीयात् तथा दुरुक्ताय न स्पृहयेत् (एतान् पंच मित्रान् कर्तुं न इच्छेत्) ॥

TRANSLATION

A man should not trust but have apprehension or want of confidence in the following four wicked persons.

(1) One who kills or resorts to violence.
(2) One who reviles or abuses.
(3) Who administers poison to give trouble.
(4) Who misappropriates others' articles unjustly, one should also not love to speak ill words. A man should not make the above five including a man of illwords as his friends.

PURPORT

A man should not associate himself with or trust persons of ill words and wicked actions. He should not also be unfaithful to his friends, nor hate or insult them.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(ददमानात्) दुःखार्थं विषादिकं प्रयच्छतः
= From giving poisonous substance to cause trouble.

(निधातोः) अन्यायेन परपदार्थान् स्वीकर्तुः
= From a person misappropriating other's property.

In this hymn the subjects like the protection of the people, conquering enemies, keeping friendship with righteous persons, not trusting the wicked, refraining from un-righteous conduct etc. have been told and so it has direct connection with the previous hymn.

Here ends the commentary of the forty-first hymn of the first Mandala of the Rigveda.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

[पूषन्] पोषणविद्यया पुष्टिकारक विद्वन् पूषेति पदनाम [निघ० ५.६]=Nourisher.

[अहः] दुःखरोगवेगम् अत्र अमेर्हुक् च [उणादि ४.२२०] चादसुम्। अनेन वेगोगृह्यते=Force of disease and misery.

[विमुचः] वि मुंच=Remove.

[नपात्] न विद्यते पातोयस्य तत्सम्बुद्धौ = One who does not fall.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is very strange or rather absurd on the part of Sayanacharya, Wilson and Griffith to translate विमुचो न पाद्–जल विमोचनहेतोर्मेघस्य पुत्र (सायण). The son of the cloud (Wilson) or cloud-born God." (Griffith)

There is no sense in Poosha being called as the Son of the cloud or cloud-born. Rishi Dayananda's interpretation quoted above is simple and direct.

As a matter of fact, Pooshan is a person who being well-versed in the science of nourishment, biology and healing, nourishes. It is not deity or God sitting some where in heaven, as supposed by many of the commentators or Western translators.

TRANSLATION

O nourisher, learned person, drive away from our path, (annihilate or throw away as the need be) a sinner who is a thief, a wicked, inauspicious person who deserves punishment for causing suffering to others, and who lies in wait to injure us.

PURPORT

Men should kill, throw away or imprison with the help of education, knowledge and army those wicked thieves who take away others' property. By so doing, they should make all roads and paths free from fear and danger. As God punishes the wicked according to their actions, in the same manner, we should also make them noble by giving proper Vedic education and suitable punishment.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O Commander-in-chief of the army or the President of the Assembly, trample with your feet upon the mischievous army of that evil-minded pilferer or double-tongued person of both kinds (of things seen and un-seen or what is present and what is absent), who ever he may be.

PURPORT

The dispensers of justice should never leave a thief without giving him suitable punishment, otherwise the people will suffer. Therefore, for the protection of the people, it is necessary to give punishment to all guilty persons even if they be the parents, preceptors and friends of the officers concerned.

TRANSLATION

Therefore O learned President of the Assembly ruling over the State, lord of prosperity and the power of speech, shining with the light of truth and good reputation, bestow upon us wealth (of knowledge, Dharma, prosperity and vast Government) that may be liberally distributed.

PURPORT

Men should enjoy happiness abundantly by having the communion with God who is the Lord of all and association with a righteous President of the Assembly, a Commander of the army or dispenser of justice possessing prosperity, having acquired knowledge, gold and other kinds of wealth. They should make others also happy.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

हे पूषन् (परमात्मन् सभाध्यक्ष वा) त्वम् इह सश्चतः नः (अस्मान्) सुगा सुपथा अति नय नः (अस्मान्) क्रतुं विदः ॥

TRANSLATION

O pooshan (God or the President of the Assembly) fill us with knowledge and righteousness. Conduct us by an easy and pleasant path which is trodden by the wise endowed with knowledge and Dharma (righteousness). Make us full of knowledge and the power of action.

PURPORT

There is Shleshalankara or double entendre. All men should thus pray to the Lord of the Universe. O God, take us away from the path of evil and lead us towards the path of Dharma. Learned persons also should be served and requested to conduct us by the pure and easy Vedic Path.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सश्चतः) विज्ञानवतो विद्याधर्मप्राप्तान् = Full of knowledge and Dharma (righteousness).

TRANSLATION

O God the nourisher of all and the President of the Assembly, protector of the people, lead us where there is abundant fodder, barley and other herbs. Grant us knowledge and the power of action, so that while on the way (of doing noble deeds) there may not be fever or any trouble caused by extreme heat etc.

PURPORT

O God, grant us by Thy grace a beautiful country and good attributes, remove all miseries and lead us to happiness. O learned President of the Assembly, make us happy in this land by safe-guarding and preserving us with humility and giving us good education.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

[पूषन] [१] परमेश्वर, [२] सभाध्यक्ष ।

God is called Poosha (पूषा) as He is the nourisher of all. The President of the Assembly or King is also called पूषा (Poosha) as it is his duty to see that all subject are nourished and fed properly. The word may also be used for the commander of an army.

TRANSLATION

O President of the Assembly or Commander of the Army, you are able to give happiness to all. Therefore be gracious to us. Fill us full, feed us and invigorate or sharpen us with vigour. Discharging your duties properly, sleep well at night, being free from all evils. Engage all your knowledge and action in bringing about the welfare of the subjects, knowing how to protect us.

PURPORT

There is none except the President of the Assembly and Commander-in-Chief of the Army who is giver of happiness, strength and encouragement for exertion, remover of all fear of the thieves and the robbers, provider of all legitimate means of good enjoyment and illuminator of justice and knowledge. Therefore all should take shelter in them.

हे मनुष्याः ! यथा वयं सूक्तैः पूषणं सभासेनाध्यक्षम् अभि गृणीमसि दस्युं मेथामसि वसूनि ईमहे (परस्परं कदाचित् न द्विष्मः) । तथा एव यूयम् अपि आचरत) ।

TRANSLATION

O men, as we praise the President of the Assembly or the Commander of the Army with good words, we destroy the enemy and solicit wealth (material as well as spiritual). We never have animosity with any one among our people, you should also do likewise.

PURPORT

No one should beg from any enemy out of folly, having given up the shelter of the President of the Assembly and the Commander of the Army, but after knowing the science of Politics from the Vedas, killing the enemies with the help of good and brave people, acquiring knowldge, gold and other kinds of wealth, giving the same in charity to deserving persons, knowledge should be diffused.

In this hymn, by the use of the word Poosha, the President of the Assembly and Commander of the Army have been taken, the duty of increasing our power and removing wicked enemies, the attainment of all prosperity, treading upon the path of righteousness, developments of intellect and actions have been stated. So it has connection with the previous hymn.

THE COMMENTATORS NOTES

(मेथामसि) हिंस्मः =Kill or destroy.

(दस्युम्)शत्रुम् =Enemy.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

मेथामसि is from मेथृ-मेधाहिंसनयोः (भ्वा.) Here the second meaning of destroying has been taken.

दस्म is derived from दसु-उपक्षये=An enemy who tries to decrease the power of his opponent, hence it has been taken by Rishi Dayananda in the sense of an enemy.

इति द्विचत्वारिंशं सूक्तं समाप्तम् ॥

Here ends the commentary on the forty-second hymn and twenty-fifth Varga of the first Mandala of the Rigveda.

HYMN XLIII

अस्य नवर्चस्य सूक्तस्य घौरः काण्व ऋषिः । देवता १.२.४.५.६ रुद्रः, ३ मित्रावरुणौ, ७.८.९ सोमः, १.४.७.८ गायत्री । ५ विराड् गायत्री छन्दः ६ पाद-निचृद् गायत्री छन्दः ।

Seer — Kanva, Devata Rudra, Mitra Varuna and Soma. Metres — Gayatri of various forms and Anushtup. Tunes — Shadja and Gandhara.

अथ रुद्रशब्दार्थं उपदिश्यते ।

The meanings of Rudra are taught in the first Mantra.

Mantra—1

कद्रुद्राय प्रचेतसे मीळ्हुष्टमाय तव्यसे । वोचेम शन्तमं हृदे ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः) ।

वयं कत् (कदा) प्रचेतसे मीळ्हुष्टमाय तव्यसे हृदे रुद्राय शन्तमं वोचेम ॥

TRANSLATION

In case of God—

(1) When shall we sing (a song) to Rudra (God) the Omniscient, the most Liberal, the most Powerful that shall be the giver of peace and delight to our hearts ? In case of the soul—

(2) When shall we sing to Rudra (the soul that weeps when leaving the body) that is wise, most bounteous, and mighty, that may be giver of delight to our hearts !

(3) The third meaning of Rudra is Vayu or air that causes pain to the wicked on account of their evil actions.

PURPORT

By Rudra three meanings are taken.

(1) God, (2) Soul & (3) Vayu or air. God is called Rudra as being Omniscient Dispenser of Justice. He makes the wicked weep by giving the fruits of their evil actions.

(2) The soul is called Rudra as it weeps when it leaves the body at the time of death and gets the result of evil actions.

(3) Vayu or air is called Rudra as it makes a person weep causing pain as a result of bad deeds.

TRANSLATION

As a mother causes happiness to her child, as a shephered to his herd of animals, as a king to his subjects, as a cowherd to his cows, in the same way, may Immortal God grant happiness and peace to our children, to the cattle, the men and the cows.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra. As there is no happiness to children without parents, no happiness to the cattle without a cowherd, and the people without the king's assembly, in the same manner, none can enjoy happiness without knowledge and exertion.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अदितिः) माता अत्र अदितिर्द्यौरदितिरन्तरिक्षमदितिर्माता। (ऋ० १.८९.१०) इत्यादिना माता गृह्यते

TRANSLATION

As a friend or Prana, as noble preacher or udana and God give us good knowledge and as all enlightened persons with one accord or united do, so should all learned and absolutely truthful persons teach truth to us.

PURPORT

As learned persons should give true knowledge to all having friendship with them, good character and conduct, as

God has revealed all sciences through the Vedas, in the same manner, teachers also should endow all with knowledge.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मित्रः) सखा प्राणो वा = Friend or Prana.

(वरुणः) उत्तम उपदेष्टा उदानो वा

= Noble preacher or Udana.

(सजोषसः) समानो जोषः प्रीतिः सेवनं वा येषां ते

= Loving one another, united or of one accord.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

For the meaning of Mitra and Varuna as प्राण and Udana, there is the clear authority of the Shatapath Brahman which says.

प्राणोदानौ वै मित्रावरुणौ (शतपथे १.८.३.१२.३.६.१.१६)। प्राणोदानौ मित्रावरुणौ (शत० ३.२.२.१३)

TRANSLATION

O men, as taking shelter in Rudra (God) Who is the Protector of the learned devotees, holy Yajnas and highly intelligent men, who is like a healing balm for happiness, we pray for abiding joy of emancipation, health and strength, so you should also do.

PURPORT

None can attain knowledge, worldly happiness and the joy of emancipation without the help of a learned person who gives us the knowledge of God's praise and the herbs that destroy misery (caused by diseases) and the teaching of Pranayama that alleviates our suffering.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

[गाथपतिम्] यो गाथानां स्तावकानां विदुषां पतिः पालकः तम् = The Protector of the learned devotees.

[मेधपतिम्] यो मेधानां पवित्राणां यज्ञानां पुरुषाणां वा पालयिता तम् । मेध इति यज्ञ नाम [निघ० ३.१५]

[सुम्नम्] मोक्षसुखम् = The joy or bliss of emancipation.

[शंयोः] शं लौकिकं पारमार्थिकं सुखं विद्यते यस्मिन् तस्य = Of the person who possesses worldly happiness and the joy of liberation.

TRANSLATION'S NOTES

Prof. Maxmuller's translation of this Mantra, particularly of मेधपतिम् is not only wrong, but mischievous.

He translates it in the "Vedic Hymns Vol. I) as follows—

We imploer Rudra, the lord of songs, the lord of animal sacrifices, the possessor of healing medicines, for health, wealth and his favour."

We call the translation of मेधपति as Lord of animal-sacrifices as not only un-warranted, but also mischievous, because there is no authority for taking the word मेध (Medha) which according to the Vedic Lexicon (Nighantu 3.15) stands for highly intelligent persons मेध इति मेधाविनाम (निघ० ३.१५) and Yajna or non-violent sacrifice मेध इति यज्ञ नाम (निघ० ३.१७) Nighantu) 3.17 for animal sacrifices.

It is note—worthy that Prof. Wilson and Griffith also do not interpret मेधपति as the Lord of animal — sacrifices, but merely as "Protector of sacrifices" (Wilson) and "Lord of sacrifices" (Griffith).

Prof.Maxmuller was himeslf not certain of the correctness of this un-warranted interpretation and therefore put the following note on this verse No. 4

"We must derive gathapati from Gatha (167.6 and medhapati from Medha, animal-sacrifice, till we know on the subject." (Vedic Hymns Vol. I. P. 420).

It was also wrong and audacious on his part to change the text गाथपतिं as गाथापति and मेधपतिम् as मेधापतिम् Even then मेधा can never mean animal sacrifice. That the Vedic Yajnas are called through out the Vedas as अध्वर (See the word used hundreds of times in Rig. 1.1.4.1.18; 1. 14.21; 128.4.3.24.1.2.25.etc. yaj 2.4;6. 23; 15.38; Sama 7.25, 6.5.5.2.Atharva 4.24.3; 5.12.2; 18. 2, 32; 19, 42. 4. etc.)

which means अध्वर इति यज्ञनाम ध्वरतिर्हिंसाकर्मा तत्प्रतिषेधः (निरुक्ते १.७)

i. e. A non-violent act, should have been known to a scholar like Prof. Maxmuller.

TRANSLATION

O men, appoint him as the commander-in-chief of the army who shines in splendour like the sun, is refulgent as bright gold, the best among learned persons, the provider of habitation or support.

PURPORT

As God is the Light of lights, full of perfect Bliss, the Best of all the Devas (shining objects and the enlightened) and the Support of the earth and other worlds, in the same manner, the President of the Assembly or the Commander-in-chief of the army should be a person who is most brilliant like the sun and the gold, the best dispenser of justice, the giver of delight and bliss, the man of the most charming good temperament and good habits and the sustainer of all.

TRANSLATION

He who bestows easily obtained happiness upon or brings health to our horses, welfare to ram and ewe, to men, to women and to the cattle should be made the President of the Assembly.

PURPORT

Men should pray to God for the happiness and health of their own and other men and animals. They should also take the help of learned persons and should make proper use of the Pranas and exertion.

Mantra—7

हे इन्दो [सभाद्यध्यक्ष] नः [अस्मान्] सोम परिबाधः [विरोधिनः] मा जुहुरन्त ये नः [अस्माकम्] अरातयः सन्ति तान् वाजे त्वं कदाचित् मा आभज नः [अस्मान्] वाजे आ भज ॥

TRANSLATION

O kind President of the Assembly, etc. let not adversaries who put obstacles in the acquisition of good things, harass and injure us, overthrow us. Don't submit to our opponents in battles and always come to our help.

PURPORT

Men should administer a truthful and just State, conquering all enemies with the help of admirable force and strength.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(इन्दो) आर्द्रीकारक सभाध्यक्ष
= O kind President of the Assembly etc.

इन्दुः—उन्दी क्लेदने उन्देरिच्चादेः (उणादि० १.१२)

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The word वाजे has been used in the Mantra, which according to the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu 2.7 means वाज इति अन्न नाम (निघ० २.७) food and Nig. 2.9 वाज इति बलनाम (निघ० २.६) Strength.

Prof. Wilson has rightly translated it as "food" and Griffith as "give us a share of strength. But to our great surprise, we find Prof. Maxmuller has translated it as "O Indu help us to booty' which is simply absurd and mischievous.

Rishi Dayananda has taken the word वाजे in the sense of संग्रामे on the authority of the Nighantu 2.17 वाजे इति संग्राम (निघ० २.१७)Battle.

Mantra—9

यास्ते प्रजा अमृतस्य परस्मिन्धामन्नृतस्य।
मूर्धा नाभा सोम वेन आभूषन्तीः सोम वेदः ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे सोम वेनः मूर्द्धा त्वम् ऋतस्य अमृतस्य (नाशरहितस्य) नाभा परस्मिन् धामन् (वर्तमानस्य ईश्वरस्य) ते याः प्रजाः सन्ति ताः आभूषन्तीः वेदः (सर्वाभिः विद्याभिः प्राप्नुहि) ॥

TRANSLATION

In case of God—

(1) O God Giver of all knowledge and happiness, Thou art to be desired by all, the Head, the Central Point. All these people decorated with the ornament of education are Thy subjects and Thy children of who art absolutely True and immortal and abiding in Thy most Blissful state and at the highest place of the law (whose laws are eternal). Endow them with all true knowledge and wisdom. Love and cherish them as they honour Thee.

In the case of the President of the Assembly—

(2) O President of the assembly, desired by all, the head, the central point or the summit (of administration), all these subjects are thy children. Thou abidest in the highest law of God who is Immortal and absolutely True. Cherish them well. Endow them with true knowledge and wisdom.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(धामन्) धामनि आनन्दमये स्थाने = In absolutely Blissful State.,

PURPORT

When people take shelter in God who is un-paralleled and the President of the Assembly who is devoted to Him, they do not suffer at all. As God desires men of noble character and conduct and the President of the Assembly also does the same, in the same manner, all subjects should always desire God and the President of the Assembly. Without this sort of desire, real and vast happiness can not be attained.

In this hymn, various meanings of Rudra, the means of the attainment of all happiness with the help of God and the President of the Assembly, worship of God and allied subjects have been dealt with, so it has direct connection with the previous hymn.

Here ends the commentary on the forty-third hymn of the Ist Mandala of the Rigveda.

Mantra—1

अग्ने विवस्वदुषसश्चित्रं राधो अमर्त्य ।
आ दाशुषे जातवेदो वहा त्वमद्या देवाँ उषर्बुधः ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः) ।

हे अमर्त्य जातवेदः अग्ने ! यतः त्वम् अद्य दाशुषे उषसः चित्रं विवस्वत् राधः ददासि स उषर्बुधः देवान् च आवह ॥

(1) Spiritual Interpretation—

O Immortal, Omnipresent and Omniscient God, grant unto us to-day (every day) the wonderful wealth of enlightenment. Bring to Thy devotees divine virtues created by spiritual wisdom. Mayst Thou dispel gloom of ignorance by appearing in our hearts, just as darkness of night recedes at the advent of Dawn.

(2) In the case of enlightened persons:—

O highly educated person shining like the fire immortal (by nature as the soul never dies) and extra-ordinary, thou givest wealth (of wisdom and knowledge) to an industrious man of charitable disposition, as the sun gives light in the morning.

Bring to us divine virtues and enlightened persons who get up early in the morning and make others also wake up at that time.

PURPORT

Men should exert themselves and achieve all prosperity for obeying the command of God and by taking shelter in Him and noble learned persons. Learned persons well-versed in all sciences, should always do a noble meritorious act. They should never do an ignoble, wicked deed.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(जातवेदः) परमात्मपक्षे जाते २ विद्यते जातानि वेद वेत्ति निरुक्तानुसारम् (निरु० ७.१६) सर्वव्यापक सर्वज्ञ वा, विद्वत्पक्षे जातवेत्ता: (अमर्त्य) स्वस्वरूपेण मरणधर्मरहितसाधारणमनुष्यस्वभावविलक्षण ।

= Immortal (by nature as soul) or extra-ordinary.

(दाशुषे) दात्रे पुरुषार्थिने मनुष्याय

(उषर्बुधः) ये उषसि स्वयं बुध्यन्ते सुप्तान् बोधयन्ति च तान् । = To them who get up early in the morning and wake others up.

Mantra—2

जुष्टो हि दूतो असि हव्यवाहनोऽग्ने रथीरध्वराणाम् ।
सजूरश्विभ्यामुषसा सुवीर्यमस्मे धेहि श्रवो बृहत् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे अग्ने (विद्वन्) यतः त्वं जुष्टः दूतः सन् अध्वराणां रथीः हव्यवाहनः सजूः असि तस्मात् अस्मे अश्विभ्याम् उषसा सिद्धं बृहत् सुवीर्यं श्रवः धेहि ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned person well-versed in Political Science, thou art well-loved messenger, destroyer of the wicked and mighty, charioteer of the noble non-violent deeds, impeller of the substances or vehicles to be taken and given. Grant us heroic strength and food that makes us virile and full of knowledge along with the air and water and the act done at the dawn.

PURPORT

None can conquer his enemies, get strength and prosperity without the association of the learned and acquisition of knowledge from them.

None can accomplish worldly dealings without the combination and proper methodical use of the fire, air and water.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अग्ने) राजविद्याविचक्षण

= Well versed in Political science.

(अश्विभ्याम्) वायुजलाभ्याम्

= With the combination of the air and water.

(श्रवः) सर्वविद्याश्रवणनिमित्तम् अन्नम्

= Food which by giving proper strength enables us to acquire knowledge of various sciences.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

As for the first Mantra, there is a spiritual interpretation, as pointed out by Rishi Dayananda (himself) following is the spiritual meaning of the above Mantra—

O God, thou art well-loved messenger, Destroyer of the wicked, Sustainer of the world and Charioteer of the noble non-violent deed, accordant with the sun and the moon and the dawn or Prana, Apana and the Dawn of the Divine Illumination, grant us heroic strength and lofty fame.

Mantra—3

अद्या दूतं वृणीमहे वसुमग्निं पुरुप्रियम् ।

धूमकेतुं भाऋजीकं व्युष्टिषु यज्ञानामध्वरश्रियम् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः [ऋषिकृतः]

वयम् अद्य (मनुष्यजन्मविद्याप्राप्तिसमयं प्राप्य)

अस्मिन् दिने व्युष्टिषु भा ऋजीकं यज्ञानां मध्ये अध्वरश्रियं दूतम् अग्निमिव वर्तमानं विद्वांसं दूते वृणीमहे ॥

TRANSLATION

We select to-day (having acquired human life and at the time of gaining knowledge) as messenger a good popular learned person, who shines like fire in assemblies and on the occasion of the fulfilment of noble desires; who is also like the fire among the non-violent Yajnas from Agnihotra to Ashwa Medha or consisting of Yoga, Shilpa (Industries) Upasana (communion with God) and knowledge, bearing the glory of the Yajnas of inviolable various kinds and fire-bannered spreader of the light.

PURPORT

Men should accomplish all works having appointed a learned person well-versed in the Vedic lore as a messenger or ambassador, for the attainment of knowledge, kingdom and happiness. They should also accept the utility of electricity which accomplishes many works.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अग्निम्) पावकमिव विद्वांसम्

= A learned person who is purifier like the fire.

(भा ऋजीकम्) भाति प्रकाशयति सा भा सभा कान्तिर्वा तां योऽर्जयते तम्

= Illustrious as an orator in the assemblies.

(यज्ञानाम्) अग्निहोत्राद्यश्वमेधान्तानां योगज्ञान-शिल्पोपासनाज्ञानानां वा मध्ये

= Of the Yajnas (non-violent sacrifices) consisting of Agnihotra to Ashvamedha or Yoga, industries, communion with God and knowledge.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

In the Vedic terminology, Yajna is a very comprehensive term which is used for all good deeds and philanthropic acts. This vedic idea has been corroborated in the Bhagavad Gita in the fourth chap.

द्रव्ययज्ञास्तपो यज्ञाः, योगयज्ञास्तथा परे ।
स्वाध्यायज्ञानयज्ञाश्च, यतयः संशितव्रताः ।।२८
एवं बहुविधा यज्ञा वितता ब्रह्मणो मुखे ।
कर्मजान् विद्धि तान् सर्वान्, एवं ज्ञात्वा विमोक्ष्यसे ।।३२
(गीता ४)

Here Yoga, tapa (austerity) Svadhyaya (study of the Vedas) knowledge etc. have been enumerated among the Yajnas.

Mantra—4

श्रेष्ठं यविष्ठमतिथिं स्वाहुतं जुष्टं जनाय दाशुषे ।
देवाँ अच्छा यातवे जातवेदसमग्निमीळे व्युष्टिषु ।।
सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः) ।

अहं व्युष्टिषु यातवे दाशुषे जनाय श्रेष्ठं यविष्ठं जुष्ट स्वाहुतं जातवेदसम् अतिथिम् अग्निम् इव प्रकाशमानं विद्वांसं दूतम् अन्यान् देवान् वा अच्छ ईडे ।।

TRANSLATION

I praise a learned person who is well-versed in various sciences, is purifier like the fire, the noblest and most youthful (energetic), going from place to place like a guest, well-invited, loved and served by enlightened persons for the fulfilment of noble desires, that he may bring well other truthful learned men to us.

PURPORT

Men should honour such learned guests as are righteous, respected by all learned persons, of cheerful disposition and benevolent.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(व्युष्टिषु) विशिष्टासु कामनासु अध्येषितासु सतीषु
= On the occasion of or fulfilment of particular desires

(जातवेदसम्) जातेषु पदार्थेषु विद्यमानमिव व्याप्त-विद्यम् = Pervading in or well-versed in various sciences.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Many of the adjectives used in the Mantra for Agni are quite clear to show that here, it is not material fire that is meant, but learned person who is purifier like the fire as explained by Rishi Dayananda.

Passages in the Brahmanas like....

तस्मात् अनूचानमाहुरग्निकल्प इति (शत. ६.१.१.१०) अग्ने महां असि ब्राह्मण भारत (कौषी० ३.२ शत० १.४.२.२) एष वा अग्निर्वैश्वानरः । यद् ब्राह्मणः (तैत्तिरीय ब्रा० २.१.४५)

Fully substantiate Rishi Dayananda's interpretation, Even Wilson translates जातवेदसम् as "who knows all that are born,"following Sayanacharya who explains the word as जातानां वेदितारम्=Knower of all things. Is it applicable to inanimate fire ?

The same subject is continued—

Mantra—5

स्तविष्यामि त्वामहं विश्वस्यामृत भोजन ।
अग्ने त्रातारममृतं मियेध्य यजिष्ठं हव्यवाहन ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः) ।

हे अमृत भोजन मियेध्य हव्यवाहन अग्ने (जगदीश्वर) अहं विश्वस्य त्रातारं यजिष्ठम् अमृतं त्वा स्तविष्यामि (स्तोष्यामि) नान्यं कदाचित् ॥

TRANSLATION

O God Immortal, Nourisher of the universe, Destroyer of all miseries, or bringer of all happiness, I will always glorify Thee — the Protector of the world, the Best Giver of all joys and Deathless and none else.

PURPORT

Learned persons should never glorify and take shelter in any one as God except the Lord who is the Preserver of the world, the Giver of emancipation, Giver of Knowledge, fulfiler of noble desires and bliss and worthy of worship or adoration.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(भोजन) पालक = Nourisher or Sustainer.

(भुज–पालनाभ्यवहारयो:) Tr.

(मियेध्य) दु:खानां प्रक्षेप्त: डुमिञ्–प्रक्षेपणे

= Thrower or Destroyer of all miseries.

पुन: स कीदृश: कस्मै किं करोतीत्युपदिश्यते।

How is he (Agni) and what does he do is taught in the 6th Mantra.

Mantra—6

सुशंसो॑ बोधि गृण॒ते य॑विष्ठ्य॒ मधु॑जिह्वः॒ स्वा॑हुतः ।
प्रस्क॑ण्वस्य प्रति॒रन्नायु॑र्जी॒वसे॑ नम॒स्या॑ दैव्यं॒ जन॑म् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वय: (ऋषिकृत:) ।

हे यविष्ठ्य नमस्य (विद्वन्) मधुजिह्व: सुशंस: स्वाहुत: प्रस्कण्वस्य जीवसे आयु: प्रतिरन् त्वं गृणते (शास्त्राणि) बोधि अनेन दैव्यं जनं रक्षसि तस्मात् सत्कर्तव्य: असि ॥

TRANSLATION

O most youthful (energetic) respectable learned person, you who are honey-tongued, universally praised, invited with pleasure, teach Shastras to the man who praises you, cast aside the misery of noble highly intelligent person, lengthening his life thereby and protect a divine man. It is for doing such noble deeds that you are honoured by all.

PURPORT

A learned person should be honoured and respected on account of his sublime virtues. Thus taking shelter in him and his guidance, all should acquire knowledge and long life.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(प्रस्कण्वस्य) प्रकृष्टश्चासौ कण्वो मेधावी च तस्य

= Of a highly intelligent person or genius.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted प्रस्कण्व as a highly intelligent person or genius, for which there is the clear authority of the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu 3.15 कण्व इति मेधाविनाम (निघ० ३.१५.) It was wrong on the part of Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Griffith and others to take Praskanva as the name of the son of a seer named Kanva. According to the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu 3.15 Kanva means an intelligent person and by the use of प्र should mean a very highly intelligent person. Kapali Shastri ji has hinted at this meaning in his commentary saying." ज्ञानार्थक कण्व प्रभवस्य प्रकृष्टज्ञानस्येत्यवयवार्थानुगमादुपपत्तिरन्तर्योगे द्रष्टव्या (श्री कपालिशास्त्रिकृते सिद्धांजनभाष्ये द्वितीयखण्डे पृ० ४२४.)

पुनः स कीदृशोऽस्तीत्युपदिश्यते ।

How is he (Agni) is taught in the seventh Mantra.

Mantra—7

होतारं विश्ववेदसं सं हि त्वा विश इन्धते ।
स आ वह पुरुहूत प्रचेतसोऽग्ने देवाँ इह द्रवत् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः) ।

हे पुरुहूत अग्ने (विद्वन्) प्रचेतसः विशः यं होतारं विश्ववेदसं त्वां हि (खलु) सम् इन्धते तान् प्रति भवान् द्रवत् ॥

TRANSLATION

O highly learned person, invoked and remembered by many, the people possessing good knowledge you invite (literally kindle) you who are doer of Yajnas-a noble sacrificer. Quickly bring hither other excellently wise divine persons and virtues and to help them in all good dealings.

PURPORT

It is not possible to bring about the happiness of the subjects, the attainment of divine virtues without much effort and victory over the enemies. Therefore all should accomplish it with great endeavour.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अग्ने) विशिष्टज्ञानयुक्त
= Highly educated person or leader.

(प्रचेतसः) प्रकृष्टं चेतो विज्ञानं यासां ताः (विशः)
= The people possessing good knowledge.

(देवान्) वीरान् विदुषो दिव्यगुणान् वा
= Brave learned persons or divine attributes.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The word Agni (अग्नि) is derived from अगि—गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्था: ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च Taking the first meaning ज्ञान or knowledge and basing on the étymology of the word as given by Yaskacharya in Nirukta अग्निः कस्मादग्रणीर्भवति (निरुक्त ७.१) Rishi Dayananda has interpreted it as विशिष्ट ज्ञान युक्त which is certainly and clearly corroborated by the adjectives used in the Mantra होतारम्—विश्ववेदसम् which Sayanacharya interprets as होमनिष्पादकम्-सर्वज्ञम्

Prof. Wilson translates these words as sacrificer and Omniscient. Are these adjectives applicable to inanimate fire.?

The same subject is continued—

Mantra—8

सवितारमुषसमश्विना भगमग्निं व्युष्टिषु क्षपः ।
कण्वासस्त्वा सुतसोमास इन्धते हव्यवाहं स्वध्वर ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे स्वध्वर (विद्वन्) ये सुतसोमाः कण्वासः व्युष्टिषु सवितारम् उषसम्, अश्विनौ, भगम् अग्निं क्षपः हव्यवाहं त्वां च सम् इन्धते (तान् त्वम् अपि दीप्यस्व) ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned person, the performer of noble and nonviolent deeds, highly intelligent persons who have produced many articles properly using the light of the sun, moving air and water, wealth, electricity and lights for fulfilment of their desires invite you who are bringer of most acceptable substance and performer of the Yajnas. You should also help and encourage them.

PURPORT

Men should properly use the light of the sun, electricity, and water etc. in all works and accomplish acts that purify the air and the rain and develop industries. None can accomplish all these things without the association of the learned persons as he can not know the attributes of these things without acquiring knowledge from them.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(कण्वा:) मेधाविन: (निघ० ३.१५)

(क्षप:) रात्री: क्षपा इति रात्रिनाम (निघ० १.७)

पुनरयं विद्वान् कीदृश इत्युपदिश्यते ।

How is this learned person is further taught in the ninth mantra.

Mantra—9

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे अग्ने (विद्वन्) यः त्वम् अध्वराणां विशां पतिः असि तस्मात् त्वम् सोमपीतये उषर्बुधः स्वर्दृशः देवान् आ वह ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned person well-versed in Politics, you are protector of the Yajnas (non-violent sacrifices) and the people. You know how to destroy enemies. Therefore bring here learned persons who happily see the joy of knowledge or divine virtues and get up early in the morning, to drink the invigorating juice of various kinds.

PURPORT

The President of the assembly, the Commander-in-Chief of the Army and other learned persons should always manifest divine virtues among the people for the protection of knowledge, the preservation of the subjects and other Yajnas.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अग्ने) नीतिज्ञ विद्वन्

= O learned person well-versed in Politics.

(स्वर्दृशः) ये सुखेन विद्यानन्दं पश्यन्ति तान्

To them who happily see the bliss or joy of knowledge.

The same subject is continued.

Mantra—10

TRANSLATION

O resplendent illuminator of knowledge, worthy of being seen by all, you know and shine forth in all the dawns coming after one another. You are the protector of people in villages. You are a priest in Yajnas, being well-wisher of all people and a true man.

PURPORT

A learned person should not waste even a single moment. He should know all days to be full of the noblest deeds. Knowing the days as such, he should be the protector of the people and performer of the Yajnas (non-violent noble sacrifices).

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अग्ने) विद्याप्रकाशक विद्वन्

= A learned man-illuminator of knowledge.

(दीदेथ) विजानीहि =Know well.

पुनः स कीदृशो भवेदित्युपदिश्यते ।

How else should he (agni) be is taught further in the 11th Mantra.

Mantra—11

नि त्वा॑ य॒ज्ञस्य॒ साध॑नमग्ने॒ होता॑रमृ॒त्विज॑म् ।
म॒नु॒ष्वद्दे॑व धीमहि॒ प्रचे॑तसं जी॒रं दू॒तमम॑र्त्यम् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे देव अग्ने सुतसोमाः कण्वासः वयं यज्ञस्य साधनं होतारम् ऋत्विजं प्रचेतसम् जीरम् अमर्त्यं दूतं त्वा मनुष्वत् धीमहि ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned person full of divine wisdom, we place or appoint you as an Ambassador — You who accomplish three kinds of Yajnas, are the performer of the daily homa (non-violent sacrifice) a ministering priest, very wise, full of true knowledge, highly intelligent like a reflective person, immortal by nature and different from ordinary persons.

PURPORT

It is not possible to perform a Yajna (non-violent sacrifice and philanthropic work) without the help of a learned person and suitable articles.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

By त्रिविधयज्ञ or three kinds of Yajna are meant देवपूजा, संगतिकरण and दान i. e. honouring the learned, association with the enlightened people and charity as denoted by the root यज from which the word Yajna (यज्ञ) is derived.

The adjectives used in the Mantra for अग्नि like होतारम्, ऋत्विजम्, प्रचेतसम्, दूतम् clearly show that the word Agni here stands not for material fire as interpreted by Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and others, but for a highly learned and wise person as explained by Rishi Dayananda. Even Sayanacharya has interpreted प्रचेतसम् as प्रकृष्टज्ञानयुक्तम् or full of sublime knowledge.

Prof. Wilson has rightly translated it as "very wise" and Griffith also as "exceeding wise." Is it applicable to inanimate material fire ? ऋत्विजम् has been translated by Sayanacharya as ऋतौ वसन्तादिके यष्टारम् which has been rendered into English both by Prof. Wilson and Griffith as ministering priest, जीरम् According to Sayanacharya and others means वेगवन्तम् or swift.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मनुष्वत्) मननशीलेन मनुष्येण तुल्यम्
= Like a reflective person.

(प्रचेतसम्) प्रकृष्टं चेतो विज्ञानं यस्य यस्माद् वा
= Full of sublime knowledge.

(अमर्त्यम्) साधारणमनुष्यस्वभावरहितं स्वस्वरूपेण नित्यम् = Different from the nature of an ordinary person or immortal by nature as soul.

पुनः स कीदृश इत्युपदिश्यते ।
How is that Agni is taught in the 12th Mantra.

TRANSLATION

(1) O learned person adored by your friends, like the resounding billows of the ocean and roaring flames of the fire, your lustres of knowledge shine forth when you act as ministering priest or as an ambassador.

PURPORT

O men, God is the Adorable Friend of all, well-wisher High Priest of all men and their innermost Spirit, knows like a messenger the good or bad acts of all souls, whose unlimited lustres shine forth all around the world. Such a God is the Creator, Sustainer and Nourisher of the universe and its Sovereign Dispenser of Justice. He must be worshipped by all. In the same manner, a noble ambassador or messenger should also be respected by all.

TRANSLATION

O learned person full of the light of knowledge, who possesses the power of hearing, listen lovingly to our requests along with other enlightened persons who are able to carry on the work. May the dispenser of justice who is friendly to all along with other learned persons who go to their work daily in the morning and take their seats suitable after performing non-violent and inviolable Yajna.

PURPORT

Men should appoint righteous persons well-versed in all sciences in the various works of the State. The learned should accomplish all works with the assistance of well-trained attendants. Men should give up all indolence and always be engaged in doing good deeds. Without doing so, it is not possible to accomplish all works whether secular or spiritual.

TRANSLATION

O learned men, may you whose tongue expresses wisdom like the fire, who are strengtheners of eternal law, truth and Yajna, who are munificent, listen to our just requests. May a noble person who has taken vows of truth and justice, drink this juice of various substances along with the Adhvaryus (performers of Yajna) in the form of the President of the Assembly or the Commander-in-chief of the army and President of the Religious Council.

PURPORT

Those commands that are issued by the Dharma Sabha and the Raja Sabha (Religious and Royal assemblies) should be obeyed by all people after listening to them attentively. The members of these assemblies also should give up all prejudice or partiality and should put forth their united efforts in such a way as to bring about the destruction of all ignorance un-righteousness and injustice for the welfare of all beings.

(अग्निजिह्वाः) अग्निवद् विद्याशब्दप्रकाशिका जिह्वा येषां ते = Those whose tongue expresses the words of wisdom.

(अश्विभ्याम्) व्याप्तिशीलाभ्यां सभासेनाधर्माध्यक्षाभ्याम् अध्वर्युभ्याम्

= Adhvaryus in the form of the President of the Assembly or commander-in-chief of the Army and the Dharma Sabha (Religious Council).

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

अश्विभ्याम् has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda as अध्वर्युभ्याम् व्याप्तिशीलाभ्यां सभासेनाधर्माध्यक्षाभ्याम्

For this meaning, there is the authority of the Brahmanas.

अश्विनावध्वर्यू (ऐतरेय० १.१८) शतपथ १.१.२.७ तैत्ति० ३.२.२.१ गोपथ उ० २.६

This hymn is connected with the previous hymn as subjects like the duties of an ambassador or messenger honouring the learned persons, the duties of the President of the Assembly, the performance of Yajna, friendship with all etc. have been dealt with in continuation of the previous hymn. Here ends the Commentary on the forty-fourth hymn or 30th Varga of the first Mandala of the Rigveda.

—:o:—

पंचचत्वारिंशं सूक्तम्

HYMN XLV.

अस्य दशर्चस्य पंचचत्वारिंशस्य सूक्तस्य प्रस्कण्वः काण्व ऋषिः । अग्निर्देवाश्च देवताः । १ भुरिगुष्णिक् ५ उष्णिक् छन्दः । ऋषभः स्वरः । २.३.७.८ अनुष्टुप् । ४ निचृदनुष्टुप् । ६.१० विराडनुष्टुप् च छन्दः । गान्धारः स्वरः ॥

Seer — Praskanva. Devata-Agni and Devas. Metres — Ushnik and Anushtup of various forms. Tunes — Rishabha and Gandhara.

तत्रादौ विद्युद्वद्विद्वद्गुणा उपदिश्यन्ते ।

In the first Mantra, the attributes of learned person who is like the electricity are taught.

Mantra—1

त्वमग्ने वसूँरिह रुद्राँ आदित्याँ उत ।
यजा स्वध्वरं जनं मनुजातं घृतप्रुषम् ॥

सन्धिंच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः [ऋषिकृतः]

हे अग्ने त्वम् इह वसून् रुद्रान् आदित्यान् उत (अपि) घृतप्रुषम् मनुजातं स्वध्वरं जनं (सततं) यज ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned leader shining like electricity, gather here and show respect to the Vasus-persons who have observed Brahmacharya (continence) upto the age of 24 years, Rudras — who have observed Brahmacharya upto the age of 44 or at least 36 years and Adityas who have observed Brahmacharya upto the age of 48 years and who therefore shine like the sun in the world. Keep company with men who perform Yajnas and are non-violent, who are thoughtful sons of the wise, who love the clarified butter (ghee) of the Yajna.

PURPORT

Men should make their sons observe the Brahma-Charya upto the minimum age of 25, maximum age of 48 years and their daughters upto the minimum age of 16 and maximum age of 24 years. They should arrange to give them proper education and training and after that, they should allow them to have marriage according to their choice so that all may be happy for ever.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

(घृतप्रुषम्) यो यज्ञसिद्धेन घृतेन पुष्णाति-स्निह्यति तम्

= He who loves the ghee accomplished with Yajna.

घृत-प्रुषम् is derived from घृ—क्षरणदीप्त्योः प्रुष—स्नेहनसेवनपूरणेषु Therefore the word may also mean—one who is full of splendour.

(मनुजातम्) यो मनोर्मननशीलान्मनुष्यादुत्पन्नः तम्

= To the person who is the son of a thoughtful man. It was wrong on the part of Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and others to take Manu as the name of a particular King. Griffith in his foot-note says—

Who springs from Manu. Manu appears here as Prajapati, the progenitor of Gods as well as of men." It is nothing but his own imagination. It is clearly stated in Shatapath.

विद्वांसस्ते मनवः (शत० ८.६.३.१०)

Rshi Dayananda's interpretation is therefore quite right.

What should he (Agni) do is further taught in the 2nd Manta.

Manta—2

श्रुष्टीवानो हि दाशुषे देवा अग्ने विचेतसः ।
तान्रोहिदश्व गिर्वणस्त्रयस्त्रिंशतमा वह ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे रोहिदश्व गिर्वणः अग्ने ! त्वम् इह ये विचेतसः

श्रुष्टीवानो देवा: दाशुषे (सुखं प्रयच्छन्ति) तान् त्रयस्त्रिंशतं देवान् आवह ।।

TRANSLATION

O learned and respectable person, the enlightened persons of divine virtues, who are active, doing their works soon, who possess intelligence full of Shastric knowledge certainly give happiness to the industrious men of charitable disposition. O man of speedy vehicles, attain and give the knowledge of thirty-three devas (earth and others) to your pupils and other seekers.

PURPORT

When learned scientists give the correct and clear knowledge of thirty-three devas (divine or useful objects) to their pupils, they are able to accomplish many good works with the help of electricity and other substances.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(श्रुष्टीवानः) ये श्रुष्टी शीघ्रं वनन्ति संभजन्ति ते । श्रुष्टी इतिपदनाम (निघ० १.३)

= Those persons who are active and discharge their duties quickly.

(रोहिदश्व) रोहितः अश्वा वेगादयो गुणा यस्य तत्सम्बुद्धौ =Possessing speed and other qualities

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

श्रुष्टी इति पदनाम (निघ० १.३) पद-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च अत्र शीघ्रगमनार्थग्रहणम्

Prof. Wilson has translated श्रुष्टीवान: as discriminating on what authority, we do not know. It is not in accordance with Sayanacharya's commentary also which he has generally followed.

Griffith translates it as "those who understand this" This also cannot be correct, as there is another clear adjective प्रचेतस:

meaning full of knowledge or wise. By 33 devas are meant 8 Vasus 11 Rudras 12 Adityas, Indra (electricity) and Praja-Pati or Yajna as mentioned in the Shatapath Brahmana, which has been quoted before.

पुनः स किं कुर्यादित्युपदिश्यते ।

What should he (agni) do is further taught in the third Mantra.

Mantra—3

प्रियमेधवदत्रिवज्जातवेदो विरूपवत् ।
अङ्गिरस्वन्महिव्रत प्रस्कण्वस्य श्रुधी हवम् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृत:)

हे जातवेदः महिव्रत (विद्वन्) त्वं प्रियमेधवत् विरूपवत् अंगिरस्वत् प्रस्कण्वस्य हवं श्रुधी ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned person knower of many things, accomplisher of many great vows, listen to the invocation dealing with reading and teaching of him who is possessed of wisdom, like a person, who is lover of genius, like one who has risen above three kinds of sufferings i.e. spiritual, including physical, social and cosmic, like a scientist who knows the properties and attributes of various substances and like one who knows the science of Prana or vital energy.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra. O men, you should behave like those persons who are lovers of all, who are free from physical, vocal and mental defects, who have practical knowledge of all sciences and who regard all as their own lives and accomplish works dear to all men.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(प्रियमेधवत्) प्रिया तृप्ता कमनीया प्रदीप्ता मेधा बुद्धिर्यस्य =Like men of sharp intellect.

(अत्रिवत्) न विद्यन्ते त्रयः आध्यात्मिकाधिभौतिकाधिदैविकास्तापा यस्य तद्वत्

=Like one who has risen above three kinds of suffering-spiritual including Physical, social and cosmic.

(प्रस्कण्वस्य) प्रकृष्टश्चासौ कण्वो मेधावी

=Of a highly intelligent person.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and other translators have committed the blunder of taking प्रियमेध, अत्रि, विरूप, अंगिरा and प्रस्कण्व as the names of particular persons, which as has pointed out several times, is against the fundamental principles of the Vedic terminology. Sayanacharya has quoted Nirukta also, but truly speaking it does not support his interpretation as Yaskacharya has pointed out derivative meanings of these so called proper names प्रिया अस्य मेधा विरूपो नानारूपः महाव्रतः Had Yaskacharya meant to take these words as proper nouns, there was no need to give their derivative meanings. When he interprets as प्रस्कण्वः कण्वस्य पुत्रः कण्वस्य प्रभवः (निरु० ३.१७) he means to take कण्वः as मेधावी as clearly given in Nighantu 3.15 ३.१५ कण्व इति मेधाविनाम (निघ० ३.१५) The son of a highly intelligent or wise person. For the meaning of the word अंगिराः as अंगानां रस: प्राणः there is the authority of the Shatapath Brahmana प्राणो वा अंगिराः (शतपथ ८.२.२.२८॥ ६.६.२.३.४)

Mantra—4

महिकेरव ऊतये प्रियमेधा अहूषत ।
राजन्तमध्वराणामग्निं शुक्रेण शोचिषा ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

(हे महाविद्वांसः) महिकेरवः प्रियमेधाः यूयम् अध्वराणाम् ऊतये शुक्रेण शोचिषा सह राजन्तम् अग्निम् अहूषत ॥

TRANSLATION

O highly learned persons, you who are accomplishers of great industrial works, who possess highly developed intellect that leads to true knowledge and education, for the protection of all Yajnas and inviolable dealings, call a learned person who is purifier like the fire, and who is shining with prompt and pure scientific knowledge.

PURPORT

None can accomplish good works without the association of the righteous and learned persons. Therefore, all should acquire thorough knowledge of all sciences with their association.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(महिकेरव:) महय:-महान्त: केरव:-कारव: शिल्पविद्या-साधका येषां ते अत्र कृत् धातो: उण् प्रत्यय: वर्ण-व्यत्ययेनेकारस्य एकारश्च

=Those who are accomplishers of great industrial works under them.

(प्रियमेधा:) सत्यविद्याशिक्षा प्रापिका प्रिया मेधा येषां ते =Those whose dear intellect leads to true knowledge and education.

(शोचिषा) पवित्रेण विज्ञानेन

=With pure knowledge (Scientific and spiritual).

Mantra—5

घृताहवन सन्त्येमा उ षु श्रुधी गिर: ।
याभि: कण्वस्य सूनवो हवन्तेऽवसे त्वा ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वय: (ऋषिकृत:)

हे सन्त्य घृताहवन (विद्वन्) यथा कण्वस्य सूनव: अवसे याभि: वेदवाणीभि: यं त्वा हवन्ते स तम् उत आभि: तेषाम् इमा गिर: सु श्रुधि (सुष्ठु शृणु) ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned person, doer of good deeds that lead to happiness, performer of homa (sacrifice) with clarified butter and its user, as the sons or students invoke you for protection, with Vedic words, you should also listen to their requests attentively.

PURPORT

Only those persons can enjoy all happiness, who receive education and knowledge from a learned mother, a learned father and a preceptor, who is knower of the Vedas. They can accomplish both secular and spiritual dealings along with science (Metaphysical and physical) and industry. None else can do so.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सन्त्य) सनन्ति संभजन्ति सुखानि याभिः क्रियाभिः तासु साधो =Experts in deeds that lead to happiness

(कण्वस्य) मेधाविनः (निघ० ३.१५) =Of a highly intelligent person.

(सूनवः) पुत्राः, विद्यार्थिनः =Sons or students.

Mantra—6

त्वां चित्रश्रवस्तम हवन्ते विक्षु जन्तवः ।
शोचिष्केशं पुरुप्रियाग्ने हव्याय वोळ्हवे ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे चित्रश्रवस्तम पुरुप्रिय अग्ने (विद्युत् इव विद्वन्) ये जन्तवः विक्षु वोढवे हव्याय यं शोचिष्केशं त्वां हवन्ते । स त्वं तान् विद्यासुशिक्षाप्रदानेन विदुषः सुशीलान् सद्यः सम्पादय ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned person shining like lightning, loved by many and having food and fame most wondrous, when men call on you from all sides for performing the Yajna and for the attainment of knowledge, you should also make them learned and cultured (good-natured) by giving them wisdom and good education.

PURPORT

Men should acquire the knowledge of various sciences by sitting at the feet of a learned person who is like the fire endowed with many attributes.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(चित्रश्रवस्तमम्) चित्राणि-अद्भुतानि श्रवांसि-अति-शयितानि अन्नादीनि यस्य तत्सम्बुद्धौ (आदिपदेन यशो-ज्ञानादि ग्रहणम्)=Having wonderful food and fame etc. (शोचिष्केशम्) शोचिष:-शुद्धाचारा: केशा: प्रकाशका यस्य तत्सम्बुद्धौ (वोढवे) विद्याप्रापणाय =For the attainment and conveying of knowledge. वह-प्रापणे

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

शोचिष्केशम् has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda as शोचिष: शुद्धाचारा: केशाः प्रकाशका यस्य शुचिर्-पूतीभावे केशा रश्मयः काशनाद्वा प्रकाशनाद् वा इति यास्काचार्यो निरुक्ते १२.२५

Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is therefore based upon the authority of the Nirukta and is not arbitrary.

Mantra—7

नि त्वा होतारमृत्विजं दधिरे वसुवित्तमम् ।
श्रुत्कर्णं सप्रथस्तमं विप्रा अग्ने दिविष्टिषु ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृत:)

हे अग्ने मेधाविन: विप्रा: विद्वांस: दिविष्टिषु अग्निम् इव होतारम् ऋत्विजम् श्रुत्कर्णं सप्रथस्तमं वसुवित्तम् त्वा निदधिरे (तान् त्वाम् अपि निधेहि) ॥

TRANSLATION

O highly learned person, as wise men place you like fire in all Yajnas (like the reading and teaching) who are taker of good qualities, making proper use of all seasons and ministrant priest, endowed with and donor of all kinds of wealth, the quick-hearing, the far renowned as a great scholar, you should also support them well.

PURPORT

Those persons who always endeavour for the propagation of knowledge and accomplishment of good deeds, can attain the prosperity of vast and good Government and wealth of wisdom, do not grieve.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(दिविष्टिषु) दिवा दिव्या इष्टयो येषु पठनपाठनाख्येषु यज्ञेषु तेषु = The Yajnas in the form of reading and teaching which accomplish divine desires.

(सप्रथस्तमम्) यः प्रथेन विद्या विस्तरेण सह वर्तते सोऽतिशयितः = Endowed with vast knowledge. (प्रथ-विस्तारे)

हे अग्ने यः त्वं यथा क्रियाकुशलाः दाशुषे मर्ताय प्रयः बृहत् हविः भा बिभ्रतः सन्तः सुतसोमाः विप्राः त्वाम् अभि चुच्यवुः (तथा एतान् त्वम् अपि प्राप्नुहि) ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned person shining like the lightning, as persons expert in practical work, bringing for a charitable man nourishing or gratifying food, great objects that create happiness, worthy of giving and taking and light-producing processes, extracting the juice of various herbs and plants approach you, so you should also approach them lovingly.

PURPORT

It is the duty of the learned persons to give instructions gradually about the things and acts that produce good happiness, after visualising them with knowledge and experiments, so that all their works may be accomplished.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

[अचुच्यवुः] च्यवन्तां प्राप्नुवन्तु =Approach.

हे सहस्कृत सन्त्य वसो [विद्वन्] त्वम् इह अद्य सोमपेयाय प्रातर्याव्णः दैव्यं जनं च बर्हिः आसादय ॥

TRANSLATION

O mighty, bounteous good learned person dwelling in noble qualities, here place on high seat (in this dealing or work of diffusing knowledge) persons who go to work in the morning and industrious, righteous, divine, experts among the educated for drinking Soma (the strengthening juice of the herbs and plants.)

PURPORT

Men should associate themselves only with those who give good things in charity to virtuous persons. None can enjoy divine happiness without the association and instructions of the persons endowed with knowledge and exertion.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

[वसो] यः श्रेष्ठेषु गुणेषु वसति तत्सम्बुद्धौ
=Dwelling in noble qualities.

TRANSLATION

O bounteous learned persons, with conjoint invocations or invitations, protect that man who has speedy horses, is possessed of divine virtues, is industrious in discharging his duties faithfully. You should honour such persons like a man endowed with the wealth of knowledge.

PURPORT

Men should always invite good people, honour them, acquire from them the knowledge of all things, purify and derive proper benefit from them and spread that knowledge.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सोमः) विद्यैश्वर्ययुक्त:=Endowed with the great wealth of knowledge.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTE

(सोमः) षु–प्रसवैश्वर्ययोः अत्र ऐश्वर्यार्थः

This hymn is connected with the previous hymn as there is mention of the attainments of the Vasus, Rudras and Adityas in it as in that. Here ends the commentary on the forty-fifth hymn and thirty-second Varga of the first Mandala of the Rigveda Sanhita.

षट्चत्वारिंशं सूक्तम्

Hymn XLVI.

अथ पंचदशर्चस्य षट्चत्वारिंशस्य सूक्तस्य प्रस्कण्व ऋषिः । अश्विनौ देवते । १,१० विराड् गायत्री । ३,११,६,१२,१४ गायत्री । ५,७,९,१३,१५,२,४,८ निचृद् गायत्री छन्दः । षड्जः स्वरः ॥

Seer — Praskanva. Devata or subject Ashvinau. Metre—Gayatri of various kinds. Tune — Shadja.

तत्रोषरश्विवद् वर्तमानानां विदुषीणां गुणा उपदिश्यन्ते ॥

In this Mantra, the attributes of learned women behaving like the Dawn and the Ashvins (fire and water etc.) are taught.

Mantra—1

एषो उषा अपूर्व्या व्युच्छति प्रिया दिवः । स्तुषे वामश्विना बृहत् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः) ।

(हे विदुषि) या त्वं यथा उषा उ अपूर्व्या दिवः अद्भुता सती प्रिया उषाः बृहत् उच्छति तथा मां व्युच्छसि यथा अश्विनौ स्तुषे तथा अहम् अपि त्वां विवासयामि स्तौमि च ।

TRANSLATION

O learned lady, as the wonderful dear dawn who is like the daughter of sky, shines forth and scatters darkness, so you shine forth on account of your noble virtues. As you praise lady teachers who are like the sun and the moon and preachers, so I also praise you much and keep you always happy.

PURPORT

Those women who gladden all beings like the sun, the moon and the dawn, enjoy bliss.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अश्विनौ) सूर्याचन्द्रमसाविव अध्यापिकोपदेशिके ।

The lady teacher and the preacher like the sun and the moon.

Mantra—2

या दुस्रा सिन्धुमातरा मनोतरा रयीणाम् । धिया देवा वसुविदा ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः) ।

(हे मनुष्याः) यूयं या दस्रा सिन्धुमातरा मनोतरा धिया रयीणां देवा वसुविदौ (अग्निजलवद् वर्तमानौ अध्यापकोपदेशकौ स्तः तौ सेवध्वम्) ॥

TRANSLATION

O men, you should always serve the teachers and the preachers who are like the fire and the water, who are destroyers of misery, whose mothers are the Oceans of virtues, who are full of abundant knowledge, leading to divine virtues, and givers of much wealth with their wisdom and noble acts.

PURPORT

As the fire and the water when methodically used by expert artisans are conveyers of the Vehicles swiftly, like the mind and means of obtaining much wealth, so the teachers and the preachers should also be.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(दस्रा) दुःखोपक्षेतारौ =Destroyers of misery.

TRANSLATION

Artisans, if aged and experienced great scholars teach you various sciences, then your car in the form of aeroplane etc. flies in the glorious heavens like the birds.

PURPORT

If men get the knowledge of the arts and industries sitting at the feet of great scholars (or scientists) they are able to fly in the air like the birds by constructing aeroplanes and other suitable vehicles.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

[ककुहासः] महान्तो विद्वांसः ककुह इति महन्नाम (निघ० ३.३)=Great scholars.

(विष्टपि) अन्तरिक्षे=In the firmament or middle region.

(रथः) विमानादियानसमूहः =Chariot in the form of aeroplanes etc.

(विभिः) वयन्ति गच्छन्ति ये ते वयः पक्षिणः ।=Birds.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Though Wilson and Griffith have not been able to understand that the Mantra has clear reference to aeroplanes or flying in the sky, even their faulty translation refers to it. For instance, Prof. Wilson's translation is—

"Since your chariot proceeds (drawn) by your steeds, above the glorious heavens, your praises are proclaimed by us.

Griffith's translation is—

"Your giant courses hasten on over the region all in flames, when your car flies with winged steeds.

Mantra—4

TRANSLATION

O leading teachers and preachers, you should preserve and protect the people as the sun who is dissolver of all darkness and thus protector from crooked paths, displayer of right path with his light and who protects all by the combination of waters in the firmament and giving light.

PURPORT

A man should nourish and support all beings and things as the sun does by giving light and raining down waters etc.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(जारः) विभागकर्ता आदित्यः = Dissolver of darkness.

(नरा) नेतारौ अध्यापकोपदेशकौ

TRANSLATION

O leading men, the President of the Assembly and the Chief-commander of the Army, who are devoid of falsehood and absolutely truthful accepting the commands of the Vedas, protect with your cleverness and your followers who are destroyers of the enemies from all sides, the wealth of wise men.

PURPORT

The officers and workers of the State should conquer their enemies by their powerful might and multiply their own and the wealth of their subjects.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O Ashvinau (the President of the Assembly and the Commander-in-chief of the army) As the light of sun and the moon dispels the darkness of the night and delights us all by creating the dawn or the white fortnight, so you should also dispel the darkness of ignorance from us and vouchsafe to us invigorating food and herbs full of strengthening good qualitities.

PURPORT

As the sun and the moon dispel the darkness and thus make people happy, in the same manner, the President of the assembly and the Commander of the Army should cast aside all injustice and make people happy and contented.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अश्विना) सूर्याचन्द्रमसाविव सभासेनेशौ

=The President of the Assembly and the Chief Commander of the Army who are like the sun and the moon.

(इषम्) उत्तमगुणसम्पादकम् अन्नाद्यौषधसमूहम्

=Invigorating food and strengthening herbs etc.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The word Ashvinau has many meanings in the Vedas as stated in the Brahmanas and the Nirukta etc.

इमे ह वै द्यावापृथिवी प्रत्यक्षमश्विनौ इमे हीदं सर्वम् अश्नुवाताम् (शतपथ० ४.१.५.१६) अश्विनावध्वर्यू (ऐतरेय १.१८) =Rishi Dayananda's interpretation as अध्यापकोपदेशकौ i. e. teachers and preachers is based upon this authority.

अश्विनौ वै देवानां भिषजौ (ऐत० १.१८)

=Physicians and surgeons.

In the Nirukta (12.1) Yaskacharya has stated.

तत्कौ अश्विनौ द्यावापृथिव्यावित्येके । अहोरात्रावित्येके । सूर्याचन्द्रमसावित्येके । (निरु० १२.१)

Here Rishi Dayananda has interpreted अश्विनौ as सभासेनेशौ on the analogy of सूर्याचन्द्रमसौ i. e. the sun and the moon. For the meaning of इषम् as अन्नम् or food see Kausheetaki Brahmana 28-5 अन्नं वा इषम् (कौषीतकी ब्रा० २८.५)

पुनस्तौ किं कुर्यातामित्युपदिश्यते ।

What else should they (Ashvinau) do is taught in the seventh Mantra.

Mantra—7

TRANSLATION

If men make straight paths to go to the other shore of the sea and use in the Vehicles the fire and the water in proper proportion, travelling by such nice vehicles, they can happily and easily go to other countries, why should they not be then prosperous by carrying on their business there?

PURPORT

Men should build straight and easy paths for their journey everywhere and then travelling by aeroplanes and other chariots, they should enjoy happiness of various kinds.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(ऋतस्य) जलस्य (ऋतमिति उदक नाम निघ. १.१२) =Of the water.

TRANSLATION

O teachers and preachers, O bringers of happiness and peace who are dwellers in joy yourselves, come to us in the light of the sun, in this world with your protective activity and noble speech like thoughtful person.

PURPORT

O men, you should cause happiness to all like benevolent who make others happy by giving them place of residence, knowledge and light.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(वावसाना) सुखेषु अतिशयेन वस्तारौ अत्र सुपां सुलुक् इत्याकारादेशः =Dewellers in joy-Joyous.

(विवस्वति) सूर्ये-सूर्यप्रकाशे =In the light of the sun.

(पीत्या) रक्षिकया क्रियया=With protective activity.

(मनुष्वत्) यथा मनुष्या रक्षन्ति तद्वत् =Like a thoughtful man.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted मनुष्वत् as यथा मनुष्या रक्षन्ति तद्वत् ।

It is in accordance with and on the authority of the passages from the Brahmanas like ये विद्वांसस्ते मनवः । (शत० ८.६.३.१८) अग्निहोता मनुवृतः-अयम् अग्निर्हि सर्वतो मनुष्यैर्वृतः (ऐतरेय २.३४) मनुः-मनुष्यः ।

Other translators like Sayanacharya and Prof. Wilson have taken Manu here as the name of a particular King which is not correct, being opposed to the fundamental principles of the Vedic terminology as pointed out before.

Even Sayanacharya has given the etymology of Manu.

मन-ज्ञाने मन्यते जानातीति मनुः बहुलवचनादौणादिकः उसि प्रत्ययः ।

Venkata Madhava in his short commentary has translated मनुष्यवत् as रत्नवत् at first; but later on as an alternative has erroneously given the meaning of अपि वा मनोरिव यज्ञे ।
It is Rishi Dayananda alone, who has been consistent through out, unlike other commentators or translators.

TRANSLATION

O president of the Assembly and Chief Commander of the Army, you who are truthful, virtuous and circumambient (going everywhere on duty) when justice and protection follow you as the dawn follows the sun and the moon, you can enjoy all prosperity of knowledge and royal wealth.

PURPORT

The ruler and the subjects should love one another intensely and thus having achieved much prosperity, should always endeavour to do good to all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(उषाः) सूर्याचन्द्रमसोः प्रातः प्रकाशः

The morning light of the sun and the moon.

(श्रियम्) विद्याराजलक्ष्मीम्

Prosperity of knowledge and royal wealth.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Here by अश्विनौ Rishi Dayananda has taken सभासेनाधिपती as अश्व: according to वीर्यं वा अश्व: (शत० २.१.४ । २३.२४) means strength or असौ वा आदित्योऽश्व: (तैत्तिरीय० ३.६.२३.२) and both of them are full of virility and are like the sun.

TRANSLATION

O Ashvinau (The President of the Assembly and the Commander of the Army) you who pervade in all knowledge and happiness, drink the nectar-like juice of the various invigorating herbs and with your irreproachable protective activities bestow upon us happiness or suitable residence.

PURPORT

If the President of the Assembly, the Commander of the Army and other officers of the State protect their people they also should protect them like wise. In this 46th hymn the subject mentioned in the previous hymn has been continued by the illustration of the Usha (dwan) and Ashvinau (the sun and the Moon, the earth and the sky, the teachers and preachers, the president of the Assembly and the Commander of the Army etc.) and thus it is connected with the previous hymn.

Here ends the commentary on forty sixth hymn or thirty-fifth Varga of the first Mandala of the Rigveda. Here ends the commentary of the third chapter by Swami Dayananda Sarasvati, the disciple of the great scholar Swami Virjananda Sarasvati, translated by (Acharya) Dharma Deva Vidyamartanda, Vidyavàchaspati.

TRANSLATION

2. Come O Ashvins (President of the Assembly and the Commander of the Army) who are like the fire and the water, with your three-columned, triangular chariot like aeroplane etc. beautiful of form and full of gold and other metals, as highly intelligent persons do with their charming chariots manufactured with the help of technology, going from country to country and coming back and producing food materials. Listen to their words of wisdom and increase growth of food and other kinds of prosperity.

PURPORT

Men should visualise the practical activities along with the theoretical scientific knowledge and then should accomplish all dealings.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(रथेन) विमानादिना

=Vehicle in the form of aeroplane etc.

(अश्विना) अग्निजले इव वर्तमानौ

=Like the fire and the water.

(कण्वासः) मेधाविनः =Wise or highly intelligent men.

TRANSLATION

O Ashvins (The President of the Assembly and the commander of the Army) who are benevolent like the sun and the air, destroyers of miseries, possessors of the best wealth, (of wisdom and knowledge etc.) increasers or supporters of truth, protect or preserve the sweet juice of heroism and approach a man of charitable disposition, sitting in your vehicle like the aeroplane etc.

PURPORT

As the sun and air dispel darkness and help in the growth of Soma and other plants, in the same manner, the President of the Assembly and commander of the army destroy misery and increase the wealth or prosperity by making proper arrangements for their growth.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सोमम्) वीररसादिकम् = The Juice of heroism.

(दस्रा) दुःखोपक्षेतारौ = Destoyers of miseries.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has taken Soma here as वीररसादिकम् for which the following passages of the Brahmanas may be quoted—

रेतः सोमः । (कौषीतकी ब्रा० १३.७) रेतो वै सोमः (शतपथ ब्रा० १.६.२.६ । २.५.१.६)रसः-सोमः (शत० ७.३.१.३)

TRANSLATION

O President of the Assembly and commander of the Army who pervade (discharge) the duties of the Kshatriyas, as Wise men who are possessors of abundent food and wealth or are knowers of all objects, who are shining on all sides with knowledge and have accomplished many works with the proper use of electricity, who have expressed the essence of herbs and other articles invite you and prepare sweet juice for your drink, performing Yajna in the form of industrial work in the atmosphere which is associated with the earth, water and air, so you should also sprinkle the water of happiness and joy on all.

PURPORT

As men can go everywhere after acquiring knowledge from the learned people, manufacturing various vehicles and combining water in proper proportion, they cannot do so otherwise.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अभिद्यवः) अभितः सर्वतो द्यवः दीप्ता विद्या विद्युदादयः पदार्थाः साधिता यैस्ते

TRANSLATION

O President of the Assembly and Commander of the Army, who are endowed with the attributes of the sun and the moon, who increase with the observance of truth and are its supporters, who are guardians of all good deeds, protect and preserve us with those noble desires by which you protect the true wealth and a wise man.

PURPORT

The President of the Assembly and the commander of the Army should protect their subjects and their armies incessantly as they preserve their own wealth.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अश्विना) सूर्याचन्द्रमसाविव सभासेनाध्यक्षौ

=The President of the Assembly and the commander of the Army who shine on account of their merits like the sun and the moon.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

For the meaning of the word Ashvinau as सूर्याचन्द्रमसौ or the sun and the moon, there is the clear authority of Yask-acharya in Nirukta 12.1

तत्कावश्विनौ ? द्यावापृथिव्यावित्येके । अहोरात्रावित्येके । सूर्याचन्द्रमसावित्येके । (निरुक्ते १२.१)

Having taken this third meaning, Rishi Dayananda has taken the President of the Assembly and the Commander of the Army by the way of illustration as acting or shining like the sun and the moon.

It is wrong on the part of Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Griffith and others to take कण्व as the name of a particular sage, whereas according to the Vedic Lexicon-Nighantu 3.15 it simply means — a highly intelligent or wise person.

कण्व इति मेधाविनामसु पठितम् (निघ० ३.१५)

Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is in accordance with and based upon this authority.

The same subject is continued.

Mantra—6

TRANSLATION

O President of the Assembly and Commander of the Army who are full of wealth, destroyers of your enemies, possessing wealth of various kinds, come to us sitting in the Vehicle like the aeroplane which has in it many good servants or workers bringing knowledge which gives happiness, pertaining to the atmosphere or the brilliant sun and wealth desired by many whether from the firmament or the sky beyond.

PURPORT

The Officers of the State like the President of the Assembly and others should obtain much wealth for the welfare of the army and the people should manufacture many vehicles like the aeroplane to take wealth away to distant places beyond the seas for business etc. and should make all happy.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O Ashvins (President of the Assembly and the Commander of the Army) who are truthful in mind, word and deed, whether you abide far off or close at hand, come to us in your well-constructed vehicle like the aeroplane etc. with the rays of the sun, approach a person who is endowed with Vehicle and technical knowledge.

PURPORT

It is the duty of the President of the Council of Ministers and the Commander of the Army to make arrangements for the construction of such vehicles as may travel in the firmament and take to distant countries.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(तुर्वशे) वेदशिल्पविद्यावति मनुष्ये तुर्वश इति मनुष्यनाम (निघ० २.३) =In a learned person.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Deva Raja Yajva in his commentary on the Nirukta, explains Turvasha (तुर्वशा) in various ways, the following of which is specially worth-mentioning.

चतुर्षु धर्मार्थकाममोक्षेषु वश एषाम् इति चतुर्वशाः सन्तः चकारलोपेन तुर्वशाः तुर्वशेष्वगन्महि (ऋ० ५.७.३३.४) इति निगमः वश-कान्तौ

Desirous of four objects of human life i. e. Dharma (righteousness) Artha (achievement of wealth) Kama (fulfilment of noble desires) and Moksha (emancipation).

(२) तुर्वशे इति अन्तिक नाम (निघ० २.१६)

TRANSLATION

O guides of men, endowed with speed or active and establishing contact among people, O President of the Assembly and Commander of the Army, may your horses in the form of steam engines etc. take you to the pious and liberal donor and their Yajnas. Sit on the suitable good seat. Bestow food upon them and other good things fulfilling their noble desires and bringing to them the prosperity of inviolable vast State.

PURPORT

The officers and people of the State should give to one another good things and thus enjoy happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(बर्हि:) अन्तरिक्षम्, उत्तमं वस्तुजातम्

बर्हिरित्यन्तरिक्ष नाम (निघ० १.३)

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

बर्हि: (Barhih) has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda as उत्तमं वस्तुजातम् or good things. बर्हिरिति पदनामसु (निघ० ५.२) पद-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्था: ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च by taking the third meaning, it means सुखप्रापकम् i. e. a good thing that causes happiness. बृह-वृद्धौ or बर्हिषि महन्नाम (निघ० ३.३) Great or good.

TRANSLATION

O learned President of the Assembly and the Commander of the Army who are like the sun and the air and manifesters of Dharma (righteousness and justice) with the Vedic hymns or the words used by truthful learned persons, we call on you for protection in the well-beloved assembly of wise men which fulfils all noble desires. May you ever come and drink the Soma (essence of various invigorating herbs) which causes happiness.

PURPORT

The officers and people of the State should attend the assembly of the learned persons and should listen to their sermons, so that they may know their duties well.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(उक्थेभिः) वेदस्तोत्रैः अधीतवेदाप्तोपदिष्टवचनैर्वा

अथोषर्वत् कन्यकानां गुणाः सन्तीत्युपदिश्यते ।

Now the attributes of the girls like the Dawn are taught in the first Mantra.

Mantra—1

सह वामेन न उषो व्युच्छा दुहितर्दिवः ।
सह द्युम्नेन बृहता विभावरि राया देवि दास्वती ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृत:)

हे दिवः दुहितः उषर्वत् वर्तमाने विभावरि देविकन्ये दास्वती त्वं बृहता वामेन द्युम्नेन राया सह नः व्युच्छ ॥

TRANSLATION

O brilliant girl shining with wisdom and good education who art like the dawn, the daughter of the sun, O diffuser of light, dawn upon us with great illumination in the form of knowledge and culture. O girl of liberal disposition, dawn upon us with admirable beauty of wisdom and prosperity of vast and good Government.

PURPORT

As the dawn makes men industrious, impelling them to be active and making them happy with the achievement of great substance and when in the evening, she makes them retire, in the same manner, the parents should urge upon their daughters to acquire wisdom and good education.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे उषरिव स्त्रि त्वम् अश्वावतीः गोमतीः विश्वसुविदः सूनृताः वाचः वस्तवे भूरि उदीरय (ये व्यवहारेभ्यः) च्यवन्त तेषां मघोनां सकाशात् राधः चोद (प्रेरय ताभिः मां प्रति आनन्दय) ॥

TRANSLATION

O woman who art like the dawn, thou shouldst utter many true and sweet words which describe the attributes of the cows, the horses and give true knowledge of all objects in order to live in the world happily. From those wealthy persons who go astray from the path of their duty, take away wealth or induct them to spend it for noble purposes and make me happy thereby.

PURPORT

As the charming dawn makes all beings happy, in the same manner, wives should constantly make their husbands, and other relations, delighted and full of joy.

पुनः सा कीदृशी भवेदित्युपदिश्यते ।

How should a woman be is taught in the third mantra.

Mantra—3

उवासोषा उच्छाच्च नु देवी जीरा रथानाम् ।

TRANSLATION

A woman who is beautiful and pleasant like the dawn, active and giver of pleasure and happiness travels by various pleasant vehicles. Those who are pleased with their (wives') good conduct and love them, enjoy happiness, as those who are desirous of wealth and send their ships to sea.

PURPORT

It is only a person who gets a learned wife, quite agreeable to him enjoys happiness and none else (as a house holder).

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(जीरा) वेगयुक्ता = Full of speed or active.

(देवी) सुखदात्री = Giver of pleasure.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

देवो दानाद् वा दीपनाद् वा द्योतनाद्वा (निरुक्ते ७.४.१६)

So the first meaning of देव given by Yaskacharya in the Nirukta has been taken here by Rishi Dayananda.

य उषसि योगमभ्यस्यन्ति ते किं प्राप्नुवन्तीत्याह

Those who practise Yoga in the Dawn, what do they attain is taught in the fourth mantra.

Mantra—4

उषो ये ते प्र यामेषु युञ्जते मनो दानायं सूरयः ।
अत्राह तत्कण्व एषां कण्वतमो नाम गृणाति नृणाम् ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे विद्वन् ये सूरयः (तव सकाशात् उपदेशं प्राप्य) अत्र उषर्यामेषु दानाय मनः अह प्रयुंजते ते सिद्धा भवन्ति यः कण्वः एषां नृणां नाम गृणाति स कण्वतमः जायते ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned man, those educated devotees who having taken instructions from you practise Yoga and meditate upon God by fixing their minds on Him at the dawn in order to give true knowledge to others, become siddhas (accomplished persons). The wise man who glorifies these true leaders of knowledge and Dharma (righteousness) becomes the wisest among men.

PURPORT

Those men who sitting in a quiet and pure solitary place, practise nine parts of Yoga including Sanyama, become siddhas, pure in mind word and deed. Those who associate with them and serve them also purify their minds and become seekers after Atma (God and Soul) and Yoga.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(दानाय) विद्यादिदानाय=For giving true knowledge.

(कण्वतमः) अतिशयेन मेधावी =The wisest

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The very use of the word कण्वतम in superlative form of Kanva makes it quite clear that Kanva cannot be taken as a proper noun. Superlative degree is not used after the proper noun in any language, yet Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and others have committed the mistake of taking it as the name of a particular sage. As a matter of fact, as has been pointed out before, Kanva-according to the Vedic Lexicon-Nighantu 3.15 means a highly intelligent or wise man.

कण्व इति मेधाविनाम (निघ० ३.१५)

The nine parts of the Yoga including Sanyama are यम, नियम, आसन (Posture) प्राणायाम (Control of breath) प्रत्याहार (Withdrawing mind from external objects) धारणा (concentration) ध्यान (Meditation) समाधि (Perfect concentration and ecstasy) and संयम (Combination of the last three).

The Yamas are five अहिंसा (Harmlessness or non-violence) सत्य (Truth) अस्तेय (non-theft) ब्रह्मचर्य (Continence) अपरिग्रह (Non-covetousness). The Niyamas are also five शौच (Cleanliness). सन्तोष Contentment) तपः (Austerity or hardihood) स्वाध्याय (Study of the scriptures) and ईश्वरप्रणिधान (consecration to God).

पुनः सा किं करोतीत्युपदिश्यते ।

What does Usha do is taught in the fifth-Mantra.

Mantra—5

आ घा योषेव सूनर्युषा याति प्रभुञ्जती ।
जरयन्ती वृजनं पद्वदीयत उत्पातयति पक्षिणः ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः [ऋषिकृतः]

या योषा इव प्रभुंजती सूनरी जरयन्ती उषा यद्वत् ईयते वृजनं याति पक्षिणः उत्पातयति तस्यां सर्वैः योगः अभ्यसनीयः ॥

TRANSLATION

All should practise Yoga at Dawn who comes daily like a Matron, the directress of household duties, and good nourisher of the family conducting all transient creatures to decay; at her coming, each biped strirs and she makes the birds of air fly up.

PURPORT

As the Usha (Dawn) is pure and giver of happiness and suitable for the practice of Yoga, so the women should be.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(प्रभुंजती) प्रकृष्टं पालनं कुर्वंती

=Sustaining or nourishing well by cooking nutritious food and looking after them.

[भुज-पालनाभ्यवहारयोः—Tr.]

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः) ।

हे योगिनि स्त्रि ! यथा या ओदती न किः वाजिनीवती उषाः अर्थिनः पदं न समनं विवेति विसृजति यस्याः व्युष्टौ पप्तिवांसः वयः आसते [सा वेला ते योगाभ्यासार्था अस्ति इति मन्यस्व] ॥

TRANSLATION

O Yogini (Noble woman engaged in the practice of Yoga) you should be like the Dawn who is shedder of dews, who animates the diligent for the battle of life or sends the busy forth, each man to his pursuit, who is active, who knows not delay, after whose rising, birds that have flown forth no longer rest. You should know that the time of dawn is meant for your practice of Yoga.

PURPORT

As women get their objects by dealing with labour, in the same manner, the dawn with her light gets the right of her dealing. As she awakens all people by creating the day and sends them to pursue their different vocations and makes them rest at night, the woman should also behave like her. She should make all busy by her own example and dispel all darkness of ignorance.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

[वाजिनीवती] बह्व्यः वाजिन्यः क्रिया विद्यन्ते यस्यां सा =For whom there are many movements, active.

TRANSLATION

O women, as this auspicious Ushas (Dawn), has harnessed her vehicles from afar, before the rising of the sun, and as borne on a hundred chariots of rays she advances on her way to men, in the same way, you should also be.

PURPORT

As chaste women serve their husbands regularly, as the Association of the Dawn with the objects is from a distance, in the same manner, the marriage of the bridegrooms should be arranged with the brides of distant places, so that the love between them may ever grow. The marriage between parties living close to each other causes trouble, while as that of the matches belonging to distant places is generally source of happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

[परावतः] दूरदेशात् [परावत इति दूरनाम निघ. ३.२६] =From a distant place.

पुनः सा (उषाः) कीदृशीत्युपदिश्यते ।

How is that Usha is taught further in the 8th Mantra.

Mantra—8

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे स्त्रियः यूयं यथा मघोनी सूनरी दिवः दुहिता इव उषा जगत् चक्षसे ज्योतिः कृणोति, स्रिधः अप द्वेषः अप उच्छत् (दूरतः विवासयति अस्याः चक्षसे विश्वं नानाम तथा पत्यादिषु वर्तध्वम्) ॥

TRANSLATION

O women, you should behave towards your husbands and others as the Dawn who is the daughter of the sky, good leader of the day, to meet whose glance all living creatures bend down, who lights up or illuminates the world, bringer of good, who drives away the malevolent and wild beasts, thieves and robbers and at whose appearance all bow to God in reverence.

PURPORT

As a good woman accomplishes all good works casting aside all obstacles, in the same way, the Dawn drives away with her light robbers, thieves and enemies and helps to accomplish noble acts.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Unlike most of the translators or commentators of the Rigveda, Rishi Dayananda has taken the word Ushas (उषाः) for a noble wife also, for which there is the following clear authority from the Brahmana, besides the Vedic hints like योषेव सूनरी (ऋ० १.४८.५) which even Sayanacharya explains as "सुष्ठु गृहकृत्यस्य नेत्री गृहिणी इव" (सायणाचार्यः) and which Prof. Wilson following him translates as "like a Matron, the directress of household duties (Wilson). In the Shatpath Brahmana 6.1.3.7 we find भूतानां गृहपतिः आसीत् उषाः पत्नी । Here by Usha is meant wife.

So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is well-authenticated.

पुनः सा कीदृशी सती किं कुर्यादित्युपदिश्यते ।

How should she (Usha) be is taught further in the 9th Mantra.

TRANSLATION

O virtuous woman like the Dawn, give food and knowledge to your meritorious or noble husband who among men is illustrious on account of knowledge, Dharma (righteousness) and other virtues. Approach on all sides those righteous learned persons of good character and temperament who praise and teach you about the inviolable dealings (duties) of the household life in order to gain more and more knowledge.

PURPORT

O men, as the sun makes all beings delighted after turning the Dawn into day, in the same manner, you should please and adorn your wives and wives should please you. In this way, by mutual love and service all should enjoy happiness.

पुनः सा किं कुर्यादित्युपदिश्यते ।

TRANSLATION

O noble woman charming like the Dawn, as I get from the firmament all divine objects, pure air etc. for drinking the essence of herbs, you should also get them and bear all divine virtues in your heart. O lady, fulfiller of all desires benevolent like the Dawn, bestow upon us excellent and invigorating food and knowledge, along with noble speech and strength, the cattle and the horses and fire etc.

PURPORT

As this Dawn by her appearance causes us to attain pure water, air and light etc., removing all evils and revealing all noble objects,a noble lady should be of the same nature in the discharge of her domestic duties.

The same subject is continued—

Mantra—13

यस्या रुशन्तो अर्चयः प्रति भद्रा अदृक्षत ।

TRANSLATION

O noble woman, as the Ushas (Dawn) whose bright auspicious rays are visible all around, gives us desirable, agreeable and easily attainable wealth in the form of health and happiness, in the same manner, you should also give all this and gladden us.

PURPORT

As without the Dawn which is followed by day, works cannot be accomplished easily and things cannot be seen in their true form, in the same manner, without a chaste and noble woman, domestic happiness cannot be attained.

TRANSLATION

O learned lady, Praise-worthy like the Dawn, as Rishis-experienced knowers of the secret meanings of the Vedas instruct you for the attainment of virtues and for protection, you should also be radiant with pure light and wealth and accept our praises, giving good knowledge to all.

PURPORT

None should imitate foolish people. As learned persons reveal the attributes of all objects and thereby spread knowledge and do good to all and as this Usha (Dawn) makes all happy by manifesting all objects by her light, in the same manner, women endowed with wisdom should adorn and illuminate the knowledge of all sciences in the world.

TRANSLATION

O highly learned noble active lady like the Dawn, as Dawn makes us happy with abundant and multiform wealth, adorable wealth, with reputation, with noble speech and policy, with the light of knowledge and Dharma, which makes us active, with food, you should also gladden us by supplying these means. (All this is the result of meditation at the Dawn which gives us power to discharge our duties well) Tr.

PURPORT

Men should possess the knowledge of the attributes of the Dawn as taught by the learned and thereby acquire with exertion all objects that cause happiness. It is by the proper training or education given by the mothers that children become good.

In this hymn, the attributes of girls and women have been taught by the illustration of the Dawn, and so this hymn is connected with the previous hymn. Here ends the comment-ary on the 48th Hymn of the Ist Mandala of the Rigveda.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Skanda Swami, Sayanacharya, Wilson, Griffith and other translators of the Rigveda, have taken the word Ushas used in the Mantras in the sense of external Dawn, while Rishi Daya-nanda taking into consideration adjectives like सूनरी (Good leader or Excellent Guide in the words of Griffith) प्रभुंजती (nourisher) चित्रामहे (of wondrous wealth) सूनृते ईरयन्ती (Speaking true and sweet words) etc. and on the authority of the Brahmanic passages like भूतानां पतिर्गृहपतिरासीदुषाः (शत० ६.१.३.७) has taken it to mean an educated noble lady also who burns up all evils उष·दाहे उच्छ-विवासे who makes her husband live in happiness.

Shri Kapali Shastrif ollowing Shri Aurobindo—a great Yogi has given spiritual interpretation of this and other hymns concerning the Ushas, criticising Shri Sayanacharya and his followers as स्थूलपक्षीयाः giving gross or mere external meaning, not going deep to know the secret meaning of the Mantras. He takes Ushas as the Divine Dawn of spiritual illumination.

(दिव्य ज्ञान प्रभातः) ज्योतिः कृणोति सूनरी (म० ८) he explains as सूर्यात्मक सत्य ज्योतिः प्रादुर्भावयति=generates true spiritual light. मघोनी he takes not as full of opulent material wealth but as दिव्यधन-सम्पन्ना Full of Divine Wealth of wisdom and peace etc. This spiritual interpretation is also worth-considering for all seekers after the secret of the Vedas.

TRANSLATION

1. O girl shining with good virtues like the Dawn, as the Dawn comes by auspicious ways from above the sky's bright realm, so come thou with auspicious virtues from the family of the people full of splendour. As red rays of the sun bring the dawn, so let horses or the old people eating articles increasers of red corpuseles in the blood (or red horses) bring thee to the house of the virile husband, possessing all objects, for marriage.

PURPORT

As the Dawn born from the horizen (association of the light of the sun with the earth) when turned into day, gladdens all manifesting all objects, in the same way, a woman endowed with Brahmacharya (continence) and Vidya (Knowledge) is to be admired.

TRANSLATION

Spiritual interpretation in the case of God the Divine Sun, as given by Rishi Dayananda in the Pancha Maha Yajna Vidhi.

(1) All the different objects of the world are the flags that point out or lead to God —the Divine Sun who is Omnipresent and Omniscient as well as the Source of the Vedas, who is giver of Peace and Bliss. Truthful enlightened persons lead us to Him through their teachings for the benefit of humanity.

Metrical free translation—

The suns, the stars, the oceans, hills
Are all the flags that point to Him
The giver of light, who kills all ills
And helps us to swim
Across the ocean of grief
Surrounding us on all sides.
God is Almighty, All pervading
Omniscient Lord who guides
Wise men meditating on Him
And gives them life and light.
Day and night, they think of Him
And guide the world aright.

(2) In the case of the sun, the meaning is—

The rays leads us to the refulgent sun who makes us see this grand Panorama of the Universe, is cause of all we see. He is the source of all the planetary world.

(3) There is also the third meaning pointed out by Rishi Dayananda and explained at length by Pandit Guru Dutta Vidyaarthi in his exposition of the "Vedic texts." In this case, the reference is to the marriage institution, taking जातवेदसम्, देवम्, सूर्यम् for a virile, learned bridegroom shining like the sun. By केतव: are meant learned brides. They get such a virile learned husband publicly to manifest their virtues and attain domestic happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(जातवेदसम्) जाता ऋग्वेदादयः चत्वारो वेदाः सर्वज्ञानप्रदा यस्मात्, यद्वा जातं सकलं जगद् वेत्ति (जानाति) यः स जातवेदाः (जाते जाते विद्यत इति वा, जातानि वेद इति वा जातवेदाः इति निरुक्ते ७.५.१९) परमेश्वरपक्षे ॥ =Omnipresent and Omniscient God.

सूर्यपक्षे यो जातान् पदार्थान् विन्दति=All-penetrating.

विवाहपक्षे-जातानि वेद =Knower of various objects, well-educated.

परमेश्वरपक्षे (देवं सूर्यम्) चराचरात्मानं सर्वप्रका-शकं परमात्मानम् प्रकाशप्रदं सूर्यमिति सूर्यपक्षे सूर्यमिव तेजस्विनं सुखप्रदातारं पतिम् इति गृहस्थपक्षे

केतवः किरणाः =Rays of the Sun.

विविधजगतः पृथक् पृथग् रचनादिनियामकाः ज्ञापकाः प्रकाशकाः ईश्वरस्य गुणा ध्वजाः

=The attributes of God and flag-posts.

PURPORT

As the rays bear the sun, highly educated persons should urge upon all learned men to marry educated and righteous women suitable or aggreeable to themselves.

Mantra—2

अप त्ये तायवो यथा नक्षत्रा यन्त्यक्तुभिः । सूराय विश्वचक्षसे ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (आर्षिकृतः) ।

हे स्त्रीपुरुषाः ! यूयं यथा अक्तुभिः सह वर्तमानानि नक्षत्रा (नक्षत्राणि 'लोकाः') त्ये तायवः—वायवः च विश्व-चक्षसे सूराय अपयन्ति (तथा विवाहिताभिः स्त्रीभिः सह संयोगवियोगान् कुरुत) ॥

TRANSLATION

As at the approach of the all-illuminating sun, the constellations depart with the night, in the same manner, married people should not unite for procreation in day time, but only at apportioned nights for good progeny. At night as stars are united with the moon and the Pranas (vital breaths) with the body, so should the married couple behave (co-habitation in day time is prohibited and is positively harmful).

COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(तायवः) सूर्यपालका वायवः = Winds that guard the sun.

(नक्षत्रा)नक्षत्राणि क्षयरहिता लोकाः=Constellations.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

तायवः is derived from तायृ-सन्तानपालनयोः so Rishi Dayananda has taken it to mean वायवः or gases and in the purport for प्राणाः (Pranas or vital breaths) which preserve the body. It may also be used for mothers who bear children. Other translators have taken it to mean thieves for which they have quoted. तायुरिति स्तेननाम (निघ० ३.२४) Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is original. In this case सूर्य stands for virile husband. In the case of God, the meaning is that all evils disappear when God the All-illuminating Divine Sun is arisen in the heart. They run away as the thieves at the appearance of the sun.

The same subject is continued.

Mantra—3

अदृश्रमस्य केतवो वि रश्मयो जनाँ अनु । भ्राजन्तो अग्नयो यथा ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः) ।

यथा अस्य सूर्यस्य भ्राजंतः अग्नयः केतवः रश्मयः जनान् अनुभ्राजन्तः सन्ति तथा अहं स्वस्त्रियं स्वपुरुषं च एव गम्यत्वेन वि अदृश्रम् (न अन्यथा इति यावत्) ॥

TRANSLATION

(1) In the case of the sun the meaning is—

His light-emitting, colour-providing rays enable all men to behold, like blazing fires.

(2) In case of God—the Divine Sun the meaning is—

The rays of God the Illuminator and Impeller of the world which give knowledge to men according to their capacity and ability to receive, are like the blazing fires. Just as resplendent rays of the sun and blazing fires make known the objects of this earth, similarly the powers of God and His wise devotees illumine all objects. They give instruction to all people about them.

(3) In the case of the married couple, the mantra enjoins upon them the duty of learning the lesson of conjugal relation from the heat and the light rays of the sun. It inculcates inviolability of the marriage ties. Let the married couples preserve their sacred relation in-violable and intact and not frustrate their peace and happiness by adopting the opposite course of free marriages."(Pandit Guru Dutta M.A.)

PURPORT

As the sun and the blazing fires, shine outside, in the same way, there is the light of God in the inner soul. All men should try to acquire this knowledge by all means. By His command, all married couples should observe perfect chastity and faithfulness to each other by renouncing all kinds of infidelity or un-chastity.

हे सूर्य (ईश्वर) ! यतः विश्वदर्शतः तरणिः ज्योतिष्कृत् त्वं रोचनं विश्वम् आभासि तस्मात् स्वयं प्रकाशः असि ॥

TRANSLATION

Thou, O illuminating Divine Sun (God) art the source of Light; Thou enablest us to see the whole Universe and art Creator of the Sun. Thou art illumining all the radiant realms.

PURPORT

As the sun and the electricity illuminate external gross or embodied objects, God illuminates the whole world.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Even the orthodox commentators like Sayanacharya have to admit that here the word सूर्य stands primarily for God. Sayanacharya after giving the material interpretation regarding the sun, says.

यद्वा हे सूर्य अन्तर्यामितया सर्वस्य प्रेरक परमात्मन् त्वं तरणिः—संसाराब्धेस्तारकोऽसि सर्वैर्मुमुक्षुभिः द्रष्टव्योऽसि ।

Thou O God, the Impeller of all on account of being the Inner most Spirit of all art worthy of being seen by all desirous of attaining emancipation and art able to take us across the ocean of the world etc.

Shri Kapali Shastri—a great scholar and Yogi of South India has given spiritual interpretation of this whole hymn, interpreting. सूर्य as सर्वस्य प्रेरक परमात्मन् तरणि:—

तारयिता यजमानं तमसस्पारम्

=God the Impeller of all and taking the worshipper beyond all darkness.

TRANSLATION

O God, Thou pervadest and appearest before absolutely truthful learned persons and also before men of thoughtful nature. Thou manifestest Thy glory, so that the whole world may attain happiness. Thou shinest to show the path of salvation. Therefore Thou art worthy of communion by all.

PURPORT

Because God is Omnipresent, the Inner Spirit pervading all and winness of all actions, He alone is worthy of adoration and communion.

TRANSLATION

O God Divine Sun the Universal Spirit pervading all, Thou illuminest the heaven and the middle region and the earth dividing days and nights like the sun. Thou seest the actions of all creatures and fully knowest about their births as Thou art Omniscient.

PURPORT

All men should know and believe that God who creates the sun and other objects of the world, is the proper giver of the fruits of the meritorious or sinful actions of all souls having seen them thoroughly and is the True and just Sovereign of all.

O Illuminator, Omniscient Divine Sun, as seven kinds of rays of the sun, cause to attain the resplendent sun in this beautiful world, so it is the Mantras composed in seven kinds of metres Gayatri, Anushtup, Trishtup etc. that cause us to attain Thee.

PURPORT

O men, you should know that at it is not possible to have the vision of the sun without his rays, so it is not possible to have thorough knowledge or Darshan (perfect realisation) of God without the study of the Vedas.

TRANSLATION

O men, as we seeing the light of the sun who dispels darkness as made by God rise above and see within our souls God who remains even after dissolution and then attain that Divine Sun who is the Best Light, Giver of Peace and Bliss and present among all enlightened persons and worlds, being the most exalted.

PURPORT

Men should know that there is none who is equal to God, the Supreme Being and none can get emancipation without attaining Him.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

In this Mantra we find उत्, उत्तर, उत्तम denoting the the common, comparative and suprelative degrees. So many good scholars take them to denote matter, soul and God — the three eternal entities.

Taking that meaning which is also significant, we can translate the Mantra metrically as follows—

We are rising above darkness.
Of the matter that's below.
Are perceiving immortal spirit
By whose power we can grow.
Then we see the light of light.
Bestower of pure delight.
Sun Divine we attain.
In His shelter we remain.

TRANSLATION

O learned physician radiant and benevolent like the sun, adored by all friends, as the refulgent sun rising to-day and mounting into the highest heaven by his splendour, dispels all darkness and creates light,in the same way, remove all the disease of my heart and the yellowness of my body as well as my ignorance and ill health which take away all happiness.

PURPORT

As on the rising of the sun, darkness and thieves etc. disappear, in the same manner, when a good physician comes,all wrong way of diet or causes of illhealth and diseases go away.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

हृदयस्याज्ञानादि ज्वरादिरोगस्तम्—सुखहरणशीलम्

=The disease of ignorance remaining in the heart.

हरिमाणम्—सुखहरणशीलम्

=That which takes away happiness.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

According to Rishi Dayananda's un-published commentary on this hymn, giving many meanings the Mantra is equally applicable to God — the Divine Sun, who when appearing in the heart, removes all ignorance like the fever and all evils.

Mantra—12

शुकेषु मे हरिमाणं रोपणाकासु दध्मसि ।
अथो हारिद्रवेषु मे हरिमाणं नि दध्मसि ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः) ।

TRANSLATION

We put our disease which takes away all happiness in parrot like actions i. e. taking various fruits and walking in regions full of trees and in herbs which strengthen us and ointments etc. which take away pain. We also put them in substances that take away diseases and are liquid.

PURPORT

Men should get rid of all diseases and acquire strength by adopting necessary means, using fruits, herbs and ointments etc.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(शुकेषु) शुकवत् कृतेषु कर्मसु
=In parrot-like actions as explained above.

(रोपणाकासु) रोपणं समन्तात् कामयन्ते तासु क्रियासु लिप्तासु ओषधीषु =Ointments and other medicines.

(हारिद्रवेषु) ये हरन्ति द्रवन्ति द्रावयन्ति च

=Which take away pain and disease. Other translators simply translate the Mantra as 'let us transfer the yellowness (of my body) to the parrots, to the starlings, or to the Haritala tree.' (Wilson). "To parrots and to starlings let us give away my yellowness or this my yellowness let us transfer to Haritala trees" (Griffith).

But there is not much sense in it शुक, रोपणाका and हारिद्रव seem to indicate a group of herbs, medicines and trees by the proper use of which heart disease, jaundice and other diseases may be checked and cured according to the Ayurvedic literature. In the Atharva Veda the reading in the text is सुक instead of शुक which means that which gives pleasure well.

TRANSLATION

O learned President of the Assembly, as this sun has arisen with all his might or splendour, in the same away, you should be awake or alert in your State with all your might. As you destroy my adversary, let me also destroy an un-righteous person who uses violence against me, but should never harm him who does not harm me.

PURPORT

Men should act like the omnipotent God or the cause of strength like the Prana (vital energy) or electricity. They should be friendly to all righteous persons and should preserve all subjects.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

There is also a spiritual interpretation hinted at by Rishi Dayananda in the Bhavartha or purport here but expressly given in the un-published commentary on this hymn with various meanings. There he has taken आदित्य as Indestructible or Immortal God and has taken the Mantra to mean that God has arisen in my heart with all His Might, destroying my adversary for me. May I not use violence even towards my enemy.

This hymn has connection with the previous hymn as there is the mention of the attributes of God, fire, sun etc. as in that hymn.

Here ends the commentary on the fiftieth hymn, 8th Varga or ninth Anuvaka of the first Mandala of the Rigveda.

O men, gladden with your praises that king, who is ocean of wealth, who is showerer of happiness like the rain, who is invoked by many, who is gratified by hymns, whose good deeds spread abroad for the benefit of mankind, like the rays of the sun, honour that mighty and highly intelligent king who is giver of wealth and is destroyer of his enemies, being like the sun in his splendour and power.

PURPORT

Men should honour that king only who, on account of his many virtues, is shining like the sun. Without such a mighty king, it is not possible for anyone to enjoy happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मेषम्) वृष्टिद्वारा सेक्तारम्

=Showerer of happiness like the rain by a natural process.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is absurd on the part of Prof. Wilson and Griffith to translate the word मेषम् used as an adjective for Indra as a ram. Prof. Wilson in his note has stated. 'Tyam Mesham; referring to a legend, in which it is narrated that Indra came in the form of a ram to a sacrifice solemnised by Medhatithi, and drank the Soma Juice, but fortunately feeling its absurdity he says, 'or mesha may be rendered" victor over foes". Griffith also refers to this absurd legend but does not give the alternative meaning which even wilson has given following Sayanacharya who has said मेषम्-मिषस्पर्धायाम् इगुपध-लक्षणे के प्राप्ते देवसेन मेषादयः पचादिषु द्रष्टव्या इति वचनादच् प्रत्ययः ॥

This explanation of मेष given by Sayanacharya may be accepted along with Rishi Dayananda's interpretation as सेक्तारम् from मिह-सेचने ।

The other meaning of "ram" based upon an absurd legend is simply ridiculous. Rishi Dayananda has also interpreted मेषः in his commentary on Yajurveda 19-90 as यो मिषति स्पर्धते सः He who competes. Like Sayanacharya he has derived the word मेष from मिष-स्पर्धायाम् In his commentary on Rig.1.52.1 he has explained मेम् as सुखजलाभ्यां सेक्तारम् ॥

The Mantra is equally applicable to God.

O King with thy army, as the sun dispels the cloud with the aid of the winds, thou demolishest the strength of the enemy in the battle for the sake of perfect happiness (where there is absence of all kinds of misery or suffering). Thou makest dance or subdue the army of the enemy which veils happiness of the people, bringing forth wealth for causing delight. Knowing the science of Geology, thou preservest and guardest thy army covered by thick clouds in the form of hundreds of difficulties and obstacles. Therefore, we honour thee whole-heartedly.

(1) O Indra (President of the Assembly) as thou removest the shackles of the enemies as the sun takes off all covering of the water, like the sun bearing the life-giving water in the cloud or the mountain, thou givest wealth to a man who is firm like the hills. As the lightning strikes the cloud, thou strikest down the enemy with thy might. As the rays exhibit the sun in the sky, so that people may see him, in the same manner, thou manifestest justice for all to see. Therefore thou art fit to rule.

(2) The Mantra is also applicable to God who establishes the sun in the sky for all to see. It is He who destroys all internal enemies by giving power to His devotees to resist them and gives happiness. Rishi Dayananda refers clearly to this spiritual interpretation in the Bhavartha or purport given below.

PURPORT

Men should know that it is God who has created the sun that attracts all the worlds, and causes rain and gives happiness to all by illuminating them. (The President of the Assembly should imitate God in discharging his duties and should be full of splendour and mighty like the sun.)

O wise Indra (Commander of the Army or the President of the Assembly) Thou preservest with food, water and other necessary articles, the person who is just and bears in himself knowledge, straightforwardness and other virtues. By thy devices full of intelligence of a high order, thou shouldst put down the deceivers, thieves and robbers who take away others' property when they are asleep. In battles where thieves, robbers and other wicked people are slain, thou shouldst destroy the malignant completely.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is wrong on the part of Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Griffith and others to take Pipru and Rijishva as proper nouns, as that is against the fundamental principles of the Vedic terminology as pointed out before. All Vedic words are derivative and should be taken and explained so. That is what Rishi Dayananda has consistently done throughout. The most surprising and the most objectionable thing about Shri Sayanacharya is that though he has accepted and propounded this principle of all Vedic Words being derivative and eternity of the Vedas in his introduction to the commentary on the Rigveda, he has not been able to follow it consistently.

TRANSLATION

O learned and brave person, in the battles whether tyrants are slain or trodden down, thou shouldst wield powerful weapons and protect thy subjects. Thou shouldst slay thy ememies. For attending upon the guests and thus treading upon the path of righteousness, thou shouldst bear great might full of innumerable virtues. Thou art born to tread with thy foot upon the thieves, robbers and other wicked people or for the destruction of the oppressors. It is for this reason that, thou art worthy of respect.

PURPORT

It is the duty of the President of the Assembly, the Commander of the army and other officers of the State to kill their enemies like the sun dispelling darkness, to protect the righteous, to tread upon the noble path, to bear infinite might and to increase their influence to put an end to their foes.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is regrettable that Skanda Swami, Venkatamadhava, Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Griffith and many others have taken Kutsa, Shushna, Atithigva, Shambara and Arbuda as proper nouns denoting some sages, kings, or demons. But as has been pointed out before, it is against the fundamental principle of the Vedic terminology and strangely enough, opposed to the principles enunciated and supported by Skanda Swami in his commentary on the Nirukta and Sayanacharya in the introduction to his commentary on the Rigveda. The inconsistency of these great scholars of the medieval period is therefore all the more surprising and deplorable. Rishi Dayananda has interpreted some of these words like कुत्स (Kutsa) शुष्ण (Shushna) शम्बर (Shambara) on the authority of the Vedic Lexicon which clearly states.

कुत्सइति वज्रनाम (निघ० २.२०)

=Thunderbolt or weapon.

शुष्णमिति बलनाम (निघ० २.६) =Strength.

शम्बरमिति बलनाम (निघ० २.६) =Strength.

Regarding अतिथिग्व even Skanda Swami explains it as अतिथीन् प्रति परिचारकतया गच्छतीत्यतिथिग्वः ।

=He who serves the guests. The meaning given by Sayanacharya is also similar i. e. to be approached by guests. But wrongly they have taken it to mean here a king name Divodasa which word does not at all occur in the Mantra. It is gratifying to see that a great South Indian Scholar and Yogi Shri Kapali Shastri has clearly hinted at the derivative meanings of these words in his Siddhanjana Bhashya on the Rigveda.

After quoting Sayanacharya's meanings he writes—

अत्र कुत्सशुष्णादीनां गूढोऽर्थः ज्ञेयः । कुत्सः उक्तः (१.३३.१४) देवद्वेषिणां शत्रूणां वा कुत्सनात् अधः करणात् कुत्सः इत्युत्पश्यामः । शुष्णः-शोषयिता रसा-नात् । [illegible] देवानां

स्वस्मिन् स्थानासनादिसुखविधायकः पुरुषो यजमानो दिवो दास्ये वर्तत इति दिवो दास उच्यते । शं सुखं वृणोति सुखस्य आवरक इति । (श्री कपालिशास्त्री सिद्धांजनभाष्ये २ य खण्डे) पृ० २६७ ।

Thus he has given derivative and secret meanings of Kutsa, Shushna, Atithigva and shambara, which need not be explained at length.

TRANSLATION

O learned Indra (President of Assembly or commander of the Army). In thee is all powerful army or vigour fully concentrated. Thy wealth is for the enjoyment of the articles that give happiness to all. The band of powerful weapons in thy hands causes happiness to us as it is meant to destroy the wicked. Cut off all powers from the foes.

PURPORT

If the power remains in the hands of the righteous and noble persons, the happiness of all increases thereby, But on the other hand, if it is in the hands of the wicked, it causes suffering and misery to all. Therefore it is the duty of all to help in the growth of happiness and strength of the righteous persons and diminution of the power of the wicked.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(तविषी) बलयुक्ता सेनां = Powerful army.

(सोमाय) सुखकारकपदार्थभोगाय = For the enjoyment of the articles that cause happiness to all.

(षु-प्रसवैश्वर्ययो:) राध:–धनम्

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

तविषीति बलनाम (निघ० २.६)

= So it means power and powerful army in the context.

(राध:) धनम् राध इति धननाम (निघ० २.१०)

It is strange on the part of Sayanacharya to explain राध: as मन: or mind saying राधोऽत्र मन उच्यते राध्नोति समृद्धोभवत्यनेन i. e. Radhah means here mind as a man becomes rich by it. Even his derivation or explanation is rather awkward as it is not merely by the mind that a man becomes rich or prosperous.

Both Wilson and Griffith follow Sayanacharya indiscriminately and translate राध: as will (Wilson) or spirit (Griffith) which it is quite evident is against the meaning given in the Vedic Lexicon-Nighantu 2.10. Rishi Dayananda's interpretation as धनम् or wealth is in perfect accord with the Vedic Lexicon.

TRANSLATION

O man, thou shouldst discriminate between the Aryas and the dasyus. The Aryas are righteous learned, benevolent absolutely truthful persons who are engaged in dealings full of noble virtues like knowledge etc. Knowing and restraining those who are devoid of the vows of truthfulness etc., compel them to submit to the Aryas or noble persons. Be thou powerful and encourager of the performer of Yajnas or noble philanthropic deeds, because by thy teachings and association, I also desire to perform all these noble acts dwelling in pleasant places. Dasyus are those that cause suffering to others, and are foolish, unrighteous wicked persons. They should either be brought under the control of the righteous noble persons or anihilated if incorrigible.

PURPORT

Men should give up the bad habits of wicked ignoble people and cultivate noble disposition. Those presons only can become Aryas who constantly endeavour to spread knowledge for the accomplishment of good or legitimate enjoyment of all articles and for the removal of un-righteousness and unrighteous persons. None can become a learned, righteous person of noble disposition without the company, study and teaching of the Aryas. Therefore everyone should always perform good deeds, cultivate good habits and give up all ignoble acts and should thus enjoy happiness.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is thus clear that there is no racial difference between 'Aryas and Dasyus as erroneously supposed by many westerners and their followers, but it is only cultural difference which can be changed. That is why there is the Vedic injunction कृण्वन्तो विश्वमार्यम् (ऋ० ९.६३.५) = Make all people Aryas or noble.

Men should appoint such a person for administering the State who is full of abundant wealth of all kinds (spiritual as well as material) who with his brave soldiers and army humbles those persons who are devoid of vows of truthfulness and the like, in favour of those who observe them, who punishes those who are unrighteous, who praises the aged virtuous persons and gives up all unrighteous acts, who convinces those who are sceptics, who like the sun that dispels darkness, spreads the light of knowledge everywhere and slays well the wicked. Such a person is the ornament of his family and by appointing him as the administrator of the State, men should discharge their national duties.

PURPORT

Men should become righteous, dispelling all darkness of ignorance of the people, They should accept Dharma and renounce Adharma (unrighteousness) after proper deliberation and should prompt others also to do the same. Such absurd myths should be rejected altogether. There is no reference to them in the text. TRANSLATION

O noble actioned expert in technical sciences, even the brief instruction that thou hast given to an earnest virtous student who is industrious and whose fingers and hands are engaged in accomplishing various technical and industrial works, the instruction about the analysis and incision of things given by thee who possessest swift horses or electrical instrument) is admirable and worthsaying in all Yajnas or philanthropic acts. Thou shouldst be able to do all these wonderful works of art and industry.

PURPORT

Learned persons should bring about the welfare of all beings by giving instructions about fire, electricity and other scientific and technical subjects.

TRANSLATION

A learned king who is endowed with wisdom and all kinds of wealth, who is possessed of horses, cattle land and good senses, chariots and riches and who desires to give them to deserving persons has been approached by wise men that he may assist the righteous in their distress and on the occasions of industrial undertaking without doubt or with certainty. He is certainly the giver and stable support like a pillar or door way. He should be praised by all. He is the good man's refuge in his need.

PURPORT

As it is with the help of the light of the sun that many works are accomplished, in the same way, with the guidance given by the learned and with the proper combination of fire, water etc. that men can acquire wealth by making various kinds of vehicles and using them.

TRANSLATION

O President of the Assembly, as wise men utter the praise of God who is the showerer of happiness, Self resplendent, Lord of all, whose might is always true, i. e. who is Almighty, in the same way others should also glorify that God. Thus adoring the Lord, all may remain unde thy mighty shelter that destroyes all miseries, with all wise and brave men.

PURPORT

All men should associate themselves with learned persons and enjoy happiness and bliss in this world by adoring God and keeping company with the wise learned people with perfect love.

TRANSLATION

O learned person, honour well that Indra (President of the Assembly or the Commander of the Army) showerer of happiness, under whose order or guidance, hundreds of men cause happiness with the means that eliminate all misery, manufacture cars like the aeroplane which hasten like a fleet couser to the destination, which take to the firmament and are full of much wealth for our protection, so that we may also travel comfortably and enjoy happiness.

PURPORT

As men yoke horses and drive ordinary chariots, in the same way, they should learn to drive various vehicles with the proper combination of fire, water etc. and thus accomplish their works.

=By the processes which eliminate or take off misery.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

(2) By taking Indra as God, as done by Rishi Dayananda in many mantras of this hymn, the spiritual meaning is as follows:

Men should rightly worship God, the Giver of Supreme happiness, the Pure cause of all and under whose direction, hundreds of planets and stars etc. are revolving. I (devotee) remember Him again and again and recite the eulogies of lovely Lord, who is all-pervading, moving everywhere with horse like speed (so to speak) and who is propitiated through complete renouncement of all evil propensities, for our protection and safety.

मेषम्—सर्वमनोरथसाधकम् अथवा सुखसेचकम्

=Fulfiller of all noble desires or showerer of happiness.

Here again both Prof. Wilson and Griffith have committed the mistake of taking मेषम् as ram, though even Sayanacharya, whom they claim to follow has translated the worth मेषम् here as शत्रुभिः सह स्पर्धमानम्=Victor of the enemies.

स्वर्विदम् has been translated by Skanda Swami as सर्वस्य ज्ञातारम् =or Omniscient.

हवनम्–हु दानादनयोः आदाने च हूयते आदीयते सुख-यात्रार्थं स्वीक्रियते इति हवनं पन्थाः सुवृक्तिभिः–सुष्ठु वर्जितदोषाभिः स्तुतिभिः इति स्कन्दस्वामी।

TRANSLATION

O men, officers and subjects of the State, as Indra (sun) slays vritra (cloud) that surrounds the sky and causes rivers to flow by raining, he stands like the mountain firm in the winds which uphold the world and makes waters fall down on earth and waxes mighty, in the same way, you should slay the enemies and endowed with a thousand means of protection, delighting all, grow with nourishing food.

PURPORT

The man, who like the sun, maintains his army properly and like the cloud producing grain by raining, increases the strength of soldiers, standing firm like the mountain, in his joyful state, having slayed his enemies, can develop the State thoroughly.

TRANSLATION

As Indra (the sun) smites down the wide extended cloud that having obstructed the waters, reposes in the region above the firmament and thus its fame as mighty, spreads far, in the same manner, the mighty Indra (President of the Assembly or the Commander of the Army splendid and vigorous like the sun) should smite down a wicked foe lying hidden anywhere on the checks with electric powerful weapons. By so doing, his fame spreads afar and his prowess is renowned.

PURPORT

It is the duty of men to behave like the sun (for dispelling the darkness of ignorance) and like the cloud by raining down happiness and peace and manifest the rain of knowledge and justice.

THE TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

[घृणा] दीप्तिः =Splendour.

[बुध्नम्] शरीरम् इदमपि इतरद् बुध्नम् एतस्मादेव बद्धा अस्मिन् धृताः प्राणा इति निरुक्ते १०.४४ =Body.

[इन्द्र] सवितृवद् वर्तमान =Vigorous or mighty like the sun.

[तन्यतुम्] विद्युतम् =Electricity or lightning.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The Word घृणा is derived from घृ-क्षरणदीप्त्योः Here the first meaning of दीप्ति or splendour is taken. For the meaning of Indra as the sun, there are clear authorities from the Brahmanas like the following quoted before.

स यः स इन्द्र एष एव यः स एष [सूर्यः] एव तपति । [जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्राह्मणे] १.२८.२।१.३२.५ अथ यः स इन्द्रः असौ स आदित्यः [शतपथ ८.५.३.२] एष एवेन्द्रः य एष सूर्यः तपति [शत० १.६.४.१८] इन्द्रः सूर्य इति सायणाचार्योऽपि ताण्ड्यब्राह्मणस्य १४.२.५ भाष्ये ।

The word Indra is used for the President of the Assembly of the Commander of the Army as the mightiest on the authority of the passages like

इन्द्रो वै देवानामोजिष्ठो बलिष्ठः सहिष्ठः सत्तमः पार-

यिष्णुतमः [एतेरेय ब्राह्मणे ७.१६।८.१२] इन्द्रो वै देवानामोजिष्ठो बलिष्ठः [कौषीतकी ब्राह्मणे ६.१४ गोपथ उ० १.३]

According to the Gopath Brahmana Uttara 2.9 सेना इन्द्रस्य पत्नी i.e. the army is the wife of Indra, therefore Indra is the Commander of the Army or सेनापति:

TRANSLATION

As rivulets flow into a lake and increase the volume of its water, in the same way all food materials and wealth glorify thee and increase thy happiness. O President of the Assembly, that art like electricity or the lightning. As the sun increases the strength of a man by the association of his rays, and enables a powerful weapon to be made that can destroy a mighty enemy, thou shouldst be like that.

PURPORT

As the water becomes pure and secure going to a lower level, in the same manner, the workers of the State become firmly established and purifiers of all, having approached a virtuous and humble person.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has translated अन्नाणि as अन्नानि or food materials for which there is the authority of the Vedic Lexicon-Nighantu 2.7 अन्नमिति धननाम (निघ० २.७) It also means wealth. अन्नमिति धननाम (निघ० २.१०)

TRANSLATION

O Indra (Intelligent President of the Assembly) performer of holy acts, as the sun slays the cloud with his rays and sustains the subjects by sending rainy water for mankind, in the same manner, thou shouldst take in thy hands the thunderbolt or powerful weapon of iron for the protection of thy subjects and for bringing about the welfare of the public, thou shouldst manifest the sun of justice like the material sun for all people to see.

PURPORT

As the sun upholds all worlds with his power and attraction draws the water up and having rained it produces divine happiness, in the same manner, the assembly should possess all noble virtues, attract prosperity from all sides and having distributed wealth among the deserving and needy persons, should manifest bliss among the people.

TRANSLATION

O Lord God, over whelming our mental faculties by Thy mighty deeds, mighty by the very nature of Thy Being, Thou art present in and beyond this vast congeries of planets in the expanse of space and away from all misery of the world for the protection and sustenance of all creatures. Surrounding the solar region and the mighty sun as well as the vital forces pervading all regions, Thou makest these creations of Thine, as measure of Thy might for us to infer Thy unfathomable power.

PURPORT

God is perfectly free from all misery, the most exalted Supreme Being who creates all worlds by His power and pervades them. He is the Dispenser of justice giving the fruits of the good or bad actions done by the souls, thus keeping law and order in the Universe. The President of the Assembly or King also should follow Him (God) and give happiness to all.

TRANSLATION

Thou art the measurer of the extended earth, the vast firmament, the master or Lord of lofty heaven and the mighty heroes of this world. Thou hast perfectly filled all the atmosphere and the sky as well as Truth contained in the Vedas by Thy greatness and glory. Truly therefore there is none other like Thee.

PURPORT

We should adore God only knowing that He is the Creator and measurer of this world, Omnipresent Illuminator of Truth and therefore there is none, has never been and will never be like or equal to Him.

TRANSLATION AND PARAPHRASE

O God, Possessing Supreme Might, Thou art the Master of all lower and high pelf. No one can measure the pervasiveness of Thy Being. The sun and other planets, the highest heavens the earth and even the smallest heavenly bodies among them intervening, cannot reach the extremity of Thy Being, for Thou art immanent in and between all things with the completeness of Thy Being. The waters accumulated in the atmospheric region by solar evaporation from where they fall down on the earth as rain and the whole world below, cannot reach the end of Thy Being. Not even the clouds attacking each other like warriors meeting in combat on the field of battle, their thundering and lightning, can reach the end of Thy pervasive Being. Thou solely, without any helper distinct from Thee, only by Thy might, makest the whole universe, being all along pervasive in it. Yet Thou art distinct from the Universe, never assuming its form. Therefore Thou art worthy of Adoration by us.

PURPORT

As none can reach the end of any attribute of God, as God punishes the wicked by giving them suffering or as the sun cuts into pieces the cloud like a fighter, so should all righteous persons be.

(They should be virtuous and just).

O Indra (The President of the Assembly or Commander of the Army) when thou strikest off or destroyest the life of thy foe like a cloud with powerful weapon in all battles following a glorious right policy, all learned priests and others honour thee, for all thy subjects are highly delighted on thy victory over thy wicked adversaries.

PURPORT

Those learned persons ever enjoy happiness who worship one God only, and having acquired knowledge and conquered their enemies, gladden their subjects.

TRANSLATION

O men, as we offer fitting praise or utter noble words sitting in the great place (like the sacrificial hall-Yajna Shala) which causes great delight, for the Almighty God or for the attainment of great wealth of wisdom, peace and bliss, so you should also do. As God does not like to give wealth to those who seem to sleep or are lazy, let us acquire wealth with labour in the light of the sun and sing songs in praise of God, which are pure like the jewels or gold. Praise ill-expressed or flattery is not valued among the munificent who give gold or knowledge.

PURPORT

As sleeping men take rest, in the same way, having ever accepted refined speech with education and culture and having done noble deeds and giving up indolence, men should endeavour to have the light of true praise of all articles.

It is also equally applicable to God who is the giver of everything and Lord of all wealth. He is the Best Friend of all His devotees. He is eternal.

PURPORT

There is none giver of all happiness and requisite articles except a righteous and learned person who becomes pure and benevolent in his nature like God. But only those who are friendly to all and have acquired good education can enjoy this happiness and none else.

(2) It is also applicable to Indra---The President of the Assembly---who is most splendid and rich in mighty deeds and knowledge. He should always try to fulfil the noble desires of righteous and learned people.

PURPORT

A man cannot fulfil his desires without the Grace of God and the association with absolutely truthful learned persons like the President of the Assembly and others. Therefore men should adore God and associate with the learned wise men so that they may be able to accomplish their noble desires.

O Protector of the righteous persons, O Commander of rhe Army, When unimpeded by foes, thou didst destroy the ten thousand (numberless) obstacles to the pious and industrious and learned performer of the Yajnas, having taken shelter in thee those brave happy and righteous persons who prepared many nourishing substances for thee and the mighty heroic deeds done by thee, yielded thee delight in the battles with the wicked enemies. They were also delighted doing noble deeds creating happiness for all people.

PURPORT

All men should enjoy bliss by associating themselves with the righteous noble persons and by adopting all legitimate means for the purpose.

(2) The Mantra is also equally applicable to the Acharya or Preceptor of an educational institution like the Gurukula whose duty it is, to remove all obstacles to the progress of his pupils and make them happy and healthy. It is the duty of the taught to obey their teachers and to delight them with their proper conduct and character.

Thou Indra, with thy friend who makes the foe bow down, cast into far off prison the guileful obstinate, notorious and wicked person, who is full of darkness (of ignorance) like the night. Therefore we accept and formally instal thee as the Commander of the Army or the President of the Assembly.

PURPORT

Men should make many friends, should with their help drive away wicked foes, should destroy the bands and cities of the enemies, should cast into prison all unjust persons and by ruling over very vast righteous Government should attain prosperity.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(इन्द्र) सभा सेनाध्यक्ष = The President of the Assembly (King) or the Commander of the army. The word Indra is used for both for which many authorities have been quoted.

(नभ्या) यथा रात्रिः अन्धकारेण सर्वान् पदार्थान् आवृणोति तथा नभ्या इति रात्रिनाम (निघ० १.७) = Like the night that covers all with darkness.

(नमुचिम्) न विद्यते मुचिर्मोक्षणं यस्य तम्। अत्र इक कृषादिभ्य इति मुचधातोर्भावे इक्। न भ्राण् न पान्न वेदानासत्यानमुचि नकुल नख नपुंसक नक्षत्र नकु नाकेषु प्रकृत्या (अष्टा० ६.३.७५) इति निपातनान्नंजः प्रकृतिभावः = Obstinate deceitful person.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is wrong on the part of Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Griffith and other translators to take the word नमुचि (Namuchi) used in the Mantra as an adjective of मायिनम् Guileful person as a proper noun, as it is against the fundamental principles of the of the Vedic Terminology as pointed out before. Even Sanana-charya though erroneously taking namuchi as "the name of a particular demon rightly gives the etymological meaning as इन्द्रेण सह युद्धं न मुंचतीति नमुचिः=He who does not give up battle with Indra. So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation as given above is quite correct.

TRANSLATION

O Indra (President of the Assembly or King) Thou slayest in battles with thy vigorous army an unrighteous person who attacks the righteous. Thou slayest a thief who takes away other's articles. Protecting the movements and honour shown by a righteous person to his guests, thou demolishest the cities or forts of a wicked fellow who uses poison and teaches others to do so in order to kill good persons and who being utterely selfish does not feed his followers. Thou protectest and preservest the articles which have been made, like one who has trained dogs. Therefore we are certain that thou art fit to be the President of the Assembly or King.

PURPORT

The officers of the State should destroy their enemies and protect the substances and beings in order to honour highly learned, benevolent righteous guests and thus administer the State lawfully and rgihteously. The dogs should be trained properly and utilised for watch as other animals cannot protect their masters like them, they being most faithful.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is wrong on the part of Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Griffith and others to take words like Karanja, Parnaya, Atithigva, and Rijishva as proper nouns denoting the names of certain persons, while as they are derivative nouns denoting certain attributes as explained above by Rishi Dayananda.

Thou alleviatest the sufferings of good men and removest wicked persons. Thou shouldst also keep thyself away from all ignoble couduct.

PURPORT

An emperor should rule over the vast country righteously pleasing all sub-ordinate kings, their servants, house-holders or recluses, protecting all those who approach him for shelter. The numbers 60-60, 1000, 90.9 are to be taken only as उपलक्षण and therefore the officers of the State should duly protect and punish all according to their good or bad deeds.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The numbers used in the Mantra require greater clarification and research should be carried on to see what exactly they mean or stand for. It is again wrong on the part of Sayanacharya and others to take Sushrava-used in the Mantra as the name of a particular person. It is used for a highly learned person possessing Divine knowledge or a very munificent person feeding many deserving persons. Shri Kapali Shastri in his commentary known as Siddhanjana Bhashya explains सुश्रवसम् as शोभनश्रवणसम्पन्नम् =A man possessing Divine knowledge. He also says that षट्नवनवति संख्योदीरणेऽपि रहस्यमुपक्षिप्तम् । षष्टि नवति संख्या विवरणम् आधिरहस्य ज्ञानायत्तम् इह दुरूहम् इति एतावदेवालम् । (सिद्धाञ्जन भाष्ये कपालिशास्त्रिकृते द्वितीयखण्डे पृ० ४६१) i. e. There is a secret behind these numbers, but unfortunately he has not clearly disclosed it. Let the Vedic scholars carry on research about the numbers used here and in many other Mantras. By upalakshana is meant implying something that has not been actually expressed, implication of something in addition or any similar object where only one is mentioned, synecdoche of a part for the whole (V.S.Apte).

TRANSLATION

O Indra (The President of the Assembly or the commander of the army) Thou preservest highly learned man possessing Divine knowledge and liberal, with thy protective power. Thou preservest with Thy aids the man who has under him in chariots many great heroes, destroyers of the strength of the enemies. To the mighty but youthful king shining on account of knowledge, justice and humility, thou givest thunderbolt or powerful weapon, for the protection of such persons who are hospitable to their guests. Such persons protected by thee never suffer.

PURPORT

It is the duty of the officers of the State to drive away all enemies and to keep all happy by protecting them well. They should always have at heart the progress and prosperity of the State. The Acharya or Principal of the educational institution should educate all and should make them well-versed in the use of various weapons, so that they may protect the people.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(तूर्वयाणम्) तूर्वः शत्रुबलहिंसका योद्धारो यानेषु यस्य तम् = He who has brave soldiers in various cars.

(कुत्सम्) वज्रम् कुत्स इति वज्रनाम (निघ० २.२०) = Thunderbolt or powerful weapon.

(आयुम्) य एति प्राप्नोति तम् = A man who approaches.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is wrong on the part of Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Griffith and others to take Sushravas, Toorvayana, Atithigva, and Aya as proper nouns instead of taking them as derivativ words denoting certain attributes as explained by Rishi Dayananda on the basis of the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu etc.

TRANSLATION

O Indra (President of the Assembly) may we the protectors of divine virtues and actions or protected by the enlightened truthful persons be thy most auspicious and prosperous friends, doing benevolent deeds and urging upon others to do the same. Thee do we praise through the hymns being noble and brave and enjoying long and happy life that drives away all misery.

PURPORT

All men should enjoy fully mature life or ripe old age (of atleast a hundred years) being friendly to one another and making all men and women educated, having control over their senses and urging upon others to do the same.

In this hymn the duties of the President of the assembly and the people are mentioned as before, so it has connection with the previous hymn. Here ends the commentary on the fifty-third hymn of the first Mandala of the Rigveda.

TRANSLATION

O Lord, urge us not to commit this sin which destroys us and to the battles as a esult of that sin of jealousy, selfishness etc. None can ever comprehend the limit of Thy strength. Please do not make us wander in the woods like the rivers and make us weep with fear as a result of our sins and ignorance.

Thou who canst create and sustain many worlds, why should not men attain Thee with terror ? Or how is it possible that the earth should not be filled with terror before Thy Almightiness ?

PURPORT

Men should know that God's Power is Infinite and when He is adored sincerely and earnestly, He can make them turn away from the path of unrighteousness which causes suffering and can make them happy. As God is infinite, no one can grasp His end, therefore who is such an unfortunate person who should worship any one else having given up His worship ?

TRANSLATION

Praise respectfully the mighty, wise and powerful justly listening Indra (The President of the Assembly etc.) who like the Sun that is showerer of waters and illuminator of all objects, most powerful, making the earth and heaven shine with his irresistible might, can govern well. Glorify him o man.

PURPORT

Men should approach and take shelter in that President of the Assembly etc. who on account of supremacy in his universal virtues keeps all in the path of righteousness governing all with justice and law.

O learned person, offer exhilirating that praise to great and illustrious like the sun Indra (President of the Assembly etc.) who is un-daunted and who subdues all unrighteous wicked persons and whose knowledge accomplishing all acts is firm. He is giver of good advice, renowned and repeller of enemies, who is obeyed by his trained steeds (who controls and directs them properly) and who is showerer of happiness and peace by his greatness and glory. Under his leadership develop your State in all directions. He is most charming or delightful.

PURPORT

Men should have a State or Kingdom which obeys the commands of the Lord and is therefore dear to Him and which is governed by the President of the Assembly (responsible to the Assembly) and not autocratic,so that there may not be misery, injustice, laziness, ignorance and discord among the people and fear from enemies.

TRANSLATION

O Indra (President of the Assembly) Thou shakest like the sun (or literally makest angry) all deceitful band of enemies that veils happiness of the people like the cloud with thy resolute Power. Thou hurlest with exulting and determined mind the sharp and bright-rayed thunderbolt or other powerful weapons against assembled wicked enemies as the Sun scatters all clouds with his powerful and bright rays. Thou usest thy army for the annihilation of thy enemies as the sun scatters all clouds with his powerful and bright rays. Thou usest thy army for the annihilation of thy enemies, therefore thou deservest rulership.

PURPORT

As God punishes and causes suffering to the wicked according to their sins, in the same manner, the President of the Assembly or King should train his army by giving proper training in arms and weapons and by restraining the wicked, should protect and preserve righteous subjects.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(दिवः) प्रकाशमयात् न्यायात् =From shining justice.

(शम्बरम्) शं सुखं वृणोति येन तं भूमेघमिव शत्रुम्

An enemy like the cloud veiling the happiness of the people.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is wrong on the part of Sayanacharya to take the word शम्बर (Shambara) used in the Mantra as एतत् संज्ञम् असुरम् or the name of a particular demon, as it is not only against the fundamental principle of the Vedic terminology as pointed out before, but clearly against the Vedic lexicon Nighantu which clearly says in 1.10 शम्बर इति मेघनाम (निघ० १.१०) i. e. Shambara means cloud. Here an enemy veiling the happiness and peace of the people like the cloud is meant as explained by Rishi Dayananda. Prof. Wilson, Griffith and others have committed the same mistake by indiscreetly following Sayanacharya.

=Slaying the wicked or removing evils.

(वय्यम्) यो वयते जानाति तम्

=A highly learned person who knows much.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is wrong on the part of Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Griffith and others to take Narya, Truvasha, Yadu, Turveeti and Vayya as proper nouns or names of certain persons, as it is against the fundamental principles of the Vedic Terminology as pointed out before. All these are derivative words denoting certain attributes as pointed out by Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati on the authority of the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu and Panini's Dhatu Patha तुर्वशम् has been explained by him as उत्तमं मनुष्यं or a good man तुर्वशाइति मनुष्यनाम (निघ० २.३) यदव इति मनुष्यनाम (निघ० २.३) As the word is derived from यती-प्रयत्ने it means an industrious person. The word तुर्वीति is derived from तुर्वी-हिंसायाम् Rishi Dayananda has rightly explained it as दुष्टान् प्राणिनो दोषांश्चहिंसन्तम् where as Sayanacharya has simply stated तुर्वीतिम्-एतन्नामानं राजानम् वय्यम् is derived from वय-गतौ therefore it has been rightly explained by the Rishi as यो वयते-जानाति तम् गतेस्त्रयोर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च So the first meaning of the verb ज्ञान or knowledge has been taken here. Sayanacharya wrongly says वय्य कुलजम् or born in the family of Vayya. Wilson and Griffith also follow him.

Even Griffith though generally following Sayanacharya and explaining the word Narya as some chief or Rishi so named, adds in his foot note — or the word may be an adjective-manly. So it is all a guess work with no definite knowledge or certainty of any kind.

Here it is worthwhile to quote the remarks of the great S. Indian Scholar and Yogi Kapali Shastri ji about Narya, Turveeti, and other words. He remarks:

अथ नर्यादयो व्याख्यातव्याः । नर्यः-नराणां हितः । तुर्वशतुर्वीतिशब्दौ तूर्वयाणवत् जयशीलताद्योतकौ । वय्यः-सातस्य यजनस्य अंगभूत तन्तुसन्तानकुशलः । रथः-रंहणशीलः । एतशः एतेर्गच्छत्यर्थात् तशन् प्रत्ययः । कपालिशास्त्रिकृते ऋग्वेद सिद्धाञ्जनभाष्ये द्वितीयखण्डे पृ० ४६६ ।

These remarks certainly support the standpoint of Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati as explained above. Like Rishi Dayananda Kapali Shastri ji also takes these words as derivative nouns denoting certain attributes.

TRANSLATION

That eminent person (President of the council of Ministers) is able to administer a State who gives desirable articles to the needy, is the protector of the righteous people, who shines on account of justice knowledge and other virtues, and who acts justly towards the subjects and pervades them (so to speak) knowing them thoroughly. He spreads knowledge and develops the State-make it grow from strength to strength. Being liberal with his wealth, he gives the teachings of the Vedic Mantras and other noble utterances, to the people. As the cloud born from the sky rains down, in the same manner, rains such happiness on the people. Only such a person can rule over the State well.

PURPORT

None can administer a State, conquer enemies and get happiness without good knowledge, humility, justice and strong army consisting of brave persons. Therefore the President of the Council of Ministers must do all this.

members of your Assembly and servants of the State.

PURPORT

The Officers of the State should not oppose or go against the legitimate interests of the subjects and the subjects should not revolt against the officers of the State. But they should mutually love and do good to one another and thus should multiply happiness in the State. Without doing this, the law and order in the State cannot be firm and secure.

O Indra (President of the Council of Ministers) thou shouldst be like the sun who dispels all darkness that stands within the belly of the watery clouds and having dispelled it makes fall down the beautiful cloud, so that streams begin to flow downwards benefiting the earth.

PURPORT

As the air upholds the water that the Sun draws out and takes to the firmament, when together this assumes the form of a mountain and covers the light of the sun, the lightening falls it down on earth. From that, rivers and streams of various forms flow down, sometimes cutting the pieces of the land, mountain and trees etc. Then that water goes to the sea or the firmament and rains again and again, so should the king and other officers of the State. TRANSLATION

Though even this heaven's wide space and earth have spread them neither heaven nor earth may be in greatness or amplitude Indra's (God's) match. As the solar world has spread out and earth can never be compared with it in bulk,as the mighty bull is among the herd of cows and the sun is towards the earth by his rays, so the man who is fierce to the wicked but dear to the righteous persons on account of humility and who protects the subjects, he alone should be respected by all and none else.

PURPORT

As the solar is the greatest among the worlds, as the bull is mighty among the herd of cows, in the same manner, a man most exalted on account of his virtues should be made the President of the Assembly or the Council of Ministers etc. And he being righteous himself should be terrifier of the wicked and giver of happiness to the righteous.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

That man is to be accepted by all men for honour and kingship, who is mighty like the sun, who is like the watery ocean that receives the rivers spread out in all sides. Like the ocean receiving the rivers from all sides, the king receives his subjects of various kinds from all sides. He acts like the mighty bull, to drink the Soma Juice prepared from various nourishing herbs by good physicians. Being a powerful warrior, he is for ever praised for his might.

PURPORT

As the ocean keeps in itself many jewels and many rivers by its greatness or vastness, in the same manner, the President of the Assembly or the Council of ministers should accept various articles and armies, defeat the wicked and protect the noble persons and thus extend his glory.

TRANSLATION

O Indra (President of the Assembly) Thou who shinest on account of the virtuous,art benevolent like the Purohita(Priest), rulest over those who are possessers of great wealth; as the sun or the lightning strikes the cloud; in the same manner, thou strikest down the enemy by thy might for the protection of thy subjects, thou art known by us to surpass all others in strength in discharging thy duties, therefore we want thee to be our ruler.

PURPORT

Those persons are benevolent to all who earn industriously and enjoy wealth, associated with the President of the Assembly having acquired knowledge, intelligence, humility righteousness and brave army, are fierce to the wicked but full of forgiveness and mild to the righteous.

TRANSLATION

That teacher or preacher only is glorified or praised by his humble pupils or hearers who in forest (solitary place) desiring that all should get good knowledge proclaims his beautiful vigour amongst men giving them good mind full of knowledge and wisdom. He endowed with the admirable wealth of wisdom, showerer of true precept, powerful and free, utters words that are full of wisdom and education. He is the granter of their noble desires.

PURPORT

A highly learned scholar should make all people full of knowledge free and safe by giving them instructions in various sciences, so that they may ever enjoy happiness being free from all doubts.

TRANSLATION

People have faith in and reverence for the divinely resplendent Indra (True teacher or preacher full of the great wealth of wisdom and knowledge) when he as a wariver of Truth engages himself in many great conflicts with ignorance and injustice being over-thrower of the family of ignorance or nescience by his over whelming soul force and the power of knowledge. He uses his sermon as a powerful weapon to cut into pieces ignorance of various kinds.

PURPORT

As the sun gives delight to all with his rays, demolishing the cloud and making it rain down, in the same way, it is the duty of the teacher and the preacher to remove or set aside all superstition and to make all people happy by giving the light of knowledge and justice.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O drinker of the Soma juice (the juice of the nourshing herbs) O hearer of our praises, let thy mind be always inclined to give thy knowledge to deserving persons. Let thy steeds be under thy control. As thy charioteers are skilful in restraining horses, in the same way, restrain all from going astray from the path of righteousness, give good knowledge or instructions to all. Let not crafty enemies bearing arms prevail against thee. Let them be under thy control.

PURPORT

As good charioteers train horses and keep them under their control, in the same manner, the teachers and preachers by their knowledge and sermons keep all established or firm in the observance of true conduct. None can make men righteous without their assistance.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(दानाय) सुपात्रेभ्यो विद्यादिदानाय

=For giving knowledge to deserving persons.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

केता is from कित-ज्ञाने दभ्नुवन्ति is from दभ्नोतिवधकर्मा (निघ० २.२१)

In the above three Mantras, Indra stands mostly for teachers and preachers endowed with the great wealth of knowledge and wisdom as Rishi Dayananda has rightly stated taking into consideration the context denoted by the expressions like स इद् वने नमस्युभिर्वचस्यते-केताः दानाय मनः कृणुष्व etc. Even Griffith, though not properly understanding the meaning of the above Mantras and taking them to refer to Indra a particular God in his eyes, says in his foot-note in the fourth Mantra.

स इद् वने नमस्युभिर्वचस्यते वने

"In the wood, in the first line of the first verse seems to be an allusion to the forest life of Brahmans."

O Indra (teacher or preacher) you who are renowned hold un-exhausted wealth of knowledge, and irresistible strength in your body like Amalaka or Ambelic Myrablan fruit in ones' hands. I also bear in me your much intelligence as industrious persons covered with happiness and protected by you from all sides do.

PURPORT

As cultured learned men possess in-exhaustible knowledge, strength wealth and good actions, in the same manner, other people also should try to do.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

He (teacher or preacher) becomes respectable everywhere who marries a learned lady being virile like a horse and sustainer of all, who fills the ears of all with his true sermons and enables them to get golden and splendid chariots drawn by horses and carrying men makes them mighty to protect the subjects.

PURPORT

A preacher should marry a learned lady like himself. As he preaches among men and teaches the boys, his wife should preach among women and should teach girls. By so doing ignorance and fear cannot remain any where.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अत्यः) अश्वः अत्य इत्यश्वनाम (निघ० १.१४) = Horse.

TRANSLATION

O girl, as rivers go to the sea and as intelligent industrious Brahamcharies giving happiness and highly intelligent Brahamacharis after Samavanrtana (completion of education in the Gurukula) marry one another, you should marry a husband who has received education from a highly learned and expert experienced person and acquire also strength with splendour.

PURPORT

All boys and girls should study all sciences with the observance of Brahmacharya (continence) and after the attainment of full youth, they should enter into wedlock, having known and tested one another's merits, actions and temperaments and after the development of mutual love. If they are highly learned, they should teach boys and girls, otherwise, they should discharge the duties of the Kshatriyas, Vaishayas or Shudras — to which ever Varna (class-not caste by birth) they belong according to their merits, actions and temperament.

=Of a highly learned person.

(वेनाः) मेधाविनः वेन इति मेधाविनाम
=Highly intelligent persons.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is worth while to quote the following foot-note given by Griffith after translating the 2nd Mantra. as

"To him the guidance-following songs of praise flow full, as those who seek gain go in company to the flood.

To him the Lord of power, the holy synod's might, as to a hill, with speed ascend the loving ones."

Griffith's Foot-Note

"I find the stanza un-intelligible; and the version (based chiefly on Grassman's) which I offer is merely a temporary makeshift." (The hymns of the Rigveda Translated by Griffith Vol. I. P. 78 Chowkhamba Edition).

While we admire the frankness of Mr. Griffith in admitting his inability to understand the real import of the Mantra and giving only a misleading conjectural meaning (as is very often the case of many Europeon Scholars) there is nothing un-intelligible in Rishi Dayananda's interpretation as translated above

The same subject is continued:

Mantra—3

TRANSLATION

O girl desiring a suitable husband, you should marry for pleasant houschold life in youth a person who is quick in action and mighty, whose faultless and destructive power shines in manly conflicts like the peak of a mountain, who is endowed with strength along with knowledge and who possessing power that casts aside all misery, gladdens and adorns all. Let such a virtuous person bind you in marriage tie.

PURPORT

That marriage is the best where the bride and the bridegroom are of suitable beauty and temperament, but the power and the age of the bridegroom should be equal to one and half of the bride.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अरेणु) अहिंसनीयम् = Inviolable.

(शुष्णम्) बलवन्तम् = Powerful or strong.

(आयसः) विज्ञानात् = From knowledge.

(दुध्रः) बलेन पूर्णः = Endowed with strength.

(दामनि) यः सुखानि ददाति तस्मिन् गृहाश्रमे

= in the household life that gives delight.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

रेणु is derived from री-गतिरेषणयोः Here the second meaning of violence has been taken.

शुष्णम् इति बलनाम (निघ० २.९)
श्रय-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः—ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च

Here the first meaning of knowledge has been taken by the Rishi.

TRANSLATION

O women, when a person who can distinguish between the noble and ignoble with resolute vigour dispels all misery like the sun attending the Dawn dispelling all gloom with his power and when O man, a lady endowed with divine virtues and strength and who augments your faculties approaches you who possesses knowledge and other attributes and are giver of great delight, for protection, you should always deal with each other for mutual happiness.

PURPORT

When a husband loves his wife and the wife loves the husband, it is only then that domestic happiness follows.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(रेणुम्) विद्यादिशुभ प्राप्तम्

=Endowed with knowledge and other virtues.

TRANSLATION

As the solar world controls by its life-sustaining undecaying and upholding power, light or attraction in all directions the earth and other worlds, establishes them in the space and strikes down the cloud in the firmament and thus gives delight to all by raining down waters, in the same manner, O Indra (President of the Assembly or the commander of the Army) you should also uphold Swarajya (self-Government) and justice and staying your enemies, enjoy happiness and bliss with your wife.

PURPORT

As the solar world by its light, attraction and other attributes, makes all worlds rotate in their axis and drawing the sap by its splendour in all directions causes rain and thus sustains all people, in the same manner, husband and wife should behave.

(They should be source of happiness to all by their good character and conduct).

TRANSLATION

O Indra (President of the Assembly-the Source of great prosperity of the State) as the sun sustains all earth and heaven by his power, you being venerable should also sustain all your subjects like that. As the lightning causes the cloud to rain down waters on earth by striking it, in the same way, growing in power and delight by the use of the Soma the juice of nourishing substances and herbs etc. should crush all your enemies at proper time and thus should cause happiness to all.

PURPORT

As learned persons manifest justice like the sun and protect the people by casting aside or crushing all enemies, so we should also do.

In this hymn, there is the mention of the attributes of the sun, lightning and President of the Assembly etc. so it has connection with the previous hymn.

TRANSLATION

To Indra (President of the Assembly) who is most liberal, the excellent, the lord of lofty wealth, verily powerful and strong I offer special praises, whose irresistible impetuousity is like the rush of waters down aslope, and by whom widely diffused wealth is laid open to his subjects to sustain their strength.

PURPORT

As the water becomes clean and steady going from higher place to the tank below, in the same way, wealth becomes inexhaustible and secure (steady) in the hands of an humble righteous mighty and industrious person, who having acquired the royal prosperity, gives it for the welfare of all, for the development of knowledge and for the growth of physical and spiritual power. We should enthrone only such a liberal hero for the Presidentship or the Assembly, Educational Institutes and Army.

TRANSLATION

We should take shelter in such an Indra (President of the Assembly or the Council of Ministers) whose resplendent fatal thunderbolt smites down even a powerful enemy. As the waters flow to a depth, so all persons bow down before such a mighty leader who possesses all desirable virtues and objects, for the fulfilment of their noble desires. As the resplendent thunderbolt of the sun in the form of his rays slays all the clouds, so the powerful weapon of the President of the Assembly or the Commander of the Army may smash even mighty foes.

PURPORT

As the lions and other wild beasts in the mountain and waters in the cloud become safe and secure, so the subjects become firmly established in happiness and bliss by resorting to the President of the Assembly etc.

TRANSLATION

O man, come with due respect to the formidable, praise-deserving Indra (Commander of the Army) who is terrible for the wicked and whose splendour giving the happiness of knowledge is for renown and acquisition of food and who like the Dawn dispels all darkness of ignorance and injustice and awakens light which illuminates justice and humility for gaining knowledge in all directions in non-violent Dharma (righteous acts) and Yajna.

PURPORT

Men should appoint a very admirable virtuous person who sets aside all injusticeas the morning dispels all darkness, incharge of the battles as the Commander of the Army. They should appoint a person who adorns all with education, wisdom, army, humility and the observance of justice and who gladdens all by providing wealth and food etc. as President of the Assembly.

All these objects are established in Thee like the permanent rays of light in the sun. All enlightened persons relying upon Thee, uphold the subjects.

PURPORT

Men should know that as in the light of the Sun, all works are well-accomplished, in the same way, all acts are accomplished well when God is earnestly and sincerely worshipped. Those who thus adore the Lord in right earnest, never lose happiness and wealth. They never feel misery and poverty.

TRANSLATION

As a virtuous respectable mother loves her child, as a dexterous father loving his son makes proper use of the heaven and the earth and a man of charitable and devout disposition loves God or the worthy President of the Assembly and as learned persons lay the grand and eternal Vedic teachings before a true worshipper of God who is the best among the leaders of men and who possesses genuine strength (or whose power is truth), in the same manner, you should also properly deal with him.

PURPORT

As the earth and the light of the sun make all happy by upholding them, as the parents or teachers always try to bring about the welfare of their children or pupils, as God is always engaged in doing good to His subjects, in the same way, the President of the Assembly should endevaour to do good to all is what the Vedas teach.

=May give us great knowledge again and again.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is wrong on the part of Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Griffith and many other translators to interpret गोतमासः as Born of the race of Gotama (Wilson) Descendants of Gotama, men of the family to which the Rishi of the hymn belongs (Griffith).

"गोतमासः--गोतमगोत्रोत्पन्ना वयम् । नोधसः--स्तोतुः एकत्वेऽपि आत्मनिपूजार्थंबहुवचनम्" (सा०)

How ridiculous is Sayanacharyas' remark quoted above that though the Rishi Nodha is one, to show respect and honour to himself he has used the plural. It is simply absurd. To take गोतमास: and such other words as proper nouns is opposed to the principles of the Vedic terminolgy mentioned in the Meemansa Sootras like आख्या प्रवचनात् परन्तु श्रुतिसामान्यमात्रम (मीमांसा १.३१.३३) On the part of Sayanacharya and other Indian commentators, it is certainly going against their accepted principle of the eternity of the Vedas.

In this hymn, the attributes of learned men are mentioned by the illustration of Agni(fire) to be used in vehicles, so it has connection with the previous hymn. Here ends the commentary on the 60th hymn of the first Mandala of the Rigveda.

He alone deserves to be the commander of an army who appoints deserving persons on all posts and pervading in or being well-versed in all sciences and possessing wealth, quickly quaffs the soma and well-cooked good food, who destroys his enemies as the sun pierces the vast cloud mountain-like with his rays, making it to fall down, being endowed with the power of endurance and hurling the thunderbolt or powerful weapons.

PURPORT

As the sun gets victory over the cloud destroying it with his rays and preserving food materials, water and sap etc. in the same manner, brave persons under the commander of an army should be victorious over their foes.

FOREWORD

It gives me great pleasure in presenting to the general public especially to the lovers and admirers of the Vedic lore, the 2nd Volume of the English Version of Maharshi Dayananda Sarasvati's commentary on the Rigveda.

Our thanks are due to Shri Swami Dharmanandaji (Pt. Dharm Deva Vidya Vachaspati, Vidya Martanda), a noted Vedic Scholar who has very ably translated the commentry with valid supporting comments.

As the readers are aware, the Sarvadeshik Arya Pratinidhi Sabha (Inter-National Aryan League) had, on the occasion of Arya Samaj Foudaition Centenary '1975' undertaken the publication of Hindi and English commentaries of the four Vedas alongwith that of outstanding old and new literature of Arya Samaj. It is worth mentioning that a number of books and commentaries in Hindi have since been brought out and are in circulation. The publication of English Commentaries is in progress and I hope and trust that it will be completed ere long.

Though the project is expensive and tiresome, yet the Sabha is determined to bring it to a sucessful culmination counting on the active co-operation of the general public especially of those who are interested in the study and propagation of the Vedas and Vedic lore.

The Sabha thanks Shrimati Mohini Devi wife of Shri Jayadevji Arya Bombay for the liberal donation of Rs. 2500.00 for the publication of this Volume.

INTRODUCTION

Translator's note on the number of the mantras of the Rigveda.

The following translator's note was written for the preface to the first volume of Maharishi Dayananda Sarasvati's commentary rendered by me in English with necessary explanatory and comparative notes. Unfortunately that note was not published in the first volume owing to over-sight. Therefore it is being reproduced here for the information of those who have pointed out to the translator and the publisher some mistake in the calculation of the total number of the hymns and mantras of the Rigveda Sanhita. Of course, we do not at all agree with those scholars who consider the Balakhilya hymns in the eighth Manadala as interpolated and have therefore cut down the total by 80. We have dealt with the subject of the Balakhilya hymns in our वेदों का यथार्थ स्वरूप the second edition of which has been published by Dayananda Sansthan-1597, Hardhyan Singh Road, Karol Bag, New Delhi–5, priced at Rs. 15/- Those who desire to know about the matter, should study the book.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTE

Due to overright, there seems to be some mistake in calculating the total number of the hymns and Mantras of the Rigveda as pointed in the Vedic Press Edition. The total number of the hymns of the Rigveda as printed in Sanskrit Commentary is 1018 but in Hindi Translation it is correctly given as 1028 The total number of the Mantras of all Mandalas as given in the Vedic Press Edition is 1976+429+617+589+727+765+841+1726+1097+1754=10589. In the total of the Mantras of the 8th Mandala, there is slight mistake in calculation as the number of the Mantras of the 20th hymn is put there as 36 instead of 26. So the actual number of the Mantras of the 8th Mandala is 1716 instead of 1726 as printed there. The total number of the Mantras of the 9th Mandala is 1108 as by oversight the calculation of 11 is left. Thus the total comes to 10522. There are 140 Naimittik Dvipadas नैमित्तिकद्विपदा in the Rig-veda. In the first Mandala from 65 to 70 hymns there are 60 dvipadas which have been calculated as 30, the rest as 80. Thus the total comes to 10552 if in both places, the calcula-tion is of the same type. The total number as given in the printed Vedic Press Edition is 10589 which appears to be due to oversight or slip of pen instead of 10552. After all, the total number does not matter much.

AN ENGLISH LADY'S REMARKABLE BOOK ON THE RIGVEDA WITH MY LETTER TO THE AUTHOR

Miss. J. Miller rebuts wrong theories of Prof. Maxmuller Keith, Winternize and others.

In the first volume of the English Translation of the commentary of Maharshi Dayananda with notes, I wrote the following lines regarding Prof. Maxmuller.

"Regarding Prof. Maxmuller who was considered to be the most prominent orientalist of his day, it will not be out of place to show from the letters written by him to the Duke of Orgoil and his wife, that he had rather an ulterior motive in translating the Vedas and writing other books on them.

In a letter addressed to Duke of Orgoil, then the Secre-taty of State for India, Prof. Maxmuller wrote on 16th Dec. 1868 'The ancient religion of India is doomed and if Christianity does not step in, whose fault will it be ?'. In a letter addressed to his wife in 1868. Prof. Maxmuller wrote :

'I hope, I shall finish that work (Editing and trans-lating the Rigveda). and I feel convinced that though I shall not live to see it, yet this edition of mine (of the Rig-veda) and the translation of the Vedas will hereafter tell to a great extent on the fate of India and on the growth of millions of souls in that country.

"It (Veda) is the root of their religion and to show them what the root is, I feel sure, the only way of uprooting all that has been sprung from it during the last three thousand years". So it is just with the motive of uprooting the Vedas, that Prof. Maxmuller though a staunch Christian, undertook the stupendous task of editing and translating the Vedas.

The same is the case with Macdonel, Keith and many other Western scholars who were the occupants of the chair of Oriental Studies at the Oxford University under Boden Trust whose chief object was as follows as given by Monier Williams in the Introduction to his well-known Sanskrit English Dictionary.

"That the special object of his (Boden's) munificent bequest was to promote the translation of the Scriptures into Sanskrit. so as to enable his country-men to proceed in the conversion of the natives of India to the Christian religion."

Is it surprising then when we find Monier Williams writing in 'Modern India and the Indians' that "When the walls of the mighty fotress of Brahmanism are encircled, undermined and finally stormed by the soldiers of the cross, the victory of Christianity must be signal and complete". (Monier Williams in "Modern India and the Indians, P. 247).

Shri Aurobindo a scholar, philosopher and thinker of world wide reputation was therefore right when in his essay on 'Dayananda and the Veda' he remarked with regard to the interpretation put by Prof. Maxmuller and his followers.

"If there ever was a toil of interpretation in which the loosest rein has been given to an ingenuous speculation, in which doubtful indications have been snatched at as certain proofs, in which the boldest conclusions, have been insisted upon with the scantiest justification, the most enormous difficulties ignored and preconceived prejudice maintained in face of the clear and often admitted suggestions of the text, it is surely this labour so evidently respectable otherwise for its industry, goodwill and power of research, performed thorugh a long century by Europeon Vedic Scholarship". (Bankim, Tilak and Dayananda by Shri Aurobindo, p. 52).

Such being the case with the majority of the western scholars, it is gratifying to find that there are some among them now who are trying to grasp the real spirit of the Vedas impartially though they have not as yet succeded in understanding them quite correctly, as my letter to Miss Janine Miller the author of a remarkable book on "The Vedas. Harmony Meditation and Fulfilment" shows.

Miss. Miller has shown very great regard for the Vedas. The introduction of the above book begins with the following paragraph.

"The Rigveda is extremely rich in lore of every kind: Social, psychological, religious, philosophical, anthropological, mythical, even rudimentary astronomy has been claimed to be found in its verses. It is a relic preserved for us out of pre-history of the human mind, a mind that reveals itself as by no means undeveloped in its struggle to understand itself and its environment

In so far as Indian civilisation, is concerned the Vedas are nothing less to quote Bankim than "the basis of our entire religious and social organisation." What the roots are to the tree, the Vedas are to our present elaborate religious system and to our present complex organisation They form the foundation of the whole Indian social structure."—Introduction. p. XIX

Criticising the approach to the Vedas of some western Scholars, Miss Miller writes :—

'The early Western scholars were necessarily concerned with philology, the analysis of words and grammatical structures. But they marred their conclusion by their attempts at proving the then prevalent contention of primitive mentality as typical of prehistoric religion, contentions which are disproved by the Rigveda itself, or indeed by any ancient religion. Fortunately, such an unfounded attitude is being superseded through further investigations, although not so completely as to eradicate the false notions thus introduced into the Vedic exegesis: wrong statements based upon early ignorant and prejudiced ideas are still commonly found in the more popular type of survey of early Indian religious culture and history." (Intoduction–p. XXII).

Strongly criticizing and rebutting the views of A B.Keith regarding the Rigvedic language, Miss Millar says:—

'A. B. Keith's very summary and disdainful judgment of Rigvedic language is certainly unfounded and not countenanced by any of the great Hindu scholars. It reveals a complete lack of appreciation of basic Vedic Sanskrit qualities:—

"The poets never attain any very great command of their material whether in language or metre. So the end structure of the sentences remains naive and simple, and when the poet seeks to compass more elaborate thought, his power of expression fails, seriously fails him."—

After quoting these passages, Miss Miller observes:— 'Keith apparently fails to realise that a highly inflected language such as Sanskrit will necessarily seem simple and somewhat stiff by comparison with such a non-inflected and always flexible language as English. This gives inflected languages, and Sanskrit in particular, compactness; vigour as well as power." (P. XXIV).

. . . When we enter the Rigvedic field, we enter into a world of sun light both in its thought and its expression. Directness and sincerity are two outstanding qualities which give the whole collection a freshness which later literature lost to a great extent." (Introduction P. XXV)

It is interesting to find Miss Miller boldly refuting the wrong ideas of prof. Max Muller about the Vedic civilisation that 'the Rigveda; as we see it, is thus not the work of primitive tribes, or the first bubblings of infant humanity as described by Max Muller, but the complete song of a highly elaborate civilisation of long standing establishment . . . The sceptic will declare as indeed nineteenth century exegesis tried to prove that Vedic man was not capable of conceiving complicated doctrines. The Rigveda demonstrates the opposite. Vedic thought, especially with regard to meditation reveals an unexampled depth of insight into the intricacies of the human mind, the background philosophy of which was the root of all subsequent speculations." (P. XXXIV).

Quoting some passages from the works of winternitz and Max Muller, Miss Miller refutes their ideas regarping Vedic Prayer saying "We can no more agree with M. Winternitz or Max Muller's views concerning Vedic prayer. M. Winternitz claims:—

"There is nowhere (in the Vedas) any thought of devetion or exaltation to the divine, but the word (brahman) always means mere formulae and verses containing secret magic power, by which man desires to influence divine beings or to obtain, or even to force something from them."

Max Muller declares :

"Though the idea of prayer or swelling or exalted thought may be true with us. there is little, if any trace of such thoughts in the Vedas. Most of the prayers there are very matter of fact petitions and all that has been said of the swelling of the heart, the elevation of the mind, the fervid impulse of the will, as expressed by the word Brahman, seems to me decidedly modern and without any analogies in the Veda itself."

Giving references of Rv. 6-16-47 हृविहृ'दा तष्टम् 1-171-2 हृदा तष्टोमनसा What of the prayers for their and harmony among men (Rig 10-19) what of the poet longing to come into touch with the wise in understanding (Rig. 3-38-1).

These and many other examples are surely expressions of the devotion of the heart. indeed formulated in a simple even matter of fact way because of that perfect sincerity which characterises the Rigveda and is touching in its humanity. (P. 121)

Thus we find that The Vedas-Harmony, meditation and fulfilment, by janine Miller is a remarkable book, though the author has not been able to grasp the Vedic Conception of God thoroughly as pointed out in my letter to her dated 23-8-1976.

I reproduce important extracts from my letter for the benefit of the readers of this volume.

Dear Sister, Namaste,

As I wrote to you in my previous letter, on the whole, I highly appreciate your book on the Vedas "Harmony, Meditation and fulfilment" in which you have boldly and fearlessly criticised the stand point of some perjudiced western scholars including prof. Max Muller wilson, Griffith, Keith, winternitz and others. But on some points. I do not see eye to eye with you and would like you to study these subjects more deeply. Leaving aside minor points, I take up the question whether there is pure monotheism or monism in the Vedas, as stated by you in your letter. Much depends upon the definition of monotheism and monism. I give below the definitions of these words from some important dictionaries:

MONOTHEISM : "Doctrine that there is only one God contrasted with Polytheism." (The Advanced Learners' Dictionary by A. S. Hornby and H. Wakefield. P 633)

Monotheism—"Doctrine that there is only one God" (Oxford English Dictionary P. 767.)

Monotheism—एकेश्वरवाद Technical English, Hindi Dictionary by P. Bulcke S. J. P. 270.

Monism—Doctrine that only one Being exists-any of the theories that deny the duality of matter and mind. (Oxford English Dictionary P. 765).

Monism—अद्वैत, अद्वैतवाद, वेदान्त (All India Radio Lexicon P. 235)

Monism—अद्वैत, अद्वैतवाद (Technical English Hindi Dictionary by Bulcke S. J. P. 267.)

Monism—Forms of doctrine maintaining that there is only one kind of Being. (Little Oxford Dictionary) P. 317.
Monism—The philosophical doctrine which seeks to explain varied phenomena by a single principle.

(New National Dictionary-P. 324).

Taking these definitions of monotheism and monism, I am quite sure that the Vedas strongly uphold monotheism of the purest type (Not of course of the Jewish, Christian or Muslim type which is anthromorphic.)

They teach us clearly that God is one. He is omnipresent. Omnipotent and Omniscient Creator, Sustainer and Dissolver of the world and He is the Lord of the eternal souls and Matter which are separate or distinct from Him in nature and attributes. That One God alone should be worshipped by all through meditation, prayer and communion. The mantras like the following which can be quoted in their hundreds clearly show that according to the Vedas, there are three eternals ब्रह्म (God) जीव (Souls) and प्रकृति (Matter), But God being the Lord of all should be adored:

ओ३म् क्रतोस्मर, क्लिबेस्मर, कृतंस्मर (Yaj. G. 16)

O active soul, remember God whose Best name is Om. Remember Him for getting strength. Remember your actions

न तं विदाथ य इमा जजानान्यद् युष्माकमन्तरं बभूव ।
नीहारेण प्रावृता जल्प्या चासुतृप उक्थशासश्चरन्ति ॥

Rig. 10.82.7 Yaj. 17.31

O men, you do not know Him who has created all these things of the world, who is within you, but different from you.

This clearly points out the difference between God the Omniscient who knows all and the souls which possess limited knowledge and also the world created by Him. It is clear negation or refutation of monism.

इन्द्र क्रतुं न आभर पिता पुत्रेभ्यो यथा ।
शिक्षाणो अस्मिन् पुरुहूत यामनि जीवा ज्योतिरशीमहि ॥

(Rig. 7.23.26 Saua 259 Athrva 20.79.1)

O God, enlighten us as a father enlightens his children. Teach and guide us in this world, so that we (souls) may enjoy the light of wisdom.

इमे त इन्द्र ते वयं पुरुष्टुत ये त्वारभ्य चरामसि प्रभूवसो ।

(Sama 373)

O God, glorified by all sages, we are Thine. We are Thine and therefore we commence all good works after uttering Thy Holy names.

This is pure monotheism and not monism.

वेदाहमेतं पुरुषं महान्तमादित्यवर्णं तमसः परस्तात् ।
तमेव विदित्वाऽतिमृत्युमेति नान्यः पन्था विद्यतेऽयनाय ॥

I (soul) know this Supreme All-pervading Resplendent God. It is only by knowing Him that we (souls) can cross over the Ocean of death. There is no other way for the attainment of emancipation.

The difference between God and souls is thus pointed out in the most un-mistakable terms.

द्वा सुपर्णा सयुजा सखाया समानं वृक्षं परिषस्वजाते ।
तयोरन्यः पिप्पलं स्वाद्वत्त्यनश्नन्नन्यो अभि चाकशीति ॥

(Rig. 1.164.20)

i. e. there are two birds (God and soul) sitting on an eternal tree (matter), of the two one (soul) enjoys the fruit of its good and bad deeds, while the other witnesses all and does not suffer, being perfect.

Even in the Nasadeeya Sukta (Rig 10.139) which you have translated in your book on pages 219 and 220. there is clear reference to three entities ब्रह्म or God. आनीदवातं स्वधया तदेकम् (Mantra 2) souls) रेतोधा आसन् महिमान आसन् i. e. there were souls the enjoyers of the fruits of their actions कर्मफलस्य भोक्तारो जीवा: as admitted by all commentators and तम: or स्वधा as Matter (Mantra 3 & 6) स्वधा अवस्तात् प्रयति: परस्तात् i. e. of the matter and souls-the soul is superior to the matter on acccunt of consciousness.

Let me point out that your translation of तस्माद्ध नान्यत् पर: किंचनास (Mantra 2) as "other than that was naught" is wrong. It may only mean that there was nothing else superior to God or "beyond that," as also translated by you,

Here the word is परस् which means Greater or Superior. It does not deny the existence of souls and matter as wrongly interpreted by monists.

Please think over these metters dispassionately and I am sure, you will come to the conclusion that the Vedas teach pure monotheism and not monism.

with best wishes and blessings.

Yours sincerely,

Dharmananda Saraswati

A noted German Physicist

on the

VEDAS

It is gratifying to find that some great German scientists are taking interest in the study of the Vedas impartially and have expressed great regard for them as the "Inspirations of the Absolute." The following report was published in the Sunday Standard of January 30,1977 New Delhi

"In the 24th conference of Nobel prize winners held at Lindau, West Germany in August,1976 where eminent physicists engaged in life time research in Vedas took part, Brian Josephson, a noted physicist is reported to have said :—

"The Vedas are the inspirations of the Absolute. There is aconnection between the pattern of sound oscillation of words and their meanings. This fact corresponds to the correlation between the actual stage of the universe and its description by means of language in the Vedas as well as in physical formulas."

—(Sunday Standard-New Delhi, January 30,1977)

The expression used by this noted German Physicist Brian Josephson that the "Vedas are the inspirations of the Absolute" puts us in mind of the passage in the Shataph Brahmana and the Brihadranyaka Upanishad where it is stated :

एतस्य वा महतो भूतस्य निःश्वसितमेतद् यदृग्वेदो यजुर्वेदः सामवेदोऽथर्ववेदः ॥ बृहदारण्यकोप० ४.५. ॥ of which the above is almost a literal translation.

REVIEWS

BY TWO PROMINENT VEDIC SCHOLARS

Rigveda Volume I By Maharshi Dayananda Saraswti Translated by Acharya Dharmadeva Vidya-Martanda. (Now known as Swami Dharmananda Saraswati) Published by Sarvadeshik Arya Pratinidhi Sabha, Dayanand Bhavan, Ramalila Ground, New Delhi. I. P. 1016. Price: Rs. 30.

It is appropriate that the first commemorative volume of the Centenary of the foundation of the Arya Samaj should be on the Rigveda with the commentary of Rishi Dayananda Saraswati who was the first seer in modern times to have discovered the right clue to the mystic wisdom embedded in the enigmatic verses of the Veda. The founder of Arya Samaj took his stand on the truth of the multisignificance of roots as enunciated by Rishi Yaska in his Nirukta and cut across the laboured, artificial and often grotesque interpretations woven by ritualists, naturalists, grammarians and intellectuals from the West. He not only translated the Vedas into Sanskirt and Hindi but wrote his own commentary on the hymns justifying his interpretation, controverting others. Pandit Dharmadevji has commenced translating this commentary into English and we have before ns the first volume which covers 61 Suktas of the first Mandala of the Rig Veda. The text and the prose order are given in Sanskrit, translations follow with notes. The commentary is rendered meticulously in English.

In his elaborate introduction, Panditji covers many topics of interest to the Vedic scholar. He throws interesting sidelights on the work of other scholars in the field. He cites evidence from the letters and notes of Max Muller and others of his school, to expose their real motive in undertaking studies in the Vedic literature: to prove (to their own satisfaction !) the Primitive nature and insufficiency of the Vedic religion and thus open the doors to the invasion by Christianity as the saviour.

The translator has done full justice to the spirit of the approach of Dayananda Saraswati by adding his own explanatory notes and comments which are copious. He has underlined where Swamiji differs from Sayana (and his Western followers). He has noted the meanings worked out by modern commentators, notably Sri Kapali Sastriar in his commentary Siddhanjana, following the esoteric interpretation of Sri Aurobindo. The whole work is encyclopaedic in nature and promises to form a comprehensive reference library by itself when completed.

To enhance the value of this work for the modern student, we would suggest that portions dealing with the interpretations by other scholars which are not acceptable to this approach, may be printed in smaller types as foot-notes. Thereby the flow of thought along the interpretation advocated is not interrupted.

The task undertaken by the saintly author is staggering. The thoroughness with which he proceeds in his labour of love is a model and an inspiration to all conscentious scholarship.

Pt. Vishva Nath Ji Vidya Martanda

The greatest living Vedic Scholar

(Aged 87)

Shri Pandit Vishva Nath ji Vidya Martanda has expressed the following valuabie opinion about the English translation of the Rigveda by Pandit Dharma Deva ji (now known as Swami Dharmananda ji Saraswati after taking up Sanyas).

"Shri Pandit Dharma Deva ji Vidya-Vachaspati Vidya-Martanda, President "World Vedic Council (Vishva Veda Parishad) has been translating into English Maharishi Dayananda Saraswati's Commentary on the Rigveda. I have read it eagerly. Regarding the translation. I strongly feel that it manifests the marvellous intelligence of gifted author. It is not easy to strike a note of synthesis between Maharishi's Sanskrit Commentary and its Hindi translation. At places, there seems to be divergence in them, But Shri Panditji with his hard work and alert mind has been able to recognise the synthetic meaning in them and imbibe its spirit in his own English Translation. His translation is simple and lively and replete with literary charms. In it the occasional meaning mistakes made by western scholars have been fitly pointed out and sufficient light with proofs indeed has been thrown on the real meanings of the mantras. Thus, the utility of the English translation has increased all the n -

For this wonderful ability displayed by Panditji herein, he deserves the Congratulations of the Aryan scholars.

Some useful hints regarding the study of this and other Volumes

This translation with notes of the Commentary of Maharshi Dayananda Saraswati is not meant only for laymen, but also for scholars. Laymen who are not much interested in learning the derivation and root meaning of the words used in the mantras may be satisfied with the meaning and purport of the mantras based upon Maharshi Dayananda Saraswati's commentary as given here, but even they would do well in learning the meaning of some important words which we have translated into English with the original meaning in Sanskrita. This will increase their vocabulary and if they learn even three new words every day, in the course of a few months, they will be able to understand at least the purport of the mantras.

It is for the benefit of the scholars that we have given the Commentator's Sanskrit notes with their English Equivalents. Fearing the length of the Volumes we have given the meaning of only some important words, particularly of those words the meaning of which as given by Maharshi Daynnanda differs from other orthodox commentators like Sayanacharya. Where revered commontator (Maharshi Dayananda) did not quote the authorities though his commentary was based upon them, we have added translater's notes to substantiate his commentary, so that it may not be thought that the meanings given by him were arbitrary or imaginary. Here and there, we have pointed out the blunders committed by Prof. Wilson, Max-Muller, Griffith and other Western scholars.

We request the scholars of the east and the west, to make an impartial study of this and other Volumes and derive full benefit from this labour of love.

TRANSLATION

O learned persons, as we adore with flawless words Indra (the President of the Assembly) who is powerful, learned and praise-worthy, who is glorified by all, who is a celebrated leader, and we pray for his strength, knowledge and wisdom belonging to great scholars like the force of the Pranas (vital breaths) that is admirable, so you should also do.

PURPORT

As men enjoy happiness by glorifying the Lord, by praying to Him and by meditating upon Him, in the same manner, they should attain secular and spiritual delight by taking shelter in the President of the Assembly etc.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मन्महे) मन्यामहे याचामहे वा

We believe pray for.

TRANSLATION

O Ye men, offer to the great and powerful Indra (God and President of the Assembly) earnest veneration or Chant be sung aloud dispelling all misery and giving knowledge. As our and your ancestors who protected all like fathers by giving knowledge and wisdom, knowers of Dharma [duty] Artha [wealth] Kama [noble desires] and Moksha [Emancipation] well-versed in the science of Prana and fire etc. used speech full of the light of knowledge, so you should also do. (As the Vedas are meant for all times and not only at the beginning of human creation, such expressions are found there to instruct that people should have regard for their learned forefathers.) Tr.

PURPORT

O men, As learned persons bring about the welfare of all beings, worshipping God and treading upon the path of Dharma which is in accordance with the Vedas, cosmic natural laws and Pratyaksha and other means of perception, so you should also do.

COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(आङ्गूष्यम्) आङ्गूषाणां विज्ञानानां आवरणम् =Knowledge.

(शवसानाय) ज्ञानवते =for full of Knowledge.

=Knowers of the science of breath and fire etc.

(पदज्ञाः) ये पदानि प्राप्तव्यानि धर्मार्थकाममोक्षाख्यानि साधितुं साधयितुं वा जानन्ति ते पद—गतौ ।।

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Angooshya is derived from अंगिगतौ गतेस्त्रयोर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च । hence the above meaning of विज्ञातानांभाव: or knowledge by Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati.

शवसानाय is derived from शव-गतौ hence the above meaning of ज्ञानवते.

पदज्ञाः is derived from पद-गतौ and ज्ञा-ज्ञाने गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च. So here the third meaning of अंगिरसः as प्राणादिविद्याविदः we have already quoted प्राणो वा अंगिराः (शत० ६.१.२.२८ ॥ ६.५.२.३,४) अंगिरा वा अग्निः (शत० ६.४.४.४).

Why should men do all the above is taught further in the fourth Mantra.

Mantra—3

TRANSLATION

O men, as virtuous mother who gives knowledge of duty to her child, gives him proper nourishing food, as the sun dispels clouds with his rays, in the same way, an army guided in policy by the Commander and vigorous persons brilliant like the sun, destroys all wicked mighty persons who may be like the mountains and .cquires lands forcibly occupied by them. You should also manifest and spread knowledge so that other vices may disappear from the whole world.

PURPORT

Men should always enjoy happiness, by behaving lovingly with the subjects like mothers, by manifesting knowledge and other virtues like the sun dispelling all darkness of ignorance, by remaining firm in the policy taught by God through the Vedas and followed by learned persons and by doing good to all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O Indra (President of the Assembly or the Commander of the Army) as the sun shatters into pieces the mountain-like cloud in various stages with his seven coloured rays, in the same way, you should dispel all darkness (of ignorance) with the stable arrangements in which all substances, attributes and functions are established, should diffuse knowledge in the State with the help of wisemen who are well-versed in all Shastras, who go in all directions, who are of butter-like (mild) nature and with their effective sermons dispel all ignorance. Thus only you can be admired hy all.

PURPORT

As the lightning creates the cloud and does other useful work with its good attributes, in the same manner, the President of the Assembly should remove all injustice by diffusing the light of knowledge and justice with the assistance of the best learned and mighty persons and should rule over a vast State by destroying or keeping away the wicked.

TRANSLATION

O Indra (Destroyer of the enemies or wicked people) President of the Assembly or the commander of the Army, by your sermons you should dispel all darkness of ignorance with the help of the scholars splendid like the sun. As the sun dispels all external darkness with his rays with the dawn and with the forces of the Pranas, in the same manner, you should also do. As the lightning creates the cloud or the sun supports all worlds and the cloud also, in the same manner, you should establish the army of Dharma (righteousness) and Kingdom and destroy all your foes. Therefore you deserve our praise.

PURPORT

Men should eliminate all wicked people like the Dawn, the sun and his rays and the Prana that manifest noble virtues. As the sun causes rains by spreading his light and creating the cloud, in the same manner, people should spread knowledge among the subjects and shower happiness over all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O men, the deeds of that Indra (President of the Assembly or the Commander of the Army) who is destroyer of all misery are indeed very admirable and charming that under his leadership, the people of all directions on the earth become prosperous like the rivers full of sweet water when the cloud rains, struck by lightning. Other persons should also know and follow him.

PURPORT

Men should perform noble actions like the Yajnas, should protect the kingdom or State and should shower good reputation in all directions.

TRANSLATION

As the sun upholds in the sky with his rays, the heaven and the earth, which are born of the enternal matter, in the same manner, the President of the Assembly or the Commander of the Army who can accomplish work, without much fatigue, upholds both officers of the state and general public with the help of the venerable learned persons who are splendid like the sun and preachers of Truth, being himself a man of good deeds occupying the highest royal seat.

PURPORT

Men should uphold justice and knowledge as the President of the Assembly etc. maintains wealth or as the sun upholds the heaven and earth.

TRANSLATION

O men and women, as night and dawn of various complexion, repeatedly born, but ever youthful, traverse in their revolutions alternately, from a remote period, earth and heaven, night with her dark, dawn with her luminous limbs, so you should marry each other according to your deliberate choice made of your own accord and enjoy happiness, loving mutually with legitimate attractions.

PURPORT

As day and night revolve like the wheels being associated with each other, so should the married couple behave with mutual love.

TRANSLATION

As the impelling sun doing noble beneficial deeds upholds the heaven and earth with his power or as the sun doing noble deeds, maintains or supports his parents, in the same manner, a king should uphold both the officers of the state and general public with his power, giving proper orders and performing good acts. As the sun keeps friendship with all from eternity by doing beneficial acts like heat, rain and light, in the same manner, a king should be friendly to all beings, always engaged in doing good actions. As the sun gives sap to the un-ripe herbs, beautiful form to the growing herbs and plants, so should a king arrange to create vitality in all his subjects by urging upon them the observance of Brahmacharya and other rules.

PURPORT

As day and night are causers of sap and growth or decay of all objects being friendly to all creatures, in the same way, learned persons should deal with all in a friendly manner.

TRANSLATION

The people of the earth living together and not disturbed by the wind of opposition of the enemies, possessing strength do not suffer as they observe vows or discharge their duties. As virile husbands protect thousands of lands with their power, as sisters serve their brothers, the subjects should serve the king. Those who serve knowledge and Dharma (righteousness) attain emancipation.

PURPORT

As husbands get happiness by serving (looking to the needs of) their wives, as sisters get delight by serving their brothers and preceptors get knowledge by serving their pupils, in the same manner, those righteous and learned persons who always are firmly engaged in discharging their duties, attain emancipation even if they dwell at home.

TRANSLATION

O mighty Indra (President of the Assembly) thou art dispeller of the darkness of ignorance, as affectionate admirable young wives, adhere to their loving husbands, so let all wise men who act according to the teaching of the eternal Vedas and who desire to acquire wealth of knowledge and other kinds, approach thee that desirest and lovest them and art their protector. Let them cling to thee with praiseworthy thoughts and serve thee with reverence.

PURPORT

As children are born with the co-habitation of the husband and wife, in the same manner, all dealings are produced with the combination of the day and night and the association of the light of the sun and the shadow of the earth. It is impossible to have progeny without the co-habitation (coitus) of the husband and wife.

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे इन्द्र ! यः त्वं महान् जज्ञानः शुष्मैः अमे ह द्यावा पृथिवी धाः (दधासि) ते (तव) अभ्वा (सामर्थ्येन) भिया (भयेन) । ह (प्रसिद्धं) यत् ये विश्वाः गिरयः दृढासः सन्तः किरणाः चित् (अपि) न एजन् (कम्पन्ते) ।

TRANSLATION

O Indra (God) Thou art the mightiest Supreme Being who sustainest in Thy home (so to speak) by Thy energies heaven and earth produced by eternal cause (Matter). Then, through fear of Thee, all creatures and the mountains or clouds, and all other vast and solid things tremble like the tremulous rays of the sun.

PURPORT

Men should always adore God who by His Power and energy creates all the Universe and upholds it. The sun that upholds the earth and other worlds by his attraction and other attributes is also created and sustained by God. This is what all people should know.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अमे) गृहे = At home (so to speak).

(अभ्वा) न उत्पद्यते कदाचित् तेन कारणेन सह वर्तमानाः =Living with the eternal cause (Matter).

(शुष्मैः) बलादिभिः = By forces or Powers.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

अमेति गृहनाम (निघ० ३.४) = Home.

शुष्मम् इति बलनाम (निघ० २.९) = Power.

TRANSLATION

O Indra (President of the Assembly or the Commander of the Army etc.). O man of agreeable intellect and acts, glorified and invoked by many, thou knowest and preservest well the army and the light of justice which remove all evil conduct and protect various vows. Thou assailest thine enemies and destroyest their numerous cities for gaining victory over them by defeating them. Therefore thy admirer also bears thunderbolt or strong weapons in his arms by taking shelter in thee or urged by thee.

PURPORT

The President of the Assembly or the Commander of the Army should have such temperament, character and conduct that by following his example, all people should become good and should enjoy un-interruptedly the happiness of the kingdom well.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O Indra (Conveyor of prosperity) as thou art best of all beings, art assailer and humiliator of thy foes, art great, art the friend and benefactor of men, therefore thou aidest the illustrious educated young person possessing the power of body and soul and bearing strong arms by giving him more and more of the physical and spiritual strength, in the deadly and the close-fought fight. Thou destroyest thy enemies and protectest the rightesous persons, therefore thou art worthy of respect and honour.

PURPORT

It is not possible to defeat enemies and administer a State properly without the aid of the President of the Assembly and the Commander of the Army. Therefore these things should be done by the people under their guidance and with their help.

TRANSLATION

O Indra (President of the Assembly or the Commander-in-Chief of the Army etc.). O wielder of the thunderbolt or strong weapons, as thou throwest away an enemy who is like the cloud the coverer of happiness, therefore thou art able to protect the righteous. O doer of noble deeds, because thou art a true friend, thou protectest or safe-guardest thy friends. O fearless hero, because thou cuttest down all thieves and robbers, therefore thou art able to protect thy subjects. O lover of heroic persons and their knower, as thou fillest all with happiness, therefore, thou art worthy of respect and honour. As thou endurest all without much difficulty, therefore thou fillest all at home with great delight.

PURPORT

As the sun gladdens all by his light and is the cause of rain by producing the cloud and as he illumines all by dispelling darkness, in the same manner, the President of the Assembly should shine in his kingdom by gladdening all by his knowledge and other virtues, by creating physical and spiritual force in all and by raining down knowledge Dharma (righteousness) and fearlessness and by setting aside all un-righteousness, darkness (of ignorance) and enemies.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

Do thou Oh Indra (President of the Assembly or the Commander of an army) who art un-willing to hurt any righteous person and wielder of the thunderbolt or strong weapons, protect our army consisting of the horses and elephants etc. When we are exposed to the aversion of our enemies, thou demolishest all un-righteous persons in all directions as with a club.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra. It is the duty of the President of the Assembly and the Chief Commander of the Army to create love among the people of the State and the army along with aversion towards unrighteous foes and then to demolish all wicked persons as the sun demolishes all clouds.

TRANSLATION

O praiser of true knowledge, rightly praise the attributes of the winds which cause rain, strength-upholding of various objects and noble Yajna. As a patient man utters words after full deliberation and as an artist, gives expression to various acts, in the same manner, I being well-versed in various indurtries and martial activities express myself in the Yajnas of various kinds including the battles. You should also do like that.

PURPORT

Men should know that whatever is the movement, force, knowledge, exertion, speech, hearing, growth, decay, hunger and thirst, it is all caused by the air. They should rightly preach the science of air to others.

TRANSLATION

The winds which belong to the collective Prana are born from the sky. In the same manner, brave and learned persons are born from the light of knowlede given by great preceptors. They are radiant as the rays of the sun, virile, purifiers and themselves pure. They are conquerors of their foes, pure from sin under the guidance of an Acharya, or Commander-in-chief of the Army. They are manly and vigorous, rainers of knowledge like the clouds, and mighty like the elephants, dreadful in their forms for the wicked.

PURPORT

As there are mighty lions, elephants and oxen in the creation of God, so are these powerful winds. As the rays of the sun purify, so do winds also. Without the sun and the winds, it is not possible to have health or disease, birth and death etc. Therefore men should know thoroughly the attributes of both of them (the sun and winds) and should utilise them properly in their works.

TRANSLATION

The Maruts (winds) are very mighty on account of mixing and separating objects, causes of weeping on account of the pain of death and fever etc. un-decaying, eternal by cause which are not eaten or destroyed, of un-obstructed progress and immovable as mountains. By their strength they agitate all substances, whether of heaven or of earth.

PURPORT

Men should know that as the clouds are reservoirs of waters, as mountains are reservoirs of herbs, in the same way, these winds are the cause of combination and separation, supporters of all, cause of happiness and misery, eternal (by flow) without form or touch. Without them, it is not possible for the water and fire in the world to come and stay on.

O men, you should know and properly use the Maruts (winds) which are moving hither and thither, which take people from place to place or carry things which are like the brave and mighty soldiers who decorate their persons with various ornaments, who place, for elegance, brilliant garlands on their breasts, lances are borne upon whose shoulders and who by taking suitable and nourishing food and by developing their strength have become leaders with the light of knowledge. It is with the help of these airs that these brave soldiers and all creatures can get power.

PURPORT

Men should know the attributes of the Maruts (winds and brave soldiers mighty like them) and should enjoy pure happiness.

=Moving everywhere, active.

(स्वधया) पृथिव्यादिना अन्नेन वा

=With earth or food.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

अंजिभि: is derived from अंजू-व्यक्ति म्रक्षण कान्तिगतिषु — hence Rishi Dayananda has interpreted it as व्यक्तीकरणादिधर्मैः taking the first meaning of the verb ऋष्टय: has been derived from ऋषी-गतौ hence Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati's interpretation as गमनागमनशीला: =Gcing and coming. स्वधा इत्यन्ननाम (निघ० २.७) Along with the attributes of the winds, the attributes of brave soldiers who should be mighty have been mentioned in many of the mantras like the above, hence the epithet नर: has been used which in the ease of winds can be taken only in secondary sense of carrying from णीञ्-प्रापणे

It is very wrong on the part of Prof. Maxmuller and other Western translators of the Vedas to translate the word "Maruts" as "Storm Gods."

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara used in the Mantra. As there is the oblation of the Ghee or clarified butter in the Yajnas, as there is the well for watering the field and animals, as there is the horse for seminating the mare, in the same manner, when the airs or winds are utilised with scientific knowledge, they accomplish all acts.

TRANSLATION

You should know and properly utilise these winds which are like the brave heroes who are great possessors of knowledge and wisdom, bright, shining, like mountains in stability or firmness and quick in motion like the deer, mighty like the elephants. They break down or shatter even the forests and shake the waters. Utilise them in various ways to make them speedy.

PURPORT

There is Upmalankara in the Mantra. Men can not make any movement, eating, riding etc. without the winds. Therefore these winds should be properly utilised in aeroplanes, boats and steamers etc. and with the combination of fire and water quick moving vehicles should be constructed.

Though Prof. Max Muller and other Western Scholars translate the word "Maruts" as storm Gods, yet even they like Prof. Wilson and Griffith have to admit willy nilly that the adjectives used for Maruts and other descriptions clearly point out that they are heroic men. For instances, Prof.

Wilson's translation of the above Mantra (10th.) is as follows.

"The Maruts who are all knowers.

"Who are leaders (of men)."

In the translation of the 9th Mantra also Prof. Wilson says-Maruts, who are heroes, etc. Griffith in his translation of the 8th Mantra says.

(प्रचेतस:) Exceeding wise they roar like lions mightily-combined as priests. In the translation of the 9th Mantra. (गणश्रिय:) (Heroes) who Match in companies, friendly men. In the translation of the 10th Mantra विरप्शिन: Singers loud of voice-Heroes, of powers infinite, the archers, they have laid the arrow of their arms. Does all this not corroborate Rishi Dayananda Saraswati's contention that by the word "Marutah" are not meant any "Storm Gods" but brave heroes besides the winds by the way of illustration.

This Agni (God) is graceful as nourishment, argmenter of the happiness of body, senses and soul, vast as the earth on which people dwell, Giver of happiness like the cloud which is productive of vegetable food by raining down water, delightful as water. He is like a horse urged to a charge in battle and like flowing waters of the ocean. Who deliberately chooses or accepts God as the Best Object in the world to be known and attained. By Agni may also be taken in a secondary sense the electricity.

PURPORT

There is Upmalankara or simile used in the Mantra in various forms. There are few in the world who are eager to know aud attain God and also utilise electricity properly after or along with that great Knowledge. As the best growth of body, mind and soul enables a man to get kingdom, rain to get good water, and as good horse and ocean are givers of much happiness, in the same manner, God and electricity lead to much delight and bliss, but a great, scholar possessing the correct knowledge of these two is rare.

TRANSLATION

Agni (in the form of electricity etc.) dwells within the waters like a sitting swan, awakened or kindled in the dawn, he restores by his operations consciousness to me. Like the Soma and other creepers and herbs Agni, born of the Matter, is excited by the winds and nourishes all by heat. Born from the waters, where he was hidden like an animal (cow etc.), with her calf, he becomes enlarged and his light spreads far. You must use that Agni in the form of electricity in various forms.

PURPORT

As it is not possible for anyone to accomplish various objects without the use of fire in the form of electricity, it should therefore, be used properly after knowing its science thoroughly.

TRANSLATION

O men, you should admire that Agni (commander of the Army) who terrifies his enemies like a powerful army sent, who is like the bright pointed shaft of an archer against an army, who is controller of all that are born and will be born and free from passions. He is like the sun dispeller of the darkness of the nights and protector of all people.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara in the Mantra as several similes have been used. Men should hnow that a good commander of an army destroys all miseries as a well-trained army conquers the enemies and as the knowers of the science of archery destroy their adversaries by throwing upon them powerful arms.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

As cows hasten to their stall, so let us approach the President of the Assembly who is bright like the fire with all over movable and immovable property. As the flowing water gives movement to the water downwords, so let the commander of the Army send his sub-ordinates to different places. As the rays of the sun commingle which is visible in the sky, so let learned men approach the President of the Assembly who is charming and destroyer of enemies.

PURPORT

There are Luptomapama and Upamalankars in the Mantra. Those who thus adore God, enjoy happiness as cows go to their stall and rays to the sun. As a man can accomplish many works by going to the sea, in the same manner, men should get their desire fulfilled by having communion with Omnipresent God and by having correct knowledge of the science of electricity.

TRANSLATION

O learned persons, as un-born eternal God sustains the earth and the heaven with true Supreme wisdom and eternal Laws, gives all dear or desirable objects, protects us from the bondage of the animals being seated in the cave of our intellect and giving abstruse secret knowledge in the same manner, thou shouldst protect all people with righteousness and the observance of thy duties all thy life and be like the un-born Eternal God (in purity and benevolence etc.).

PURPORT

As God sustains the whole universe with His knowledge and Power, as a dear friend causes good happiness to his friend by dis-severing the bond of misery, as God in the form of Antaryami or Indwelling Universal spirit illuminates the soul, by maintaining them, in the same manner, the President of the Assembly maintains or upholds the state by true justice and the Sun upholds the world by attraction and other attributes

That man should be always served or respected by all who being wise, humble and discriminating is well-versed in all sciences, is Illuminator of all knowledge like the fire, is like the udder of the cows which gives sweetness to the milk, eater of nourishing food who diffuses happiness like a benevolent person, amongst mankind. He like a bliss-giver to be invited by men, is gracious in the middle of the house or an assembly like Agni or leader.

PURPORT

As the udder of the cows and a learned wiseman are benevolent to all, in the same manner, the President of the assembly sltting in the assembly etc. and others shodld give joy and happiness to all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(वेधाः) ज्ञानवान् वेधा इति मेधाविनाम (निघ० ३.१५) =Wise.

(अदृप्तः) मोहरहितः = Free from illusion or pride, humble.

पितूनाम्) अन्नानाम् पितुरित्यन्ननाम (निघ० २.७) =Of food.

(दुरोणे) गृहे दुरोणे इति गृहनाम (निघ० ३.४)

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Prof. Wilson has translated वेधा: as wise and Griffith as (Sage) अदृप्त: has been translated both by Wilson and Griffith as humble.

Are these epithets applicable in the case of the material fire and yet these Western translators take Agni only as fire while Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati taking such epithets as वेधा:, कवि:, विजानन्, प्रचेता:, त्रिभवचर्षणि: etc. has interpreted the word Agni as God or a learned leader etc.

TRANSLATION

(1) In the case of God..............

God is Refulgent like the sun, Omniscient and Omnipresent. All men should get His knowledge. He is the Giver of Knowledge to the soul. Learned persons enjoying happiness in their souls should drive away all evils and should glorify the Charming God.

(2) In the case of a learned person. A learned person should be full of splendour like the sun, the destroyer of misery. He should know the feelings or conditions of all subjects. The people should bow before such a great person who is worth-seeing obeying his commands. They should open their doors to welcome him.

PURPORT

Men should always enjoy happiness in all true dealings by giving up all evils and taking shelter in God and a man who is illuminator of all sciences like the sun, burner of all misery like the fire.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(जारः) दुःखहन्ता सविता = Sun-destroyer of misery of surffering.

(दुरः) दुष्टान् = Evils or wicked persons.

(२) द्वाराणि = Doors

(ऋण्वन्) हिंसन् = Destroying

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

जारः is derived from जृष्-वयोहानौ hence the meanlng of destroyer of suffering or miseries, ऋण्वन् is from ऋण्वति वध कर्मा (निघ० २.१६)

This hymn is connectioned with the previous hymn, as there is mention of God and learned persons as in the previous hymn.

TRANSLATION

(1) In case of God. We meditate upon God who is Refulgent and being the Lord of the world is Omniscient. By His wisdom, He knows all the subjects whether old or new, all the divine cows and acts which rogulate the birth of the human race.

(2) We serve and honour a learned person who is full of the light of wisdom and knows all the subjects whether old or new, all divine vows and acts which regulate the birth of the human race.

PURPORT

There is Shleshalankara or double entendre in the Mantra.

A man being master of his senses should worship God who pervades or possesses all pure attributes and acts. He should also respect a man who is endowed with good attributes and actions. Without this, a man can not make his birth as human being fruitful.

(1) In case of God—

O men, you should lovingly adore God who is Eternal and wonderful on account of His Divine attributes as beloved wives love their own loving husbands. As the cows or the rays of the sun approach the dawn which is at first dark, then glammering and finally radiant, in the same manner, all wise people worship God who is the destroyer of all sins and Resplendent.

(2) In the case of the President of the Assembly. As beloved wives love their loving husbands, in the same manner, the subjects of the same land and loving the President of the Assembly who protects them should honour him and be pleased. As the cows or the rays of the sun approach the dawn, so the subjects desiring the glorious President of the Assembly who loves them should satisfy him and be glad to serve him.

PURPORT

All men should adore God and honour the President of the Assembly as a noble (righteous) learned chaste wife serves her husband and a righteous learned and faithful husband serves his righteous married wife and as the rays of the sun and animals serve the earth and other objects.

We must always serve those wise experienced men who give us good knowledge and thus make us happy by their noble instruction and advice, as the rays of the sun falling on earth or the day help in getting knowledge of all objects. As the winds scatter the clouds, so they destroy our misery, therefore they should be always respected by us.

PURPORT

Men should acquire Dharma (righteousness) Artha (Wealth) Kama (fulfilment of noble desires) and Moksha (emancipation) by serving wise enlightened persons who are true in mind, word and deed, should acquire knowledge from them and should develop intellect.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

Those girls who are particularly virtuous and are endowed with many good attributes like truthfulness, purity and humility etc. who are free from greed, get good knowledge from the wise preceptors and earn the wealth of true wisdom observing this Brahamacharya, Dharma (righteousness and growing harmoniously.) Doing noble deeds and taking suitable nourishing food etc. they bear good virtues and after marriage give birth to highly learned persons. Having become well-versed in the Vedas and other Shastras, they enjoy all happiness.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra.

As business men earn money bp righteous honest means, in the same manner, the girls acquire good education and wisdom before marriage sitting at the feet of learned lady teachers who are true in mind, word and deed. They should then marry and earn the happiness of their children. The period for study is not after but before the marriage. There is is no prohibition for acquiring knowledge for any male or female in the world.

TRANSLATION

As when the diffusive vital air excites Agni (fire), it becomes bright and manifest in every house, performing the function of a messengar, as a prince who has become a friend sends an ambassador to his more powerful conqueror, in the same manner, maidens who have received good education like a scientist experimenting on various objects should be givers of happiness to all by their knowledge.

PURPORT

Women can never enjoy happiness without acquiring knowledge or education. As un-educated husbands annoy or cause pain to their well-educated cultured wives, in the same way, un-educated un-cultured wives annoy their husbands. Therefor men and women should marry each other according to the system of Svayambara (choice) based upon mutual love) and then should enjoy happiness.

TRANSLATION

O Agni (Learned preceptor, giver of knowledge) you who develop your pupil by wisdom and education, as the sun does by strength and light, he who honours you in his own dwelling with giving food and other presents, getting inner light by your company, you augment his life. He whom you prompt to do noble deeds being endowed with wealth (material and spiritual in the form of wisdom) and with good virtues and vehicles, make him desirous of doing noble deeds on all days or for ever.

PURPORT

O men, you should always serve your parents and preceptors who make you happy by giving good education and by the light of wisdom and proper nourishing food etc. like the sun which gives light and causes food to grow.

TRANSLATION

As the flowing great rivers going to distant places attain the sea at the end, boys and girls desiring to acquire knowledge approach a learned Acharya (preceptor) who imparts education to them and increases their life (the movements of the circulation of blood and electricity go to seven Pranas i. e. Prana, apana, Udana, Samana, Sutra-Atma, Koorma (Subtle form).

Let all receive good education from wise preceptors, so that we may not live with un-educated and paingiving women.

PURPORT

As the river go to the sea and as the movements of the electricity are united with the Pranas (vital breaths) in the same manner, men should give wisdom and good education to all their sons and daughters with Brahamacharya and after they finish their education and the vow of Brahamacharya and attain youth, they should get them married so that they may have good progeny. There is no greater benevolence than this on the part of the parents.

TRANSLATION

O man and woman, a learned scientist goes across the path leading to distant places quickly like the mind and the electricity with the help of aircrafts etc. Without depending upon others, being self-reliant, he becomes the master of true virtues, actions, good temper and wealth. You should become like the President of the Assembly and educational council on account of good dealings, protecting with the lovely nectar (ambrosia) of knowledge.

PURPORT

As men cannot construct aeroplanes and other vehicles and go to distant places, acquire scientific and other knowledge and wealth and a king can not govern without education and association with noble persons, in the same manner, husbands and wives cannot attain happiness without the development of knowledge and strength.

Those immortal and liberated souls who are free from ignorance, industrious, who have attained happiness and who are intelligent and active, desiring liberation acquire the knowledge of the four Vedas which was everywhere around and which enables us to dwell in true delight. They thus stayed in the charming, most exalted worth-attaining nature of God (consisting of Absolute existence, consciousness and Bliss.) Those who do not know the Vedas, can not attain that God.

PURPORT

All souls are eternal, Among them the embodied are thus addressed by God. O men, you should study and teach the Vedas and then being freed from ignorance and becoming wise and industrious, you should enjoy happiness. None can acquire the knowledge of all sciences, without studying the Vedas, therefore you should spread the knowledge of the Vedas all around or everywhere.

Thou teachest [through the Vedas] the right path which all enlightened persons should follow. Therefore Thou art worthy of adoration.

PURPORT

(1) Why should not God be adored who when prayed to shows the path of righeousness and thus gives happiness ?

(2) Why should not a wise learned man be respected who when served gives knowledge and thus makes people happy ?

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(वयुनानि) विज्ञानानि = Knowledge and act.

= The happiness which should be attained or grief-alleviating.

(दूतः) विज्ञापकः = Teacher or Giver of knowledge.

(हविर्वाट्) विज्ञानादिप्रापकः

= Causing the attainment of knowledge etc.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

वयुनमितिप्रज्ञानाम (निघ० ३.९)

Therefore Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati has interpreted as विज्ञानानि दूतः is derived from दु-गतौ स्वा गतिस्त्रयोऽर्थाः गमनं प्राप्तिश्च । Taking the first and the third meaning Rishi Dayananda has interpreted it as विज्ञापकः It is noteworthy that both Prof. Wilson and Griffith translate the epithets used for Agni in the Mantra which are applicable only to an Omniscient Supreme Being.

For instance, Prof. Wilson translates विद्वां अग्ने वयुनानि क्षितीनाम् as "Agni who art cognizant of all things to be known." (Wilson).

अन्तर्विद्वां अध्वनो देवयानान् is translated by him as "Knowing the paths between (earth and heaven) by which they (gods) travel. (Wilson). Are such epithets applicable for the material fire?

Griffith's translation of the first stanza is "Thou", Agni knower of men's works. The third stanza is translated by him as "Thou deeply skilled in paths of Gods." (Griffith).

Though the word देव as usual has been wrongly translated by both as "gods" or "Gods" which Rishi Dayananda has interpreted as विद्वांसः on the authority of विद्वांसो हि देवाः (शतपथ ३.७.३.१०) and other passages in the Brahmanas, their own translation clearly shows that Agni stands here for an Omniscient Supreme Being and not for inanimate material fire. Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati's interpretation is therefore correct.

TRANSLATION

As learned men giving wisdom for the attainment of immortality or emancipation make all their good children endowed with great virtues, as the earth upholds all, a mother properly brings up her children, as the sky upholds birds etc. so do I try to uphold or support all.

PURPORT

It is the duty of all men to make their children endowed with good education and wisdom and enable them to attain (righteousness) (wealth) (noble desires) and (emancipation) like other wise learned persons.

TRANSLATION

O learned person : Immortal emancipated souls have established the beauty of wisdom, kingdom and prosperity in this world. They have made from their light of wisdom two eyes in the form of internal and external knowledge Like the flowing rivers, they spread happiness on all sides. They know acceptable sciences, and the various processes which cause happiness like the dawns. You should also do likewise and give knowledge to all.

PURPORT

O men, you should suitably accept the conduct of the learned and not that of the ignorant. As rivers cause happiness, so you should create happiness or delight for all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(दिवः) विज्ञानात् सूर्यप्रकाशाद् वा

= From wisdom or the light of the sun.

(अक्षी) अश्नुवते व्याप्नुवन्ति याभ्यां बाह्याभ्यन्तरविद्यायुक्ताभ्यां ते ।

= Eyes in the form of the internal or spiritual and external or material knowledge.

(अरुषीः) उषस इव सर्वसुखप्रापिका विद्याः क्रिया वा ।

= Sciences or various processes which cause all happiness like the dawns.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

अरुषा ति उषोनाम (निघ० १.८)

It is derived from ऋ-गतिप्रापणयोः hence Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati's interpreation of सर्वसुखप्रापिका विद्याः क्रिया वा दिवः is from दिवु-क्रीडाविजिगीषाव्यवहारद्युतिस्तुतिमोदमदस्वप्नकान्तिगतिषु ।

Here the meaning of द्युति or light of wisdom or of the sun has been taken by Rishi Dayananda.

This hymn is connected with the previous hymn as it deals with God and the attributes of the enlightened persons.

Here ands the commentary on the seventy-second hymn or 18th Varga of the Rigveda.

TRANSLATION

O men, You should serve and ever do good to a learned person who is like the treasure known through the fatherly teachers, who is the supporter of life, whose conduct is excellent, who is like the preceptor of a highly educated person, who is always established in wisdom, righteousness and exertion that cause happiness, who is like a cheerful benevolent guest roaming about to preach truth as distinguished from untruth, who increases the happiness in the house of the Yajamana (Performer of the Yajna) like the officiating priest.

PURPORT

It is not possible for any one to have realisation of wisdom and good education without knowledge, the observance of Dharma (righteousness) the association with the learned and good thoughts. None can be free from all doubts and delusions without the sermons of the wise highly learned guests going from place to place for preaching truth. Therefore all this must be done by all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(पितृवित्तः) पितृभ्यः अध्यापकेभ्यः वित्तः प्रतीतो विज्ञातः = Knowledge through the teachers who are like fathers.

(शासुः) शासनकर्ता-उपदेष्टा = Instructor or preceptor.

(स्योनशीः) यः स्योनेषु सुखेषु विद्याधर्म पुरुषार्थेषु शेते आस्ते सः = He who is established in wisdom, Dharma, (righteousness) and exertion.

(अतिथिः) महाविद्वान् भ्रमणशीलः उपदेष्टा परोपकारी मनुष्यः = A highly learned, benevolent pracher of truth as guest.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

(अत-सातत्यगमने)

स्योनमिति सुखनाम (निघ० ३.६)

Other commentators have translated पितृ वित्तः generally as Patrimonial Wealth (Wilson) Patrimonial riches. (Griffith) but Rishi Dayananda gives broader and more comprehensive meaning taking the word पितृ in the sense of father-like teachers.

पूर्वविद्वान् कीदृशः स्यादित्युपदिश्यते

How should a learned man be is taught further in the second Mantra.

Mantra—2

देवो न यः सविता सत्यमन्मा क्रत्वा निपाति वृजनानि विश्वा।

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे मनुष्याः ! यूयम् यः सविता देवः न सत्यमन्मा क्रत्वा विश्वा वृजनानि पाति पुरुप्रशस्तः अमतिः न सत्यः दिधिषाय्यः आत्मा इव शेवः भूत् (तं सेवित्वा विद्योन्नतिं कुरुत)॥

TRANSLATION

O men, you should ever increase your knowledge by serving a learned person who is like the divine Sun (dispeller of all darkness of ignorance) who knows the truth and preaches it, who by his actions preserves power of all kind, (Physical, mental and spiritual) who is excellent, truthful as well charming, upholder and nourisher of all and who is like soul the source of happiness.

PURPORT

Men can not attain the power of truth and knowledge and the beauty of happiness without the association of learned persons. Therefore they must be ever served.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सत्यमन्मा) यः सत्यं मन्यते विजानाति विज्ञापयति सः
= He who knows and preaches the Truth.

(अमतिः) सुन्दरस्वरूपः = Charming or beautiful,

(दिधिषाय्यः) धारकः पोषकः। दधातेर्द्वित्वमित्वं षुक् च (उणादि० ३.९५)
= Upholder or nourisher.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Even Prof. Wilson translated the epithet used for Agni in this Mantra सत्यमन्मा as "who knows the Truth (of things)

Griffith's translation is "True-minded." Is this epithet applicable to the material fire ? Rishi Dayananda is therefore right in taking the word "Agni" here not for material fire but for a learned person as सत्यमन्मा, सत्यः, दिधिषाय्यः and other epithets clearly denote. Griffith is wrong in translating the word आत्मा as breath, while Prof. Wilson has correctly translated it as soul.

पुनः स कीदृश इत्युपदिश्यते ।

How is Agni (God) is taught in the 3rd Mantra.

Mantra—3

देवो न यः पृथिवीं विश्वधाया उपक्षेति हितमित्रो न राजा ।

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे मनुष्याः ! यूयम् यः देवः पृथिवीं न विश्वधाया हितमित्रः राजा न उपक्षेति पुरः सदः शर्मसदः वीराः न (दुःखानि शत्रून् विनाशयति) अनवद्यापतिजुष्टा इव (सुखे निवासयति) । तं सर्वदा समाहिता भूत्वा यथावत् परिचरत ॥

TRANSLATION

O men, you should always properly worship Giver of Divine Joy, God with devotion who supports us and keeps us together in our earthly life, who is the upholder of all like the sun, who is like the King friend of his subjects bringing about their welfare. Only those brave people are in the enjoyment of true and lasting happiness who feel that they are face to face with God. Those who serve God with an un-divided mind just like a very virtuous noble and beautiful educated wife of un-impeachable conduct devoted to her husband with her body, mind and soul enjoy the highest bliss.

PURPORT

Men cannot attain strength and happiness without true devotion to God and association with learned wisemen devoted to Him. Therefore men should always be devoted to God and should honour learned devotees.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(देवः) दिव्यसुखदाता = Giver of Divine Joy.

(अनवद्या) विद्या सौन्दर्यादिशुभगुणयुक्ता = Endowed with knowledge beauty and other virtues.

(पतिजुष्टा) पतिः जुष्टः प्रीतः सेवितो यया तद्वत् = Chaste wife devoted to her husband.

पुनः स कीदृश इत्युपदिश्यते ।

How is He (Agni) is taught further in the fourth Mantra.

Mantra—4

तं त्वा नरो दम आ नित्यमिद्धमग्ने सचन्त क्षितिषु ध्रुवासु ।

TRANSLATION

O learned leader ! be thou the preserver of wealth in the form of knowledge, and good and vast Government and being long lived be our helper of all happiness in this life and world. Give us much light of knowledge or wealth of good reputation. Serve those educated persons well who preserve and serve thee constantly kindled like fire in their dwelling free from miseries and in secure places.

PURPORT

O men, you should know that true happiness can be attained only by the communion with and knowledge of God who has created various objects in this world and by the association with the learned wise persons.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(दमे) दुःखोपशान्ते गृहे ।

TRANSLATION

O learned person giver of happiness ! As a trader enjoys his portion of wealth, may wealthy persons obtain abundant and good food, may the learned charitably disposed wisemen acquire long life. May we attain knowledge and strength is battles (internal and external) for getting reputation among the enlightened persons.

PURPORT

Men can get all happiness with the help of God and learned persons and not otherwise.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(पृक्षः) अत्युत्तमानि अन्नानि = Good food.
(सूरयः) मेधाविनः = Wise men.
(वाजम्) विज्ञानम् = Good knowledge.
(समिथेषु) संग्रामेषु समिथे इति संग्रामनाम
(निघ० २.१७) = In battles.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

पृक्ष इत्यन्ननाम (निघ० २.७)

वाजम् is derived from वज-गतौ Among the three meanings of गति the first meaning of ज्ञान or knowledge has been taken here.

TRANSLATION

As the loving and splendid cows feed people with their full udders, as the rays of the sun coming from the distant sky make the cloud rain from near and as the rivers flow on, in the same manner, you should acquire wisdom soliciting good knowledge and shower truth on others like the rainy water.

PURPORT

The righteous scholars should be like the water purified by the Yajna which is invigorating and helpful in the attainment of good knowledge, being the source of good health.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(ऋतस्य) मेघोत्पन्नजलस्य इव सत्यस्य ।

= Of the truth like thc water produced by the cloud.

(अद्रिम्) मेघम् = Cloud.

(समया) सामीप्ये = Near.

TRANSLATION

O teacher shining like fire, students desiring good intellect and experts in the performance of Yajnas residing under thy guidance who art full of the light of wisdom, acquire and sustaln knowledge and nourishing good food. With the night and dawn which are respectively of black and red colour, they join other colours and clean to distinguish them. Thus they enjoy happiness.

PURPORT

No one can become a good scholar, without the knowledge of God's creation. As night and day are of opposite nature, so people should distinguish between the similar and opposite attributes.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अग्ने) अध्यापक	= Teacher.
(दिवि) प्रकाशस्वरूपे	= Full of the light of wisdom or knowledge.
(श्रवः) श्रवणम् अन्नं वा	= Hearing of the Shastras or good food.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

अग्नि is derived from अगि-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च श्रव इति अन्न नाम निघ० (२.७) Taking the first meaning, it means a learned person. दिवि is derived from दिवु-क्रीडाविजिगीषा व्यवहारद्युति-स्तुति मोदमदस्वप्नकान्ति गतिषु ।

Here the meaning of द्युति is taken in the sense of the light of wisdom or knowledge. If by अग्ने God is taken, it also may mean that men experts in the performance of the Yajnas or who are respectable,approach God who is Resplendent, soliciting knowledge and good reputation.

TRANSLATION

O most learned active and wise leader ! best among the knowers of all sciences, as we teach you the eternal gratifying Vedas (four in number) after studying them thoroughly, you should also do like wise.

PURPORT

None can attain knowledge about God, electricity and other subjects without being taught by a good teacher, therefore all men should hear and teach about them.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अंगिरस्तम) अंगति गच्छति जानाति सोऽतिशयितस्तत् सम्बुद्धौ ।

= The most learned, active and wise.

(वेधस्तम) अतिशयेन सर्वविद्याधर ।

= The best among the knowers of all sciences.

(सानसि) सनातनम् = Eternal.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

वेधा इति मेधाविनाम (निघ० ३.१५).

Hence it has been translated as most wise, besides the best among the knowers of all sciences.

वि - धा - धारण पोषणयो:

विधात्रो वेध च (उणा० ४.२२५)

Prof. Wilson has translated वेधस्तम as most wise following Sayanacharya who has interpreted it rightly as वेधा इति मेधाविनाम अतिशयेन मेधाविन् ।

Griffith has also translated it as 'O wisest' and yet they think quite erroneously that this epithet is applicable to the material fire, which is absurd. Rishi Dayananda was therefore right in taking the word Agni used here, not for material fire but for a learned leader.

अग-गतौऽगतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च अग्निः कस्मात् अग्रणीर्भवति (निरुक्ते)

It is wrong on the part of most of the Western translators like Wilson, Griffith and others to take अंगिरः as the name of a particular Rishi forgetting the principles of the Vedic terminology. Sayanacharya has himself interpreted the word derivatively as अतिशयेन अंगनादि गुण युक्त though he has also committed the mistake of taking it as alternative as यद् वा अंगिरसां वरिष्ठः which is opposed to the principle of Vedic terminology explained by him in his introduction to the commentary of the Rigveda. The word अंगिरा is derived from अगि-गतौ which means ज्ञान गमन प्राप्ति therefore taking the first meaning of ज्ञान or knowledge it means most learned as interpreted by Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati. In the Vedic Lexicon-Nighantu 5-5 it is stated अंगिरस इति पदनाम (निघ० ५.५) so it अंगिरस्तम certainly means the most learned person. It is absurd to use superlative degree with a proper noun.

Mantra—3

हे अग्ने (विद्वन्) जनानां मध्ये ते (तव) कः ह जामिः अस्ति कः दाश्वध्वरः कः कस्मिन् श्रितः असि इत्यस्य सर्वस्य वद उत्तरम् ।

TRANSLATION

O knower of all Vidyas (sciences) who among men knows you well ? who is the liberal performer of non-violent sacrifices ? who are you and dependent on whom ? Give answer to these questions.

PURPORT

It is rare among men to find who know well and teach about God and fire etc., because they (God and fire) are endowed with wonderful attributes.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(जामिः) ज्ञाता अत्र माधातोर्बाहुलकादौणादिको मिप्रत्ययो जादेशश्च ।
= Knower.

(अग्ने) सकलविद्यावित् = Knower of all sciences.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is clear from Rishi Dayananda's Bhavartha or purport that he takes from the word Agni used here not only a learned person or fire but also God. In that case, the meaning will be Who O Omniscient God is Thy perfect knower ? Who is it that can perform non-violent sacrifices in altogether perfect manner ? Who art Thou should be known by us. On whom art Thou dependent ? On none.

The answer to the questions is to be found in the next mantra.

Mantra—4

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे अग्ने (विद्वन्) यतः त्वं जनानां जामिः मित्रः प्रियः ईड्यः सन् सखिभ्यः सखा असि (तस्मात् सर्वैः सत्कर्तव्यः असि) ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned person ! as you are giver of peace to all men like water, their friend giver of happiness to your friends and praise-worthy, therefore we honour you.

PURPORT

Why should not men serve a person who being friendly to all, gives knowledge and other good virtues and happiness ?

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(जामिः) उदकमिव शान्तिप्रदः जामिरित्युदकनाम (निघ० १.१२)

= Giver of peace like water.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Besides the above meaning taking Agni for a highly learned person, there is the spiritual meaning of the Mantra relating to God as the following metrical translation shows :

Thou art our Kith and Kin.
Thou art our Dearest Friend.
Thou art Our Friend Worthy of praise.
Do us Lord always raise.

TRANSLATION

O learned person ! as you abide peacefully in your house, having self control, please unite us with strengthening Prana and Udana (vital breaths), Unite us with divine enjoyments and with true knowledge endowed with great wisdom and other virtues.

PURPORT

As God is Doer of good to all, just and liberal Donor, learned persons should also imitate Him.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मित्रावरुणा) बलपराक्रमकारकौ प्राणोदानौ ॥

= Prana and Udana which produce strength.

(ऋतम्) सत्यं विज्ञानम् = True knowledge.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

प्राणोदानौ मित्रावरुणौ (शतपथे ३.२.२.१३)

ऋतमितिसत्यनाम (निघ० ३.१०)

As Rita (ऋत) is derived from ऋ-गतिप्रापणयो: and the first meaning of गति is knowledge, therefore Rishi Dayananda has interpreted ऋतम् as सत्यं विज्ञानम् or true knowledge. As Rishi Dayananda has clearly hinted in the Bhavartha (purport) besides the above, there is spiritual meaning of the Mantra relating to God which is as follows :—

O God, bring to us teachers and preachers who are friendly to all and destroyers of the darkness of ignorance. Bring to our great sacrifice (of knowledge) the enlightened truthful persons. Grant to us Thy perfect peace and bliss.

प्राणोदानौ मित्रावरुणौ (शत० ३. २. २-१३) तद्वद् वर्तमानौ अध्यापकोपदेशकौ ञिमिदा-स्नेहने सर्वसुहृत् अज्ञानान्धकार निवारकश्च तौ अध्यापकोपदेशकौ । मित्रावरुणौ अध्यापकोपदेशकौ इति दयानन्दर्षिः ऋ० ७. १३. १० भाष्ये ।

TRANSLATION

What should we give and what speech agreeable to the enlightened persons and liked by them should be addressed to this Agni (Preacher of truth) who has noble indignation to root out evil and injustice, who as a soul realises that he is immortal spirit among the perishable bodies, observant of truth, receiver and giver of knowledge, unifier and who makes people full of divine virtues and learned. You should give him as we do.

PURPORT

A learned person enjoys happiness by glorifying God, by associating with the wise and acquiring divine virtues. We should also do likewise.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अस्मै) (अग्नये) विज्ञापकाय उपदेशकाय

(होता) ग्रहीता दाता = Receiver and giver of knowledge.

(भामिने) प्रशस्तः भामा क्रोधो विद्यते यस्य तस्मै।
= For him who is full of noble indignation against evil and injustice.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

होता is derived from हु-दानादनयो: आदाने च Therefore it has been interpreted as ग्रहीता दाता = Receiver and giver. Agni is derived from अग-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च Here the first and third meanings have been combined and it has been interpreted as विज्ञापकाय or enlightener. Besides अग्नि-इति पदनामसु पठितम् (निघ० ५.१) Thus also the meaning is the same as pointed out above as Observant of truth shows clearly that here Agni, as material fire cannot be meant.

TRANSLATION

O men, please with reverence a learned person who is giver of great bliss in Yajnas (non-violent sacrifices) truthful in thought, word and deed or observant of truth, giver of knowledge. He brings divine virtues and wisdom to men (helps in their attainment) as he knows them and unites men with them with the aid of knowledge.

PURPORT

None can be a true teacher except a wise man who is absolutely truthful in mind, word and deed. None can be honoured except such a virtuous person.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Even Prof. Wilson's translation of Ritava as "observant of truth as in previous Mantra and the translation of स च बोधाति मनसा यजाति as 'Agni' knows those who are to be worshipped, and worships them with reverence. substantiates Rishi Dayananda's contention that here अग्नि means a विद्वान् or learned person मन-अवगमे-बोधे वा hence मनसा विज्ञानेन । हु-दानादनयोः here it has been taken by Rishi Dayananda in the sense of विज्ञानस्य दाता = Giver of knowledge.

देवयन्तीः (कामयमानाः) आरीः (ज्ञानवत्यः) विशः (प्रजाः) मेधेषु तं दस्मं (सभाध्यक्षत्वेन) प्रथमम् उपब्रुवते । यः मित्रः न (सर्वस्य सुहृत् इव) भूत् (भवेत्) स हि खलु सर्वथा क्रतुः स मर्यः (मनुष्यस्वभावः) स साधुः अद्भुतस्य सैन्यस्य रथी (रथवान्) भवेत् ॥

TRANSLATION

All learned persons desiring the welfare of all subjects, speak of the Agni (leader or President of the Assembly) as the first and foremost destroyer of all miseries in all Yajnas in the form of reading, teaching and battles). He is truly the friend of all, endowed with wisdom and noble actions, a benevolent righteous man. He is the leader of the wonderful army.

PURPORT

Men should regard as King the President of the Assembly or the Council of Ministers one who is the best and the most virtuous benevelent man. No one man should monopolise all authority of the State, but an assembly of noble persons should be entrusted with all works of the State.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(दस्मम्) दुःखानाम् उपक्षेप्तारम् ।
= Destroyer of all miseries.

(मेधेषु) अध्ययनाध्यापनसंग्रामादियज्ञेषु
= In the Yajnas in the form of reading, teaching and waging righteous battles.

(आरीः) ज्ञानवत्यः = Learned or wise.

(देवयन्तीः) कामयमानाः = Desiring the welfare of all.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

दस्मम् is derived from दसु-उपक्षये hence the above meaning of दुःखानाम् उपक्षेप्तारम् मेध इति यज्ञ नाम (निघ० ३.१७) मेधाः– मेधृ-मेधासंगमनयोः

हिंसायां च। Hence the above interpretation given by Rishi Dayananda which is supported by the Verses like अध्यापनं ब्रह्मयज्ञ: (मनु०) दिवु-क्रीडा विजिगीषा व्यवहार द्युतिस्तुति मोदमद स्वप्न कान्ति गतिषु। here the meaning of कान्ति-कामना or desire has been taken both by Sayana and Rishi Dayananda Saraswati. Sayanacharya has interpreted it as देवानात्मन: इच्छन्त्य: आरी: is derived from ऋ-गति प्रापणयो: Taking the first meaning of गति as ज्ञान or knowledge Rishi Dayananda has explained it as ज्ञानवत्य:।

It is note worthy that in this mantra the epithet used for अग्नि (Agni) is मर्य: which Rishi Dayananda Saraswati has correctly and straightforwardly explained as मनुष्य:-मनुष्यस्वभाव: = A man of true human nature. But as Sayanacharya is not prepared to accept that Agni can be a man, he explains it as मर्य: as मारयिता-विश्वस्योपसंहर्ता and साधु: साधयिता उत्पादयिता creator of the word. It is certainly a very far-fetched meaning, while as Rishi Dayananda's meaning of the word मर्य: (Maryah) as मनुष्य: = Man and साधु: (Sadhu) as परोपकारी सन्मार्ग स्थितोविद्वान् is quite straight forward and simple. साधयति परकार्याणीति साधु: Griffith's translation is better. He has translated मर्य: as a man and साधु: as "perfect" which though not appropriate is better than Creator of the world.

TRANSLATION

O God knower and Beholder of all that exists, We praisers or devotees glorify Thee repeatedly with knowledge and other virtues. Let other men also do like wise.

PURPORT

All men should meditate upon God and having approached absolutely truthful learned persons, should acquire knowledge.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(गोतमाः) अतिशयेन स्तावकाः ।
(द्युम्नैः) विज्ञानादिभिर्गुणैः सह

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

In the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu, we read in 3. 16. गौरितिस्तोतृनाम (निघ० ३.१६) Therefore Rishi Dayananda has interpreted the word गोतमाः as अतिशयेन स्तावकाः = Those who glorify or praise well. द्युम्नम् इति पदनाम (निघ० ४.२) पद-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च So here the first meaning of ज्ञान or knowledge has been taken.

Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Griffith and others have committed the mistake of taking गोतमा: as the name of a sage and his descendents. Sayanacharya strangely interprets it as गोतमा:-अस्य सूक्तस्य द्रष्टा गोतमः ऋषिः। ऋषेरेकत्वेऽपि पूजार्थं बहु-वचनम् i. e. By गोतमा: is meant the desendents of the seer of the hymn गोतम (Gotama). Though he is one, plural has been used to show respect. Is it not strange that one should use plural to show respect to oneself? Yogi Shri Aurabindo has translated जातवेद: विचर्षणे as master of Light." He has remarked in the foot-note. The names of the Rishis are constantly used with a correct reference to their meaning." (See "On the Vedas" P. 314). Wilson following Sayanacharya has therefore translated it as Gotama celebrates thee Agni with praise. Even he translates जातवेद: विचर्षणे the epithets used in the Mantra for Agni as "Knower and beholder of all that exist, Are such epithets applicable in the case of inanimate material fire?" Rishi Dayananda is therefore right in taking Agni for God the Omniscient Supreme Being.

TRANSLATION

How is learned man is taught in the second Mantra.

O God the Lord of all wealth; as a learned person desirous of wealth (internal in the form of wisdom and external) worships Thee with his speech, in the same manner, we offer adoration to Thee from all side (every where) being endowed with good reputation and glory.

PURPORT

None can accomplish his desire of acquiring all kind of wealth without the communion with God and association with learned wise persons.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(गोतमः) विद्यायुक्तो जनः = A learned person.

(द्युम्नैः) श्रेष्ठैः यशोभिः = With good reputation.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

गौरिति पदनाम (निघ४.१) पद-गतौ Among the three meanings of गति the first of ज्ञान or knowledge has been taken here द्युम्नंद्योतेर्यशो वा अन्नंवा (निरुक्ते) hence the meaning of good reputation by Rishi Dayananda.

TRANSLATION

O learned person ! As God who is praiseworthy, in whom are all the thousands of eyes of all creatures, All-beholding or Omniscient, Giver of peace drives away all Rakshasas i.e. evil actions and evil minded persons and imparts the knowledge of the Vedas, thou shouldst also be like Him. An admirable wiseman also follows and obeys God in giving knowledge to all.

PURPORT

O men ! You should know that God or wiseman devoted to Him tell us the deeds that are to be done (our duties and also allthat should not be done, (sins and evils). You should act according to those instructions given in the Vedas.

तमिन्महत्स्वाजिषूतिमर्भे हवामहे स वाजेषु प्र नोऽविषत् ॥

वयं यः वृत्रहा सूर्यः इव इन्द्रः (सेनाध्यक्षः) नृभिः सह वर्तमानः शवसे मदाय वावृधे यं महत्सु आजिषु उत (अपि) अर्भे हवामहे तम् इत् ई । (सेनाध्यक्षं स्वीकुर्याम) स वाजेषु नः प्राविषत् ।

TRANSLATION

We invoke Indra (The commander of the Army) who like the sun is the destroyer of all wicked persons and is present with the men of army, assembly and the subjects, who grows for the might and for the happiness of noble persons. We invoke him in battles whether great or small. We accept him as the chief Commander of our army. May he be our protector in all battles.

PURPORT

Men should appoint as Commander in-chief of the Army a person who is highly learned, most powerful, righteous, the well-wisher or all, well-versed in the use of all arms and weapons and in training the troops, who is like a father to his servants and soldiers, who is knower of all dealings accordings to the needs of the hour, the place and the country. None other should be appointed on this most important post who does not possess these qualifications.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(इन्द्रः) शत्रुगणविदारयिता सेनाध्यक्षः ।

= The commander of the army who is destroyer of the foes.

(वाजेषु) संग्रामेषु = In the battles.

पुनः स कीदृश इत्युपदिश्यते ।

How should Indra (Commander of an Army) be is taught further in the Second Mantra.

Mantra—2

अ॑सि॒ हि वी॑र॒ सेन्यो॒ऽसि॒ भूरि॑ परा॒द॒दिः ।

हे वीर (सेनापते) यः त्वं हि भूरि सेन्यः असि भूरि परादतिः असि दभ्रस्य चित् महतः युद्धस्य अपि विजेता असि वृधः (वीरान्) शिक्षसि तस्मै सुन्वते यजमानाय ते (तुभ्यं) भूरि वसु अस्ति ॥

TRANSLATION

O brave commander of the army; thou art well-wisher of the troops and subduer of all hostile forces. Thou art victor of all battles whether small or great. Thou trainest soldiers and art giver of fearlessness and happiness. Thou hast abundant wealth of all kinds.

PURPORT

As it is the duty of the commanders of the armies to train, protect and gladden the men of the army, in the same way, it is the duty of the men of the armies to protect or guard the commanders of the armies.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(दभ्रस्य) ह्रस्वस्य । दभ्रमिति ह्रस्वनाम (नघ० ३.२)
= Of the small.

(यजमानाय) अभयदात्रे =for the giver of fearlessness.

(सुन्वते) सुखानामभिषवित्रे =Giver of happiness.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

यजमानाय is derived from यज-देवपूजा-संगतिकरण दानेषु Here Rishi Dayananda has taken the third meaning of दान or giving of fearlessness or safety.

पुनरेतैः परस्परं कथं वर्तितव्यमित्युपदिश्यते

How should they (the commander of the army and soldiers) behave with one another is taught in the third Mantra.

Mantra 3

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे इन्द्र ! यत् (यदा) आजयः उत् ईरते तदा भवान् धृष्णवे कं चित् शत्रुं हनः कंचित् मित्रं वसौ दधः अतः अस्मान् वसौ दधः ।

TRANSLATION

O Indra (commander of an army) when battles arise, thou destroyest thy enemy for firmness and givest wealth to thy friends and other noble persons. Yoke thy powerful and delightful horses, humble the pride of thy foes and place us in affluence.

PURPORT

When battles are to be waged, the commanders of the armies, should make proper arrangements for collecting arms, weapons of various kinds, food and clothing etc. and destroy their enemies. They should honour their friends, should appoint righteous persons in the battle and other works, should make their soldiers fight tactfully and thus get victory over their adversaries.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(हरी) रथादीनां हरणशीलौ =Horses.
(आजयः) संग्रामाः =Battles.
(धृष्णवे) दृढत्वाय =For firmness.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

आजौ इति संग्रामनाम (निघ० २,१७) धृष्णवे is derived from धृष प्रागल्भ्ये स्वा० or धृष - प्रसहमे चु ।

पुनः सेनापतिः किं कुर्यादित्युपदिश्यते ।

What should a leader of the army do is taught in the fourth Mantra.

Mantra—4

O Indra (Comander of the army) who caustest to attain great wealth, the man who well-protected by thy cars, goes first to the battle field on earth sitting in a chariot drawn by horses, protect thy subjects well through him. Enrich him with abundant wealth, as the unconscious rivers flow in all directions to the ocean.

PURPORT

There is upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra. The commanders of the armies and other officers should punish those workers of the State who do not discharge their duties properly and should honour well with valuable articles those who discharge their duties satisfactorily. One can establish order in the State work without punishing the guilty and rewarding the doers of satisfactory work. There fore this must be done.

TRANSLATION

As waters reach the cloud, noble learned persons approach educated wives shining with good virtues. They see the subtle cause of the vast universe in the form of atoms etc. along with other educated persons and realise the protection which is to be accepted and given. As noble educated and virtuous ladies accept as their partners in life lovers of God, Vedas and divine life, so they also serve and love such noble persons. Why should not such persons enjoy happiness?

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in this Mantra. How is it to be known who are truly learned and who are not is taught in the Mantra. Truly learned persons are those who are calm and quiet like waters, beloved like the Pranas (Vital breaths) engaged always in doing divine deeds, knowers of the means of truly protecting the body and soul of all, behaving like the ancient or experienced Vedic scholars and preachers of the Divine Dhama taught by God through the Vedas. Those whose conduct is contrary to the above attributes are to be considered as not truly learned.

TRANSLATION

As when two (Preceptor and pupil, husband and wife, king and his subjects, teachers and preachers etc.), endowed with proper means and having self control, jointly and without any kind of animosity worship Thee O God, Thou givest them admirable words through the Vedas. Even if a man who has not perfect control over his mind and senses, dwells in the conduct of truthfulness etc., he the performer of Yajna and charitable acquires auspicious power and prospers,

PURPORT

Only those persons attain liberation who try to develop with knowledge and strength the power of the body and soul of all with the idea of doing good to them, having given up all animosity, always are engaged in righteous conduct and prompt others also to tread upon the path of truth and none else.

TRANSLATION

As an illustrious observer of non-violence extends the true path, as a lovely and loving devotee becomes the protector of the true law and vows, as the vast sun attracts the earth and other worlds, as the son or disciple of a learned poet soon acquires knowledg of various sciences, in the same menner, we attain liberation of emancipation free from all misery and sins and birth by preaching wisdom and science and by acquiring thorough knowledge of God who is controller of the world.

PURPORT

If men desire to attain the happiness of emancipation by always treading upon the path of righteousness, by doing good deeds and by getting thorough knowledge of God, then they can certainly attain liberation from all misery.

TRANSLATION

In which sky-like divine act of knowledge a learned person who is admirable doer of noble industrial works and thus giver of great wealth imparts knowledge to a householder having good children. On suitable occasions, the sun or the person shining with wisdom utters wise words for the acquisition of knowledge. Where the cloud or the learned person like a cloud preaches to shower happiness to all; it is there that knowledge and wisdom are acquired.

PURPORT

As the water goes to the firmament and makes people happy by raining, so men should cut down all vices, should get knowledge and should gladden all persons. As the sun makes all happy by dispelling darkness and creating light, freightening the wicked, in the same manner, learned men should dispel the darkness of ignorance and by spreading knowledge, should make them happy. As the cloud by thundering and raining drives away famine and produces crops and good luck, in the same manner, by raining down good sermons, wisemen should destroy all un-righteousness and manifest Dharma or righteousness and thereby should gladden all.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

बर्हिः is derived from बृह-वृद्धौ It is by acquiriug true knowledge that a man grows or his faculties develop, so the interpretation put by Rishi Dayananda Saraswati as quoted above.

दिवि (Divi) has been explained by Rishi Dayananda as आकाशे इव दिव्ये व्यवहारे in the sky-like divine act of knowledge. Even Sayanacharya has not taken it here in the usual sense of 'in the sky' but as द्योतनात्मके यज्ञे ? In the bright Yajna or sacrifice.

This hymn is connected with the previous hymn as there is mention of the commander of an army and a preacher (as in that hymn.)

Here ends the eighty-third hymn of the first Mandala of the Rigveda.

TRANSLATION

O men, you should always accept as President or Commander of an army and respect a man who is of indomitable or irresistible might, who is admired even by the great knowers of the Vedas on account of his noble virtues and who is engaged in the performance of the Yajna in the form of imparting knowledge and protection of men and other beings, Let his strong horses bring him hither to our assembly.

PURPORT

It is not possible for men to enjoy happiness unless the persons placed in authority are noble and respected. It is not possible to attain a vast and good Government and to preserve it without doing noble deeds and honouring worthy persons. Therefore all this must always be done.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(इन्द्रम्) प्रजासेनापतिम्

O destroyer of enemies as the sun of the clouds, O brave commander of the army, ascend thy chariot in the form of aeroplane etc. in which horses or fire and water have been yoked along with the supply of food and other requisites or with an expert artist charioteer, chariot going on earth and even in water. A learned person who is like the cloud may deliver inspiring speech so that your mind or knowledge may well encourage or hearten brave soldiers.

PURPORT

The President of the State should appoint two officers in change of the army. One should be the Commander of the army who makes his soldiers fight heorically and the other-preacher who by his speeches animates or heartens them. When the battle is going on, the commander of the army should test his soldiers well, should encourage them and should make them bold with their foes, so that they may get a sure victory. When there is a pause or the battle is not actually going on, the preacher should put new spirit among all soldiers and the attendents by preaching to them about bravery, gratitude, righteousness and their duty etc. thus animating and heartening them. Those who do like this, cannot be defeated. (Both these departments should go hand in hand or side by side).

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

The white rays moving along with the sun that showers pleasant light all over enabling creatures to live in happiness, do become a cause of rejoicing by the charming light they afford and thus suck up the savoury essences diffused all over in space. So also, subjects acting in agreement with a powerful President of the State and living in peace and contentment, rejoice in the act of rendering their soveriegn kingdom beautiful by their industry and thus enjoy all the good things of the world.

PURPORT

It is not possible to preserve intact the beauty and protection of the swarajya (self Government) without the commander of the armies and the armed forces. As the rays of the sun cannot stand without the sun and cannot rain down showers without the air by drawing the water, in the same manner, the subjects cannot enjoy happiness and bliss without the king and the commander of the army.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The exact significance of 99 is yet to be found out by research. Most of the commentators take it only in the sense of many or in-numerable. The spiritual interpretation of the Mantra.

God who possesses un-restricted might slays with His sin-destroying powers nine senses-five senses of preception and four Antah Karanas or internal organs, mind and intellect etc., engaged in sinful thoughts and acts and therefore unable to protect a devotee who meditates. In this interpretation, the meaning of some important words may be taken as follows :

(इन्द्रः) परमेश्वरः इदि-परमैश्वर्ये
(अस्थभिः) पापप्रक्षेप समर्थाभिः शक्तिभिः असु-प्रक्षेपे ।

TRANSLATION

Wisemen recognise the hidden ray of the sun in the mansion of the moon i. e. the moon borrows her light from the sun. It is the rays of the sun which are manifest in the world. In the same manner, O ye King and other officers of the State, you should mingle with the subjects in their homes for the manifestation of justice.

PURPORT

Men should know that it is not possible that there is decay or contradiction in God's knowledge. At all times and in all actions, there is uniformity of the Laws of the Universe. In the same manner, there is the relation between the sun and the earth through the attraction and light etc. in the same way, it is with other worlds. because there cannot be contradiction in God's eternal laws.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(त्वष्टुः) मूर्तद्रव्यछेदकस्य (सूर्यस्य) = Of the sun.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

For the meaning of the word त्वष्टा the sun, there is the authority of Yaskacharya the author of the famous Nirukta where he says in 4. 4. 25.

TRANSLATION

The King should ask his commander-in chief the questions of the following kind in order to ascertain the real situation regarding his army. Who is among the soldiers of the army who desires to fight with his enemies, who is harmed or killed by the foes, who is a coward that fears in the battle ? Who is faithful or obedient to the King or President of the State actively engaged in the discharge of his duties? Who is attached to his children ? Who trains the elephants and who earns wealth righteously ? Who gives instructions for physical development and the welfare of the people ?

PURPORT

It is only persons who observe Brahmacharya (continence) for a long time and who are endowed with good education and other virtues that can accomplish all these acts and none else ? As the King should ask everything regarding the organisation of the army and its attendants, in the same manner, the commander-in chief of the army should ask the other commanders about it. As the King should order the Chief Commander of the Army, in the same manner, the commander-in chief of the army should give suitable orders to other commanders.

TRANSLATION

The Maruts (brave soldiers) are the sons of mighty conquerors of enemies whom they cause to weep. They are doers of good works, strong and impetuos. On their way, they look beautiful like wives decorated with ornaments. They are like powerful horses going to the battlefield. They promote the welfare of earth and heaven and are victorious in battles. Their horses shine and delight. With them O commander of the army you should protect the subjects well.

PURPORT

Their is Upamalankara (similes) used in the Mantra. TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is quite clear from the adjectives and other expressions used for the Maruts that they stand for brave persons or heroes. Yet Prof. Wilson, Maxmuller and other Western Scholars translate Marutah as "Storm Gods" which is entirely wrong. Their own translation of many expressions and adjectives clearly shows (as we shall point out here and there) that they are brave men and not storm Gods. Unfortunately Prof. Maxmuller was not able to grasp the spirit and meaning of many phrases. In his note he admits. "The phrase जनयःन सप्तयः is obscure (Vedic Hymns Vol. I P. 128). Not able to understand that there are two separate similes used in the Mantra, he takes them as one meaning mares or yoke-fellows etc. which is only his imagination. The adjectives and expressions like सुदंसस: =Doers of good works, वीरा: =Heroes and वृष्वय:, विदथेषु मदन्ति meaning according to him als etc. Powerful who delight in sacrifices clearly indicate that they are brave persons.

Prof. Maxmuller's translation of ये भ्राजन्ते ऋष्टिभिः as "The powerful who shine with your spears, and of Maruts, "the manly hosts shaking even what is un-shakable by strength" (Vedic Hymn Vol. P. 126) proves clearly that by Maruts are meant not "Storm Gods as" supposed by him but brave soldiers as interpreted by Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Rishi Dayananda has interpreted विष्णुः here as शिल्पविद्या व्यापनशीलो मनुष्यः which appears to be strange to some scholars, as they think that the word विष्णु (Vishnu) is used only for God and none else. But the word is derived from विष्लृ-व्याप्तौ and in that sense, it can be used for a learned person well-versed in arts etc. It is also used besides God for a person who has taken initiation as it is stated in the Shatapath Brahamana 3.2.1.17 यद्द दीक्षते तद् विष्णुर्भवति । दीक्ष-विशेषाबाने So Rishi Dayananda's interpretation is not imaginary or unfounded.

TRANSLATION

The winds are like heroes thirsting for fight against the wicked, like combatants eager for glory striving in battles. All beings are afraid of the Maruts (Winds as well as brave soldiers). They (winds) are like Maruts (Soldiers) leading men who are terrible for the wicked to behold or full of splendour like kings. As these brave soldiers should be properly treated, so the winds should be methodically utilised.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(शूराः इव) यथा शस्त्रास्त्रप्रक्षेप युद्धकुशलाः पुरुषाः = Like men experts in throwing missiles and weapons in the battles.

(नरः) नेतारः = Leaders.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Even Prof. Maxmuller's translation of the Mantra as "Like Heroes indeed thirsting for fight they rush about, like combatants eager for glory they have striven in battles. All beings are afraid of the Maruts; they are men terrible to behold, like kings."

(Vedic Hymns Vol. 1 by Prof. Maxmuller P. 127). shows clearly that they are brave men and not "Storm Gods" as supposed by him and some other Western Scholars Prof. Maxmuller had to admit willy nilly their human nature while translating राजान इवत्वेषसन्दृशो नरः which he has rendered into English as "They are men terrible to behold like Kings."

Griffith's traaslation of the Mantra is worth quoting. "In sooth like heroes fain for fight they rush about, like combatants fame-seeking have they striven in war.

Before the Maruts every creature is afraid, the men are like Kings, terrible to behold.

(Griffith's translation of the Hymns of the Rigveda Vol. 1, P. 110).

In foot-note Griffith adds:

The men, the Maruts.

This proves, whether admitted by the Western Scholars or not that the Maruts are brave soldiers and not some imaginary "Storm Gods". They have been likened to the impetuous winds in the Mantras as explained by Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati.

PURPORT

As fearless persons do not run away from the battle field, as warriors run towards the battle ground, as hungry persons desire food, so are soldiers eager to fight with uujust and wicked persons. As from Magistrates and Presidents of the State or Assemblies etc. unjust persons fear, in the same manner, from the winds or airs also men taking all sorts of things irregularly fear on account of their adverse consequences.

As charitably disposed persons dig a curved well in nether ground and wet the land with water for a thirsty traveller, in the same manner, good men should be like the wonderful pranas fulfiiling the desires of wisemen at places, by giving them houses to live in. They with beautiful splendour approach needy persons with help and satisfy their wants.

PURPORT

As men dig wells, water fields and gardens etc. and make people happy by satisfying their hunger with corn and fruits produced there, in the same manner, the Presidents of the Assembly and other officers of the State should satisfy the desires of learned wisemen who are experts in various

प्राणा वै मरुतः स्वापयः (ऐतरेय ३ १६)

According to the passage quoted above from the Aitareya Brahmana 3.16 it is clear that the word Marutah is used for the Pranas also, so Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati has interpreted it here as beloved learned persons like the Pranas.'

The word दिवः is derived from दिवु-क्रीडा विजिगीषा व्यवहारद्युति-स्तुति मोदमदस्वप्न कान्तिगतिषु here the meaning of द्युति has been taken and hence it has been interpreted as विद्यान्यायप्रकाशकाः or illuminators of knowledge and justice.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मरुतः) सभाध्यक्षाद्याः

= The Presidents of the Assemblies and other officers of the State.

(चर्षणीनाम्) मनुष्याणाम् = Of men.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

In the Vedic Lexicon Nighantu 2.3 it is clearly stated चर्षणय इति मनुष्यनाम (निघ० २.३) and yet Prof. Maxmuller translates the Mantra as For me O Maruts, have sacrificed at many harvests, through the mercies of the swift Gods (the Storm Gods). (Vedic Hymn Vol. I. P. 154). Having given this erroneous and imaginary translation, he puts a strange note on P. 157. "It seems best to take चर्षणि (Karshani) as a name or epithet of the Maruts, although, after the invocation of the Maruts by name, this repetition is some what unusual. I should have preferred "with the help of men, of our active and busy companions for Karshani (चर्षणि) is used in that sense also. (Vedic Hymn Vol. I. P. 157)

This note displays a strange mentality of some of these Western translators of the Veda, who seem to be in doubt about their own interpretation and yet go on making ill-founded and sometimes un-founded suppositions. When चर्षणयः is among the names of men in the Vedic Lexicon, why should it be translated as Storm-Gods ? an impartial reader is at a loss to understand. Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati's translation of the word चर्षणीनाम् as मनुष्याणाम् = Of men is well authenticated.

TRANSLATION

O Maruts (Presidents of the assemblies etc.) of true vigour, with your might preserve the secret, dissipate all happiness-devouring darkness of ignorance. Make us the light (of knowledge) we long for.

PURPORT

The President of the assemblies and other officers should protect the State with great labour, should dispel all darkness of ignorance and foes. They should spread Dharma (righteousness) knowledge and happiness for all righteous persons. As the Pranas in the body accomplish all dear objects and thus protect all, in the same manner, the Presidents of the assemblies etc. should protect all State properly. TRANSLATION

O Presidents of the assemblies and Chiefs of the armies etc. you should always maintain and fully support brave persons who are annihilators of, adversaries, endowed with exceeding vigour and power, great in all respects, un-bending or never flinching, the immovable, the impetuous and absolutely fearless, full of knowledge of various kinds, and gatherers of all the different parts of the army, the most be-loved and the most manly leaders,who throw away the powers of the foes possessing manifestly the power of protection and knowledge, full of virtues which ecclipse the attributes of the armies of the enemies, like the rays of the sun.

PURPORT

How can those people be defeated who have brave and mighty persons shining like the rays of the sun ? Therefore, it is the duty of the Presidents of the assemblies and Chiefs of the armies to protect such heroes after testing them well, having given them proper training, having respected and encouraged them. None can administer the State without doing this.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(प्रत्वक्षसः) प्रकृष्टतया शत्रूणां छेत्तारः

= Annihilators of the enemies well.

(विरप्शिनः) सर्वसामग्र्या महान्तः

= Great in all respects or with all necessary articles.

(ऋजीषिणः) सर्वविद्यायुक्ताः, उत्कृष्टसेनांगोपार्जकाः

(अंजिभिः) व्यक्तैः रक्षणविज्ञानादिभिः

= By protection, knowledge and other manifest attributes.

(स्तृभिः) शत्रुबलाच्छादकैर्गुणैः

= By the virtues which ecclipse the merits of the power of the foes.

(उस्रा इव) यथाकिरणाः तथा

= Like the rays of the sun.

Prof. Maxmuller and Griffith translated the word virapshinah as the singers (M.M.) or loud singers.

Even so this and other epithets used for Maruts which Prof. Maxmuller has translated in the Vedic Hymns as "the never flinching, the immovable, the impetuous, the most beloved and the most manly" clearly show that they are brave men and yet Prof. Maxmuller, Griffith and other Western Scholars tranlate the word Maruts as "Storm-Gods." This is nothing but their pre-conceived notion.

TRANSLATION

O workers of the Presidents of the assemblies and Chiefs of the armies etc. who sitting in your vehicles like the aeroplanes flying like birds along a certain path, you get victory, you give the cerdit to those favourite attendants of the President etc. who honours you. Your aeroplanes travel in the sky like the clouds. Sprinkle in them sweet coloured water in the machines impelled by the proper combination of fire, air etc.

PURPORT

Men should manufacture aeroplanes and other Vehicles, should make there places for fire, air and water etc., and should impel or move them forward with machines, controlling the steam taking them upward, travelling freely in the sky like the birds and the clouds. They should utilise them in their business in achieving victory on their foes and for acquiring wealth for the State. They should engage themself in doing benevolent acts without any pride and thus enjoy all bliss and happiness. They should also cause bliss and happiness to others.

TRANSLATION

When these sportive roaring shakers of their foes armed with bright weapons brave Maruts (soldiers) march on the paths for victory, they glorify their greatness. At their racing the earth shakes with their chariots like a girl suffering from cold fever.

PURPORT

As the swift winds shake the trees, grass, herbs and the particles of the earth, in the same manner, the cowards begin to tremble by the striking sound of their chariots wheels and the weapons they use in their army. As traders become rich through their business having acquired much wealth, in the same way, the Maruts (President) of the State and Commander of the army and their brave soldiers manifest their greatness and glory by achieving victory over their adversaries

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

अर्कोमन्त्रो भवति यदनेन अर्चन्ति अर्को देवो भवति यत् एनम् अर्चन्ति (निरुक्ते ५.५) ।

So both meanings of Mantras and Devatas in the sense of learned persons विद्वांसो हि देवाः (शत०) can be taken.

Prof. Maxmuller's translation of स्वर्कैः as "resounding with beautiful songs" is also worth quoting, approaching Rishi Dayananda's first meaning, though he is still obsessed with strange idea of the chariots of the Storm Gods."

विद्युन्मद्भिः he translates as "Charged with lightning instead of electricity as done by Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati "Fly to us like birds" (Maxmuller). (वयोनपस्ताः) clearly shows that there is reference to the vehicles like aeroplanes and not ordinary chariots though Western Scholars are not prepared to admit, as such advancement in science would go against their pet "Evolution Theory, Wilson's translation of सुमखा: as "doers of good deeds" is worth-quoting.

वाशीति वाङ्नाम (निघ० १.११)

Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati's interpretation of वाशीः (Vasheeh) as वेद विद्यायुक्ता वाचः is clearly borne out by the Vedic Lexicon (Nighantu 1.10) saying वाशीतिवाङ्नाम (निघ० १.११)

O men, you should always serve those most wise learned persons desiring the welfare of all,who creating or producing wealth, food and teaching the Vedas, inspire you with the Vedic Mantras like the land where a well has been dug for drinking. They have accomplished for you this divine intellect, pure like water and wealth.

PURPORT

O seekers after truth, as men construct with great labour a tank etc. for quenching their thirst and accomplish many works thereby, in the same manner, you should accomplish all your noble acts by acquiring knowledge with great labour with the association of the learned and by obtaining pure intellect which illuminates all sciences.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

गृधु is drived from गृधु-अभिकांक्षायाम् सुसूधागृधिभ्यः क्रन् इति औणादिक सूत्र द्वारा क्रन्प्रत्ययः ॥

It is simply ridiculous for Prof. Maxmuller to translate it as "hawks." (See Vedic Hymns Vol. 1 P. 196 and 175).

Regarding "वार्कार्यम्" (Varkairyam) Prof. Maxmuller admits in his notes :- The meaning of Varkaryam is of course unknown. Then he resorts to some conjectures, absurd like "It might have been glorious or the song of a poet called Varkara or as Ludwig suggests Vrikari."

Such conjectural meanings are most un-authentic, but many Western Scholars resort to them very often as Prof. Maxmuller has stated in his notes on verse No. 3 of this hymn regarding Medha saying un-blushingly "nothing remains, I believe, but to have recourse to conjecture."

(Vedic Hymns Vol. I, P. 174).

Rishi Dayananda Sarsvati has rightly taken strong exception to this absurd conjecture on the part of Prof. Maxmuller.

But having given the following translation which has practically no sense. "This comforting speech rushes sounding towards you, like the speech of a suppliant; it rushes freely from our hands as our speeches are wont to do.

(Vedic Hymns Vol. I, P. 169).

Prof. Maxmuller adds in the Note :

My own translation is to a great extent conjectural.

(Vedic Hymns Vol. P. 178).

What is the value of such a conjectural translation when the translator frankly admits that the verse is almost intelligible to him.

This hymn is connected with the previous hymn as the system of learning and teaching has been taught here for the accomplishment of knowledge.

May auspicious benevolent doers of good deeds, inviolable or un-molested from all quarters, un-forsakable or worthy of association, annihilators of all miseries, learned men endowed with divine virtues ever come to our homes to give us knowledge. May they be our protectors every day for our advancement, never failing their duties, being alert or devoid of laziness.

PURPORT

As a well-built good house suitable in all seasons gives all happiness, in the same manner, men should know that knowledge, learned persons and Yajnas consiting of arts and crafts cause happiness to all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(क्रतवः) प्रशस्तक्रियावन्तः शिल्पयज्ञधियो वा ।

= Doers of good deeds or engaged in doing Yajnas in the form of advancement of arts and crafts.

TRANSLATION

May we possess the benevolent and pure wisdom of learned persons of up-right nature leading innocent lives free from all deceit and hypocrisy. May the enlightened persons desiring the advancement of knowledge, give us good education. May we cultivate friendship with learned men. May the enlightened truthful persons enable us to extend the span of our life by giving nobleadvice and instructions.

PURPORT

It is not possible for any one to increase his physical and spiritual power without the association of absolutely truthful learned persons and the observance of Brahamcharya (continence) and other rules. Therefore, all should ever have the association with learned wise persons.

ऋजूयताम्) आत्मनः ऋजुमिच्छताम्

TRANSLATION

As we praise with the Vedic Speech which gives us exact and true knowledge of all, objects (Bhaga) a prosperous man (Mitra) a man friendly to all (Aditi) person endowed with the light of all knowledge (दक्षम्) a dexterous learned man, (asridham) a non-violent person (Aryaman) a just man (Varuna) a virtuous person punishing the wicked, (Soma) a man of peaceful nature, so you should also do. A learned woman who is like the cultured and refined speech and who is source of prosperity and good children to us may make us happy. May the teachers and students of technology and the combination of fire and water etc. be source of happiness to us.

PURPORT

It is not possible for any one to know correctly the definition of learned and foolish persons. A speech which is not cultured and refined as the result of wisdom and good education can never be the source of happiness. Therefore, it is the duty of all persons to acquire knowledge of all sciences by knowing the definition of the learned and foolish persons, by accepting the association of the wise enlightened and by giving up the company of un-educated persons.

TRANSLATION

O enlightened persons living well with knowledge and other means of happiness, since hundred years have been appointed for the ordinary life of a man, kindly do not interpose, in the midst of our passing existence, by inflicting infirmity in our bodies so that we may attain the age when our sons become fathers in turn.

PURPORT

It is possible only by the association of learned noble persons that by the acquisition of knowledge even children become respectable like old persons and by doing noble deeds, mature old age is attained. Therefore learned enlightened persons should do all this and help others to do it.

TRANSLATION

God is always eternal and industructible. The sun, firmament or sky, mother and knowledge, father and guardian, son or disciple, all enlightened persons or divine objects, five sense of perception or of action all souls, are called Aditi, as they are indestructible in their causal form and by the flow of the cycle of creation. Whatever has come into existence and what will come in the course of time is all Aditi as eternal God is the efficient cause of all objects and they are never destroyed totally, but remain in some form or the other.

PURPORT

Here the sun, sky, firmament, mother, father etc. have been called as अदिति as in the form of their ultimate cause Prakriti (Matter) or by their flow of cycle of creation, they are indestructible. The other reason is that all these objects mentioned in the mantra are the meanings of the word अदिति (Aditi), so that where ever the word Aditi occurs in the Vedas, any of them may be taken taking into account the context. God, souls and matter are particularly called by the name of Aditi, as they are eternal and indestructible.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The word Aditi (अदिति) is derived from दो-अवखण्डने with नञ् denoting negation. Aditi therefore means indestructible. The scientific law of the indestructibility of matter is meant here and not pantheism as wrongly supposed by some persons. Several meanings of the word Aditi which occurs so often in the Mantras are also denoted, which must be borne in mind while interpreting them correctly. Of course, the context must be taken into cosideration.

In this hymn learned persons, students and light etc. have been included in the word "Vishve Devas." So this hymn is connected with the previous hymn. Here ends the eighty-ninth hymn of the first Mandala of the Rigveda.

TRANSLATION

(1) May the Almighty God the friend of all be gracious to us. May Varuna the most acceptable Supreme Master be bestower of peace on us. Many God the Divine Judge-Despenser of justice be the granter of peace to us. May the Lord of all power and pelf be gracious to us. May the Lord of all great world and the Vedic Speech be giver of peace to us. May the Almighty Omnipresent God bestow peace upon us.

(2) The Mantra is also applicable to a learned righteous person who is मित्र friendly to all वरुण the most acceptable अर्यमा dispenser of justice इन्द्रः giver of great wealth of wisdom बृहस्पतिः Protector of the great Vedic Speech विष्णु pervading in all virtues i. e. virtuous उरुक्रमः = mighty or doing works methodically. May such learned persons be givers of peace to us.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(वरुणः) सर्वोत्कृष्टः

= The best, the most, exalted Excellent.

(विष्णुः) सर्वगुणेषु व्यापनशील: = The most virtuous.

PURPORT

There is none who is a true friend like God, Dispenser of justice, great Lord, Omnipresent and Giver of happiness. There is none who can be a better friend, acceptable, doer of dear deeds, righteous, true, the giver of knowledge and other wealth, the protector of knowledge virtuous and mighty. Therefore all men should enjoy bliss by glorifying God by praying to Him and by having communion with Him. They should also serve learned persons and should have association with them and thus enjoy bliss.

This hymn is connected with the previous hymn, as there is mention of God and duties of the teachers and the taught as in that hymn.

Here ends the commentary on the 90th hymn of the first Mandala of the Rig Veda.

हे सोम त्वम् अयं च विश्वतः अघायतः नः (अस्मान्) रक्ष (रक्षति वा) हे राजन् ! त्वावतः सखा न रिष्येत् (विनष्टो न भवेत्) ॥

TRANSLATION

(1) O God, Friend and Illuminator of all, protect us from all evil-minded guilty persons from all quarters, who want to harm us. The friend of one like Thee can never perish.

(2) It is also applicable to Soma plant in the limited sense of protecting from various diseases and giving energy to fight with the wicked.

PURPORT

Men should thus pray to God and try to reach that state when not even the desire of giving up Dharma (righte-ouaess) and accepting un-righteousness arise, in mind. It is the desire of the mind that leads towards Dharma (righte-ousness) or adharma (un-righteousness). Therefore one should control his mind in such a way that it may never think of giving up righteousness and resort to un-right-eousness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O Soma-Vaidya or physician of peaceful disposition, protect us from every work that causes us misery or suffering. Preserve us from all ignorance, sin and physical diseases. Be our true friend causing us good happiness.

PURPORT

A good physician causes happiness and bliss by keeping away from all physical and mental diseases like ignorance. Therefore, he should be served and associated with.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अभिशस्तेः) सुखहिंसकात् कार्यात्

= From a work that causes misery or suffering.

(उरुष्य) रक्ष । उरुष्यतीति रक्षतिकर्मा ।

(निरुक्ते ५.२३) अत्र ऋचि तु नु इति दीर्घः ।

(अंहसः) अविद्या ज्वरादि रोगात्

= From physical (like fever etc.) and mental diseases like ignorance and sin.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

That the word सोम in the Vedas is used for a Vaidya or Physician of a peaceful disposition is quite evident from the Mantras like.

ओषधयः संवदन्ते सोमेन सह राज्ञा । यस्मै कृणोति ब्राह्मणस्तं राजन् पारयामसि ।। (ऋ० १०. ९७, २२) and सोमो वै ब्राह्मणः (ताण्ड्य० २३.१६.५)

The Vaidya according to the Vedas must be a true Brahmana (a man of peaceful and unselfish nature) as the very definition of a Bhishak (Physician) clearly denotes :

यत्रौषधीः समग्मत राजानः समिताविव । विप्रः स उच्यते भिषग् रक्षोहाऽमीवचातनः ।।

(Rig. 10. 97.8)

Here the epithet विप्रः or Brahmana has been used for a physician. So Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati's interpretation is quite authentic.

How is Soma is taught further in the 16th Mantra.

हे सोम विद्वन् वैद्यकवित् ! ते विश्वतः वृष्ण्यम् समेतु त्वम् आप्यायस्व वाजस्य संगथे रोगापहा भव ।।

TRANSLATION

O virile Vaidya or lerned physician ! let thy virility or vigour come to us from all sides. Go on growing or developing. At the time of battle between the armies, be thou the destroyer of diseases.

PURPORT

Men should always increase or develop the power of body and soul by serving the learned and taking in the drugs having acquired the knowledge and strength, developing the knowledge of the whole world, conquering enemies and protecting righteous persons.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सोम) वीर्यवत्तम = The most virile.

(संगथे) सङ्गथ इति संग्रामनाम (निघ० २.१७)

= In the battle.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

रेतः सोमः ।। (कौषीतकी ब्रा० १३.७) शत० ३.३.२ १

TRANSLATION

O God ! Thou art the punisher of all haughty persons. May we attain all powers and knowledge of all kinds which showers happiness on all. Thou who art perfect, grant to the immortal soul good reputation in the light and delight of spiritual knowledge.

(2) It is also applicable to highly learned persons who should try to attain emancipation while doing good to others.

PURPORT

Men should attain and preserve all noble virtues and good articles with knowledge and labour by the association of learned men, observance of the rules of health and taking of proper medicines. They should thus accomplish Dharma (Righteousness) Artha (wealth) Kama (noble desire) and at the end attain emancipation by the Grace of God.

TRANSLATION

O learned man of peaceful disposition ! in whatever places you perform Yajna in the form of noble acts by the study and teaching of the Vedas etc. may we approach them. As you are augmenter of wealth, transporter over miseries, attended by valiant heroes, approaching men devoid of knowledge and good education to give them instruction, come to our homes and oblige.

PURPORT

None can benefit from the world without the knowledge of their properties. Therefore men should accomplish all works by acquiring knowledge of all objects from earth to God by the Association of learned persons.

TRANSLATION

(1) In case of God as Soma-Creator of the world the meaning is clear.

To him who surrenders himself to God, He gives powerful speech and Milch-cow, a swift horse, and a brave son who is active and dexterous, skilful in domestic concerns, assiduous in Yajnas (non-violent sacrifices) and battles, eminent in society and obedient to his parents and wisemen in general.

(2) It is applicable in the case of a highly learned person of peaceful nature, who when properly served gives instructions which enables a man to have good speech, heroic son, swift horse etc.

PURPORT

As learned persons enable men to accomplish good acts by giving instructions and prompt them to exert themselves, in the same manner, Soma and other good herbs also give good strength and vitality.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Though unfortunately Prof. Wilson, Griffith and many other Western translators of the Vedas have not been able to grasp the teachings of the Vedas and have erroneously translated Soma as wine or liquor, yet even their own translation of this Mantra Rig. 1. 91. 22 is worth quoting.

Prof. Wilson's translation is as follows :

"Thou Soma, hast generated all these herbs, the water, and the kine, thou hast spread out the spacious firmament, thou hast scattered darkness with light." (P 140)

Griffith's translation is :

"These herbs, these milck kine, and these running waters, all these, O Soma, Thou hast generated.

The spacious firmament hast thou expanded and with the light thou hast dispelled the darkness."

(Hymns of the Rigveda Translated by Griffith, Vol.1, P. 117).

Is it ever conceivable that Soma here who is said to be the creator of the world is wine-liquor or moon-plant ? It is quite evident to any un- prejudiced mind that it is meant for God only.

TRANSLATION

O men, you should know well the dawns that have spread light over the world in the morning; they make manifest the light in the eastern portion of the firmament, brightening all things, like warriors brandishing their weapons; the radiant and progressive mothers of the earth, they travel daily on their course.

PURPORT

In this globe, the light of the sun illuminates the half portion, while as the other half remains in the dark. Without the light of the sun, no object can be known thoroughly. The rays of the sun appear to be moving every moment as they penetrate into the world. The Usha (dawn) that is in this globe is, visible, while as that which is in the other globe is invisible. They are of the same attributes in all worlds and in all directions. As the weapons appear to be in front and opposite directions while being moved, in the same manner, the dawns appear to be in front and behind according the movemets of the world.

They have restored, as of yore, the consciousness and actions of sentient creatures and bright rayed have attended upon the glorious sun or have attained their brillancy. They (dawns) should be utilised well.

PURPORT

The rays of the sun which after serving or illuminating the worlds go out, decorate the sky becoming ruddy by the combination of the earth and the sun. When the dawns come out or manifest themselves, the consciousness of the beings expresses itself. The Dawns or the rays of the early sun which touch the earth and being ruddy attend upon the sun and penetrate the herbs and plants, should be used well by all men in their conscious state.

TRANSLATION

The Usha (dawn) ancient and eternal (by flow of the cycle) born again and again, and bright with unchanging hues or decking her beauty with the self-same raiment, diminishes the life of a mortal, like the shewolf cutting into pieces the dogs and other animals or the female hawk hunting the moving birds.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara (simile) used in the Mantra.

As a she wolf cuts into pieces dogs, deer and other animals and as a she-hawk kills flying birds, in ihe same manner, the Usha (dawn) is diminishing our life. Knowing this, we should give up all idleness, should get up early in the morning and engage ourselves in the acquisition of knowledge, Dharma and doing good to others. Those who bear this is mind, how can they be ever lazy and unrighteous ?

THE COMMENTATOR' NOTES

(पुराणी) प्रवाहरूपेण सनातनी

TRANSLATION

The Usha (dawn) has been seen illuminating all objects and the boundaries of the sky, and driving into disappearance the spontaneously retiring night that is like her sister. Like the wife of a debaucherous person, she being like the wife of the sun, diminishes the life of all beings and denotes the various periods of the years and cycle of ages. She must be served or utilised properly.

PURPORT

Men should know that as an un-chaste woman diminishes the age of her paramour a debauchee, in the same manner Usha which is related to the sun dispels the darkness and manifests,the day and thus in a way gradually diminishes the age of all creatures. Knowing this, men should utilise well the interval between day and night and attain full age.

TRANSLATION

The bright Charming and blessed Usha shines forth extending her rays as a cowherd drives the cattle to pasture and spreads extensively, like flowing water. She is beheld associated with the rays of the sun, never transgressing the Divine vows of truth, purity and kindness etc. observed by the enlightenen persons.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara (simile) used in the Mantra. As a trader does not prosper without cattle and other animals and river does not become without deep water, in the same manner, men do not prosper well without the proper knowledge of the Usha (Science of time) and exertion.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O lady ! As the Usha enriched with noble actions yokes in purple rays and causes us to enjoy all felicities, in the same manner, you should also help us in cultivating noble virtues.

PURPORT

Men can not attain prosperity without constant exertion, therefore they should always endeavour in such a way as to grow in wealth (both material and spiritual) more and more.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(वाजिनीवति) वाजयन्ति ज्ञापयन्ति गमयन्ति वा यासु क्रियासु ताः प्रशस्ता वाजिन्यः विद्यन्ते अस्यां सा = Enriched with noble actions that lead to happiness and peace.

(अश्वान्) वेगवतः किरणान् = Speedy rays.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The word वाजिनी is derived from वज-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोर्थाः ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च here the first two meanings have been taken, hence the above interpretation. At dawn meditation on God, and study of the Vedas and Yajnas are performed which lead to happiness, bliss and peace, therefore the above epithet for Usha.

TRANSLATION

O men, You should know and apply Agni and Soma (electricity and wind in causal form) which are multiplied by God and which are instruments in the creation of various worlds for the Yajna consisting of knowledge and action.

One of them (Agni or electricity) takes its subtle element from the sun and the other Soma (wind) which is like speedy horse takes its element from the cloud.

PURPORT

O men, you should know that these wind and electricity have two natures. One of them is their causal form and the other gross from which is the effect. The causal form being very subtle can only be grasped by subtle knowledge and intellect, the gross form only can be grasped through the senses. It is through the effect that one can slowly grasp the nature of the cause. This is an easy path.

TRANSLATION

Who ever puts oblations of the Ghee etc. in the fire and takes benefit from electricity and air, shines well or becomes glorious.

PURPORT

Those persons who perform the practical Yajna (with fire and air) attain great prosperity and good luck.

TRANSLTOR'S NOTES

Here by Yajna is meant practical use of fire (including electricity) and air for various purposes.

पुनस्तौ किं कुरुत इत्युपदिश्यते ।

TRANSLATION

O officers and men of the State. You who are like fire and air cherish our horses and may our cows which yield much milk be well nourished. Make soon our non-violent Yajna source of happiness among wealthy and noble persons and cause our holy rites to be successful. Grant us strength to perform religious rites.

PURPORT

Without air and electricity, none can get strength and nourishment. Therefore they should be applied well in various works thoughtfully.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(उस्रियाः) गावः = Cows.

TRANSLATOIN

O learned President of the Assembly, to you who are worthy of praise, Knower of all important objects, we send this eulogy with our pure intellect like a car or aeroplane etc. May our intellect be ever pure, thinking of the good of all and sharp. Let us not suffer harm in your assembly and friendship. You may also never suffer harm.

PURPORT

As men honour their friends by building vehicles like the aeroplanes with the science of technology, in the same manner, they should respect great scholars also industriously. Whenever members of an assembly attend the meeting. they should be impartial and always bear in mind the welfare of all. They should never give up a philanthropic act. What ever knowledge they possess about fire and other elements, they should tell it to others in a friendly manner. Without this sort of friendship, it is not possible to bring about the well-being of the people.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O enlightened person distingnished on account of thy knowledge and other virtues, the man whom thou givest happiness because he causes happiness to others on all sides, he achieves much strength and accomplishes his object, like a man travelling by aero plane, prospers and helps others to grow. Poverty never approaches him. Let us not suffer in thy friendship.

PURPORT

Those who have friendship with the enlightened persons and are well-versed in the science of Agni (fire and electricity) attain perfect strength of body and soul and dwell in happiness and not others.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(आयजसे) समन्तात् सुखं ददते
Persons causing happiness on all sides.

TRANSLATION

O Agni (learned President of the Assembly) may we be able to acquire that knowledge that makes us enlightened. Endow us with wisdom and noble actions. It is with you as President that enlightened persons take good food, thoughtfully accepted. Bring hither learned persons who have observed Brahmachaya till the age of 48 years, as we long for them. May we not suffer any harm in your friendship.

PURPORT

Those persons who having the association with learned men, patiently acquire knowledge and apply that for various practical purposes, enjoy happiness being endowed with intelligence and noble deeds.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O Agni (learned person) we bring fuel and all other articles required for the performance of Yajna, picking up virtues with perfect means, so that you may be free from all anxieties for doing Yajna and other noble deeds. Do thoroughly accomplish and purify our intellects and noble actions in order to prolong our lives. Let us not suffer harm in your friendship.

PURPORT

The men belonging to the army and assembly and general public should provide an intelligent learned person who multiplies intellect and industriousness with all necessary articles. They should never give up friendship with him.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(पर्वणा पर्वणा) पूर्णेन २ साधनेन

TRANSLATION

(1) O God Thy attributes which are preservers of all people spread around and both bipeds aad quadrupeds are enlivened by Thy illustrious acts. Thou art wonderful great illuminator of the world and far superior to night and dawn over which Thou rulest as Sovereign. Let us not suffer any harm in Thy friendship O Supreme leader.

(2) The Mantra is also applicable to the President of the Assembly who should be the preserver of all and in whose rule, all bipeds and quadrupeds should feel happy.

PURPORT

Men should never give up the true friendship of God who is the cause of the creation, sustenance and dissolution of the world on account of His Greatness. They should also have friendship with the President of the Assembly whose duty it is to protect all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O God the Sustainer of all, Thou art Adhvaryu the organiser of this Yajna (in the form of this Universe), Thou art Hota-Giver of happiness and accepter of our adoration. Thou art eternal Teacher and Preacher of Dharma (Righteousness and good education adored by all ancient sages. Thou art Pota-Purifier. Thou art Purohita or Benefactor of all with the Universe created by Thee. Thou knowest the duties of all priests and givest success. O Supreme Leader, therefore may we never suffer harm in Thy Friendship.

The Mantra is applicable in the case of the learned priest also who should bring about the welfare of all.

PURPORT

There is Shleshlaukara or double entendre used in the Mantra. The world can not be sustained without God who is the Lord of all and without enlightened persons who show the right Path. Therefore all should enjoy happiness by having communion with God and by associating themselves with the wise.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

= The organiser or leader of the Yajna (a non-violent noble act).

(प्रशास्ता) धर्मसुशिक्षोपदेशप्रचारकः
= Teacher and Preacher of Dharma and good education.

(जनुषा) जातेन जगता सह = With the born world.

(धीर) धारणादिगुणयुक्त = Upholder

(पुरोहितः) हितप्रसाधकः = Benefactor.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

This Mantra even with the faulty translation of Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Griffith and Oldenberg, proves beyond the least shadow of a doubt that the Agni mentioned here is not the material fire but a conscious being-God or a learned priest. The epithets like धीर, विश्व आर्त्विज्यानि विद्वान् पुरोहितः, प्रशास्ता etc. make it quite clear.

Shri Sayancharya translates धीर as प्राज्ञ, प्रशास्ता he explains as प्रकर्षेण शास्ता सर्वेषां शिक्षकोऽसि = Supreme teacher of all.

पुरोहितः - पुरोहितो ब्रह्मा देवपुरोहितस्य बृहस्पतेः प्रतिनिधित्वात्

Following Sayanacharya Prof. Wilson translates "Thou art the director of the ceremonies, their performer or by birth the family priest, thus conversant with all the priestly functions. thou performest perfectly the rite.
In his note on P. 309 Prof. Wilson says:-

" Agni is here identified with the Chief of the sixteen priests engaged at sacrifices....... or Purohita may be the same as the Brahma of a ceremony. Oldenberg translates the third line as "Knowing the duties of every priest thou givest success. O wise one."

(Vedic Hymns Vol. II. P. 1. 8. 109).
Is it applicable to material fire ?

Griffith's translation of the Mantra is--

Thou art presenter and the Chief-in maker, thou art director, Purifier, great High priest by birth.

Knowing all priestly work thou perfectest it Sage. Let us not in thy friendship Agni, suffer harm.

Griffith quotes in his footnotes Prof. Wilson's note given above with great approval. (Hymns of the Rigveda by Griffith P. 122).

Does all this not countenance the view of Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati, that by Agni in such Mantras is not meant material fire but God and a learned leader.

पुनः सभाध्यक्षभौतिकाग्नी कीदृशावित्युपदिश्यते ।

How are the President of the Assembly and material fire is taught furher in the seventh Mantra.

TRANSLATION

O Agni revealer of Truth (President of the Assembly or a great technologist) Thou who art beautiful and manifester of true knowledge, looking equally or imparcially upon all, thou shinest even when afar like lightning or electricity. Thou seest O President of the Assmbly, even over the darkness of night (by the proper arrangements of all kinds). May we suffer no harm in thy friendship.

PURPORT

The President of the Assembly even when sitting afar, illumines all persons even if they are devoid of virtues as the sun or the lightning or electricity illuminate all embodied objects. Who should not keep friendship with him ? All must be friendly to him.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is gratifying to note that though Sayanachrya, Wilson and Griffith have taken तडित् here as near (Wil) or close at hand (Griffith) Oldenberg in the Vedic Hymns (Vol. 11, P. 108) has like Rishi Dayananda, taken it to mean "like lightning."

O Agni (President of the Assembly, army or the educational institution) strike away with thy weapons of wisdom (in the case of Acharyas) or the other fatal arms those of evilspeech and intellect, malicious devouring demons be they near or far. Make a good path for him who praises knowledge and wisdom and tries to attain them, performing practical Yajna (benevolent act). May we not suffer any harm in thy friendship.

PURPORT

The Presidents of the Assembly and other chiefs should remove all bad discourses, evil reading and teaching leading to un-righteousness, should create harmony and friendship among all subjects whether they are far or near, taking them all as friends, so that abiding bliss may grow more.

(1) O Agni (Commander or Leader of the Army) when thy delighted vegetarian subordinates or soldiers go on the good easily accessible path, then thy enemies are terrified from the noise of their chariots like the birds at the noise of the grass-consuming flames of the fire. The cars go on the path quite easily striking dread in the hearts of thy foes. May we not suffer any harm in thy friendship.

(2) The Mantra is also applicable in the case of the material fire. The meaning there is. At the roaring of the fire, even the birds are terrified. when its flames, consuming the grass, spread in all directions, the wood is easily accessible for the chariots to pass. May we not suffer any harm in the friendship of the fire-utilising it properly.

PURPORT

Men should know that they can certainly conquer their wicked enemies when they fight with them with the armies well-equipped with electric and other weapons made of fire and using vehicles like aeroplanes etc. delightedly. Those who are ignorant of the science of fire etc. cannot get victory in battles. Therefore all this must be done. The army should be well-equipped and should fight with delight taking it to be their duty to put down the wicked foes.

TRANSLATION

O Refulgent God endowed with Divine attributes, Thou art the Bestower of Supreme Bliss on the enlightened truthful Persons, Giver of all felicity and Destroyer of all misery. Thou art the Abode or Sustainer of the earth and other worlds which are abodes of all creatures. Thou shinest in all non-violent philanthropic works known as Yajnas including the inviolable Upasana or communion with Thee. O supreme Spirit, may we be under Thy most wide-reaching protection. May we never suffer harm in Thy Friendship.

PURPORT

The Friendship with God and learned persons which gives true delight cannot be firm and permanent unless one is alert at all times. Therefore all of us should always have firm, stead fasr and resolute intellect.

TRANSLATION

O God, This is Thy most auspicious and glorious nature that when kindled in Thy own abode (the world or the heart) and augmented with devotion commingled with knowledge, Thou art tke Giver of true delight and merciful. Thou bestowest charming wealth, wisdom and noble virtues on Thy worshippers of good Character. May we suffer no harm in Thy friendship.

(2) The Mantra is also applicable to a great scholar who when praised and respected, gives wealth of wisdom and noble advice to the persons devoted to him. His friendship should never be given up. This is the glorious and auspicious nature of a truly learned person.

PURPORT

Men should always advance the cause of knowledge, Dharma (righteousness) and education by imbibing the true nature of God and His devout Scholars through the Vedas, the laws working in the Universe and they should be friendly to all in their conduct.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

(1) May we be certainly among those persons O immortal Imperishable God, to whom Thou O Possessor of beautiful wealth art pleased to grant sinlessness in all dealings, in health and wealth and whom Thou wilt quicken with glorious strength (physical and spiritual) and with good progeny.

(2) It is also applicable to a great scholar who makes people sinless and strong. He regards himself as immortal and Imperishable Atma (Soul).

PURPORT

The man to whom God manifests in his soul sinlessness, urging him to be so, he being fond of association with learned persons enjoys happiness, having obtained all kind of wealth and noble virtues. Therefore we should also do likewise.

O God desired by all, Giver of life's prosperity, Thou who knowest how to grant happiness, prolong our prosperous life and augment our knowledge here. May the Mitra (Prana) Varuna (Udana) Aditi (all objects that are produced) Ocean, earth, the light or electricity, may all created by Thee increase our strength and happiness.

(2) The Mantra is also applicable to a highly learned person who should give the knowledge of all objects to all.

PURPORT

Men should increase their good fortune, prosperity and life by taking shelter in good and highly learned persons, acquiring the knowledge Physical science and being industrious in this world.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(आयुः) जीवनं ज्ञानं वा = Life or knowledge.

(देव) सर्वैः कमनीय = Desired by all.

TRANSLATION

Two sisters of different shapes owing to light and darkness wander along, pursuing a good aim. Both of them suckle the calf born in the form of the world. In one of them (at night) there is the moon that dispels heat and is endowed with nectar-like sap of herbs. In the other, (at day) is seen the sun - clear and full of fine splendour. They should be utilised properly, having acquired their knowledge with Algebra and other Sciences.

PURPORT

Men should know that day and night do not cease but they exist in different parts of the Universe. They should accomplish all their works that are to be done at night and that are to be done in day time without laziness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(वत्सम्) जातं संसारम्

TRANSLATION

O men ! you should know these ten directions which like un-wearied industrious young women bringforth from electricity or wind this germ the origin of all dealings, widely-spread, the upholder of various activities, endowed with its own sharp forces or splendour, shining among men (particularly mathematicians) and glorious. They carry it around in the form of day and night.

PURPORT

Men should know that these ten directions like east, west, north and south etc. are the accomplishers of all dealings. Therefore they should perform all their works regularly and punctually and should not waste their time in doing unrighteous acts.

THE COMMENTATOR' NOTES

TRANSLATION

O men, well-versed in Mathematics, it is day and night that divide the seasons of the year for the benefit of earthly creatures and form in regular succession the eastern quarter according to the rise of the sun. One part of this Ahoratra (the combination of day and night) is in the glorious sun, one is in the ocean and the third is in the Prana. It is its particles or parts that are decorated by the actions done by me in the past, future and present times. This you should know well.

PURPORT

It is not possible to have three times past, future and present without the parts of day and night. Without them, no season is possible. Men should accomplish all works, knowing the movement of the time by the Sun and wind in the firmament.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(त्रीणि जाना) भूतभविष्यद् वर्तमान विभाग जन्यकर्माणि

= Acts done by men in the past, present and future.

(जाना) जनेषु भवानि

(दिवि) द्योतमाने सूर्ये

= In the glorious sun.

(अप्सु) प्राणेषु, अप्सु वा

= In the pranas or water.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is note worthy that Oldenberg in the Vedic Hymns Vol. II has admitted his inability to understand clearly the meaning of the above Mantra. In his note he says-it is surprising that Agni's birth in the sea and his birth in the waters are distinguished. The poet's meaning is not quite clear. Prof. Max Muller thinks of the rising sun and the lightning in the clouds.

In Note 3 he says:– "But this interpretation of our passage is by no means certain."

(Vedic Hymns Vol. II by Oldenbard P. 116).

This is a specimen of many Western Scholar's conjectural interpretations. Can we rely upon them, when they themselves are not certain about the correctness of their interpretation ?

TRANSLATION

Who can understand the definite nature or secret of this Time who possessing many attributes, endowed with his noble parts or powers, covering all with his pervasion, looking over all (so to speak) along with earth, hearth, heaven and other worlds or directions generates mother-like protective nights ?

PURPORT

Men should know that it is only an expert scholar who can comprehend the nature of Kala (Time) whose knowledge is very subtle, who manifests all different divisions of the time and pervades all actions being always the same.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(निण्यम्) निश्चितं स्वरूपम्

TRANSLATION

Appearing amongst the waters and manifest in all dealings, the bright shining Agni increases rising above the flanks of the waving waters, spreading his own renown; both day and night or heaven and earth are alarmed, as the radiant Kala (Time) is born, and they approach and serve the lion-like fierce Agni (fire).

PURPORT

Men should know that the Agni (fire) is born from the time of the creation of the world and as disintegrator going upwards and being in the wood it grows and is the pointer of directions in the form of the sun. It comes into existence at a certain time and perishes at the appointed time.

TRANSLATION

Both the auspicious ones (day and night) or heaven and earth serve him (Kala or Time) with their attributes like two female attendants, as lowing cows desiring calves follow their paths. He is the lord of might and the protector of the knowledge and dexterity among mighty experts in knowledge, arts and handicrafts. All other parts or divisions desire him with oblations in the Dakshirnayana or Sun's progress south of the equator-winter solitice or sitting in the right side of the fire.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra. Men should serve or utilise day and night and other parts of Time. They should perform only righteous acts like the Yajnas (non-violent sacrifices) in them and should never do unrighteous acts.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

The time that stretches forth his arms and controls all like the sun controlling the worlds with his attraction, is fierce, comes again and again and controls moments, sets in motion strength and force, decorative earth and heaven, animals, winds and fire, that sprinkle through the rain. The Kala (Time) takes upwards all force continuously and puts off new garments.

PURPORT

You should do all works punctually and regularly knowing the greatness of Kala (Time) who is the cause of the sun and other objects of the world, who covers all with various particles like moments, who is the controller of all and the course of all activity.

TRANSLATION

Time like a sage assumes an excellent and lustrous form coming in and causing contact with the rays and the Pranas in the world. This science regarding the vital force of the Pranas along with intellect and action is purified. This leads to the knowledge of God and true nature of enlightened wise persons.

PURPORT

Men should know that it is not without time that effect is produced and dissolved at the end; it is not without the proper use of the time of observing Brahmacharya (continence) that the intellect is able to understand all Shastras. Therefore knowing the subtle nature of time, it should never be wasted, but all worldly and spiritual duties should be discharged punctually, giving up all laziness.

TRANSLATION

O learned person, Time glorious like the sun by thy association with all radiant, undiminished and protective powers prevades the resplendent firmament, great splendour that subdues wicked persons, the basis of great worlds. Preserve and protect us and render real service to us.

PURPORT

Men should know that without the all-pervading Kala (Time) the existence of the sun and other objects of the created world is not possible and without it, we cannot do any work.

(त्रयः) त्रयन्ति अभिभवन्ति आयुर्येन तत् ॥

= Splendour that subdues wicked persons.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is absurd for Oldenbarg to translate the words महिष used in the Mantra as buffalo which does not give any sense at all. Prof. Wilson's and Griffith's translation "of the might" is better and more faithful, based upon the Vedic Lexicon महिषइतिमहन्नाम (निघ० ३.३)।

O purifying learned person, as Time or fire in the form of lightning or electricity growing with our glorious nature or with the fuel supplied by us blaze variously for a righteous wealthy person, for good reputation or good food and as Prana, Udana, all created objects or causes, ocean, earth and the light of electricity help in our growth, so should you help us to shine on account of our noble virtues.

PURPORT

None can acquire wealth endowed with knowledge without learning the science of Kala or Agni (fire in various forms). None can take proper benefit from Prana and other substances without utilising them in time and punctually. Therefore, all should do all this and should ever enjoy bliss, having accomplished all works.

TRANSLATION

Those learned persons who worship God as the Giver of wealth, accomplish all their works with His help. Their Pranas, teaching and other works, their friendship and intellect are accomplished with the aid of the science of art and industries. The man who becoming mighty, truly studies and upholds the Kavyas (Poetical Scriptures in the form of the Vedas) like ancient sages, acquires knowledge and enjoys happiness.

PURPORT

No one can become a true poet without observing Brahmacharya and acquisition of knowledge and without being a true poet, a man can not accomplish all works after getting the knowledge of God and electricity. Therefore, all this should ever be done by all.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(आपः) प्राणाः = Pranas or vital breaths.

(च) अध्यापनादीनि कर्माणि = Teaching and other works.

(अग्निम्) परमेश्वरं भौतिकं वा = God or material fire.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

प्राणा: वा आपः ।। ब्रा० ६. ६. ४

आपो वै प्राणा: ।। शत० ३. ८. २. ४

प्राणो ह्याप: ।। जैमिनीयोपनिषद् ब्राह्मणे ३. १०. ६

Rishi Dayananda Saraswati's interpretation of आपः as प्राणाः is based upon these ancient authorities and is not his own imagination, as very often critics think because unfortunately he has not quoted the above and other authorities to substantiate his interpretation.

Oldenberg translates the Mantra taking the word अग्नि for material fire only, but strangely enough he renders 'सद्यः काव्यानि बलधत्तद्विश्वा' as 'Being born by strength, Agni has assumed instantly all the qualities of a sage. (See Vedic Hymns Vol. II by Oldenberg P. 119).

Can any one say so for material fire ? Is not Rishi Dayananda Saraswati justified in taking Agni here for a learned person as he prefaces his interpretation of the Mantra saying "अथाग्निशब्देन विद्वद्गुणा उपदिश्यन्ते" i. e. By Agni, the attributes of a learned person are taught.

TRANSLATION

O Illuminator of knowledge among all men, (God or learned person) May we also acquire your vow of truth. May we obtain that wealth which is possessed (material as well as spiritual) in the form of wisdom, by great scholars and kings, by men of friendly nature, men of noble merits and disposition, learned mothers and enlightened persons, water in the firmament, earth and the light of electricity.

PURPORT

Men should learn from God and learned persons truth, character, wealth earned by righteous means, pious men, theoretical and practical science with labour and then should try to bring about the weltare of all, making all happy.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(वैश्वानर) सर्वेषु मनुष्येषु विद्याप्रकाशक

(रायः) विद्याराज्यश्रियः

= Knowledge and royal prosperity.

(अदितिः) विश्वेदेवाः सर्वे विद्वांसः

= All learned persons.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

Aditi has been interpreted by Rishi Dayananda on the basis of the Vedic Mantra. अदितिर्द्यौरदितिरन्तरिक्षम्... विश्वे देवा अदितिः पंच जनाः (ऋ० १. ६. १६. १०) Yaskacharya has also explained अदितिः as अदीना देवमाता = A learned mother of enlightened truthful persons.

(विद्वांसोहि देवाः) (शत० ३. ७. ३. १०)

This hymn is connected with the Previous hymns as there is mention of God, Agni and learned persons as in that hymn.

TRANSLATION

Let us place at the disposal of that God Almighty, the Knower of all born beings, whatever wealth we possess, whose Eternal Vedic Lore completely scorches him who acts otherwise-inimical to His Commands. He burns or destroys the wealth of a wicked person. Then will that Self effulgent God, overcoming all evil, take us beyond all difficulties to the Supreme Goal of our life, like conveniently crossing a river in boat or crossing the ocean in a steamer.

PURPORT

As sailors take men across an ocean easily and conveniently in steamers, so God when well-meditated upon, takes men seated in the midst of the great ocean of the world, full of miseries across by giving them true Wisdom. It is only the true devotees of God that can enjoy supreme bliss by conquering all enemies (both external and internal in the form of lust, anger, greed etc.). Others can not command power to do so.

TRANSLATION

May Indra (God and absolutely truthful person), whose glory is like the sun, the slayer of un-righteous wicked persons by giving the good or bad fruit of action, present in every object and sturdy, not to be attained and known by ignorant or inimical persons but by those who obey God's command and are learned devotees acting like God's friends. May he be ever for our protection.

PURPORT

It is difficult for ignorant people to comprehend all attributes of the solar world & learned persons, not to say of God. It is not possible for any one to have complete protection without taking shelter in them. Therefore all must have friendship with them.

person, the witherer of the un-righteous, who with His might is enduring but overcoming all.

(2) The Mantra is also applicable in the case of a noble teacher and Vedic Scholar true in mind, word and deed.

PURPORT

As all paths become visible and clearly passable in the light of the sun, and free from the fear of robbers and thieves, in the same manner, the paths of the learned and of God become illuminated by the teachings of the Vedas. Without treading upon them, none can be devid of amimosity and other evils. Therefore all should tread upon those paths.

TRANSLATION

May Indra (Commander of the Army) be our Protector who is true in mind, word and deed, mighty with brave soldiers living together in his neighbourhood as his sons, who make their enemies weep by overcoming them in battles, who has a highly intelligent and wise person as his secretary or Minister, destroying all his adversaries by organising a strong army.

PURPORT

That commander of the army who has a strong force consisting of well-trained brave persons respected and treated like sons, equipped with powerful weapons, destroying un-righteous wicked persons and preserving righteous men, can rule over a vast and good Government. He alone should be honoured by all men of the public and the army.

TRANSLATION

May Indra (Commander of the Army) who is the represser or conqueror of wrath, the doer of gladdening deeds, the protector of the good, invoked by many, be our protector on this day, he who is present with our men strong in body and soul. May he manifest the justice in war like the light of the sun.

PURPORT

As all objects become source of gladdess in the light of the sun, in the same way, good men who are renowned on account of Vidya (wisdom) Dharma (righteousness) and justice become givers of happiness, having attained righteous judges along with their children, grand children, wives and servants. It is he who is conqueror of wrath and always causer of gladness to good people that can become fit to be the commanders of the Army. He alone can get victory over his enemies, who knows everything important regarding the past, is prompt in doing good deeds at present and is thoughtful and none else.

TRANSLATION

May that Indra (Commander of the Army) be our protector who is glorified by all, on account of his protective powers, whom people make protector in battles, who is bringer of happiness and doer of good to all and who is the Master of all merciful acts.

PURPORT

A man who conquers many warriors even when single, should be encouraged in battles and everywhere else. None can get as much bravery by other means as from proper encouragement.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

There is also a spiritual interpretation of the Mantra as given by Rishi Dayananda in the Aryadhivinaya, taking Indra for God. The Almighty God is glorified by all. He is the One that has the power to have Compassion and disburse His favours on the whole universe. There is none else like Him. May He, the Master of all humanity, of the hosts of creatures and vital forces save us from everything untoward so that we may not be vanquished by our foes.

TRANSLATION

May Indra (President of the Assembly etc.) be our ruler, whose thunderbolt-like band of powerful weapons draws cries (from his enemies) and applause from good men) is conveyer of happiness and whose merits, actions and temper shine like the light of the Sun or are brilliant as the luminary of heaven. His thunderbolt makes great noise and is the promoter of beneficent acts. He is served by all and upon him do donations and riches attend.

PURPORT

The members of the Assemblies, their attendants, persons of the army and general public should perform such noble deeds that knowledge, justice, Dharma (righteousness) and labour or exertion may ever grow and shine like the sun. Without such noble deeds, it is not possible to have the enjoyment of happiness, wealth and protection. Therefore presidents of the Assemblies etc. should always perform good deeds.

TRANSLATION

May Indra (President of the Assembly) be our protector by whose physical and spiritual power, the people enjoy on all sides honour and Vedic wisdom along with the light of knowledge and the kingdom of the earth. May he protect and preserve the subjects with happiness, being glorified on account of noble acts and always acting according to the proper limits of Dharma (righteousness) and justice.

PURPORT

He alone is fit to be the President of the Assembly or the council of Ministers, who is able to respect the virtuous, subdue the wicked, can set proper limit for everything and bring about bliss by making people industrious.

PURPORT

Can any one guage or reach the limit of the strength of the Almighty or Infinite God who with His might has created all objects from the eternal cause-Primordial Matter, sustains them and at the end dissolves-them ? Why should He not be adored, worshipped or meditated upon by all ?

and makes a man rich among human beings. He who knows its real nature, becomes wealthy by utilising it properly and scientifically.

PURPORT

When fire is kindled for the movement of various vehicles like the air-crafts, its two forms are visible, one is bright and the other is black. Therefore Agni (fire is called in Sanskrit by the name of श्याम कर्णाश्व As ears are seen above the head of a horse, in the same manner, above the fire there is a black flame.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

It is wrong on the part of Sayanacharya, Prof. Wilson, Griffith and others to take Rijrashva, Ambareesha, Sahadeva, Bhayamana, Suradha and other words as proper nouns. According to the Meemansa and other Shastras, Vedas being eternal can not contain proper nouns denoting particular historical persons. Therefore, these words denote various attributes as explained by Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati, according to their derivation. It is strange that Sayanacharya has gone against his own principle of the Vedic terminology expounded by him in his introduction to the Commentary of the Rigveda on the basis of आख्या प्रवचनात् परन्तुश्च ति सामान्य मात्रम् and other aphorisms of the Meemansa.

The wives of Krishna–Rijishwa is said to be a King, the friend of Indra: Krishna to be an Asura, who was slain, together with his wives, that none of his posterity might survive. Krishna, the black, may be another name for vritra, the black cloud, or we may have here another allusion to the dark-complexioned aborigines". (Page 315)

TRANSLATION

An expert learned person gets vast splendour following the directions of the scholars who are like the Pranas and who make wicked persons weep (out of repentance). A learned lady who is endowed with knowledge and free from ignorance develops that splendour with the practice of Pranayama and living along with young students. Therefore we invoke for friendship that Indra (President of the Educational Institute) with other scholars who honour that renowned scholar with noble intellect.

PURPORT

Those persons enjoy happiness who conquer or have control of their Pranas (Vital breaths) with the practice of Pranayama, win good men with honour and overcome wicked persons with showing disrespect, who diffuse the knowledge of all sciences, adore God and noble preceptor and show respect to all beings by benevolent acts.

O great scholar possessing the great wealth of wisdom, may we acquire the knowledge of the Vedas which makes us rich and prosperous, living with thee. O possessor of dexterity and strength, possessing infinite wealth of Vedic wisdom and its conveyor, may we perform teachnical and industrial works, while living with thee. O efficient supreme teacher, living with the band of students and surrounded by Priests come to attend this our noble Yajna in the form of studying, teaching and honouring deserving learned persons and gladden us being thyself delighted.

PURPORT

No one can attain the wealth of wisdom and bliss without the association of learned persons. Therefore all should honour learned persons and having acquired knowledge and good education from them, let them be respected everywhere.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The word (Soma) सोम is derived from षु-प्रसवैश्वर्ययोः, therefore Rishi Dayananda has interpreted it ऐश्वर्यं कारकं वेदशास्त्र बोधम्। The word हविः (Havih) is derived from हु-दानादनयोः आदाने च In all technical works, there is the process of 'give and take.' So it has been taken in the sense of क्रिया कौशल युक्तं कर्म In the Vedic Lexicon - Nighantu we read बर्हिषि इति महन्नाम (निघ० ३.३) Therefore it has been intepreted by Rishi Dayananda Sarasvati as अत्युत्तमे which means very good or great.

May we wage battle and receive sustenance along with a commender of the army who is praised by all for speed and other attributes of the winds and brave soldiers and who is the protector of all dealings free from suffering. May friends, noble persons, earth, firmament, river and ocean, the light of sun etc. help us in advancement so that we may become respectable everywhere.

PURPORT

It is not possible to defeat enemies without a very mighty commander of the army. The Commander in-chief can not overcome foes and preserve the State without the aid of a well-trained strong army, equipped with all weapons and other requisite articles. Without this, friends and others cannot be the givers of perfect happiness. All this must be known well by all people.

TRANSLATION

May Indra (President of the Assembly) who is destroyer of his enemies from all sides, be our instructor for ever. Never forsaken by him and free from crookedness, let us honour him by giving well-cooked food. May friends, noble persons, earth, firmament, river and ocean, light of the sun etc. help us in advancement so that we may become respectable everywhere.

PURPORT

This is the way in which all servants should behave. They should obey the commands of their masters. They should hear sermons delivered by highly educated persons knowing various sciences.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O God ! The wise sages from the times immemorial see the evidence of Thy Supreme Power with external signs in this Thy world. Thy power shines upon the earth in one form and in heaven in another form. The water also manifests Thy Power. As an army engaged in battle is known by its flag, in the same manner, all the objects of this wonderful world manifest Thy Glory like a banner.

PURPORT

O men, whatever beautiful created object there is in the world, it is also God's creation. This magnificent marvellous world cannot come into existence without God the Creator. Therefore there is God who is the Creator of this Universe and there is the soul, who makes some articles. This should be known by all with certainty.

TRANSLATION

O men, you should know that the Sun who upholds the earth with his actions, who illuminates the world with his lustre and having struck the lightning with his rays has extricated the waters, strikes the cloud, cutting off its shoulders (so to speak) has been created by God.

PURPORT

Men should clearly understand that the sun that is the upholder of the earth through the rain with his power of destruction, gravitation and illumination, who is the cause of the movement of all beings, can never come into existence without being created by God.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(मघवा) सूर्यः = The sun.

TRANSLATION

(1) O men ! behold this vast and extensive truthful conduct of the commander of the army who being like the sun has got the lands, has obtained great substances, herbs and plants, waters and forests or the rays of the sun, utilising properly all of them. Hold him as example for virility.

(2) The Mantra is also applicable to God in which case it means Behold this, the vast and extensive might of Indra (God) and have confidence in His Prowess. It is He who has created the earth, the cattle, the horses and all great objects, the herbs and plants, forests and the rays of the sun and He pervades them all.

PURPORT

We respectfully offer much wealth to Indra (Commander of the army) who is doer of many noble deeds, the rainer of happiness and joy or showerer of benefits, the possessor of true strength, the hero who takes away wealth from thieves and robbers who do not perform Yajnas and other noble deeds and who are miserly and gives them respectfully to righteous wise men. You should also do like wise.

PURPORT

Men should appoint him as commander of an army who is enterprising like a robber, who is un-equalled in might, is industrious and who snatches away wealth from thieves and gives them to righteous wise men with great respect and honour.

TRANSLATION

If a Government servant knowing the nature of wealth misappropriates the public funds or a man of the public takes as bribe the money belonging to the State and increased with compound interest, both of them are ruined like the two quarelous and jealous wives of a man committing suicide by drowning themselves in the flow or current of a river.

PURPORT

A Government servant or officer of the State who acts against the interest of the public or a man of the public who acts in opposition to the righteous Government cannot enjoy happiness. A Government Servant or officer who in order to achieve his self-interest causes harm to the subjects prejudicially and earns much wealth and a man belonging to the public who misuses the Government money by theft and deceit-both of them are ruined like the two wives of an unrighteous wealthy person who drown themselves in the flow or current of the river out of quarrel with and anger towards each other. Therefore a servant of the State should give up opposition to the men of the public and the public should not have any kind of ill-feeling towards the officers or workers of the State. They should co-operate with one another,

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The simile clearly indicates the evil results of polygamy which is against the teachings of the Vedas.

Ludwig's explanation (as quoted by Griffith in his footnote) is simply absurd and mischievous. It is that while the poor Arya who can only wish for the wealth which he does not possess has not even ordinary water to wash himself in, the wives of the enemy, in the insolent pride of their riches, bathe in milk (Quoted by Griffith in his foot-note on the Mantra 1. 104. 3).

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The subjects justly protected by the President of the Assembly etc. from thieves and robbers are seen as a well-guarded dwelling place. Knowing well that they are well-protected, they come and go to their houses. O President of the Assembly or Commander of the Army, do not cast us away as a libertine throws away wealth. Do not act against our interests.

PURPORT

As a well-built and well-guarded house protects its inhabitants from thieves and cold, heat and rain and preserves the wealth, so the subjects properly protected by the President of the Assembly and other officers of the State, guard them well. The officers of the State should not ruin people as a libertine ruins his body, Dharma (righteousness) knowledge and good manners or as the abundance of wealth is ruined by men out of jealousy and vanity, using it for unjust purposes. But they should always support the subjects with humility and love, knowing the good acts done by them for their welfare. They should never run away from wicked enemies out of fear.

O Indra (President of the Assembly) As we have trust in thy mighty power and great wealth, do not in any way harm our subjects that are always to be protected.

Give us a share of sun-light or vital power, calmness of the waters, sinlessness and good reputation on account of good conduct.

PURPORT

President of the Assembly or other officers of the State should never give punishment to such people among the subjects of a State as give much wealth for the accomplishment of the works related to the administration with honesty and genuine faith. But those who are thieves and robbers and other wicked people, they should always be punished severaly. He who gets the authority or rank of the Commander of an army, should please his countrymen by spreading the light of knowledge and justice like the sun, by generating like water, peace and satisfaction, by being free from injustice and guilt and by conducting himself in an admirable manner.

TRANSLATION

O Indra (President of the Assembly) giver of great prosperity and slayer of enemies, you who art invoked by many, showerer of happiness, do not deprive us of good food and noble off-spring for the fault not done by us. You who provide food to the hungry, direct us to great wealth. Do not consignus to destitutie dwelling. I place my trust in you and truthful conduct.

PURPORT

The judges and other dispensers of justice should never punish innocent subjects. They should collect taxes from them and should make them grow in every manner in wisdom and industriousness, thus making them happy and full of bliss. The people of the public should have faith in this true deed of the President of the Assembly and other officers of the State.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O Indra (President of the Assembly) you are said to be fond of Soma (juice of various nourishing herbs) we have prepared this for you. So please come into our presence. Drink of this (Soma) for your exhiliration. You who are full of vast knowledge and respected on that account, take this juice into your stomach and when invoked, hear us as a father listens to the words of his sons.

PURPORT

The people belonging to the public should please the President and other officers of the State with food and drinking, clothes, wealth, conveyance and sweet speech etc. The President and officers of the State should also nourish their subjects like their own children.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(उरुव्यचाः) उरु बहुविधं व्यचो विज्ञानं:पूजनं सत्करणं वा यस्य सः

= Full of vast knowledge and respected on account of that and other virtues.

TRANSLATION

The moon that is giver of delight and is graceful moving speeds along the airs in the sky or depends upon the light of the sun or electricity. The lightnings of the bright golden rays do not get the benefit of your thoughtful technical dealing i. e. you are not able to use them properly. O Kings and subjects who like the heaven and the earth, learn from me–a scientist, all about this subject.

PURPORT

O President and officers of the State and subjects, you should know about the coolness and light of the moon that is the result of her shadow, middle region and water. The electricity that shines is visible, but the sign of that which in hidden, cannot be seen with eyes. You should know all this and enjoy happiness.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अप्सु) प्राणभूतेषु वायुषु
= In the airs that are like Pranas,

(दिवि) सूर्यप्रकाशे = In the bright golden rays.

(हिरण्यनेमय:) हिरण्यस्वरूपा नेमि: सीमा यासां ता:

TRANSLATION

Those who seek for wealth, obtain it, a wife enjoys the presence of her husband. The rulers and their subjects having taken nourishing good food and the essence of various vitalising herbs get rid of various maladies, in the same way, I should also do and make others grow.

PURPORT

As a wife enjoys happiness having got a suitable dear husband and a husband is glad to receive a beloved wife, in the same manner, electricity which accomplishes various purposes always causes happiness to the person who acquires the knowledge of electricity, earth and the light of the sun and utilises it properly. None can acquire this knowledge without the association of the knowers of this Science; none can also destroy misery without it, therefore all should acquire such knowledge with great labour.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(तुंजाते) दुःखानि हिंसतः । व्यत्ययेनात्रात्मनेपदम्
= Destroy misery.

(पयः) अन्नम् पय इत्यन्न नाम (निघ० २. ७)

(रसम्) स्वादिष्ठम् ओषध्यादिभ्यो निष्पन्नं सारम् ॥
= The delicious essence of the various nourishing herbs.

TRANSLATION

O enlightened persons, do not destroy or neglect the Divine Joy (of the communion of God) that is even above the sky or the light of the sun. May we never go against the most desirable spiritual development caused by God who is Lord of the world and source of Peace and Happiness.

PURPORT

Men should never do in this world an act which is against Dharma (righteousness) and happiness. Men should always achieve the progress in happiness by labour. The rest as before.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(दिवः) सूर्यप्रकाशात् = From the light of the sun.

(शूने) वर्धने । अत्र नपुंसके भावे क्तः ।

= In the growth of development शूने is derived from श्वि-गतिवृद्ध्योः Here the second meaning of वृद्धि has been taken by the Commentator. Tr.

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे विद्वन् ! अहं त्वा प्रति यम् अवमं यज्ञं पूर्व्यम् ऋतं क्व गतं कः नूतनः तत् बिभर्ति इति पृच्छामि स दूतः भवान् तत् सर्वं विवोचति (विविच्य उपदिशतु) अन्यत् पूर्ववत् ।

TRANSLATION

(1) O learned person : I (a pupil) ask Thee about the Protector and Adorable and Omniscient God. Where is the Vedic Wisdom which is Eternal and acquired by ancient seers and sages? Who among the modern people bears that knowledge. Tell me about all this as thou art a true messenger of Truth. Therefore please instruct me about this. The rest as before.

PURPORT

The students who desire to acquire knowledge should approach great scholars and multiply their knowledge by putting them questions and receiving their answers. O learned teachers, you are welcome : Come here and having acquired the knowledge of the attributes or properties of various articles of the Universe, teach them to others also what is true and what is untrue.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(यज्ञम्) सर्वविद्यामयम् = Omniscient.

(अवमम्) रक्षादिसाधकस्य उत्तममर्वाचीनं वा
The good means of protection.

(दूतः) इतस्ततो वार्ताः पदार्थान् वा जानन्
Like a messenger who knows about various things.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

विष्णुर्वै यज्ञः (एतरेय १.१५)
यज्ञो वै विष्णुः (शतपथ १. १. ३.१, १३. १. ८. ८)
यज्ञो वै विष्णुः (कौषीतकी ब्रा० ४. १ ॥ १८,८, १४)
(ताण्ड्य ९, ६. १० गोपथ ३. ४ ६)

So it is clear that the word Yajna stands for Omnipresent and Omniscient God.

The same subject is continued.

Mantra—5

अमी ये देवा: स्थन त्रिष्वा रोचने दिवः ।
कद्व ऋतं कदनृतं क्व प्रत्ना व आहुतिर्वित्तं मे अस्य रोदसी ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृत:)

हे विद्वांसः । यूयं दिवः रोचने त्रिषु अमी ये देवाः आस्थन वः तेषाम् ऋतं कत् अनृतं कत् । वः तेषां प्रत्ना आहुतिः च क्व भवति (इति एषाम् उत्तराणि ब्रूत) अन्यत् पूर्ववत् ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned persons, you should answer the questions regarding the light of the bright solar world, the name, place and origin of the earth and other worlds or divine attributes. What is their true cause, what is the effect and when and how is their ancient dissolution etc. The rest as before.

PURPORT

The question is when there is dissolution of all worlds, where is then the cause, the effect and the souls ? The answer to the question is. All worlds and souls then stand in Omnipresent God and the sky in causal form. All different worlds which are related to each sun so far as light and gravitation are concerned, have been created and are sustained by God. It is He who keeps them in proper order and Law.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(देवा:) दिव्यगुणा: पृथिव्यादयो लोका: = The earth and other worlds possessing divine attributes.

(त्रिषु) नामस्थानजन्मसु = Name, place and orgin.

(दिवः) द्योतकस्य सूर्यमण्डलस्य = Of the refulgent solar world.

(ऋतम्) सत्यकारणम् = True cause.

(अनृतम्) कार्यम् = Effect.

The same subject of questions and answer is continued.

Mantra—6

TRANSLATION

O learned persons, where is the upholder of the true cause of these gross objects ? Where is the realisation of God the most acceptable or where can we see the water and other elements ? How can we go beyond the difficult dealing and path of the great sun or be fully endowed with this knowledge ? The rest as before.

PURPORT

Those who desire to acquire knowledge, should approach learned persons and ask them questions as to the cause and effect and the path of knowledge. They should get their answers and should enjoy happiness by accomplishing various works with arts and industries, thus destroying all misery.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(वरुणस्य) जलादिकार्यस्य = Of water and other objects that have been created by God.

(अर्यम्णः) सूर्यस्य = Of the sun.

(दूढ़य:) दु:खेन ध्यातुं योग्यो व्यवहार:, तस्य
= Of the difficult dealing.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

In the case of the spiritual interpretation the word Varuna and Aryama stand for God the most acceptable. How can we get the knowledge of the most abstruse subjects with the path shown by God who is dispenser of justice and Resplendent like the sun.

अन्ये विद्वांस एतेषामुत्तराणि एवं दद्युरित्युपदिश्यते ।

Learned persons should answer the above questions in the following manner is taught in the seventh Mantra.

Mantra—7

TRANSLATION

(1) In the case of God :

O men, I God the Creator of the world who give you instruction (through the Veda) in the beginning of creation, am worthy of adoration. You who are thoughtful and meditative, should long for me, as the wolf desires a thirsty animal.

(2) The Mantra is also applicable to a learned wise person who gives knowledge in the beginning of initiation. Men should always desire his company or association,

PURPORT

There is shleshalankar (double entendre) and Upamalankara (simile) God instructs all persons like this. O men. you must accept the teachings given by me through the Vedas after creating the world. Do not adore any one else except me. As a hunter or thief desires to get an animal, in the same manner, you should always desire to see me, by giving up all vices.

TRANSLATION

O Judge of infinite knowledge and good actions, some neighbours who injure and trouble others, cause harm to me-your subject or soldier who am admirer of Dharma or righteousness. Like the rival wives of one husband, they annoy me as a rat gnaws a weaver's thread. The rest as before.

PURPORT

There is Upamalankara or simile used in the Mantra.

O Magistrate or other dispensers of justice, you should punish those thieves and robbers who trouble us by their false resolves and actions, as co-wives disturb, the peace of mind of their husband, as rats destroy others articles or as prostitutes or women of loose character who are of un-steady mind like lightning cause harm to their licentious lovers by making them diseased and putting an obstacle in the performance of Dharma (righteousness) Artha (wealth) Kama (fulfilment of noble desires) and Moksha (emancipation) you should always protect and preserve us. Without the discharge of this duty on your part, prosperity of the State is impossible.

TRANSLATION

The seven Pranas are like seven reins on which is dependent the navel or centre of my body. I continuously live in that position. An absolutely truthful person who knows the true nature of knowledge, action and communion, respects the general public, treats her as his own daughter and is thus able to administer the State properly.

PURPORT

As there is the beauty and association of the rays with the sun, so there should be between the officers of the State and the subjects. Only a man who knows the real nature of the works, communion and knowledge, can please all his subjects by preserving and supporting them like a father and none else.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

TRANSLATION

O President of Assembly and other prominent persons, you should utter words denoting knowledge and light of justice to all men who associate with truthful enlightened people and who are like the five great objects in the sky full of divine attributes, great as rainers of happiness and water namely fire, air, cloud, lightning and the light of the sun.

PURPORT

As the sun and other objects, being combined with earthern vessels, clothes etc. cause great happiness to all through rain etc. and are connected with the earth etc. with the power of gravitation, in the same manner, the President of the Assembly and other officers of the State, should make men great, endowed with good virtues, should treat with them lovingly and justly and should keep them always happy.

O enlightened persons, as rivers urge on the waters, and the sun diffuses his constant light, in the same manner, you should teach and preach the eternal Truth which is in accordance with the Vedas, natural laws, Pratyaksha and other Pramanas, (authorities) the conduct of the learned and the wise, experience, conscience and purity, are praiseworthy and beneficial to all.

PURPORT

As the water of the ocean gives happiness to all by going up in the sky and then raining down, in the same manner, learned persons should acquire the knowledge of subtle sciences thoughtfully, should bring about the welfare of all by manifesting it. They should preach and propagate the true Dharma and should make all people happy.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(ऋतम्) वेदसृष्टिक्रमप्रत्यक्षादिप्रमाणविद्वदाचरणानुभवस्वात्मपवित्रतानामनुकूलम्
= That Truth which is in accordance with the Vedas, natural laws, pratyaksha (Perception) and other authorities, the conduct of the learned, experience, conscience and purity.

(अर्षन्ति) प्रापयन्तु । लोट् प्रयोगोऽयम्
= Cause to attain.

(सत्यम्) जलम् । सत्यमित्युदकनाम (निघ० १.१२)
= Water.

पुनर्विद्वान् प्रजासु किं कुर्यादित्युपदिश्यते ।

What should a learned man do among the people is taught in the 13th Mantra.

Mantra—13

अग्ने॒ तव॒ त्यदु॒क्थ्यं॑ दे॒वेष्व॒स्त्याप्य॑म् ।
स नः॑ स॒त्तो म॑नु॒ष्वदा दे॒वान्य॑क्षि वि॒दुष्ट॑रो वि॒त्तं मे॑ अ॒स्य रो॑दसी ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे अग्ने (विद्वन्) यस्य तव त्यत् यत् आप्यं मनुष्वत् उक्थ्यं देवेषु अस्ति स सत्तः विदुः त्वम् नः (अस्मान्) देवान् सम्पादयन् (आयक्षि) अन्यत् पूर्ववत् ॥

TRANSLATION

O learned person, you have that admirable knowledge among the truthful enlightened people which should be attained by all and which becomes all good persons. Destroy all our evils of ignorance etc. and being giver of true knowledge, make us truly learned, being yourself a great scholar.

PURPORT

Men should acquire knowledge and should hear sermons from a great scholar who is able to make people truly learned by teaching them all sciences and not from others.

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(अग्ने) सकलविद्याविज्ञातः
= Well-versed in all sciences.

(सत्तः) अविद्यादिदोषान् हिंसित्वा विज्ञानप्रदः । अत्र बाहुलकात् सद्लृ धातोः औणादिकः क्तः प्रत्ययः ॥

= Giver of true knowledge by destroying ignorance and othe evils.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

सत्तः is derived from षद्लृ-विशरणगत्यवसादनेषु here the meaning of अवसादन or destruction has been taken.

अग्नि is derived from अगि-गतौ गतेस्त्रयोऽर्थाः-ज्ञानं गमनं प्राप्तिश्च ।

Here the first meaning of Jnana or knowledge has been taken.

पुनः स (विद्वान्) तत्र किं कुर्यादित्युपदिश्यते ।

What should a learned man do is taught further in the 14th Mantra.

Mantra—14

सत्तो होता मनुष्वदा देवां अच्छा विदुष्टरः ।
अग्निर्हव्या सुषूदति देवो देवेषु मेधिरो वित्तं मे अस्य रोदसी ॥

सन्धिच्छेदसहितोऽन्वयः (ऋषिकृतः)

हे मनुष्याः ! यः सत्तः देवान् होता विदुष्टरः अग्निः मेधिरः देवेषु देवः मनुष्वत् हव्या अच्छ सुषूदति (तस्मात् सर्वैः विद्याशिक्षे ग्राह्ये अन्यत् पूर्ववत् ।

TRANSLATION

O men ! All should receive wisdom and education from a person who is highly educated and destroyer of all miseries, who accepts all divine virtues and actions, who is best among scholars, well-versed in various sciences and their teacher, wisest among enlightened truthful persons, acting like an ideal man gives well all desirable objects.

PURPORT

Who will be such an unfortunate person who instead of receiving wisdom and education from learned men will oppose them ?

THE COMMENTATOR'S NOTES

(सत्तः) विज्ञानवान् दुःखहन्ता ।

= Learned destroyer of miseries.

(मनुष्यवत्) यथोत्तमा मनुष्याः श्रेष्ठानि कर्माण्यनुष्ठाय पापानि त्यक्त्वा सुखिनो भवन्ति तथा ।

= Like good men who enjoy happiness by doing good deeds and giving up all sins.

(सुषूदति) ददाति = Gives.

(अग्निः) सद् विद्याया वेत्ता विज्ञापयिता

= Possessor and teacher of good knowledge.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTES

The adjectives like विदुष्टरः, देवेषु देवः, मनुष्वत् and मेधिरः used in this and previous Mantra make it quite clear that here the word Agni stands not for fire but for a highly learned and wise person. It is remarkable that Wilson and Griffith have interpreted these adjectives of Agni in these two Mantras as under.

Prof. Wilson has translated विदुष्टर (Vidushtarah) in 13th Mantra as "most wise."
